OFF THE RECORD By Ed Reed

"The auditor's office just called—we are working for the fun of it."

"The wind is playing weird little tricks today, eh?"

Jeane Dixon's Horoscope

For November 19:

Your birthday today: Adjustment, diplomacy are the clues to your success in the year ahead. You make do, get used to situations you had never expected. You attract friendly assistance from all types of people. Earnings likely increase as you use the knowledge gained in the last few years. Romantic attachments tend to run along normally, with vividly emotional moments. Today's natives are genial sympathetic philosophical.

ARIES (Mar. 21 — Apr. 19): You have better luck with those already convinced of your prospects. Romantic attractions, purchases of ornamental objects, sales efforts all promise poor results.

TAURUS (Apr. 20 — May 20): If you escape bickering you're doing well. It is easier to deal with strangers today than with associates. Major purchases are not favored. Resolve to improve your habits.

GEMINI (May 21 — June 20): Your mind outruns the range of ready possibility—make notes for future use. Relatives, neighbors respond better if a little distance is tactfully maintained.

CANCER (June 21 — July 22): Your expenses are almost certainly up a bit today in response to the needs of your loved ones. Be sure you know what is most wanted. Celebrate this evening.

LEO (July 23 — Aug. 22): This is not the day to close a property deal. Your attention to family developments turns out later to be important to all. The evening should include some meditation.

VIRGO (Aug. 23 — Sept. 22): Now is not the time to discuss financial plans with persons not directly concerned. By listening carefully you can learn of news being kept from you.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 — Oct. 22): Friends and money do not mix, unless it's your partners and their money for a change. Older people, traditional observances take up much time and resources.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23—Nov. 21): Anger and hasten are your worst enemies today, so contain yourself. Others will respect your effort. A peaceful phase in your home life upsets your work schedules.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 — Dec. 21): Enjoy watching and listening for clues to the behavior of people around you, what they expect. Much is learned and future embarrassments avoided.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 — Jan. 19): Social efforts are overorganized; too many people try to direct matters. Stick to what you know and have set; let others do the experimenting.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20 — Feb. 18): Your work makes heavy demands on you today, and nobody seems to have any patience while you strive to keep matters in balance. Make records, notes for later.

PISCES (Feb. 19 — Mar. 20): Distractions must not divert you from acting on the important parts of your work now. Older people slow things up — forbearance helps clear the way.

Many PhD Students Jobless

TORONTO (CP) — Predictions that large numbers of Canadian PhD students will be unable to find jobs when they graduate were supported Tuesday by the science adviser to the Science Council of Canada.

Dr. Frank Kelly said his studies have shown that less than half the candidates granted PhDs in engineering and sciences will find jobs next spring, and a similar situation exists in the humanities and social sciences.

Earlier Tuesday, the Graduate Students Union of the University of Toronto published a study claiming that only 105 of 190 PhD graduates from the University of Toronto this year found jobs.

It said less than half of the 158 who applied for university positions got them.

The report urged "immediate restrictions" in Canadian immigration policies on foreign professions where there is "abundant Canadian manpower."

The U. of T. study said the situation will get worse when the huge influx of students from the late 1960s graduates in 1971 and 1972.

Dr. Kelly, who has been preparing a report on the situation for the science council, said universities in Canada will produce 1,300 PhDs in science and engineering in the current year.

At present, industry in all of Canada does not employ more than 1,200 PhDs, he said.

Dr. Kelly said industry has become "too enamored of the PhD generally" because PhDs are often considered overspecialized and set in their ways.

Toll of Tidal Wave May Be 2 Million

Tom Hollyman

Only 4 Planes Carry Relief

DACCA (Reuter) — Six days after a tidal wave which local reports say may have killed two million people in East Pakistan, blankets today were stripped from prisoners to warm survivors facing death from exposure, hunger, thirst and disease.

Officials in the devastated islands in the Bay of Bengal, still covered in ankle-deep mud and debris, started going through jails gathering up blankets as an urgent relief measure.

Word of the action by harassed officials came here amid unofficial estimates of a final death toll from last Friday's cyclone and tidal wave of around two million, ninety per cent of the whole population of the area.

The official's desperate attempt to at least keep survivors warm pointed up the major problem of getting aid to the isolated low-lying disaster zone in the Ganges estuary in East Pakistan.

The relief operation is lagging badly because of the absence of Pakistani Air Force helicopters.

Only four helicopters, but most are in West Pakistan and would have to cross 1,000 miles of India. During the news conference Ankuzamzan refused to answer questions about the failure of the military to provide more aircraft.

Other relief officials said there had been a delay in the arrival of U.S. helicopters because the Pakistani government tried to specify that its pilots fly them. When the United States refused, the Pakistanis backed down.

Two American helicopters were due Saturday from Nepal. Four others expected tonight will not be ready to fly again before Saturday, Britain also is sending two helicopters.

Otherwise, aircraft now available consist of a military C-130 Hercules freighter, which was to start drops today; one military helicopter which had to be grounded for maintenance after 14 hours aloft; one short-take-off-and-landing plane, and the only seaplane in East Pakistan.

The air is the only feasible means for delivery of supplies to many of the stricken areas of the Bay of Bengal coast and the islands at the mouth of the Ganges River because all normal transport facilities were swept away by the winds and waves. Helicopters are particularly needed because many coastlines are still flooded, and drops from fixed-wing planes probably would miss the dry spots and be lost in the water.

Relief Commissioner A. M. Ankuzamzan told a news conference Wednesday that many thousands of survivors are still in grave danger because they have not received help.

Ankuzamzan said the official death toll now stands at 39,850, with 3,136 missing, but this "may shoot up like anything."

Jarring Abandons Peace Bid

UNITED NATIONS (AP) — The decision of Middle East peace mediator Gunnar V. Jarring to return to his regular post in Moscow dashed U.S. hopes that Arab-Israeli negotiations might resume in a few weeks.

The American hopes were based mainly on recent statements by Israeli Premier Golda Meir and Defence Minister Moshe Dayan.

Mrs. Meir told her parliament Monday that the U.S. and Israeli governments are looking for a new formula that will permit resumption of the indirect Israeli-Egyptian-Jordanian talks with Jarring as go-between. This indicated a retreat from Israeli insistence that she could not return to the talks until Egypt pulled back the sent-aircraft missiles allegedly moved closer to the Suez canal since the ceasefire in August.

Other reports from Tel Aviv said Israeli leaders feel that new U.S. planes and other weapons being supplied Israel offset the threat of the missiles.

Jarring, Sweden's ambassador to the Soviet Union, has been marking time at UN headquarters since Israel quit the talks Sept. 6. Along with the announcement that he was going back to Moscow, a spokesman said he would return to UN headquarters "within a matter of hours" if the situation required it.

The Washington Post reported today that Israeli Foreign Minister Abba Eban said in an interview that Israel now has three major reconnaissance the U.S. government must fulfil before it will return to the peace negotiations: continued U.S. military support of Israel, continued U.S. financial support for Israeli arms buying and abandonment of attempts to force Israel back to the borders it had before the 1967 Arab-Israeli war.

Russia's Lunar Buggy Still Roaming on Moon

MOSCOW (Reuter) — Russia's bathtub-like lunar buggy went into its third day trundling over the moon today showing no sign of ending its trips in the barren Sea of Rains.

Tass said Lunokhod I, the first land vehicle to move on the moon, was continuing its program of scientific and technical research. The Soviet news agency does not usually predict Russian space efforts in any detail although observers presumed the space car would not return to earth.

The eight-wheeled pioneer vehicle, basically a bath-shaped metal tank packed with instruments, rolled down a ramp off the top of its Luna 17 ferry ship Tuesday, pulling off another surprise first in moon exploration for its Soviet builders.

Since then it has taken sharp-focus television pictures while prowling around the flat plain of lunar lava. Some pictures relayed back to earth and shown on television in Moscow Wednesday night revealed how its spoked bicycle-type wheels sank deeper in some places than others.

Lunokhod's equipment includes a French-made reflector for bouncing back laser beams to observatories in the Soviet Union and France to measure radio interference.

A Soviet space scientist, academician Boris Petrov, said the reflector could determine to within several yards the exact distance between earth and moon.

The government newspaper Izvestia reported that the vehicle could keep moving on as few as two wheels if necessary. All its eight wheels are independently driven by electric power.

If one wheel got stuck in a rut, information would be signalled to earth, Izvestia said. A remote-controlled charge would then break a shaft in the drive and the wheel would be without power while the others pulled the buggy out of difficulties.

Petrov told Izvestia that self-propelled vehicles were indispensable for thorough study of a specific area of the moon.

Another scientist, academician Nikolai Barabashov, told Tass the moon's exploration would be followed by similar experiments with Mars, where it would be much easier for a self-propelled vehicle to move.

El Capitan Scaled In 27-day Ordeal

YOSEMITE NATIONAL PARK (AP) — The heroes of El Capitan celebrated their 27-day climb up the sheer side of the 3,000-foot granite monolith and began casting glances today at new peaks to conquer.

Warren Harding and Dean Caldwell sipped champagne and munched fried chicken—their first hot food since Oct. 22—and said their first ascent of El Capitan's Wall of the Morning Light would be their last.

"I feel great," said Harding, 46, of West Sacramento, Calif., as he arrived on the El Capitan crest just before noon Wednesday, smiling broadly through a heavy beard.

But when a reporter asked Harding, the dean of Yosemite climbers, whether he'd repeat the ascent, he said, "No way, man!"

Caldwell, 27, of Portland, Ore., commented: "I don't think I want to do the same one again. But I'll do others like it."

The climbers said they hope to form an expedition next June to all-repeat a new ascent route on a 20,000-foot ice peak in the Peruvian Andes called Jirishanca. Then they want to try the inclimbed rock wall along the Angel Falls in Venezuela.

Their first reaction on reaching El Captian's summit was astonishment at the size of the welcoming crowd, about 75 fellow climbers and reporters who reached the top the easy way—by a trail on the opposite side.

"God, I don't believe it!" said Caldwell as he arrived on top first at 11:34 a.m. Wednesday. He turned away and calmly resumed the chore of hauling up the 400 pounds of gear the men had carried 2,800 vertical feet and bringing up Harding on the climbing rope at 11:38 a.m. Then their girl-friends hugged and kissed them.

Follow That Bike!

With bicycle safety a chief concern of police forces everywhere, this "officer" wants to check the ancient pennyfarthing (called an "Ordinary") for safety features. Chicago Couple Held For Practice Murder

LAS VEGAS, Nev. (Reuter) — A Chicago couple have been arrested for a "practice murder" meant to test the husband's nerves for the planned killing of a wealthy relative, police said Wednesday night.

Police said Stuart Goldstin, 23, and his wife, Renee, 21, had been charged with homicide for allegedly killing a waitress Oct. 30.

They said Goldstein's wife had made a confession of the killing when she was picked up in Chicago Tuesday. They said she told police her husband had planned to use the money from the second murder to set up a sex ranch in Wyoming.

Police alleged the pair picked up waitress Alice Dexter, 31, after talking with her in the cocktail lounge and took her for a drive in their rented car. Miss Dexter's bullet-ridden body was found Tuesday in a gulch south of Las Vegas.

THE WEATHER

Synopsis: Southern Ontario will see some sunshine today as skies clear from the southwest. Temperatures will continue to be above normal for this time of year. A weather disturbance developing in the United States southwest is expected to bring more wet but mild weather to the province Friday. The precipitation will be rain in the south with wet snow anticipated north of the upper lakes.

Royalty Helps World Wildlife Fund Aid Vanishing Species

LONDON (AP) — More than 600 persons paid the equivalent of $50 to $1,250 Wednesday night to dine drink and dance in the same night club with 18 leading members of Europe's diminishing stock of royalty.

The organizers hoped the gala benefit would raise at least £100,000 ($250,000) for four-footed members of other vanishing breeds. The beneficiary was the World Wildlife Fund, and the party was the concluding event of its annual congress.

The royal attractions were headed by two reigning queens whose husbands are leaders of the fund, Elizabeth of Britain and Juliana of The Netherlands.

Among others in the royal section of the Talk of the Town were King Constantine of Greece and Queen Anne-Marie, Grand Duke Jean of Luxembourg and his duchess, and four future monarchs: Crown Prince Harald of Norway, Crown Princess Beatrix of The Netherlands, Crown Princess Margrethe of Denmark and Britain's Prince Charles.

The spouses of Harald, Beatrix and Margrethe, Don Carlos of Bourbon-Sicily and his wife, and Charles's sister Anne completed the royal contingent.

"It looks like a chess match —live," said Bob Hope, star of the floorshow. He shared the stage with dancer Rudolf Nureyev, singers Petula Clark, Tom Jones and Engelbert Humperdinck, and master of ceremonies Rex Harrison.

The Campaigners

Ontario Liberal leader Robert Nixon, (right), talks politics with Rev. Ian Munro at Tweed nomination rally last night. Both men will be campaigners in the next provincial election. Mr. Munro was nominated Liberal candidate in Hastings riding.

Liberal Candidate Chosen For Hastings Constituency

TWEED (Staff) — Liberals here have named a United Church clergyman as their provincial candidate in Hastings — a riding that has never gone Liberal since Confederation.

Rev. Ian Munro, 45-year-old pastor of St. John's United Church here, will seek to reverse the riding's political history in the next Ontario election — expected in 1971.

Mr. Munro, named after two other nominees declined to seek the party candidacy, took a crowd of 250 in the Senior Public School that the voice of the people was and being heard in government.

An overall "stifling attitude" existed in government in which "people no longer are people — they have no more rights," said the candidate.

Mr. Munro, father of three children, who took over his church appointments here a year ago, also was an executive member of a ratepayers' group protesting removal of the Tweed-Hungerford high school.

He said he wasn't running out of bitterness because the fight to retain the school had been lost.

But, he admitted, "it was the straw that broke the camel's back."

Mr. Munro was critical of decisions which are imposed "from the top" and not begun with the people.

"Unless the government is aware of your needs and your wants and does something to satisfy your needs and your wants, then the democratic process is no longer functioning," he said.

"Everybody who is a citizen of this country, this province and particularly this riding must be aware of the fact that a great deal of the power of the liberal electorate and the local ratepayer is being gradually eroded," she said.

Ontario, she said, is enjoying a period of unparalleled prosperity.

"Don't allow this security to let you lapse into a sense of non - involvement," warned Reeve Allen.

Charles Bates, Tyendinaga farmer who was named new president of the riding association, noted the constituency's history of Conservative victories.

But, in the past two years things have changed and Liberals know "there is a chance of winning — a very good chance. I have never seen as much unrest in the riding," said Mr. Bates.

Other executive members chosen were Mrs. Lillian Morrison, of Madoc and Pat Fitzgerald, as vice-presidents and John Desjardins, of Tweed, secretary-treasurer.

Tax Reform to Be Main Plank In Liberal Party's Platform

By HARRY MULHALL
Staff Reporter

TWEED — Ontario Liberal leader Robert Nixon last night denounced provincial government tax relief payments as political bribery disguised as tax reform.

Such payments amount to handouts in a pre-election year, costing close to $300 million, Mr. Nixon told a Hastings Liberal nomination convention here.

And, he said, the major issue of that election — when it comes — must be tax reform.

The provincial government claims its programs of individual grants to Ontario's property owners, farmers and pensioners is part of such reform, he said.

"It's not reform," charged Mr. Nixon. "It's gross political bribery. It's $300 million that's being sapped out of all of us whether we're rich or poor."

Such groups as farmers and pensioners need assistance to help pay their local taxes.

Yet, such taxes are inflated "simply because the costs of education are left dumped onto local property taxes to an unrealistic and unreasonable degree."

In the keynote speech to a convention which chose Rev. Ian Munro, 40-year-old United Church clergyman as Liberal candidate in the next provincial election, Mr. Nixon called for "new ideas, new priorities" to revamp Ontario's tax system.

He linked such reform with the need to halt the growth of centralized government.

"A new partnership and greater equity between provincial and local governments is long overdue, Mr. Nixon said.

Municipal Affairs Minister Darcy McKeough now has more responsibility for what happens in Ontario communities than locally-elected councils, he claimed.

Ontario at present has a "chaotic" grants structure making more than 100 grant programs available to municipalities.

"But everyone of those programs essentially leaves the decision up in Toronto as to what's to be done with your schools, your roads, your hospitals, your boards of health — everything from one end of the roster to the other.

"Now surely, the time has come to reverse this tendency," said Mr. Nixon.

Liberals favour tax reform that will do that.

This year, the government will spend $620 million on shelter rebate payments to help property owners pay their taxes, said Mr. Nixon.

The provincial government didn't have primary responsibility in local governments to give them larger grants "so they could decide what the tax level would be."

The Liberals propose to "require at least 50 per cent of education costs from property taxes to general tax revenues.

It would mean $800 million in extra expenditures. Yet, it's a priority, a new government could accomplish on a phased basis over four years, he said.

With nearly a half - billion dollars in surplus funds the Tories say they cannot set new priorities, but I do say it's time for a change," said Mr. Nixon.

The tax system must be revamped so that "it is fair and equitable for us all — without pandering to the cause of tax reform, so that special handouts come out in this year, 1976, before election year, 1977."

"I have never been more serious about anything in my life. The main issue in the next election must be tax reform, because the Conservatives are losing confidence in the people on the kind of program," he said.

Mr. Nixon attacked the government's current publicity campaign boasting Ontario, as a program "to sell us on what surely should be left to our own good judgment."

Yet Trade and Development Minister Stanley Randall says the program has only started, said Mr. Nixon.

"Goodness only knows what we're going to have at Christmastime," added Mr. Nixon.

"Santa Claus himself, with John Robarts face, is going to be on every billboard, I would expect."

Since it came to power in 1943, the government has grown without plan, said Mr. Nixon.

Among Liberal proposals for streamlining government operations is the centralization of health and social services into a single administrative unit — the Department of Community and Social Services.

Such a reorganization would link fast, effective service to the people to more efficient use of funds.

It was the third new portfolio aimed at streamlining government operations that Mr. Nixon has promised if the Liberals are elected.

In recent weeks he also has outlined proposals for departments of urban affairs and construction and supply.

Charge Reduced

The charge involved his stepson Robert Broadbent, 22, and his stepson's wife's common - law wife, Corinne Seale, 22, both of Picton.

Mr. Broadbent was convicted however, of the lachaid offence of unlawfully causing bodily harm by assault and will be sentenced Friday by Mr. Justice S. H. S. Hughes.

A shooting incident which led to the charge of attempted murder against Mr. Broadbent occurred last May 2 in his home, 9 John Street.

Crown Attorney Sheehy submitted that Mr. Broadbent entered his livingroom and fired several shots at his stepson and his common - law wife, who were lying on a couch watching a hockey game on television.

Miss Smith testified she was struck by a bullet in the upper right thigh. The court was also told a second shot grazed Robert Broadbent's abdomen.

Robert Broadbent testified that he rolled from the couch and subdued and held his stepfather on the floor until Const. Harry Sisty, of the Picton police department arrived.

Boy's Injuries Are Slight

Six year - old Richard Louis Dunbane of 245 Front Street escaped serious injury yesterday morning when he sustained only minor injuries after running into the path of a car driven by Terance Carmichael, 19, of 13 Chatham Street.

The accident occurred on Dundas St. East at 11:44 a.m.

Safety Often Suffers

History of the Bicycle Is Studded with Weird Designs

By IAN ROBERTSON
Staff Reporter
(First of two articles)

Tomorrow, Nov. 30, the Ontario Department of Transport will release an official report on statistics of bicycle riding habits, accident sites and vehicle styles related to safety riding.

This study coincides with information being gathered by the Belleville Police Department, safety division.

The Highway Traffic Collision Report indicates that during 1969 there were a total of 1,720 bicyclists injured in accidents, 1,468 in the 5 - 14 - year bracket. However, fatal injuries were reported decreased by almost 15 per cent.

Forty people died as a result of bicycle accidents in Ontario, as against approximately 600 in the U.S.

But, as Inspector Blatchford of the Belleville police stated "the proportion of deaths to injuries may be slight, but we are attempting to reduce them even further."

Safety officer Corporal Robert Hall explained that the young offenders receive instructions on the best riding habits when they are found to be disregarding certain safety rules.

"We only resort to confiscation of unsafe vehicles as a last resort," he said.

"We attempt to bring both the child and the vehicle before his or her parents; it really is better for the young-ster to receive parental guidance instead of a police lecture."

Both officers agreed that in all too many cases, the child simply receives a bicycle and is allowed to enter traffic with little concern as to whether or not he can properly manoeuvre the vehicle, or if he understands the proper methods of road travelling.

More details and reports on studies into riding habits will be released Friday.

The bicycles of today have evolved after almost 200 years of invention, improvements and — observing some of the odd-shaped vehicles on the streets — a granddaddy or two some of the same odd proportions quite probably existed years ago.

Historians place the birth of the modern bicycle on the shoulders of Charles, Baron von Drais of Sauerbrun, Germany.

Although he experimented with various hobbyhorses on wheels, as the locked-wheel varieties were referred to, his modification was equipped with a movable front wheel. It went on public display in Luxembourg in April of 1813.

This was called a Draisience. This same vehicle became commonly known as a velocipede under a different patent.

On oddly shaped vehicles with carriage - type wheels, movement was attained a bit through foot propulsion, somewhat like long strides when walking.

Because of public derision, the use of these machines fell out of popularity with private individuals, while inventors, mechanics, and mathematicians improved the vehicle.

Humorists of that day had a grand time writing humorous anecdotes about the velocipede and the riders.

"It is quite possible to sit in a wheelbarrow and to wheel yourself up a steep hill, but the position is an uncomfortable, and the process involves an infinitely larger expenditure of forces than walking, therefore we never see reasonable men exercising themselves in this way."

The method described, had the rider lying down in the barrow, pulling himself up a hill.

Inventions moved closer to the bikes of today. In 1839, Lewis Gompertz of Surrey developed a hand crank gear on the front handles: Kirkpatrick Macmillan, a Scottish blacksmith and engineer, developed a theory for balancing the bike and installed a system of treadles and cranks connected to the rear wheel hub in 1839.

It is interesting to note that he also became the first bicycle offender when in 1842 he was fined five shillings for running into a Glasgow child.

The most famous of historic bicycles, the penny-farthing, emerged from the Paris workshop of a Monsieur Magee in 1868. The front wheel was 48 inches, the rear 24. It's popularity grew because of the increased speed . . . and the challenge of skill to the riders.

By 1874 there were 26 bicycle manufacturing firms in England; by 1879 there were 60, producing 200 different models, including 3 and 4-wheeled contraptions.

Some of the penny-farthings were equipped with speed gears and speeds were reported to be as high as 14½ mph.

W. H. J. Grout improved and produced the "tension" bike. Radial spokes were connected to the hub with the heads clamped by sideplates to the hub flanges.

Early penny-farthings had flat rim wheels: thin, rubber-wrapped rims emerged later. The closest to the standard bike of today emerged in 1879 with the formation of the Bicycletta, a cross-frame safety style bike produced by H. J., Lawson.

The Humber bike of 1880 was a perfection of the Lawson model and modifications on this model were slight. One important alteration was the invention of a patented pneumatic tyre in 1888 by J. B. Dunlop, a Scottish veterinary surgeon.

Pedalling was a full time job until the development of free-wheeling axles in 1888. This innovation allowed the rider to coast and in the U.S. the coaster hub (free wheel and expanding brake) became extremely popular.

Sales of bicycles declined sharply between 1900 and 1920 but with the emergence of the mini-bike in 1968, invented by Alex Moulton and production in 1967 by Raleigh Industries, bicycles have again become a fad.

Next . . . Department of Transport reports, City Police studies and how parents and schools can aid children in safer bicycle riding.

Barnful of Bicycles

An old friend of Don Foster recently gave him this unusual old bicycle. The vehicle, a wooden-framed bike from the Hutchinson Bike Works in Alexandria Bay, was manufactured near the turn of the century. Mr. Foster completely restored it including last minute tightening of spokes. In his workshop are other antiques such as a cushion frame bike (circa 1896) equipped with two shock absorbers and original Dunlop tires and two pennyfarthings.

North Front Widening Required for New Mall

Construction of the new $7-million Quinte Mall in North Belleville will necessitate the widening of North Front Street to six lanes in that area.

This was learned by members of the city council traffic committee when they were asked to approve a direct entrance to the shopping mall from North Front Street just north of Bell Boulevard.

Committee members approved the requested entrance and exit from North Front but limited it to use by southbound traffic only.

In other words southbound traffic would be able to make a right turn into the shopping mall, while outbound traffic would be limited to a right turn south on North Front Street.

A traffic-lighted intersection with an advance left turn will be provided at Bell Blvd. to allow northbound traffic on North Front Street to get into the shopping mall.

Three entrances to the mall — two for the general public and one for service vehicles only — will be provided from Bell Blvd. west of North Front Street.

E. Gus Porter, solicitor for Cambridge Leaseholds Ltd., owners of the plaza, and Ron Ellingwood, secretary, stressed the importance of early approval for the entrances to allow a building permit for the new plaza to be taken out.

Completion of the project is scheduled for late next summer.

A Shell service station and carwash is to be built at the northwest corner of Bell Blvd. and North Front Street on property leased from Cambridge Leaseholds.

Mayor J. Rowsell Scott raised the question of possible street widening being required for North Front Street as result of the shopping plaza construction and suggested if this was necessary Cambridge Leaseholds be required to pay the city's cost.

Mr. Ellingwood agreed that widening of North Front Street both north and south of Bell Blvd. would be required.

If this wasn't done, he said, provision of a storage lane for northbound traffic waiting to make a left turn would reduce the artery to a one-lane thoroughfare.

Mr. Ellingwood said his company was prepared to make a "sizable" contribution toward the cost of the work.

In the end, the committee recommended the entrance to the plaza from North Front Street be approved on condition that Cambridge Leaseholds enter into an agreement with the city to pay the city share of any subsidized costs for required road widening.

Well Of Course!

Gallic logic would seem to prevail in the Quebec government's decision to communicate with other provincial governments in French.

Interviewed on this subject, the Quebec minister-in charge of the civil service noted that the other provinces probably would communicate in English. He added: "this is all right as long as we understand each other."

At this point the CBC interviewer, a little hesitantly and with a note of Anglo-Saxon incredulity in his voice, asked if this meant Quebec would write to say British Columbia in French.

The minister's reply: "Of course . . . they write to us in English."

And that was that!

Next thing we shall be seeing job openings for translators in the various provincial governments.

On-tar-io

Everyone is talking about those ingratiating billboard advertisements plugging the province of Ontario and the question of course is, are they really necessary? For one thing they are soaking up tax dollars which might be better directed toward problems like pollution. For another they could backfire, particularly at this dismal time of year, by making people realize that yes, they would rather be somewhere else. Instead then of getting us all out to wave a flag, some citizens might decide, if only out of perversity, that they would like to settle somewhere else. Having said that, we can only agree that this is indeed a good place to live, but do we have to have it rammed down our throats!

Public Wants Details

While we are on this subject of singing the praises of the province, the government would do well to give precise information as to what is being done to counter pollution. We are told, for example, that modern facilities would keep the mess of pollution down in the rumored kraft paper mill in Prince Edward county. Unfortunately, company officials and the government have been consistently vague on this subject. The public is entitled to know exactly what these facilities are and what may be expected of them.

Golf Veteran

Some 20 years ago a Belleville resident watched World Cup individual trophy winner Roberto de Vicenzo play an exhibition golf match over Belfast's wooded Belvoir Park course.

De Vicenzo and his fellow Argentine, Antonio Cerda, had just flown from Montreal and the inaugural Canada Cup tournament as it then was, and they were now teeing off with former British open champion Fred Daly and Harry Bradshaw.

Good sport that he was then, and still is, de Vicenzo nevertheless complained good-humoredly during the match that his game was not as sharp as he would like as a result of the overnight flight from Montreal. It seemed all right to the fans though, and particularly at the 12th where he had limbered up with a few casual but arrow-straight drives before commencing the game proper.

It seems incredible that now, 20 years and many victories later, de Vicenzo has just walked off with the World Cup individual trophy, and on his native heath with the temperature around 90 degrees. At 47 de Vicenzo now is one of the old soldiers of world golf, but unlike many other famous names of the game he is still soldiering on — and as may be seen, with a notable degree of success.

One hears little these days of Ireland's Daly and Bradshaw, now in their fifties and semi-retirement, although it will be recalled the latter won the World Cup team event, along with Christy O'Connor, in Mexico City a few years ago. And was it not Vancouver's Stan Leonard who, appropriately, won the individual trophy in that far-off inaugural event in Montreal?

Certainly, playing on home ground does something for a fellow, enabling de Vicenzo for example to stave off the challenge of Australia's David Graham, at 24 a generation removed from the Argentina and still virtually unknown on the international golf scene.

Role of Broadcasting Media and Press Under Scrutiny

By RICHARD JACKSON

OTTAWA — What is behind the call - to by the new, tough, Canadian Radio-Television Commission of the free programming tapes of the two national television networks and some 20 TV and radio stations across the country during the 18 dicisive days of the FLQ terrorist crisis?

Public outrages over the slanted and exploitively opinionated handling of some of the news, that is what.

There has been the same outcry against some of the news writing and handling in some of the papers — here in the Montreal - Ottawa - Toronto "megas" - triangle — but the lyrical media does not come under any government license, regulation, and upkeep; the record is there for anyone, including Senator Keith Davie's Committee on the Press, to read.

Another essential difference between the print and electronic communications, the broadcasters, with the federal CRTC monitoring them, use the public air, while the print media employ its own facilities with its readers, with their subscriptions, its very effective, and, at times like these past few weeks, active monitors.

Chairman Pierre Juneau of the CRTC says the Commission wants the broadcast tapes of the FLQ crisis for "historical" mainly; but concedes there is also the rather essential consideration of what public opinion has been to the use — or abuse — of the public air.

He wants the tapes of those of the CBC and CTV national TV networks at least two of whose news broadcasters involved themselves in a rather personality hellacmonery and highly emotional way with Prime Minister Pierre Trudeau.

Additionally called in for scrutiny are the tapes of radio stations in Ottawa, Quebec City and especially Montreal where two found themselves operating — by FLQ and not their own legislative — as message relays for the terrorists.

Some 80 hours of broadcast time, reveals Chairman Juneau, will be "studied," to use his exact word for it.

Now about that public reaction.

The broadcasters involved claim it was "divided" for and against them.

But in what proportion.

First on the CBC — and the publicly - owned network tended to lose it down — they say that newsman's ill - concealed cry or outrage in his question to the Prime Minister: "What is with all these men with guns (the troops) around here?"

In what was supposed to have been an interview, but what the transcript clearly shows was not merely an argument but confrontation, the CBC reporter expressed "horror" that the troops may have "pushed some of my friends 'round," questioned the Prime Minister's wisdom in calling the FLQ terrorists "bandits," and suggested that in making what the newsman termed "war" on them, Mr. Trudeau was jeopardizing "the validity of anything they say."

The Prime Minister told him "don't be silly." It was not a "war" as such, it was merely society protecting itself from "criminal violence," despite the blessings of "weak-kneed bleeding hearts who just do not like to see people with helmets and guns."

"At any cost," cried the CBC man in obvious shock at the thought of society going that far in safe-guarding itself, "how far would you go . . . to include wire-tapping and reducing other civil liberties?"

"Well, just watch me," said the Prime Minister keeping his cool in the face of this heat. "I think strongly most that the very means at its disposal to protect itself . . . I think that goes to my conscience."

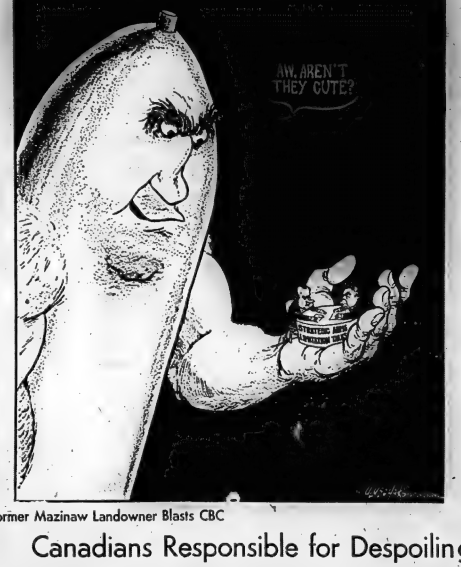
There was plenty of flack flying over that interview — both at — and inside — the CBC, and out came President George Davidson's order to "cool it."

Since then, some of the CBC newsmen who belong to what they call a "union shop" — whatever may term a "political party" have been yelping about freedom of the press.

On the other TV network, a similar and considerably more valuable newsman held in high respect by a mass audience, took off in strangely emotional heights and in purple passages "demanded" the resignation of the Prime Minister.

Well, that is the TV "color" side of the story, and on some radio networks, too, there was similar non-objective news emotion.

The press here in the Montreal - Ottawa - Toronto triangle, which likes to flaunt itself as the mind-bending "opinion-maker" of the nation, there was similar editorial — and news — and-anarchy.



The columnists and commentators had their opinionated say — and there is nothing wrong with that since it clearly was labelled opinion.

But the news columns, supposedly objective?

Perhaps it depends on the way you read it. But the staff of one big daily put out a "work-ers' edition," a sort of a big-p chatter sheet circulating well beyond the confines of its own plant, sloganing not far short of calling its editors fascists, and getting across the suggestion that Pierre Trudeau could be the reincarnation of the body in the Berlin bunker.

Then there has been the use of a half-page of newsprint by a reporter in a leading daily to pursue in public a strictly personal feud — to use a soft, low-key word — with Prime Minister Trudeau's senior press secretary, Romeo LeBlanc, and the occupation of another newsman in another metro daily of another half-page to grind a sharply personal axe against the Premier.

And so the flack flies, publicly, privately, hot and heavy and high.

Former Mazinaw Landowner Blasts CBC

Canadians Responsible for Despoiling Own Wilderness

From The Montreal Gazette
(Copy of letter to CBC president George Davidson)

I take strong exception to the outrageously chauvinistic pseudo-documentary program: The Great American Land Grab.

This hour was pernicously biassed and, by the process of editorial selection, projected a deliberate distortion of the facts as they actually exist.

I have been a resident of Canada for many years, although I retain my American citizenship. For your information, it took me nearly 30 years and a considerable sum of money to persuade the government of Ontario to accept the gift of my family property in North Frontenac County, to further the interests of historic, preservation, recreation. This property has now become the Bon Echo Provincial Park, dke nucleus of which is my portion of Lake Mazinaw, the famous "Rock" with Indian pictographs and 10 square miles of wilderness.

Bon Echo Park will be the third or fourth largest amenity of its kind south of the French River. So much for our landgrabbing, venal American. That is me, Mr. Davidson. (Mr) Vanlee ancestors landed in Massachusetts in 1633.

As a conservationist and historian who has specialized in Canadian themes, I have come to know a good bit about the history of land use and the natural resources of this country. This history, I assure you, contains an almost unbroken record of incredible waste, prodigal stupidity, and callous indifference.

To cite one example, the shores of the St. Lawrence Ri ver and the lower Great Lakes were alienated from the public domain as long ago as the 1830's — so persistent was the practice of cashing in on any and all resources in every way possible. This is a fact which your Land Grab broadcast managed very neatly to avoid.

Americans, despicable and scheming intruders that we are in the eyes of the CBC, had nothing whatever to do with the despoliation that has prevailed for into the present century. This is entirely a Canadian accomplishment.

It pains me to find myself descending to the Corporation's level. Nevertheless I feel that I must point out, on the basis of many years of observation, that "Americans" on the whole, tend to have a greater appreciation of the beauties and the unique quality of the Canadian wilderness than do most Canadians. But I must also admit that some of the "Americans" were later found to be returned "Canadians!"

I have been a long time supporter, and on occasion a milt tant defender, of the Corporation you now head. (I was writing when the documentary for the Canadian National Railways' Transcontinental Radio Network years before the CBC was even dreamed of. Therefore I feel entitled to ask just what happened between that time and now.

Scratch the pupils. They are too busy learning, and distorting pupil-teacher ratios, to spare the time to run the system.

Eliminate parents. Most of them realize their influence is negligible anyway! Their maximal connection with the school system — they merely supply children and money limits them to a token role.

Scrap the administrators on general principles. That would leave the teachers free to impose their own principles on the schools — a right being sought by a group of Metro Toronto High School teachers.

They already wield formal public library bargaining power through their association. The ers' organization and they have made headway towards gain- then broadcasting, such a maliciously conceived and malevolently executed program as The Great American Land Grab.

If you are hoping to foster Canadian "Nationalism" I'd say you're using a hell of a poor way to go about it.

Thugs Get Life Sentence

Calgary Herald

The sentences of life imprisonment passed in a Calgary court on 13 men convicted of murder will come as a shock to the silent majority of law-abiding young toughs in the community that acts of violence are not tolerated here.

The crime for which the accused were convicted involved the death of a man during an attempted robbery by a group of motorcycle members on a country road near the city. A total of 17 persons acted as a weapon in the fight. Of the 13 men sentenced, 11 were members of a motorcycle club called the Grim Reapers.

There will be too many toughs in circulation these days who look on the use of violence towards other people as legitimate ways of terrorizing rivals or hurting innocent people for the sheer thrill of sadistic self-indulgence.

Society cannot tolerate this sort of thing. In this case the wheels of justice move swiftly and surely. And that is the way it should be.

Nov. 19, 1970 . . .

The first of two Northwest Rebellions of the Metis, or half-breeds, under Louis Riel broke out 101 years ago today—in 1869. The Metis who were the hunters, boatmen and carters of the Red River in Rupert's Land, were alarmed at the possibility of a flood of Canadian immigrants into the area when the Hudson's Bay Co. handed over jurisdiction in the government of Canada. The subsequent rising brought about the creation of Manitoba.

1931—An atomic research plant was established at Harwell, England.

Associate Praises Mr. Allore

Editor,
The Intelligencer.

As a former art teacher at St. Michael's school — and art consultant for all Catholic schools in Belleville — now resigned — not that I wasn't happy in my position but because I did not have enough free time for my own work, I feel a great necessity to write on behalf of my association with Mr. Fred Allore.

During my two years of teaching, he put himself out to help me in every artistic endeavor with the children.

A class from St. Michael's created a unique float in the office. An appointment was made and the selected students were interviewed — each with the great respect. Mr. Allore and the students collaborated on color, size and design.

The finished plaque was presented to Mr. Allore, and he gave personal letters of appreciation to each student which meant a great deal to their creative efforts.

I felt Mr. Allore wanted to promote creativity in education, and I was always given every chance for any ideas which were offered by the students.

So much is being done today with education, getting back to nature (as in St. Catharines), the awareness of the world around us, and keeping it free of destruction and pollution. Children have to get out and see nature instead of being confined to the classroom.

Mr. Allore, I felt, had empathy in this realm of education.

PHILIPPA FAULKNER

New Educational Technique Crosses Subject Barriers

TRENTON (Staff) — Fifty-seven disciples of a fresh approach to education left here yesterday to spread the word to other teachers in Hastings County.

The group of primary school educators had participated in a two-day workshop at College St. School on the thematic approach to learning.

Organized by the Hastings County Board of Education and the Department of Education, the workshop was designed to change the attitudes of teachers and give them first-hand acquaintance with theme-orientated educational practices.

"We wanted to put the teachers through a situation that they were not used to when they went to school," James MacLean, junior division coordinator for the Department of Education told The Intelligencer.

Mr. MacLean explained that the teachers attending the sessions here were from schools throughout the county and that each would return home to tell others about the new way.

Thematic education involves dealing with one topic for extended periods, combining the studies in several subjects together into a whole.

Students would divide into work groups investigating areas of the theme particularly attractive to themselves, then integrating their findings into a total presentation of the topic for the class.

Teachers attending the workshop have investigated the shoe industry, some setting off to visit the Bata Shoe Co. plant at Belleville, others to shoe stores to do surveys on the popularity of various varieties of footwear.

Still others went to libraries to delve into the history of the shoe before returning to disclose their findings to the assembled workshop.

In making their presentations, the groups had recourse to various media — blackboards, overhead projectors, even video tape systems.

Essence of the thematic approach is to give a workgroup freedom to operate within a general framework, investigating the aspects of the matter at hand without supervision, and presenting assimilated data with vehicles of its own choosing.

Mr. MacLean told the workshop yesterday "to set children free to think for themselves and give them the skills of communication."

"The stimulus should come from the child's interest," he said, adding that educators often feel "if they are not talking, they are not teaching and if they are not teaching, the kids are not learning."

"Knowledge should be made fertile by a child's interest," he asserted. When the student has this interest, he contended, the system moves closer to an ideal in which "the child feels he has achieved something every day."

"Give them a chance to assume independence through themes. Try a theme, a vehicle, whereby you obtain the goals of the school," Mr. MacLean concluded.

Boston Willis, junior education consultant for Region Nine and one of the organizers of the workshop here, stresses that even though there is new freedom to the student in thematic learning, "a day of reckoning still exists." There is still an "accountability" — the efforts of the class are gauged when they have to present the findings of their free investigations.

During the workshop here, teachers heard speakers from the shoe industry, including Arthur Duncan, former Bata public relations officer, and Donald Leslie of Leslie Shoes, Belleville.

As the session wound up yesterday at. College St. School, Mr. MacLean expressed the hope that there would be some "innovating and experimenting with themes in the weeks and months ahead."

Indian Theme Night

John Jacobs, (left), and Chief Elsie Knott of the Curve Lake Reserve near Peterborough, discuss Indian life with children from Mount Carmel School, Carrying Place. Students of the school made study of the country's first inhabitants a full-time endeavor last week, presenting their findings in an exhibition Wednesday night.

Theme Study Demonstrated

TRENTON (Staff) — Thematic education, subject of a two-day workshop session here, was put into practice last night at Murray Centennial School.

The large auditorium of the school was filled last night as the primary students of Mount Carmel School near Carrying Place showed the results of their thematic study into the lives of Canadian Indians.

With displays surrounding the auditorium, the scene resembled a county fair as hundreds of parents milled past to see the exhibits that included a teepee, a kiosk of Mohawk handicrafts from the Tyendinaga Reserve, beaver pelts and posters.

Indian songs rang through the hall and the children recounted their findings to the assembly that included several Indian guests.

John Jacobs of the Curve Lake Reserve near Peterborough put on a traditional dance display as Chief Elsie Knott also of Curve Lake accompanied him on a drum.

Chief Knott later told the attentive crowd about Indian life and heritage, pointing out that the "great white explorers" who first saw North America were in reality just taken on guided tours by the Indians. "We helped the explorers to see Canada," she said.

The chief also stressed that it is difficult to carry on a discussion about Indians "because there are 1,240 reservations in Canada and each is different. For the same reason, she said, it is hard to formulate national policies for the Indians."

During the program, Mrs. Dolores Wawia of Thunder Bay gave the crowd a sampling of the Ojibway tongue and Corel, William Brant, Belleville OPP detachment, discussed the relevance of Indian heritage to his own life.

As the evening's activities concluded, those assembled left somewhat more knowledgeable about Indian life and the benefits of thematic approaches to education.

Fewer Properties Under Hammer For Tax Arrears

Increased interest rates charged for tax arrears, together with added penalties for late payment, have proved an effective measure in reducing the number of properties allowed to be sold for taxes.

This is evident in the city as well as in the rural municipalities where in most instances interest charged on tax arrears is now 12 per cent per annum.

In addition, in the county an added four per cent penalty is added, bringing the total interest to 16 per cent.

Tax sales in both the city and county are now over for another year and in both instances the number of properties actually sold show a big reduction from only a few years ago.

In the city, 18 properties were originally listed for the tax sale but by the date of the sale this number had dwindled to only two.

In the other 13 cases, owners paid up their arrears, thus removing them from the tax sale.

And of the two which went to the sale, one was put in for title purposes.

City Treasurer Frank Morrell says that in the case of estate settlement, allowing properties to go to tax sale is one of the best ways to get a clear title.

The owners of the other property sold for taxes has a year to redeem his property by paying tax arrears, penalties and other costs.

In the county, 223 properties were listed for this year's tax sale which was held in October.

But by the time of the sale only 54 remained on the list and were actually sold — and of these 11 were put through the sale for title purposes.

County Clerk - Treasurer and Administrator Carl E. Bateman estimated that of the remaining 43 properties only about 20 would not be redeemed.

A more agressive attitude toward collection of taxes was cited by Mr. Bateman as being responsible for a big decrease in the number of properties going to tax sale in recent year.

As recently as 10 years ago it was common for more than 100 properties to be sold for taxes each year.

This year's properties — many of them bush lots—were spread generally throughout the county.

Defensive Driving Course Offered

Loyalist College once again has organized a special mini course to coincide with Safe Driving Week.

During the week starting Dec. 5, the college will hold four two - hour classes in defensive driving.

Graduates of the course acquire a new appreciation of how accidents happen and their prevention, says a college outline of the program. The emphasis is on anticipating dangerous situations and how to avoid them.

The course is sponsored by the Ontario Safety League which claims that if the province's 2,000,000 licensed drivers took the program, Ontario's annual traffic death toll of 1,700 would be halved.

Beverley and Fred: Living Happily Ever After

25-year-old Fred Bear Has Rough Night Out

Not all bears have the staying power of Fred Bear, who's now about 25 years old.

But then, Fred Bear is no ordinary bear.

As Beverley goes, so goes Fred.

It's a relationship that sees him flourishing well beyond the life span expected to teddy bears.

Fred started in England in the possession of Beverley's mother, Mrs. Dudley Huckle.

Passed on to Beverley, the affection of the second-generation partnership renewed his lease on life.

So it went. Until a few days ago. Suddenly Fred was missing — inadvertently dropped during a trip between the store and the Huckle's home at 34 Bongard Crescent.

Beverley was disconsolate. Her father went searching the neighborhood. Mrs. Huckle even placed a newspaper advertisement to alert the public at large.

Then — just as suddenly — Fred was back, found on a neighborhood lot by Mr. Huckle.

In the interim, he'd not only been parted from his three - year - old. He had also been roughed up by a wandering dog — and it'll take a while before he's his placid 25 - year - old self again.

Not that Fred complained. There wasn't even a squeak out of him.

All the reaction came from Beverley — moddy smiles and chuckles. Just the sort of thing in fact, you'd expect ever after.

Energy Minister Confident Kraft Mill to Be Clean

Lake Ontario can digest any waste effluent from a kraft paper mill operating on the Prince Edward County shoreline, Energy and Resources Minister George Kerr said yesterday.

Mr. Kerr said he was "satisfied" if such a mill does locate in Prince Edward, people will feel they were unduly concerned" about its pollution potential.

Modern technology makes it possible for such industry to meet stringent government regulations, said Mr. Kerr, answering questions from Toronto on a Radio Station CJBQ open-line program.

The minister was queried on possible location of a kraft paper mill near Wellington, now under study by, Canadian International Paper Co. No decision has yet been made on the project.

He said the problem with locating a pulp mill in a community is "the reputation or image" given the industry by older operations which damaged Ontario waterways.

Today, such industries "have methods of properly controlling pollution and of treating their waste."

There is a hearing by the CIP project "next month if they are objecting to any development permit or are concerned about pollution."

"If it's the issue, I don't think they have any worries," he said.

Enthusiastic Response To Bottle Contest

A competition to foster interest in books among the younger set in Belleville has drawn an enthusiastic response.

Belleville Public Library, to mark Young Canada's Book Week, sponsored a contest for a book character built on a plastic bottle base. Entries reached 103 before judging on Tuesday, including so many pigs that the staff had to add a new category — pigs for four-footed animals.

Alan Gordon, former OSD teacher and organist, judged the entries and will present the prizes to the seven winners at the Pinnacle St. library Saturday morning.

Entries were judged in three categories, with a first and second prize awarded in each — for grades 1 and 2 children, grades 3 and 4 and grades 5 an 6.

This year, elementary school teachers in some schools used the contest as the basis for art lessons, and judged the finished characters in a school competition before submitting the best examples of pupil's art to the library contest.

In conjunction with Young Canada Book Week, Miss Jean Williams, librarian of the children and girls' department, has arranged to give a puppet show Saturday morning at the library before presentation of prizes. She gave a similar show for pre-schoolers at the East Hastings Library Wednesday morning.

Japanese Chicken Wings

MARY MOORE

Mrs. Maureen S. Carmichael has asked for chicken wings to which I tried it for several occasions. When I was visiting my family when they were invited to Fort Lennox with Chateau the Japanese style rolls served them at a function. Other Ex-said Japanese featured dish-battered chicken wings as appetizer. Also, this could be an entree served on rice with a salad for a family or guest dinner. It has many possibilities.

JAPANESE CHICKEN WINGS
3 lbs. (about 18) chicken wings
Marinade:
½ cup sugar
1 tsp. salt
½ tsp. pepper
2-4 cup soy sauce
½ cup MSG

Cut tips from chicken wings (and make soup stock with them). If desired cut through second joint to make about 36 separate pieces.

Arrange in one layer in shallow pan. Combine all marinade ingredients and stir until sugar is dissolved. Pour over wings, turning each wing over and allow to soak 24-hours. If you want wings sooner marinate for as long as time permits, turning frequently.

Arrange on shallow pan (broiler pan is good) crowding them together. Pour all marinade over. Bake (or broil) at 400 deg. Fabry turning 2 or three times — about 20-25 min. until rich mahogany color. Do not overcook. You must watch these closely as the sugar content will make them burn easily.

Dinner Menu

THURSDAY

Sausage Rolls; Apple Chutney; Mashed Squash; Creamed Broccoli; Tomato Aspic Salads on Ribb Lettuce; Creamy Tapioca Pudding; Coffee.

SNEAKERS by Jimmy & Mary

NOTE: If you want to make them in advance do so and store wrapped in foil. To reheat arrange on broiler pan and bake through at 200 deg. Fahr. These are ideal finger food either hot or cold but you must provide large paper napkins. Ideal for Christmas holiday parties.

Capacity Crowd Attends UCW Luncheon

By ALLISON STICKLE
Women's Editor

That the Yuletide season is fast approaching was evidenced Wednesday afternoon at the Holly Day Luncheon and Bazaar sponsored by the Bridge Street United Church Women, held in the church auditorium.

Upon entering the vestibule an air of festivities prevailed with Yule decor at every vantage point. At the entrance to the main hall there was a white picket fence adorned with garlands of holly, brightred poinsettias and evergreens, bought with sparkling Christmas globes adding their colorful accent. Mrs. J. Parrott and her committee had arranged the striking decor, and the luncheon preceding the bazaar was convened by Mrs. J. Loynes and Mrs. W. McGee.

By 11.30 a.m. throngs of guests began arriving for the smorgasbord luncheon, with the hall filled to capacity by noon hour. In the luncheon room, two long buffet tables centred with poinsettia arrangements were laden with platters of turkey, potato, cabbage and jellied salads and numerous relish plates. The guest tables were attractively appointed with green and gold decor where guests were served tea or coffee and dessert.

Warmly greeting the patrons to the event were UCW president Mrs. Berry and minister of the church Dr. H. M. Davis and Mrs. Davis. At the luncheon room hostess, Mrs. R. Burtt was busily engaged in seating the 500 guests who attended.

The various sales booths all set in the Yule theme did a landside business as throngs of people crowded each exhibit every one of them. Unit leaders were in charge of each.

The Christmas boutique seemed quite popular with its variety of items many improvised from every day household items such as egg containers, coat hangers and other articles. Here are Christmas tree aprons and miniature Christmas tree centrepieces were most predominant. Mrs. L. McQuaid was convener.

Many colorful aprons were sold by Mrs. P. Kitcher and Miss Grace Kenny. A fine assortment of homemade candy was convened by Mrs. J. Rande and Mrs. H. Burns. The variety table with an array of miscellaneous items was convened by Mrs. L. Lockhart.

The country store and delicatessen was typically just that with almost every item comprehensible for sale with jams, jellies, pickles, canned goods, mincemeat, and many others sold by Mrs. A. Cameron.

Many gift items were available at the knitting and sewing table including dolls wardrobes, baby sets, tea cosies and stuffed animals with the Centennial Unit in charge of sales. The Sewing Clubs also had a fine display of similar items.

Throngs of patrons gathered at the homebaking table where pies, cakes, tarts, homemade buns and breads were sold by Mrs. W. McBride and Mrs. S. Cullen. A snack bar was convened by Mrs. T. Colden. A host of UCW members assisted with the various duties which included a busy assembly line in the kitchen which kept things running smoothly throughout the event.

A nursery was provided for the children and waf looked after by Mrs. D. Maddocks. The CGIT group was also in charge of a booth.

Publicity and reservations for this most successful effort, were arranged by Mrs. J. Demers, Miss Myrtle Reid and Mrs. S. Riley.

MR. AND MRS. DAVID FRANCES CLARKE

Clarke – Weymark

Rev. A. McDowell officiated at the recent wedding ceremony in Eastminster United Church, Belleville, when Penny Louise Weymark, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Wilfred Weymark of Belleville was united in marriage to David Frances Clarke, son of Mr. and Mrs. "Bud" Chipps also of Belleville.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a bridal gown of white peau de soie in princess style with the fitted bodice featuring a stand-up collar and long fitted sleeves trimmed with lace and the high waistline adorned with matching lace. A pillbox headdress of lace was caught to a shoulder length veil of silk illusion. She carried a bouquet consisting of solitaire white orchid encircled with orange roses and white feathered carnations.

The maid of honor Miss Wendy Arthur was gowned similarly to the bride in princess style orange crepe with white bow in her hair and she carried a bouquet of orange roses and white feathered carnations. Lynn Ann Chipps, sister of the bridegroom was dressed identically to the maid of honor, but in yellow and carried a bouquet of white and yellow feathered carnations.

A reception was held at the bride's home following the ceremony where the bride's mother welcomed the guests wearing a mauve wool suit with white mink trim, black accessories and a corsage of white carnations. Assisting, the bridegroom's mother wore shrimp colored crepe dress with beige accessories and a corsage of white carnations.

Mr. and Mrs. Clarke will reside in Hamilton.

Festive Atmosphere at Rebekah Tea, Bazaar

By SUSAN KORAH
Women's Reporter

Part of the fun of Christmas lies in the anticipation and a festive atmosphere prevailed at the Christmas tea and bazaar held Wednesday afternoon by the Quinte Rebekah Lodge No. 133 at the IOOF Hall.

A Christmas tree complete with tinsel and colored lights as well as holly wreaths and other Christmas decorations in the foyer gave the large number of guests a preview of what lay in store for them in the bazaar room.

At one end of the bazaar room a larger Christmas tree shimmering with silver streamers and ablaze with colored bulbs was ornamently displayed. Red and green streamers adorned the walls.

At the opposite end of the room was displayed a novel handmade Christmas table cloth of pale green net appliqued with Christmas trees, angels, poinsettia, bells and other Christmas emblems round the edge. Sequins glittered on each motif and the edges were trimmed with dark green tassels. The draw for this article which was the handiwork of several members of the lodge was won by Mrs. D. M. Link.

The overall convener of the bazaar and tea was Maysel Sills while the co-convener was Ethel Osborn.

The Christmas table convened by Ida Holt and Phyllis Wing was laden with a wide variety of gifts, decorations and novelties ranging from evergreen wreaths and miniature Christmas trees to card holders and corsages appropriately composed of bells, holly and other articles associated with Christmas.

The fancy work table convened by Martha Norris, assisted by Margaret Norwood featured among other items mats covered with tin foil which would make attractive table decorations, a white hand crocheted table cloth and knitted egg warmers.

The well-laden bake table was convened by Helen Hogate assisted by Helen Shorey while the ever-popular candy table was convened by Flossie Bird with Helen Brenton as co-convener. Aprons of all sizes, colors and designs were also on sale under the directorship of Ila Addy assisted by Alice Adams.

A miniature gateway entwined with poinsettia chains formed the entrance to the tea room, the walls of which were decked with boughs of holly. A solitary gold star hung from the chandelier over the main table. The chandelier was further adorned by red and green streamers. Below it, a centrepiece composed of holly, gold balls and frisky baby reindeer was flanked by two candelabra holding red and green candles.

Each of the smaller tables held a slender gold wax topped with a tiny red reindeer or a pair of napkin robins. Serviettes with Christmas motifs and dainty lace paper doilies further emphasized the festive theme.

In the kitchen Grace Alger was the convener while the co-convener was Gladys Bosse. Edith Rushworth and Annie Webb were in charge of tickets.

Through These Gates

Guests at the Quintena Rebekah Lodge tea held on Wednesday afternoon had the Hall pass through the gateway entwined with chains of poinsettia to the interior which was gally adorned with evergreen and other decorations in keeping with the Christmas theme of the event.

Yule Tradition in Miniature

The various sales tables at the Holly Day Luncheon and Bazaar sponsored by Bridge Street United Church did a thriving business on Wednesday afternoon. One of these was the Christmas boutique where saleslady Mrs. H. W. Karn shows Mrs. 'Mac' Smith a miniature Christmas tree centrepiece, one of the more popular items for sale.

Bad Color

FRANKFORT, Ky. (AP)—Republican Edith Stanley, one of the few women to run for circuit judge in Kentucky, had a prepared consolation remark when she saw she was losing the race at Louisville. "I'll just tell them I look terrible in black robes anyway," she said.

We have succeeded in pulling a particularly interesting upstaging caper: A portable radio with a pop-up, honest-to goodness television.

Goes anywhere. On battery or house current. And it delivers a great black and white picture, as well as great FM/AM music.

This innovation popped-up at our TV factory. Where we make TV's ranging from 11½ inches to 20 inches in screen size. The 11½-inch one is the world's smallest TV. Sort of like a wrist-watch.

You've got the idea now. We become very involved in making TV's.

And we make them in all kinds of combinations. Some with FM/AM radios. Some with clocks. Even portable TV's with batteries inside so you can take them anywhere.

And as features go . . . we don't skimp. Which explains our slide lever controls for precision adjusting.

Speedy Vision for instant sound and picture—so the team doesn't score while your TV is warming up. And a few other goodies like dark-tinted screens and direct vision tubes for better viewing.

Ann Landers

Operations Give Youthful Appearance

DEAR ANN LANDERS: A friend of mine returned from a three-week vacation. She looked wonderfully well rested — in fact, downright youthful. I jokingly asked if she had had her face-lifted. Her answer stunned me. "Yes," she replied, "I had my face lifted and that's not all. I had everything lifted."

I had never heard of the surgery she described and would like to know if you've ever heard of it and if it is safe. It seems she told her breasts raised, the inside flabby part of her upper arms "tightened up surgically" and the fat portions of her hips and thighs "narrowed down." The four operations, including the face-lift, were done within a week. The stitches were removed after five days.

The woman looks thinner and younger and she's thrilled with the results. She wasn't exactly fat but she did sag where models women sag when they hit middle age. I must admit she doesn't look a day over 45. Her actual age is 58. I am dying to hear what you have to say. Is this type of surgery dangerous? Is it expensive? Can anything go wrong? How long will the results last? Would you recommend it? — TOYING WITH AN IDEA.

DEAR TOY: Your last question first. I am in no position to recommend surgery of any kind since I am not a physician. Can anything go wrong? Yes. No surgical procedure is 100 per cent safe. The removal of a silver can result in complications. Is it expensive? It depends on the surgeon and the relative financial status of the individual involved. To a millionaire, $3,000 is chicken feed. To a stenographer it can be a fortune. How long will the results last? It depends on the person. Some women are blessed with skin that holds up well. (Staying away from bones and out of the sun can be helpful.) At this point I would like to disabuse you of the notion that plastic surgery will delay the aging process. It will not. Time marches on and it waits for no man — or woman.

My advice to anyone considering cosmetic surgery is to make an appointment with a reputable plastic surgeon (one whose work you have seen, if possible.) Learn as much as you can about the procedure. Then decide, in the doctor's guidance, whether or not it makes sense for you.

* * *

DEAR ANN LANDERS: Thank you for saying, "Not everyone belongs in college." Too many parents have the idea that vocational education is O.K. for somebody else's children, but they want their kids in college — a prestigious one, if possible. It is this kind of thinking that has produced serious problems in filling positions of a highly skilled nature. Eight-five per cent of the jobs available today do not require a college degree. In most cities, public school systems are equipped with the necessary resources to train students for vocational training, but they have trouble getting the students to enroll in such courses as the building trades, graphic arts, and service trades such as barbering, cosmology, auto mechanics, etc.

If more people such as you, Ann, who are in a position to influence the public, would stress the importance of vocational education and the dignity of work, it would help to straighten out the thinking of some very mixed up folks. — J.F.S. DADE COUNTY.

* * *

DEAR J.F.S.: "The dignity of work." A beautiful phrase — one that has the ring of days gone by. Thanks for reminding us. Are you listening, students?

* * *

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I have four children under 12 years of age and they make quite a bit of laundry. Rather than do a monstrous wash once a week I run a machine or two every evening. My husband thinks this is ridiculous and we've had arguments about it. He says I'm a lousy manager and there must be something wrong with a woman who has to wash every day.

I know this seems like a petty thing to be writing to Ann Landers about but it is getting me down. What are your views? — ST. CLOUD.

* * *

DEAR CLOUD: If you want to wash every day what difference does it make to him? I assume you don't tell him how to run his business and he shouldn't be telling you how to run your house. In order to eliminate some of the friction, why don't you run the machine before he gets home? Maybe the sound of the machine gets on his nerves.

Successful Living

20 Percent of Canadian Families Eat Together

By DORIS CLARK

The family that eats together keeps together, they say, that's my version of the old saw.

I was talking to a family physician. He says about 20 percent of our Canadian families have their meals together. Time and again when he visits a home he finds that one family member rushed in, gets some peanut butter, bread and milk and rushes out again. That's lunch. Breakfast is a rush too. And dinner is not much better.

But with today's shift work, children's school hours, and other appointments, it is hard to find the home where connections is companionable and easy.

What a terrible loss! We are told that for physical and mental health we should be relaxed while we are eating our meals. We know that from a family point of view, meal time should be a chance to share some of the things that have happened during the day; a time when big brother and little sister can report on the latest school activities.

It should be a time when Mother and Dad can join in the conversation while their glances rest in delight on these precocious little ones of theirs. All sorts of things come out over the dinner table.

Mothers, dads, kids — don't short - change yourselves and your loved ones, by giving meal times less importance than they deserve. Make your schedules fit in with a dinner hour that will accommodate everybody.

* * *

Dear Doris: My steady broke up with me because he was used to the kind of girl who would let him do anything and I wouldn't. A month later he came back to me and never tried to touch me any more than most boys try to.

About two months later we got into a terrible argument and as things went, we made up and I gave in to him that night.

I discovered that sex was not all that people make it out to be. I told my mother about it and she said it wasn't uncommon by girls my age to give in to a boy and find out it wasn't so great. Ever since this I didn't want anything to do with sex but once I'd given in to my boy friend I felt bad about saying no, so, I pretended I liked it. I thought I loved him then, and I think I still do.

Doris, is this wrong? I am 15 and he is 19. — Not A Virgin.

Dear Not: Is what wrong? Giving in to him in the first place, or keeping up a false front, or considering that he is four at 19? I regret to say that many women keep up the pretense of love through many years of marriage, and the reason is not that sex is wrong, but (1) it is too mixed with guilt feelings, (2) they are not really in love, or (3) they have never learned what this physical expression can be like at its best.

Whether it is wrong is beside the point. Any self-indulgence which is done at the price of your integrity is self-destructive. And it is highly unlikely that this is the kind of love that lasts.

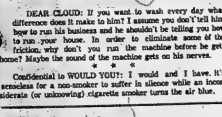
WEDDING

BURTCHAEL — GILMOUR

On November 14, 1970, at St. George's Anglican Church, Trenton, Mrs. Cecilia Mary Gilmour of Trenton and Benjamin Burton Burtchael of Tweed were united in holy matrimony at a quiet family ceremony performed by the Rev. Michael Caswell.

The bride was given in marriage by her son-in-law, John Zellie of Toronto, and was attended by her daughter, Mrs. Betty Zellie.



The bridegroom's son-in-law, Hugh G. Griffith also of Toronto, acted as best man.

Mr. and Mrs. Tommy Theofylaton, son-in-law and daughter of the bride, entertained the wedding party after the ceremony at an intimate family dinner held in their home on Prospect Hill, Trenton.

Following a short motor trip Mr. and Mrs. Burtchael will reside at 255 River Street, Tweed.

Points for Parents

By MARY BRYSON

Mother: "Come, be quick now, and get to bed for your nap. I have a lot of things I want to get done this afternoon."

Child: "I want to stay up. I have to play with my train. It's only half way to the station."

Mother: "You may push the train around the track once more. Then it will be time for the engineer to take a rest. As soon as the clock hands point to 1, the alarm will go off and it will be time to take off your shoes and lie down for awhile."

A 4-year-old may be reluctant to stop playing if you interrupt his activities abruptly. A little warning and an impersonal reminder, such as a timer or a clock, will make rest time seem like part of the natural routine, not just a mother's whim.

Stanfield Says Trudeau Has Failed to Shake Out Inflation

OTTAWA (CP) — Opposition Leader Robert Stanfield suggested Wednesday that the government wanted to take the country by the neck and shake the inflation out of it, but did not succeed.

Now, Prime Minister Trudeau and his cabinet are helpless in the face of threatening economic difficulties, Mr. Stanfield told the Commons in the first day of a two-day debate on a Conservative motion of non-confidence in the government.

The Conservative motion asks the Commons to condemn the government for what it says is official refusal to let against poverty and social injustice resulting from a badly-waged fight against inflation.

The government has increased regional inequalities through its opposition to full employment, the motion says.

An NDP amendment to the motion blasts the government for what it describes as unwillingness to assume responsibility for promoting health, welfare and education in Canada.

Both the main motion and the amendment will be voted on at the close of the debate tonight.

New Democrat Leader T. C. Douglas, who moved his party's amendment, said every move by the government seems aimed at improving the lot of the wealthier provinces and damaging the poorer ones.

The government's policies for reducing regional disparities had been a colossal failure. The undesirable effects of the government's program of restraint had fallen heavily on the poorer regions.

The Commons turned to the debate on the economy following several days of clause-by-clause study of the government's bill to replace regulations under the War Measures Act. That debate was to resume Monday.

The Commons will not sit Friday so that MPs will have a chance to attend the funeral of Bernard Pilon, the chief government whip who died Tuesday.

Manpower Minister Otto Lang said Mr. Stanfield doesn't really understand Canada's economic situation or the financial structure of the country.

"He doesn't seem to realize the natural economic impacts of trying to get the economy under control."

The economy was moving ahead. It was "basically sound and we are now beginning to succeed."

Rene Matte (Gratiste—Champlain) complained that the government is spending more to assist immigrants into Canada than it is for poor families in Canada.

George Hees (PC—Prince Edward-Hastings) said there should be a 25-year tax holiday for manufacturing firms in depressed areas.

This would be in addition to incentives now paid under the regional economic expansion program, Mr. Hees said.

All federal, provincial and municipal taxes would be forgiven for new plants in underdeveloped areas for 10 years under the Hees proposal. There would be on a graduated scale for the following 15 years.

Arnold Peters (NDP — Timiskaming) said the federal economic expansion program should concentrate on subsidizing industries which would not have otherwise moved to a poor area.

Novembers long morning rays silt dry elm limbs of the northern woods laying a lightness on the black spruce limbs that stand in the early frost.

Breaking the morning silence is the brittle crash of leaves as an eight point whitetail buck picks his way from a high acorn drumlin towards the swamp, black nose testing the air and grey-hued autumn coat shading the fallen foliage.

Alive, alert — and about to die, from the dull rap of a .308 scoring hard circles of sound expanding through the silence and a soft-nosed bullet exploding in his lungs.

Tail down he bolts several panic stricken strides and piles up in a suddenly shapeless mass of legs and antlers — If he's lucky.

If the hunter's aim was bad, or he was underground or the bullet didn't open, you have a wounded animal dying a slow painful death in the swamp he tried to reach.

Certainly not a pretty scene, but one that occurred with more or less the same results 2500 times of those in the Tweed area alone this year. .

For what?

Meat? (With every chain store in existence advertising high grade Canadian beef). A trophy? The satisfaction of confrontation?

Isn't it about time that we halted the carnage against what one nature lover describes as "a defeated, dislocated and completely bewildered adversary?"

I, for one, think not.

Such evil meaning individuals are in much the same position as a surgeon recommending arm amputation as a cure for a fractured finger. They mean well, but are just a little ignorant of the long range situation.

The white-tailed deer is about as close to being defeated as the common cold. Indeed the inroads it makes on our country's food producing areas have actually accounted for huge increases in the deer herds.

Deer weren't that plentiful in North America originally because the dense forests prevented widespread growth of weeds and shrubs used for food and Hiawatha probably dined much more extensively on rabbit stew than on venison steaks.

Because of extensive logging operations, however, the food supply has greatly increased along with the number of deer.

As for being delusions or bewildered, they certainly wouldn't fall into either category. The white-tailed deer's combination of sight, sound and scent are probably better developed than any other North American game animal.

While being unable to detect colors or distinguish motionless objects readily, the deer are able to detect even the slightest movement, and this, coupled with their keen sense of hearing and smelling, prevents them from falling over human hunters in excreting large commodities. Only one out of every six hunters in the Tweed area this season filled his deer license.

The fact of the matter is that, because of the lack of natural predators, such as wolves or cougars, the deer would flourish in winter of slow starvation without some controls on their numbers.

The deer browse over the undergrowth in their winter pens, when their numbers exceed the amount that the forage can supply — —starvation sets in.

So the death brought by a well-placed bullet can often be a blessing in disguise to the deer population in general, while even a wounded animal won't suffer any greater agony than can be brought about by starvation.

But this still doesn't explain why approximately 16,000 makes trooped to the surrounding woods this fall to endure wet feet, baked beans and mass bunkratting rides over back county roads. Certainly not for humanitarian reasons.

For instance, while the road north may not be the smoothest he isn't forced to alter his route for such minor details as rest rooms, ice cream, antique sections, historical sites or Santa's Village.

And while his trusty hound dog may not remind him of Chanel Number Five, he also won't remind him that, "you could at least dress for dinner" or "for heaven sakes George isn't FIVE martini's enough?"

And while the death and pain involved in the sport of hunting may appeal to man's more primitive instincts, until modern science comes up with a cure for these and other basic drives like sex, let's understand fully before we condemn.

Hawley Sets Sights on Shoemaker

"I just want to be the best jockey in North America." the 21-year-old rider will say when you ask him why he climbs on seven or eight thoroughbreds every day.

"Right now, what I want most s to beat Shoemaker's record and win the championship Then I'll be the best rider."

Hawley hasn't far to go to pass the record of 485 wins in one season set by Bill Shoemaker in 1953.

In early November he rode his 400th winner, becoming only the fourth jockey in North America ever to reach that mark in one season.

The following day he made winners out of five of the six mounts he rode to pass the Canadian single-season record of 304 winners set four years ago by Avelino Gomez.

Two days later he had pushed his North American mark to 409 wins and, after washing Greenwood Racetrack mud from his slender, well-muscled frame, sat down in the tack room to discuss his short, sensational career.

Sandy was born in Oshawa, Ont., April 16, 1949, and lived there until his family moved their home to nearby Whitby when he was about 10.

"That's when I first got started with horses. My uncle, Web Bebb, took me to the national stud farm there where I met Mr. Duke Campbell, who started me riding horses.

"I was always interested in sports of all sorts, which is what got me started in racing —but no, I don't think I ever had any other real ambition.

"I played hockey in a league when I was younger. At that time it was okay because all the other guys were the same size as I was, but after a while they grew up and I just stayed where I was."

Sandy now stands five foot two and holds his weight around 105 pounds.

"I've never had any trouble with my weight, which I guess has made it a lot easier for me.

"I don't have any special diet; I just eat normal food."

Hawley is under contract to Tom Hays, an Oakville, Ont., cattleman and horse owner. The contract expires next June.

"Yes, sir, Mr. Hays has my contract. But, I think after it expires I'll go on my own."

When you ask Sandy to describe his style of riding and explain why it is that he manages to win with horses that often are not expected to win, he has to search hard for an answer.

"It's kind of hard to explain —I don't really know how I do it sometimes.

"But, under ideal conditions I can sit loose in the saddle and rate the horse. I can tell when to hold him back and when to send him out in front.

Standing Ovation

Punch KOs Leafs in Triumphant Return

By IAN MacLAREN
Canadian Press Staff Writer

Punch Imlach was a little apprehensive Wednesday night about his first visit to Maple Leaf Gardens since his dismissal by Toronto Maple Leafs after the 1968-69 season.

For 10 years, as general manager and coach, he had listened to exultant cheers when the team was riding a crest, and just as often bore the brunt of jeers when they were in a slump.

But Toronto fans were rewarded with four Stanley Cups in the Imlach era. Wednesday night they didn't forget.

And when it was all over, with the expansionist Sabres 7-2 victors over Toronto, those who remained until the bitter end cheered a triumphant return.

In other games, Boston Bruins and New York Rangers reclaimed a share of first place in the NHL's East Division, the Bruins by hammering Minnesota North Stars 8-4 and New York with a 5-3 win over Los Angeles Kings.

Tonight, Toronto is at Montreal, California Seals visit Philadelphia Flyers and St. Louis Blues play the Penguins at Pittsburgh.

Two former Leafs contributed most to the Buffalo offence. The first of Gerry Meehan's two goals gave the Sabres a 2-1 lead early in the second period then Larry Keenan's two scores broke a 2-2 tie as Buffalo built a 6-2 lead before the period ended.

But it was Roger Crozier, the little Bracebridge, Ont., goaltender Imlach took in the June draft from Detroit Red Wings, who provided the Sabres with their first road victory since they opened the season with a 3-1 win over Pittsburgh Penguins.

Crozier faced a barrage of 46 shots and was clearly the instrument of a Toronto defeat that sent the Leafs into the NHL's East Division basement, two points behind Buffalo.

The addition of veterans Don Marshall and Phil Goyette to the Buffalo lineup provided much of the poise missing from their early games. The two players, training camp holdouts, came to terms with the Sabres last Friday and Marshall responded in his first shift with a power-play goal in the first period to tie the score 1-1.

At Minnesota, the Bruins sharpshooters showed 15,100 North Stars fans why they are favored to retain the Stanley Cup they won for the first time in 29 years last spring.

Esposito, with two assists, ran his individual scoring lead to 29 points.

The Bruins emerged from a rousing first period with a 3-2 lead as they capitalized on a double minor to former teammate Bill Goldsworthy.

Goldsworthy, responding to mistreatment of Minnesota centre Tom Williams by Boston defenceman Don Awrey, was sitting out the second of his two-minute penalties when Fred Stanfield notched the goal that put the Bruins ahead to stay.

The Rangers were down 3-1 half way through their game at Los Angeles before goals by Jean Ratelle, his first of two scores, and Dave Balon pulled them even before the second period ended.

Balon's, his second of the game, was of a somewhat dubious nature as Kings' goalie Denis Dejordy accidentally flicked the puck into his own goal. Balon, the nearest Ranger at the time, was credited with the score.

The Boston and New York wins gave them each 23 points, one ahead of Montreal Canadiens.

Ahearne Says Canada Childish

LONDON (CP) — John F. (Bunny) Ahearne, president of the International Ice Hockey Federation, said Wednesday: "Canada is not only stupid but childish."

Bunny, who has a transatlantic love-hate relationship with Canadian hockey, was talking in an interview about the chance of Canada getting back into international competition after pulling out of this year's IIHF series.

Bunny was particularly steamed up about a letter he said he received a few weeks ago from the Canadian Amateur Hockey Association suggesting that the winners of next year's world title should play one series with Canada and one in Europe.

"Of course, I can't support this," said Bunny. "By implication, the Canadian team would be wholly or partly pro."

That's where his stupid and childish quote came in.

Canada quit the IIHF tournament last winter because of a squabble over its proposal to play several pros or reinstated pros in the national team, which has been getting kicked around in recent years in world competition.

Ahearne, not too well liked by Canadian amateur hockey officials, has said that he voted to let Canada use the pros. But Avery Brundage, head of the International Olympics Committee, let it be known that any country playing against Canada in the IIHF tourney would have trouble getting into the next and almost any Olympic Winter Games.

Ahearne said Wednesday that as of now Canada seems shut out of the 1971 IIHF hockey tournament in Switzerland, even though it might feel like dropping from its customary spot in A Group to the B or C category. He said the top slots are filled. . . .

McQuarters Lumbers for TD As Riders Stay Alive in West

CALGARY (CP) — Tackle Ed McQuarters, who has performed such heroics before, intercepted a pass and ran 87 yards for a game-clinching touchdown Wednesday night as Saskatchewan Roughriders beat Calgary Stampeders 12-3 in the Western Football Conference final.

one game each and sent the teams back to Regina for a deciding contest Sunday afternoon. Calgary won the opener 38-11 last Saturday in Regina.

McQuarters, three-time Canadian Football League all-star, stunned the Stampeders with less than 89 seconds remaining. He intercepted the ball from Calgary quarterback Jerry Keeling, who let it pop free as he was hit by a swarm of tacklers on the Saskatchewan 33.

The 27-year-old tackle from the University of Oklahoma lumbered down the field protected by a horde of Saskatchewan blockers. Before the big play the Roughriders led 6-3.

Jack Abendschan, who also kicked a 23-yard field goal and a single, converted the touchdown. Larry Robinson accounted for Calgary's points with 23-yard field goal.

The key play was nothing new for McQuarters. Canada's Lineman of the Year in 1967, who led the Roughriders to the 1966 Grey Cup with a 29-yard touchdown on a fumble recovery in the WFC final against Winnipeg Rhe Bombers.

Saskatchewan lost quarterback Ron Lancaster early in the third quarter of the hard-hitting contest with an injured back muscle after the eight-year veteran took a jarring tackle from Calgary and Dick Suderman. Extent of the injury was not known.

Nolan Bailey, Saskatchewan offensive end, suffered a bone injury to his first half and is expected to miss the final game. His place likely will be taken by handyman Al Ford.

Linebacker Chuck Kyle of Saskatchewan and defensive backs Gig Perez and Frank Andrunki, both of Calgary, had to be helped off the field, but they all returned after a short rest.

The Roughriders took a 1-0 lead in the first quarter when Abendschan kicked a single after missing a 21-yard field goal. Calgary rallied with Robinson's field goal in the second quarter before Abendschan booted his three points in the third. Gary Lane, Saskatchewan's backup quarterback, set up the important field goal.

Lane, who joined the WFC champions late in the season, marched the Roughriders from the Stampeders' 44 to the 13 on 6-yard plunges by Calgary forced the field goal attempt.

With Calgary on the Saskatchewan 45-yard line and 1:49 remaining in the game, Keeling hit tight end Herm Harrison with a 21-yard pass. Fullback Hugh McInnis got one yard for the Stampeders on a rushing play to move the ball to the 22. Then McQuarters took over.

In passing, Keeling completed 13 of 28 attempts for 145 yards, including five receptions and 58 yards by Dave Cranmer. For Saskatchewan, Bob Pearce, Ford, Lancaster and Lane were good on 13 of 28 passes for 156 yards.

Tough Game Leaves Both Teams Hurting

CALGARY (CP) — Coach Jim Duncan sad fatigued and unhappy Wednesday night after his Calgary Stampeders were stopped on the verge of tieing their second Western Football Conference championship in three years.

Saskatchewan Roughriders, in a single play, took an almost certain field goal—which would have won the game—from the Stampeders and ran the ball 87 yards for the contest's only touchdown. The final score was 11-3 for Saskatchewan.

Duncan said little about the play but reflected on the effect a third game in the best-of-three final would have on the West's chances in the Grey Cup.

The eastern representative could "use that right in there" if the final WFC game is as tough as the first two, he said.

The tough defensive battle injured several players, he said. "We got a lot of (injured) knees and other things."

"We got a lot of injured knees that, eastern defense out here. We go out and hit each other and they run up and down the field."

Defensive tackle Ed McQuarters, the man who grabbed the ball as it popped from the hands of quarterback Jerry Keeling, said it came as a surprise.

As he unwound yards of tape from his arms, the Canadian Football League all-star said it "was a physical game."

"You could see men were getting hurt out there all the time."

One of the men to get hurt was Saskatchewan quarterback Ron Lancaster, who left the game early in the third quarter with an injured muscle in his back.

Coach Eagle Keys said the extent of the injury was not yet known but suggested Lancaster would probably be calling signals in Regina Nov. 22 during the deciding game against Calgary. Calgary won the first game in Saskatchewan 38-11 last Saturday.

Nolan Bailey, Saskatchewan offensive end, suffered an injured knee and is not expected to play next Sunday.

Calgary had several players shaken up, but all are expected in the lineup for the deciding match.

The break that gave Saskatchewan the touchdown was one of the few that came their way during the game, Keys said.

RON LANCASTER

The club had on a full blitz when they got Keeling, he said, but also pointed out that two plays earlier, when Herm Harrison took a pass that put Calgary deep into Roughrider territory a blitz was also called.

George Hansen, director of player personnel for Calgary, said luck wasn't with the Stampeders either. He said the way things were going, had they kept the ball for a field goal attempt it probably would have hit the goal post anyway.

Western Final Statistics

CALGARY (CP) — Statistics of the Saskatchewan-Calgary Western Football Conference game Wednesday night.

	Sask.	Cal.
First downs	17	14
Yards rushing	180	113
Yards passing	156	145
Net offence	306	248
Passes—tried	13-28	13-28
Passes—completed	1-19	1-0
Punts—avg yds	12-37	13-39
Fumbles—lost	1-1	3-1
Penalties—yards	8-29	6-0

Net offence is yards passing plus yards rushing minus team losses such as yards lost on broken plays.

Paddon Is Crighton Winner

TORONTO (CP) — Paul Paddon, 23-year-old University of Ottawa quarterback who led the Gee Gees into the College Bowl here Saturday against University of Manitoba Bisons, was named Wednesday the winner of the Hec Crighton trophy. The trophy, named for a pioneer Canadian football executive, is awarded annually to the outstanding intercollegiate football player in the country, as chosen by coaches, athletic directors and officials of the Canadian Intercollegiate Athletic Union.

Paddon, whose club plays in the Central Canada Intercollegiate Conference is the first player outside the Ontario-Quebec Athletic Association to take the award since it was established in 1967.

He led the CCIFC in passing, completing 76 of 135 for 1,308 touchdowns and 1,309 yards.

Paddon will receive the trophy at a civic reception at City Hall at 7 p.m. Friday.

Jury Asks If Blackballing Exists

CLEVELAND, Ohio (AP) — Bernie Parrish, former defensive back with Cleveland Browns, was to testify again today before a special federal grand jury investigation possible anti-trust violations in operations of the National Football League.

Parrish was called before the jury Wednesday afternoon following testimony by Ross Fichtner, another former Browns defensive back.

Fichtner said some of the questions the jury asked him dealt with player-management relations and relations among players in the NFL.

He said the question of blackballing players came up, "but I wasn't able to give them much information."

Asked if he thought he had been blackballed, Fichtner replied:

"I think I got a raw deal but whether or not you call it blackballing I don't know."

Parrish was with the Browns from 1959 until after the first game of the 1968 season, when he asked for his release. He published the season with Houston Oilers and then retired from football.

Fichtner, 32, said the Browns did not receive his contract after the 1967 season following a squabble over a celebrity golf tournament in which he had charge of inviting players. He was accused of not inviting Negro players.

The jury is reported to be looking for possible violations of the Sherman Act in the restraint of players' services and restraint of trade in the merger of the National and American football leagues. Such violations could bring criminal indictments.

Fichtner said the jury asked him about several players, including former team-mate Walter Beach, who has claimed he was blackballed, but said Beach's name was not mentioned specifically with any complaint.

Beach also is expected to appear before the grand jury.

Injunction Allows Off Track Betting

TORONTO (CP) — Mr. Justice Patrick Galligan of the Ontario Supreme Court Wednesday barred the Jockey Club Ltd. from interfering with off-track betting service managers until trial or final disposition of the dispute between them.

The judge ordered continuation of an injunction guaranteeing the presence of Adrian Messenger Services and Enterprises Ltd. employees at five Jockey Club tracks in Ontario. Adrian operates seven off-track betting shops in Toronto and four outside the city under the name Metro Off-Track.

Mr. Justice Galligan ruled the Jockey Club operates a virtual monopoly in southern Ontario and it has privileges in exemptions from Criminal Code gambling offences.

He said Adrian is conducting a legitimate business "even if it is a somewhat ludicrous one".

Adrian pledges bets at tracks following "written instructions from the public who volunteer it (to). That reliance has been well-founded," Mr. Justice Galligan said, "and the operation is lucrative.

"This does not make the operation illegal."

Adrian sought the injunction after the Jockey Club gave notice Sept. 25 that off-track messengers would be barred from all Jockey Club tracks in Ontario.

Bearded Champion

For the first time, a heavyweight champion was allowed to box wearing a beard. Joe Frazier didn't need it for protection for his chin as he knocked out challenger Bob Foster early in the second round.

Frazier Impressive in Quick KO But... Can He Beat Muhammad

DETROIT (AP) — Joe Frazier is a deadly puncher like great heavyweights of the past, but until he beats Muhammad Ali he will be a pretender rather than a king to boxing fans.

Frazier put his skills on display Wednesday night and was impressive as he knocked out light heavyweight champion Bob Foster in two rounds in his first title defence since he knocked out Jimmy Ellis last February.

A crowd of only 8,380—second to the Al-Sonny Liston fight in Lewiston, Me., in 1965 as the smallest heavyweight title turnout in modern history—showed up at 12,500-seat Cobo Arena for the feature half of the closed-circuit television double-header. Unbeaten heavyweight George Foreman stopped Ibone Klekman in two rounds in the opener in New York's Madison Square Garden.

But the Frazier victory cleared another block to a fight with Ali.

"I'm not talking about any fights for about three weeks," said Frazier's manager, Yank Durham, who then mentioned New York, Houston and Philadelphia as possible sites for a Frazier-Ali fight which could be in February.

"We will get together and talk," said Durham who added, "He might want more money than I want and then there wouldn't be any fight."

"I want Joe Frazier," I shouted after watching the bout on closed circuit television in Atlanta where he defeated Quarry last month in his first fight since he was stripped of his heavyweight title for refusing induction into the Army.

"Okay's not gonna take the pressure but Joe's gonna put on him," said Foster.

Promoters feel that a fight between the two would be the most lucrative in history—grossing up to $20 million.

Frazier's demolition job on Foster kept Foster from being the first light heavyweight champion to win the heavyweight crown. Seven previous light heavy champs tried unsuccessfully since Sloan for boxing's big prize.

"One thing I can say about him is he has a good left hook," said Foster.

"It was three deadly blocks that smashed Foster senseless at :49 seconds of the second round.

"I slipped a jab and hit him with a left hook for the first knock down," said Frazier.

"The second time I dodged up with the left hook to the body and to the head."

Foster got up at the count of nine after the first knockdown and it was obvious he was in deep trouble.

"I don't think the referee should have let Bob come out after the first knockdown," said Frazier.

When Frazier went down for the second time, referee Tom Hirkes could have counted far past 10 in fact, Foster was still unsteady when his handlers helped him from the ring.

Smaller Neighbor Would Be Better

Davis Says Canada Wishes U.S. Was Less Productive

NEW YORK (CP) — Fisheries Minister Jack Davis bluntly told American audiences Wednesday:

"We (Canada) would have preferred to have a smaller neighbor with a smaller appetite for raw materials and a smaller output of industrial and other pollutants along and across our international boundary line."

Davis was making a call at a Canadian-American symposium for the United States in hopes its pollution on its own side of the border.

He particularly referred to Lake Erie which he said has become a "big, sluggish sump for the industrial heartland of North America."

He called for recycling of pollutants and asked when the U.S. is going to catch up with Canadian anti-pollution programs.

Davis made the remarks at the 12th annual seminar on Canadian-American relations sponsored by the University of Windsor, Ont., and Columbia University here.

In other talks:

—Allistair Gillespie, parliamentary secretary to the president of the Canadian treasury board, said it is a "shocking fact of life" that 95 per cent of all text books used in Canada are or shortly will be published by firms controlled by non-Canadians.

—David Lewis, deputy leader of the New Democratic Party, said every aspect of Canadian life—economic, cultural and recreational—is invaded by foreign domination.

This was the first time that the 12-year-old seminar has been held here. Sponsors said they hoped to breathe new life into it by creating interest in Canada on the part of Americans.

In this it failed. The audience, was seldom more than 100 and those of it was Canadian. Speakers acknowledged that no American of substance attended and that only one American newspaper even bothered to send a reporter.

So his talk, Davis also mentioned that starch-and-three-billion effluents from paper-making have been drifting down the St. John River into New Brunswick waters. Salmon runs have been destroyed.

Addressing Americans on Lake Erie, he said:

"I wish you would clean up your outfalls as fast as we are cleaning up ours on the Ontario side.

"I wish, also, that there was some way of offsetting your great size. You have been burdening Lake Erie four times as heavily as Canada has.

"You have been using all of the lake as if it was your own and you have been slow—relatively slow—in putting things right.

He asked when Americans are going to duplicate Canada's law banning the phosphate detergents. Phosphates from American sewage systems are aggravating the pollution problem on our side of Lake Erie itself."

"Economically speaking we are wonderful neighbors. You ability to generate material wealth is infectious. Your expertise on the technical front has helped us no end.

"But, when it comes to the preservation of our environment we would have preferred a smaller neighbor at our side. We would have preferred a smaller neighbor with a smaller appetite for raw materials and smaller output of industrial and other pollutants along and across our international boundary line."

Ontario Doctors Will Raise Fees in May

TORONTO (CP) — The Ontario Medical Association Wednesday announced approval at a new two-year fee schedule that will increase medical costs in the province by 4.5 per cent in May, 1971.

The increases go mainly to family doctors, pediatricians and psychiatrists, although fees for other specialists have also been adjusted upwards — and in some cases down.

Total obstetrical care — prenatal and delivery of a baby — goes up to $125 for a family doctor and $175 for a specialist. It means that having a baby in the province will be $10 more expensive.

An office visit to a family doctor increases 50 cents to $6, bringing it in line with an ordinary office visit to specialists.

Radical Shift In Liberal Plan Unlikely

OTTAWA (CP) — When some 2,000 Liberals meet here this weekend to draft "the Liberal charter for the '70s," no one is expecting a radical shift in any of the party's basic policies.

But what will emerge, predict party officials, is a clear consensus of rank-and-file thinking that can be used as a broad foundation for specific policies in the years ahead.

When Prime Minister Trudeau went to the Harrison Hot Springs, B.C., conference last year—that was the meeting that laid the groundwork for this forthcoming convention—he made it clear that specific policies could not be hammered firmly into place by any particular group of people.

"Canadians would rightly reject as incredible any government or party or prime minister who claimed to know the answers to the large questions of public policy which we must face in the coming decade," he said.

He is expected to reiterate this view when he speaks to the convention Friday night, before the delegates begin wading through some 200 resolutions that will eventually provide the framework for party policy.

Because these resolutions are specifically designed to encourage discussion, and conflicting viewpoints, they do not give any indication of what may finally emerge in the form of a final resolution on any particular subject.

Regardless of what emerges, the government will not be iron-bound to follow any policy to the letter. But in two years' time, the prime minister must return to the convention to report on the "considerations given, the decisions made, and the reasoning therefore regarding resolutions passed at previous convention."

When Mr. Trudeau speaks to the convention Friday night, it will be in this form of giving an account of his stewardship. Party officials predict few problems for him.

The convention is being held at a time when party fortunes appear to be running high over the government's handling of the Quebec terrorist situation. While the prime minister can expect a resounding endorsement in this area, some officials say he'll could be offset by some persistent questioning on unemployment and the economy.

They also predict some heavy weather in the formation of resolutions on foreign ownership in Canada, although they expect the final document to avoid any specific target dates for restricting the foreign economic presence in the country.

While some fingers are being crossed, party officials say they doubt whether the convention will approve any drastic resolutions that would seriously alter the course of the government's policies.

The various resolutions will go to four different forums, to be hammered into final drafts that will come before the full convention. If delegates are faced with difficult choices, they won't be hurried into any yes-or-no decisions.

They will be given time to discuss the issues with fellow delegates before making one of five decisions, ranging from very favorable to very unfavorable. In the middle is a convenient "not sure."

Federal Regime Decentralization Is Recommended

SASKATOON (CP) — The federal government should be decentralized, perhaps setting up the "operational headquarters" of the agriculture department in Saskatchewan, Mayor Sydney L. Buckwold of Saskatoon said Wednesday.

He told the joint parliamentary committee on the constitution that sections of the agriculture department could operate more efficiently if they were located in the regions most affected by their decisions.

The hearings at the Saskatoon campus of the University of Saskatchewan was the last in a three-day tour of the province by the constitution committee.

The parliamentarians also heard Norman Ward, professor of political science at the university, criticize tentative federal proposals for reforming the Senate. He said the suggestions would create new problems.

A student submission called for complete federal control over post-secondary education so that everyone would have an equal right to further education after high school.

The mayor agreed.

Professor Ward said he is opposed to federal proposals for allowing provinces to appoint senators who would have the right to vote on federal matters.

He said that the "clear intent of the proposals is to use the senate as some sort of "sweetener," in federal-provincial relations."

But it would probably lead to a weakening of the federal position in dealing with the provinces.

Huge Planes Called Just Speculation

CALGARY (CP) — Aircraft capable of carrying up to 1,000 passengers were described as "speculation and nothing more" by Transport Minister Donald Jamieson Wednesday.

He told delegates to the International Aviation Conference that plans for such aircraft are on the drawing board, but he said this is not necessarily what the public wants.

"Which way do planners go?" he asked.

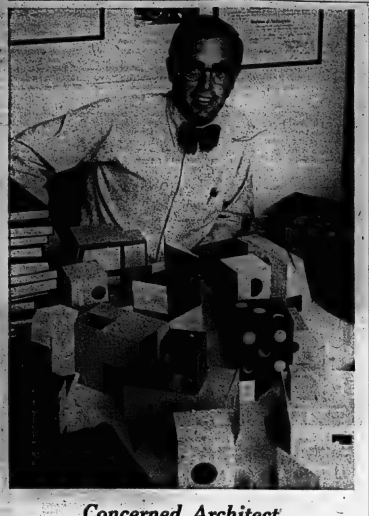
Stanfield Unhappy But PCs Back Bill

TORONTO (CP) — Progressive Conservative Leader Robert Stanfield said Wednesday his party will vote in favor of adopting the government's public order bill despite his dissatisfaction with both the bill and the government's handling of the Quebec terrorist situation.

In a speech to the lawyers' club at Osgoode Hall Law School, he said he is "by no means happy" with the proposed Public Order (Temporary Measures) Act, 1970, offered by the government as a less-sweeping replacement for current regulations under the War Measures Act.



"We intend to vote acceptance on third reading for two basic reasons: Firstly, this is temporary legislation . . . and secondly, even with all its imperfections, it gets us out from under the War Measures Act, with its truly awesome powers."

Mr. Stanfield made no mention of David MacDonald (PC—Egmont), who has said he will oppose passage of the bill. Mr. MacDonald was the only MP to vote against the bill at second reading.

Mr. Stanfield said he is opposed to some of the bill's provisions and worried about others.

"The retroactivity of some provisions, the denial of the husband-wife relationship that is assumed by the Criminal Code, the vagueness of the regulations involving acceptable evidence, and above all the total absence of judicial review procedures cause me great concern."

The bill, which has been debated clause-by-clause in the Commons for the last two weeks, would ease up on some of the harsher provisions of the current regulations.

West Grows Better Wheat, Big Crops of Other Grains

OTTAWA (CP) — Farmers have responded to government wheat acreage reduction programs by growing better wheat and more of other crops.

Record crops of barley, oilseeds, hay, mixed grains and corn for fodder or grain, are bulging Canadian granaries, according to post-harvest estimates of Canadian grain production published Wednesday by Dominion Bureau of Statistics.

The November estimate, the last of the current reporting year, states that the quality of the 1970 wheat crop was "above average with the higher grades predominating."

Yet the total estimated wheat crop—331.5 million bushels—is the lowest since the 283.4 million bushel harvest in 1961, a year of severe drought.

The production reduction of more than half corresponds with a 50-per-cent slash in acreage prompted by a billion-bushel stockpile of wheat and a federal program under which farmers were paid to switch to summer-fallow or forage crops acres normally seeded with wheat.

Production of wheat was down from the 1969 total of 648.3 million bushels and the average harvest of 585.6 million bushels grown in the last 10 years.

The wheat crop averaged 26.6 bushels an acre, down from the record 27.1 bushels last year but considerably higher than the 10-year average of 21.2 bushels an acre, according to Wednesday's estimate.

The figures, based on tallies taken during the third week of October, show record crops of barley, corn for fodder or grain, hay, mixed grains and all major oil crops—flax, rapeseed, soybeans and sunflower.

Barley production estimates were 415.7 million bushels, 18 per-cent above the 378.1 million harvested last year and substantially higher than the average 317.1 million produced in the previous decade.

A record yield of 41.4 bushels an acre was registered for the crop.

The growing importance of oil crops was reflected in production yields nearly double those of 1960.

Estimates of the rapeseed harvest were a record 71.3 million bushels compared with 31.4 million produced in 1969. The yield corresponded to a 96-per-cent increase from 1969 in the number of acres seeded to the crop.

Flax, as well, showed a record yield—48.0 million bushels compared with 27.5 million last year—which was also reflected in a 44-per-cent increase in acreage.

The other principal oilseed crops—soybeans and sunflower—showed record yields of 19.4 million bushels and 55.5 million pounds respectively.

Production of oats as grain was estimated at 367.8 million bushels, down slightly from last year's 371.4 million and a 10-year average of 375.4 million. Average yield was a record 51.5 bushels an acre.

The estimated production of mixed grains, grown principally in Eastern Canada, was a record 98.6 million bushels, well above the 87.3 million produced last year and the average 72.1 million produced in the previous decade.

Corn as grain registered a record 109.3 million bushels compared with 73.4 million produced in 1969 and an average 49 million over the last 10 years.

Fodder corn production was estimated at 9.5 million tons, also a record, compared with 8.5 million tons produced last year and the 10-year average of 5.5 million tons.

Tame hay, the other forage crop which includes clover and alfalfa, was produced at a record 28.3 million tons, compared with 25.6 million tons in 1969 and 22.6 million during the previous decade.

Professors Say French Despair Is Behind FLQ

MONTREAL (CP)—French Canada's frustration and despair in the face of the eternally "privileged" position of the English-speaking minority is blamed by three political scientists for the explosion of terrorism in Quebec.

This viewpoint from Jacques Berthelot, Guy Rocher and Maurice Torrelli of the University of Montreal is part of a study of the whole anatomy of terrorism, published in the current issue of the magazine Actualite.

And they warn that if governments allow this chronic social injustice to continue instead of rooting out its causes, then the establishment itself is simply sowing the seeds of future violence

In a special 27-page section coinciding with the 10th anniversary of the 104,000-circulation French-language monthly, nine separate facets of Quebec terrorism are discussed, including its relationship to education, labor, the arts, the church and the family.

The professors suggest that someday an analysis will have to be made of the weight of history which seems to press heavily on the present crisis.

"It is not, in effect, just because the French-Canadian . . . has been held back by the English . . . on such and such an occasion that violence is generated," they said.

"It is the fact, that, under the present system, French-Canadians are doomed to a status of eternal minority in Canada and that today, like yesterday and tomorrow, their collective will can very easily be thwarted by the English majority.

"Nor does violence spring from the mere fact that Quebec has five, seven or 10 per cent unemployment, but from the fact that it has been this way for so long and no end to it can be foreseen."

Among the root causes of Quebec violence over the last weeks, the professors say, are the following:

—The authorities are trying to create a Canadian nationalism, while condemning Quebec nationalism as racist.

—The police can go unpunished after an illegal strike, but workers who do the same are fined millions of dollars.

—Immigrants (from Germany or Russia enjoy a social position superior to that of French-Canadians.

—The English language is preserved and safeguards, while it is the French which is threatened.

—The political system is based on the right to opposition, but the mayor will not tolerate the least disagreement.

—When it suits its purpose, English Canada is prepared to see a single-party system in Quebec.

Levesque Says Party Acts as Curb on FLQ

TROIS-RIVIERES, Que. (CP) — Rene Levesque, leader of the Parti Quebecois, said Wednesday night that "if the Parti Quebecois did not exist, there would be 10 times more members of the Front de Liberation du Quebec."

Mr. Levesque, here to prepare for the party's regional convention Nov. 27-29, said during a news conference the Parti Quebecois did not believe in violence as a means to speed up Quebec's independence.

By wishing to give Quebecers their freedom by democratic means, the Parti Quebecois was acting as a conductor for those who no longer saw violence as the only course of action, he said.

In the current crisis the Parti Quebecois "continues to fight both Ottawa and Quebec governments."

Mr. Levesque described as "Canadian, classical and anti-democratic the Trudeau, Marchand, Drapeau and Bourassa governments."

Impartiality Scorned By Young Reporters

HONOLULU (AP) — The director of the American Press Institute says many young reporters believe their news stories "should take a point of view with no pretence to impartiality."

Malcolm Mallette told the Associated Press Managing Editors Wednesday the philosophy of activist journalism "has sprouted and spread swiftly into many newsrooms."

"The new activists contend that objectivity in the news columns should often be cast aside as unequal to the problems of society," Mallette told the more than 600 representatives of AP member newspapers.

Mallette quoted one 24-year-old reporter as saying: "There is too much wrong to allow the traditional constraints of objectivity to get in the way."

"I keep seeing reporters who try to call their moral cowardice distance or objectivity," the reporter had replied in an AP survey. "If I can't work for social change through journalism, I'll get out of journalism."

However, Mallette said the AP survey found editors in almost unanimous agreement that involvement diminishes a reporter's ability to cover a story fairly.

SMOKING HAZARD

Carelessness with smoking materials was the cause of 212 forest fires in Ontario in 1969. However, 1,113 matches started 65 forest fires.

Police Check on 6,000 Leads In Hunt for FLQ Kidnappers

MONTREAL (CP) — Maurice St. Pierre, director of Quebec Provincial Police, said Wednesday that some 6,000 leads have had to be checked out so far in the search for the abductors of James (Jasper) Cross and the abductors and murderers of Pierre Laporte.

Mr. Cross, a 49-year-old British trade commissioner, was abducted from his home Oct. 5 by the Front de Liberation du Quebec terrorists. Mr. Laporte, former Quebec labor minister was kidnapped five days later by the FLQ and his body was discovered in the trunk of a car Oct. 18.

Mr. St. Pierre denied that information was being withheld from the RCMP, outlining how the workload in the kidnapping investigation is being handled.

"When the work to be done is within Montreal, Montreal handles it. When it's not in Montreal, we take it over.

"This is the understanding . . . it's very plain."

Asked the RCMP's role, Mr. St. Pierre said:

"They are working with us on both cases. If we need their help, they come in. It all depends on what it is."

He said he did not know of any communications gap among the Montreal Quebec and RCMP forces.

Meanwhile, the Gazette says Mr. Cross may have been held for a while in the apartment where accused terrorist Bernard Lortie was arrested Nov. 6 and where three other kidnap suspects hid in a false wall to camouflage their presence.

An unnamed police officer is quoted as saying the hidden compartment in an apartment closet was "big enough to hold more than three persons."

Paul Rose, 27, his brother Jacques, 23 and Francis Simard, 23 apparently eluded police by hiding in the well-hidden compartment during the police raid which netted Lortie.

Police have confirmed that the secret hideaway yielded fingerprints of the three kidnap suspects, but they have not disclosed if any physical evidence of the British diplomat was also discovered there.

Mr. Cross is believed still alive and in the hands of the FLQ.

Meanwhile, Jean-Noel Lavoie, Speaker of the Quebec national assembly, said that Ombudsman Louis Marceau has received 63 written complaints or requests for investigation since the War Measures Act was invoked by the federal government Oct. 16.

More than 80 of more than 450 persons arrested since the act was invoked now are being held. The act gave police wider powers in their fight against the FLQ.

In other developments, Robert Burns, Parti Quebecois house leader in the national assembly, called Wednesday for government compensation of innocent individuals detained under the War Measures Act.

He said a number of Quebecers suffered personally because they were detained under the act and had been deprived of their normal legal rights while in custody.

Those rights included being informed of the reasons for detention, being arraigned soon after arrest and not having access to bail. The detained individuals had also been prevented from speaking with their families and legal counsel.

In Sherbrooke, Mr. Justice William Mitchell of Court of Queen's Bench decided to rule Nov. 27 on a defence motion to quash preferred indictments against two Quebec couples indicted under the War Measures Act.

Under such an indictment, preliminary hearing is dispensed with and the accused goes directly to trial.

The four, Real and Jeanne Jobidon of the Montreal suburb of Longueuil and Maurice and Jacinthe Gauthier of St. Hilaire were arrested last month at the University of Sherbrooke. They have been held without bail.

Meanwhile, a team of experts was studying the second letter found in three days to determine if its author was actually the FLQ.

There was no word early today on the authenticity of a note, found Monday night, which contained a threat of further terrorism if 24 so-called political prisoners are not released Friday.

A third note was found Tuesday after a caller tipped French-language radio station CKAC. The station called police who found the note in a telephone booth.

KILLING YOURSELF

By Peter J. Steincrohn, M.D., F.A.C.P.
Author of "The Doctor Looks At Life"

Buerger's Disease Means No Smoking

Dear Dr. Steincrohn: I have been having leg pains when I walk. Sometimes I actually have to stop short. They feel cold. I'll confess I've been told to give up cigarettes. But I still put away at last two packs a day. I just can't stop. One doctor said I have Buerger's disease, is a special diet necessary? Will you discuss my problem?—Mr. H.

Comment: Buerger's disease is trouble in the arteries of the legs (sometimes of the arms, too) in which chronic inflammation at last causes interference with normal blood circulation. This is the reason Buerger's disease produces that leg pain: insufficient oxygen while exerting.

If you really have Buerger's you will never get well unless you stop all smoking. (Practically all Buerger's patients have been heavy smokers.) Special diets don't help much. Your doctor will prescribe special drugs to decrease any spasm in the arteries.

Some patients require a sympathectomy operation (cutting nerves in the back) to let more blood through by causing the arteries to dilate. Many patients improve after using daily exercises which your doctor will explain: raising and lowering your legs at varying times intervals.

But I'll stress it again: If you don't give up smoking, you will get worse and invite the dangers of gangrene and operation.

• • •

For Mrs. L.: It is true that sometimes nerves is formed by electrical discharges during a thunderstorm. Such small desire do not irritate the lungs, and are not reason enough to shut yourself up in the house.

• • •

Sometimes the answer is simple: special shoes, arch supports, pads. Anything to relieve and give the pressure on your foot. Incidentally, don't try to trim the callus yourself. Diabetic patients, especially, should not invite the possibility of an infection in the leg.

• • •

For Mrs. G.: It's possible for a child to have too much Vitamin A. Some mothers give the baby much more than necessary to be sure that the infant will get "enough".

After awhile, too much Vitamin A may produce lack of appetite, vomiting, drowsiness, hair - loss, cracked lips or itchy rashes. These signs usually disappear after overdosage is stopped.

What is overdosage? A minimum daily dose is about 1,500 units of Vitamin A. When it runs into tens of thousands a day, overdosage may be the result. Ask your doctor how many units are necessary for your baby daily — and try to keep to schedule.

• • •

Dear Dr. Steincrohn: I have trouble with my bladder due to weakened tissues. My doctor suggests I try a pessary. If this doesn't help by keeping from the bladder from falling, he says I may need an operation. Does this make sense? — Mrs. I.

Comment: It makes good sense. Conservative treatment first; operation second. The operation commonly called "pelvic repair" will usually help solve the problem.

Two Judges Testify In Stop Street Case

TORONTO (CP) — Two Justices of the Ontario Court of Appeal found themselves on the other side of the bench Wednesday—testifying at the trial of a youth charged with disobeying a stop sign.

They told Judge Sidney Rocbuck they were driving along a downtown street when they saw a car approach an intersection and proceed through it without stopping on March 4.

Aldred, who pleaded not guilty to the charge, was convicted and fined $25.

Ford, Canada, Head Doubts Auto Pact Will Be Altered

OAKVILLE (CP) — Roy F. Bennett, new president of Ford Motor Co. of Canada Ltd., says he doubts major changes in the United States-Canada Auto agreement will be made during the current round of negotiations.

The potential for the company's growth, however, appears greatest outside the North American market, Mr. Bennett said in an interview.

This week Mr. Bennett became the 44th native Canadian appointed president of the 56-year-old firm. At 45, he is the youngest Canadian president.

He succeeds Karl E. Scott.

Mr. Bennett had been in charge of marketing for about a year when the U.S. and Canada were about to sign the auto pact, which allows manufacturers free movement of vehicles and parts across the border.

He was given the job of recommending to the board the internal adjustments Ford of Canada should make for operations under the agreement, which went into effect in 1965.

He does not believe estimates that Canadian production this year will be greater than consumption.

Steel Probe Possible

OTTAWA (CP) — Prime Minister Trudeau told New Democratic Party Leader T. C. Douglas in the Commons Wednesday he will consider Mr. Douglas's suggestion for a special inquiry into the price increases announced Tuesday by Steel Co. of Canada Ltd.

Meanwhile, Consumer Affairs Minister Ron Basford told the Commons that the prices and incomes commission is already investigating the increases.

Mr. Douglas said the increases, on the surface, appear to be unnecessary. While higher labor costs had been cited by the company as one reason for the increase, the last labor contract had been negotiated a year ago.

"I would be quite surprised, frankly, if the balance did run in Canada's favor."

Vehicle assembly figures can be misleading because parts come from Ford installations in several countries. For example, engines for Pintos made at St. Thomas, Ont., come from West Germany.

THE LITTLE WOMAN

"If that horse is a MUDDER, I'm a FODDER!"

Broken Glass Mailed To Robarts in Cans

TORONTO (CP) — The Federation of Ontario Naturalists appealed Wednesday to persons taking part in its anti-litter campaign not to mail broken glass or garbage to Premier John Robarts.

An official in the premier's office said Tuesday night that broken glass had been found in mailsacks full of cans addressed to the premier.

The mail-in campaign was launched last week in an effort to pressure the government into halting sales of non-returnable bottles and cans.

NATO Role Opposed

TORONTO (CP) — John Harney, former secretary of the Ontario New Democratic Party, said Wednesday Canada should withdraw from the North Atlantic Treaty Organization to protest the military regime in Greece. Mr. Harney spoke at a York University teach-in.

Health Minister Hopes He's Asked To Poor's Parley

OTTAWA (CP) — Position and cash issues nothing when it comes to invitations to the poor peoples' conference in January. Even Health Minister John Munro may yearn in vain for one although he authorized the $28,000 grant that is making the Toronto conference possible.

Planning is entirely in the hands of poor peoples' organizations. They have already made it plain publicly that they intend to run the meetings along their own lines.

Mr. Munro has acknowledged in an interview that he would like to be there.

"I'm hoping to be there—that's on the assumption that I might be invited," he told reporters. "And I may not be."

"But in any case, I'm certainly going to watch their deliberations."

Planning committee chairman Peter Robinson of Toronto has already made it plain that the format "will allow only members of poor people's organizations to participate."

Informants said the idea is to keep the conference entirely in poor people's hands and beyond the influence of the "system."

They regard it as a "system" approach to use part of the Jan. 9-13 conference to discuss Mr. Munro's welfare administration problems or those of the provincial welfare ministers for that matter.

There have been some hints thrown out that the provincial ministers might also like invitations.

Whatever the planners decide, about ministerial attendance or non-attendance, the deliberations will mean large at the federal-provincial conference of welfare ministers here a week or two later.

In fact, one reason for postponing the ministerial conference from October was to see what the welfare recipients produced at the Toronto meetings.

Charges Traded

LONDON, Ont. (CP) — Two of four London men facing drug and assault charges following a police raid Nov. 9 have laid counter charges of assault against drug squad constables David Tennant and Brian Garraway.

The officers appeared in provincial court Wednesday and were remanded out of custody to Dec. 22.

The Fantasticks Good Theatre, The Crowd — Disappointing

By BARRY GRILLS
Staff Reporter

The Belleville Theatre Guild's second production this season and its first musical in history opened last night in the Pinnacle Playhouse, and only 36 people were there to see it.

It's such a pity, such a pity because the Fantasticks was another milestone in the history of the guild itself.

The production was vibrant, musically adept, colorful, humorous, clever, symbolic and attractive, attractive in that it did attract — once you were in the theatre.

Unfortunately it did not attract outside the theatre. And it's mystifying to say the least.

As the Belleville Theatre Guild gains theatrical excellence, as it and the Pinnacle Playhouse gain more and more provincial esteem, as the approach and caliber of the guild's productions improve and diversity, the crowd gets smaller.

Guild president Frank Seemungle and artistic director Larry Ewashen, both expressed disappointment in the turnout to the initial performance of the Fantasticks.

Mr. Seemungle said that the actors were finding it more difficult to play before a small audience. Most of the cast were young people.

"It's not the money," he said, "it's having the audience out there that counts."

Mr. Ewashen spoke of the separation of being a local organization. He said that a touring company would get a large crowd but a local production would not, even if the local production was superior.

A Belleville citizen once said "If it was good it wouldn't be in Belleville." That man missed an excellent performance last night.

And excellent it was. The two Fantasticks incorporated many, diversified talents in a musical and colorful display that added new dimension to Theatre Guild achievement.

Mr. Ewashen said it himself before commencing this year's productions. He spoke of a diversified season offering different kinds of theatre for all the people of the community.

Subtle psychedelic lighting served to enhance the surrealistic nature of the play, with music by Tom Jones. Its arresting quality was its simplicity, despite the fact that it challenged the subtle exposure of the basic human flaws involved in love and life.

The Fantasticks, a parable of love, was the story of a girl and a boy, kept apart by a wall who fall in love. One actor they don't know and learn soon after is also the w a l l s created by their parents to help initiate the affair.

A phony abduction also serves to unite the duo as a result of the parents' planning. But the love affair goes awry when the wall is removed. Still the ending is a happy one and quite believable.

Marie Brain portrays the girl and Alexander Pearse, the boy. Together they enchant and bewitch as the lovers and illustrate the jaspir and confusion of life.

Robert Lawton, long an excellent guild actor, adds a new dimension to his versatile talents in his vocals and his portrayal of El Gallo, the narrator.

Dennis Rowbotham and Michael Bond provide the most articulate vocals as the lovers' fathers. James Westcott, as the old actor, provides the major humor in the play, but succeeds in presenting a melancholy undercurrent in his portrayal. He is assisted most ably by Paul Blakk who is the man who dies — and dies well.

Indeed so.

Marilyn Bailey, Peter Robertson and Robert Robertson ably provided the instrumentation for the show. Joan Tickle produced Do Fantasticks and Kilt Kerr-Cyril, who also portrayed the mute in the play, acted as stage manager.

The excellent lighting effects were handled by Ross Thompson and Steve Hubble.

Those who attended the Fantasticks were sure to leave enjoyed themselves — all 36 of them.

NOTICE

ONTARIO
DEPARTMENT OF HIGHWAYS

The Expropriations Act, 1968-69
NOTICE OF APPLICATION FOR APPROVAL TO EXPROPRIATE LAND

IN THE MATTER of an application by the Minister of Highways for approval to expropriate lands in the Township of Sidney, in the County of Hastings, for Highway Number 401, Section No. 3 PROTECT IN HIBERT CITIES that application has been made for approval to expropriate the lands described in the schedule hereto. Any owner of lands in respect of which notice is given of the intention to inquiry into further the taking of such land is duly owner and tenants-at-will, and any person who claims compensation for injurious affection shall so notify the approving authority in writing,

(a) in the case of a registered owner, served personally or by registered mail, within thirty days after a notice is served with the notice, or, when he is served by publication, within thirty days after the first publication of the notice;

(b) in the case of an owner who is not a registered owner, within thirty days after the first publication of the notice.

THE APPROVING AUTHORITY IS Minister of Highways, Ontario, Parliament Buildings,
Toronto 5, Ontario.

NOTES:
1. The Expropriations Act, 1968-69 provides that,
(a) where an inquiry is required, it shall be conducted by an inquiry officer appointed by the Minister of Justice and Attorney General;
(b) the inquiry officer,
(i) shall give every party to the inquiry an opportunity to present evidence and argument and to conduct cross-examination of witnesses as is necessary for a full and fair disclosure of all matters relevant to the issues in the inquiry,
(ii) may recommend to the approving authority that a party to the inquiry be paid a fixed amount for his costs of the inquiry not to exceed $500 and the approving authority may in its discretion order the expropriating authority to pay such costs forthwith.

2. "Owner and "registered owner" as defined in the Act are defined to mean a mortgagee, tenant, at-sufferance creditor, a person entitled to a limited estate or interest in land, a guardian of the estate of a committee of a mentally incompetent person or of a person under disability, a trustee, an executor, an administrator, a personal representative, a municipality or a public utility.

"Registered owner" means an owner of land whose interest in the land is defined and whose name is recorded in an instrument in the proper registry, land titles or sheriff's office, and includes a person shown as a tenant-at-will in the last revised assessment roll.

3. The approximate quantity of land, after deducting any registered road allowance, lapsing in respect of the lands intended to be expropriated from every owner added as a party to the inquiry before are parties to the inquiry.

Sydney J. Harris Says

Easier to Give Than Pay

By SYDNEY J. HARRIS

Thoughts at Large:

Such is the perversity of the human animal that it's more pleasant to give away a generous sum to some philanthropy we have no direct obligation toward, than to pay an old debt, we have every legal and moral obligation toward.

* * *

The necessity for a Women's Lib movement — despite its neurotic excesses — reveals itself in the fact that so many women feel they have to pretend to be more stupid than they really are, in order to ingratiate themselves with men: an odious form of "slave mentality."

* * *

Most of us are careless of our health, but intense preoccupation with health is probably more crippling; as Josh Billings observed a century ago: "There are lots of people in this world who spend so much time watching their health that they don't have time to enjoy it."

* * *

The worst evil of our age is not the passion, violence, or conflict of opinion, but public preoccupation — the indifference to social problems until they break out in virulent form and can no longer be contained by laws, neglect, and a conspiracy of silence.

* * *

Watching the Columbus Day parade from my window, I wondered how many marchers (and spectators) knew that Columbus was sent back to Spain in chains and died in neglect, almost forgotten in his own time.

* * *

When a person says he feels "guilty" about something, what he generally means is that he feels ashamed for not feeling genuinely guilty about it.

* * *

What most men mean by "freedom" is comfortable confinement, on their own terms: freedom, in a metaphysical sense, would terrify those it did not confuse.

* * *

Speaking of this subject, when the finest living Russian writer cannot be published in the Soviet Union, it seems to me that this tiny individual has more freedom of action than the Soviet state has.

* * *

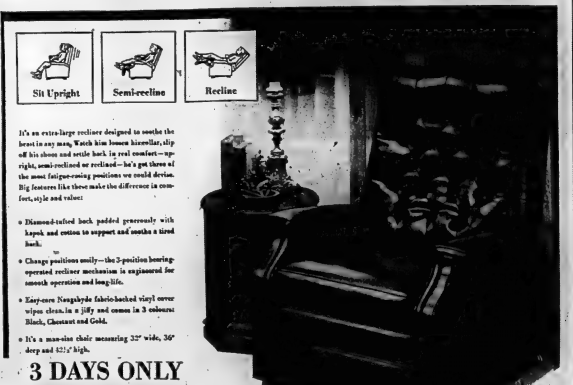
The only men who know women well are homosexuals; for, as Nimon de Lenclos said, "The most choose between loving women and knowing them."

One of the most foolish extensions of the democratic process is the election of judges, which gives the U.S. a mediocre and politically - oriented judiciary and almost guarantees that only those lawyers who take a partisan interest in politics will be nominated for the bench.

* * *

The trouble with the mystic is that he wants to lose himself in Unity, and forgets the important principle of individuation; while the trouble with the rationalist is that he fragments the world, and thus bars himself from comprehending its essential mystery and meaning.

Alcan Announces Higher Prices



TORONTO (CP) — Plans to increase prices up to four per cent on some products were announced Wednesday by Alcan Canada Products, a division of Aluminium Co. of Canada Ltd.

The price increases will be for extruded aluminum products which includes such items as pipe and tubing, window frames and other building materials. Extruded aluminum is a partly-finished product which is sold to a manufacturer.

Another Good Reason

WHY COMFORT-LOVING MEN CHOOSE SIMPSONS-SEARS FOR RECLINING-CHAIRS

Comfort...Man-Style

It's an extra-large recliner designed to soothe the beast in any man. Watch him loosen his collar, slip off his shoes and settle back in real comfort—upright, semi-reclined or reclined—he's got three of the most fatigue-easing positions we could devise. Big features like these make the difference in comfort, style and value!

- Diamond-tufted back padded generously with kapok and cotton to support and soothe a tired back.
- Change positions easily—the 3-position boring-operated recliner mechanism is engineered for smooth operation and long-life.
- Easy-care Naugahyde fabric-backed vinyl cover wipes clean in a jiffy and comes in 3 colours: Black, Chestnut and Gold.
- It's a man-size chair measuring 32" wide, 36" deep and 42½" high.

— BELLEVILLE —

For November 20

Your birthday today: This coming year will test and reward your ability to take on a challenging vocational spot. Varied crisis conditions are scattered along the way, probably never more than one real problem at a time. You also have some periods of waiting. Ties of affection go on trial, too; make sure you are well understood. Today's natives like to take things as they come, seriously and painstakingly.

ARIES (Mar. 21 — Apr. 19): Start early; assume everything needs to be checked. By end of day you realize that events have made a change of direction. Give your unconscious over - night to absorb it all.

TAURUS (Apr. 20 — May 20): Your daydreams lead you into plans which tomorrow may seem unworkable. Nothing is lost and much beauty is experienced, but get something real done, too.

GEMINI (May 21 — June 20): Do what you can, but last-minute work details are almost certain, and some must carry over. Asking for favors is premature now — wait for a more receptive benefactor.

CANCER (June 21 — July 22): Get a second opinion on anything not thoroughly familiar — new situations arise confusingly. Impulse buying, unless it's something long planned for, only upsets your budget.

LEO (July 23 — Aug. 22): How you feel counts more than how much material change you stir up. You are on your own now with some pressures toward promises you may not be able to fulfill.

VIRGO (Aug. 23 — Sept. 22): People with power are hard to deal with now. Set forth your story in standard terms; think how it appears to others. Test with family matters is essential.

LIBRA (Sep. 23 — Oct. 22): Friends and finances still do not mix well. Be clear in your statements. Start early, quit early, allowing for unsettled conditions in the late hours.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23—Nov. 21): Watch what you say since it is so easy to blurt out some exaggeration in a moment of annoyance. Today's work has many-sided details to cope with. Reflect on whatever errors you have made.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 — Dec. 21): Like everybody else, you want and need more than is convenient. Find the resilience to keep a balance. The evening hours may be unsatisfactory — be patient.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 — Jan. 19): Your own course of action differs from that of others. Their reasons are difficult to understand. Take it on faith that they have cause.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20 — Feb. 18): A few systems for doing routines may be upset. Items not amenable to standard handling come up, probably with great urgency. Do the best you can.

PISCES (Feb. 19 — Mar. 20): There is no substitute for integrity and quality. State your views and needs directly, then go on with your work. Let the weekend begin on the most peaceful note.

THE BETTER HALF By Bob Barnes

"When I met Stanley, it was obvious he was nobody's fool, so I decided he might as well be mine."

Val d'Or Find Largest Nickel Body in Canada

MONTREAL (CP) — J. H. Kentish, president of Dumont Nickel Corp., said Wednesday a nickel deposit about 40 miles north of Val d'Or is possibly the largest single deposit discovered in the history of Canadian mining.

He told a news conference the deposit has a potential estimated at 4,000 million tons and first output is expected in 1973.

Mr. Kentish said the bringing of the deposit into production will require an investment of more than $100 million. He said he expects the money will come from small investors in Quebec.

Dumont Nickel's immediate objective is to block out an estimated 1,000 million tons of ore within the next eight months, he said.

Diamond drilling has been under way since early September, and to, "just two months more than 234 million tons of .3-per-cent nickel or better has been indicated, of which 44 million tons averages .36-per-cent nickel."

Four Youths Fined For Parade in Nude

KILLALOE, Ont. (CP) — A police constable testified Wednesday that four Metropolitan Toronto youths told him they were "just doing their thing" by parading nude before tourists in Algonquin Park last July 25.

The judge was not impressed. Fines were levied on a variety of charges.

Leslie Medon, 18; James Morris, 19; Ross Skene, 18; and James Donald Spence, 18, pleaded guilty to charges of being nude without lawful excuse. Medon and Skene were fined $15 or three days on the nudity charge and $75 or seven days on charges of possession of liquor while minors.

Spence and Morris were acquitted on liquor charges' but were each fined $100 or 10 days for parading nude near the highway.

GRANITE ARRIVAL

STURGEON, P.E.I. (CP) — St. Paul's Roman Catholic Church in this southeastern island community was built in 1888 of locally quarried red sandstone and some grey granite. The granite stones, interspersed for contrast, probably arrived here in the form of ballast on old sailing ships calling at the fishing port.

Decision Reserved

VANCOUVER (CP) — Decision was reserved Wednesday on an appeal by former secretary of state Judy LaMarsh against a libel damage award to a radio reporter.

Davis Orders Judge Probe Allore Case

Food Piles Up
Famine Looms In Flood Zone

DACCA (Reuter) — Fears of mass starvation in East Pakistan rose as food and relief supplies for victims of a tidal wave disaster a week ago today continued to pile up outside the stricken area.

Hardly any food, medicine, blankets and other supplies pouring in from around the world have reached the disaster zone.

Further delays could bring mass starvation and disease and make the cyclone and tidal wave in the Bay of Bengal the worst natural disaster in history.

East Pakistan Gov. S. M. Ahsan trebled earlier official reports of the death toll and said at least 148,116 people had died. But local newspapers have estimated that between 1.5 and two million people died.

The worst single disaster in history was in China in 1887 when 900,000 people died in Yellow River floods.

President Yahya Khan declared today a day of national mourning and special prayers were being offered through the country for the dead. Radio Pakistan reported.

Orders went out after a top-level Dacca conference to officials in stricken districts to immediately open as many relief centres as necessary.

They also were instructed to make every possible effort to dispose of bodies still unburied.

Rotting bodies and the carcasses of animals are apparently still lying in open places.

Ahsen said the government had sanctioned another $438,000 in cash and a further large quantity of food grains as relief aid.

Air dropping of relief supplies was intensified today with Pakistan Air Force planes, an army helicopter and a civilian aircraft making a series of parachute runs over Bhola, Patuakhali and Hatia, three of the worst-affected areas.

Radio Pakistan said more than a dozen ships with relief materials, volunteers and medical teams were in affected areas.

Two more Red Cross relief teams were on their way from Dacca for Bhola and Patuakhali.

Laporte Inquest Renewed
Hiding Spot Built By Wanted Trio

MONTREAL (CP) — Francois Beisile, 19 testified today he bought materials which were used to build a secret closet hideout by men wanted in the kidnapping of Pierre Laporte.

Testifying at the resumed inquest into the death of the Quebec labor minister, kidnapped Oct. 10 and slain Oct. 17, Beisile spoke of the apartment where he lived on west-end Queen Mary Road.

Beisile said he moved into the apartment Oct. 5. In so doing, he joined his sister Francine Beisile, Francis Simard and Richard Therrien and Colette Therrien who were already living in the third-floor apartment.

Beisile who gave evidence under the protection of the Canada Evidence Act, said that on returning from a weekend trip to Victoriaville Oct. 13 he found brothers Jacques and Paul Rose at the apartment.

That was a day after the strangled body of Mr. Laporte was found in a car trunk in nearby St. Hubert.

Paul Rose, 23, has been sought for weeks for the kidnappings of Mr. Laporte and James (Jasper) Cross, British trade commissioner who was snatched from his home Oct. 5 and is hoped to be still alive.

Police also have issued warrants for Jacques Rose and Francis Simard, both 23, for conspiracy in the Laporte kidnapping. Lortie has been the only prime suspect arrested so far.

Beisile said that on Tuesday, Oct. 20, he did not go to work and was sent instead to a store with measurements, for sheets and wallboard. He went with Colette.

He testified that one of the three wanted men—"I don't remember which one"—asked him to make the purchases. He and Colette bought the tools used in the job, said Beisile.

The Rises and Simard started working on the closet on the morning of Wednesday, Oct. 21, and were finished "around 6 p.m. the same day."

School Dispute Will Be Aired

By LENNY WILLIAMSON
Staff Reporter

Ontario's education minister, Hon. William Davis, has appointed a judge to inquire into and report upon the suspension of separate school superintendent F. B. Allore.

The provincial government's move climaxes seven months of uncertainty since Mr. Allore was suspended by the two-county board on May 8.

Board chairman E. J. Buckley this morning announced the minister of education, by order in council dated Nov. 17 had appointed Frontenac county court judge A. B. Campbell of Kingston to call the hearing.

All parties involved, including Mr. Allore, were informed of the minister's action by letter this morning.

All details of the hearing will be determined by the judge, including the time and place and nature of the inquiry.

This is believed to be the first incident of its kind in Ontario — a hearing into the suspension of the chief executive officer of a school board.

The "Allore situation" has been in the hands of the minister since Oct. 2, when negotiations for a settlement, conducted between Mr. Allore and board chairman Buckley, broke down.

A group of Belleville separate school ratepayers intervened in the issue, sending deputations to the board meeting to inquire into the circumstances surrounding the suspension.

At a public meeting in St. Michael's auditorium Oct. 29, the board answered queries from the ratepayers. Mr. Allore was given a chance to state his case at a meeting arranged by the ratepayers Nov. 17.

Under present legislation, a school board can choose its chief executive officer, but the department of education must ratify his appointment. The same regulation applies to his dismissal.

UN Vote Favors Red China

UNITED NATIONS (CP) — For the first time in history, a resolution calling for the expulsion of Nationalist China and its replacement by the Communist regime was passed today in the United Nations General Assembly. But the majority of votes was not enough to seat Peking here.

The annual Albanian resolution calling for the seating of the Communists passed by a vote of 51 for, 49 against and 25 abstentions.

Canada supported the resolution for the first time.

But before the vote, an American - sponsored proposal saying that the Albanian resolution needed a two-thirds majority of those voting was approved by a vote of 66 for, 52 against and seven abstentions, reduced majority from last year.

A two-thirds majority of those voting today would have been 66 or 67 votes, because 100 delegates cast votes.

House Passes Bill

U.S. Senate May Balk at Trade Quotas

WASHINGTON (AP) — A quota-setting trade bill that would throw up most formidable new barriers against foreign goods since 1930 has passed the House of Representatives, but Senate approval is in doubt.

Opponents said the controversial bill by textile and shoe imports would touch off a world trade war. Backers said it would protect the threatened U.S. industries and jobs.

It passed the House 215 to 155 Thursday night.

Nixon administration efforts to cut the bill back to the president's request for textile quotas only—plus a tax incentive to boost U.S. exports—didn't even come to a vote.

But administration supporters said Nixon will make no decision on whether to veto the bill until he sees how it comes out of Congress.

Senate opponents have hinted they will filibuster if necessary to prevent a similar trade package from even being considered there.

Opponents concentrated their attack, during two days of debate, on predictions the quotas would bring trade-war retaliation from the countries affected —particularly Japan and the European Common Market—and would drive up U.S. prices by protecting American goods from cheaper foreign competitors.

But Representative Wilbur Mills (Dem.-Ark.), the bill's floor manager, said the mandatory quotas would reverse a decline in U.S. textile and shoe industry jobs and force foreign competitors to negotiate voluntary import curbs.

"The Japanese would rather have the textile market they can get in the United States than retaliate," he said.

In London, European businessmen voiced growing opposition to the bill. Leaders of the Confederation of British Industry prepared a note to President Nixon that a spokesman said "will express our grave dissatisfaction" in spots, by means of a special telescope.

Space scientist Vladimir Kurt was quoted as saying the moon's surface was a convenient base for apparatus to observe X-ray sources in space.

The moon vehicle originally moved about 53 feet from the spot where Luna 17 soft-landed. Tass news agency said it wheeled around, bringing the Luna 17 landing stage within the range of the television camera mounted aboard Lunokhod.

Tass said all systems aboard Lunokhod worked well and several main tasks have been accomplished, including checks on methods of controlling the vehicle, a panoramic survey of the terrain and planned scientific experiments.

Yesterday was visitors' day for the folk at Hastings Manor. A switch occurred, however, for the residents paid a call on a school, Holy Rosary, instead of the students visiting the Manor. Lunokhod Continuing Exploration on Moon

MOSCOW (Reuter) — The Lunokhod 1 robot moon explorer began its fourth day of remote-controlled investigation of the lunar surface today after maneuvering over a distance of 312 feet Thursday.

There was no indication when the program of the self-propelled planet would end. The squat, tub-like machine with eight wheels has been transmitting television pictures of the flat, waterless Sea of Rains where Luna 17, the latest Russian spaceshot, landed Tuesday.

Its program of scientific activities, aside from examining the surface and testing its own ability to perform, was said by the government newspaper Izvestia to include study of X-ray sources

Veteran Theatre Man, George Forhan Is Dead

Former manager of the Bella Theatre in Belleville and veteran of more than half a century in the theatre business, George H. Forhan, 4 Alexander Street, is dead.

Mr. Forhan, who retired three years ago, died Thursday afternoon in Belleville General Hospital following a brief illness.

Born in Toronto, he was the son of the late Mr. and Mrs. John Forhan and started in the theatre business with onetime Toronto theatre magnate Ambrose J. Small. Mr. Small was to disappear mysteriously in the early 1920s and was the subject of a fruitless continent-wide search.

Mr. Forhan's first theatre post was in St. Thomas and he came to Belleville in 1916 as manager of the old Griffin Opera House on Bridge Street.

He was to stay in the city as manager of the Griffin House and the Regent Theatre on Front Street until 1934 when he was transferred to St. Catharines.

But he returned to Belleville in 1939 as manager of the Bella Theatre where he remained until retirement on March 1, 1967.

Mr. Forhan's long record as theatre manager takes him back to the days of vaudeville and the colorful road shows which used to pack the opera houses — even in Belleville.

He recalled booking in such attractions as the George White's Scandals, the Dandolls of post World War I fame and Bringing Up Father.

Mr. Forhan was one of the first of the "gimmick" men for theatre promotion and was later to be recognized by Famous Players for his ability to get patrons to the theatres.

Mr. Forhan always considered Belleville as a "good theatre town."

Although never taking an active part in municipal life, Mr. Forhan nevertheless took a keen interest in local affairs and was a "regular" at the annual Wharf Street Debating Club sessions on South Front Street where candidates for municipal office face being shouted down in campaign speeches.

He was a member of St. Michael's Church and the Knights of Columbus and was a former director of the Kiwanis Club.

He is survived by his wife the former Kathleen Moran whom he met as a ticket seller at the old Griffin Theatre. There are two daughters, Mrs. Robert (Barbara) Buxton of Belleville and Mrs. John (Carolyn) Sexsmith of Marysville and the son George in Halifax. There are six grandchildren.

The funeral will be held Saturday from the Pinkston and Luscombe Funeral Home to St. Michael's Church for mass at 2 p.m. Interment will be in St. James' Cemetery.

Guards for School Children in Ameliasburg

A dangerous crossing at the junction of Highway 14 and county road 3 should be safer for school children meeting buses at Rossmore as of this morning. A crosswalk located 400 feet south of the bay bridge will be manned for the first time by township ratepayers at no charge. Acting as guards is a duty roster including Mrs. Keith Osterhout, Mrs. Dennis Hogue, Mrs. Steve Licence, Clifford Hill and Ray Kenyan. Elected representatives of the township were escorted by constable Don Watt of the Picton OPP detachment this morning to officially implement the safety measure.

East Zwick's Park Facilities Major Parks Board Topic

The Belleville Parks Board will ask city council to include an amount of $100,000 per year in its 1971-1975 capital works budget for park development and possible construction of a new parks service building.

Discussion on park development priorities took up much of the time at last night's board meeting at city hall, but development of East Zwick's Island and construction of the service building were the two projects named in the motion.

Parks Director Lloyd Syer told the meeting that the rented parks service building and property on College Street was inadequate and that more space was required.

The board considered another three-year lease for the property but will negotiate for a one-year lease and give consideration to the provision of another building.

City manager J. R. Reynolds said the development of East Zwick's Island should be considered as a capital project as it would be too costly to be done out of current funds.

Also, he said it was important this year to improve the appearance of the roadway leading across the edge of the park to-be to the new Four Seasons Motel.

Other possible park development priorities mentioned were the proposed Bayshore Drive in Foster Ward, and development of the new Centennial School recreational park complex where initial work is expected to get underway this coming summer.

But parks board members have not yet made any decision on the park facilities which might go into the East Zwick's Island development.

The area is currently still in use as a sanitary land fill garbage disposal site with plans being to cover it with topsoil and provide park facilities.

A consultant engineering firm has been engaged to provide a plan for the East Zwick's Island area but now parks board as to what facilities might be included.

So far suggested have been marine facilities, tennis court, swimming pool, a pitch and putt gold course, as well as standard active and passive park facilities.

But board members are still looking for further suggestions before any proposals are given to the consultants.

To speed matters up all board members are being asked to come up with a list of six or more facilities which they would like to see at East Zwick's following which a feedback from the general public would be asked to give an idea of what would be most acceptable.

WILLETT — To Wilfred and Marilyn (nee Bonter) Willett, Belleville, a daughter, Jennifer Lynn, born on Thursday, November 25, 1971 (St. Michael's Hospital, Toronto). A sister for Christopher.

IN MEMORIAM

BOONE — In loving memory of our dear Mother, Mrs. Ethel Boone, who passed away Nov. 26th, 1969.
Two years have passed and gone, dear Mother,
Two years we've lived without your love,
Two years we've missed your kindly counsel,
Two years we've longed to hear you speak,
Two years we've wished you were with us,
Two years we've missed you every week.
—Ever remembered by your daughter Ethel.

FRY — In loving memory of my dear husband, Frank Fry, who passed away Nov. 26th, 1965.
Sadly missed by his wife Mabel.

LOVETT — In loving memory of a dear husband and father, Ernest Lovett, who passed away Nov. 26th, 1962.
Time heals the heart and dries the tear,
But memories linger year by year.
Sadly missed, remembered,
Never forgotten.
—Remembered by wife Muriel and family.

REED — In loving memory of my dear husband, Ernest Reed, who passed away Nov. 26th, 1970.
Within my heart I will always keep,
Memories dear and deep.
And try to do my best to look,
To Him who knows best.
It's sad to walk the road alone,
Instead of side by side,
Where the many of the dream,
Of the days we shared together,
Remembered by wife Ethel.
But you left me bewildered somewhere,
I know not where or why,
Sadly missed by wife Ethel.

CARDS OF THANKS

The family of the late Harvey Ferguson wish to express their sincere appreciation to all those who attended, sent flowers, cards and helped in any way during the illness and passing of our father. Special thanks to the Cancer Society, Chateau Brillon and many nice nurses and doctors who looked after us so kindly. Thanks for your kindness, thoughtfulness and sympathy. —Mrs. Ferguson and family.

Official Notice Just in Time

Commencing next year, membership on the Hastings and Prince Edward Separate School Board is to be reduced from the present 14 to 12 members.

But the city clerk in Belleville where one of the reductions in board membership is to take place only this week was officially notified of the change just before the election machinery gets rolling.

Approval of the reduction in board membership was granted late in September and all municipalities were to be notified.

But somewhere along the line there was a slipup.

Under the present board setup, Belleville separate school ratepayers were entitled to vote for six members, while Trenton separate school supporters could vote for three.

However, under the new setup, Belleville and Trenton separate school supporters will elect one less member to the board.

In other words, Belleville ratepayers will now elect but five to the separate school board, while in Trenton only two will be elected.

Salary Settlement

Teachers and trustees signed on the dotted line yesterday to complete salary negotiations for the local Ontario English Catholic Teachers' Association. Barry O'Donnell, chairman of the OECTA negotiating committee and Ben Kroese, chairman of the board's committee (seated) put their signatures on the final contract. Adding their assent to the "amicable agreement" were Francis Evans, local OECTA president, and E. J. Buckley, board chairman.

Board, Teachers Reach Agreement

The problem of ridden Hastings - Prince Edward separate school board has one less item to worry about today — its teachers.

Officials of the local Ontario English Catholic Teachers' Association yesterday signed a salary agreement for 1970-71, followed a round of "amicable negotiations".

Board officials said the agreement amounts to an eight per cent increase, based on the September to June year's agreement.

But the teachers qualified the statement by saying the eight per cent increase includes the routine annual increments . . . annual allowances granted to teachers for experience.

The teachers' negotiating team, comprised of chairman Barry O'Donnell, and Lorna Gehan and Alex French, emphasized that the negotiations, began in mid-September, proceeded smoothly.

Last year, the separate school system was threatened with a teachers' strike over absences of a definition of levels of increase in the contract and lack of ratification of the document by all teacher-members.

The 1969 - 70 contract was not signed until June of this year, that delaying negotiations for the current academic year.

The current contract includes definition of levels — the categories in which teachers are placed for salary purposes — and was ratified by the membership at a general meeting Nov. 19.

The number of levels in which teachers may be placed has been expanded from five to seven — the same number as the public county board includes in its teachers' contract.

Also included in the agreement is a clause setting up the routine for the next round of salary negotiations, expected to begin early in the new year.

Board spokesman said today that the minimum salaries in all levels are identical to those paid teachers with the public system.

However, in some cases, the maximum salaries in the various levels differ from the public board's salary schedule.

Teachers salaries range from $5,168, the "annual amount paid in an unqualified teacher employed with a letter of permission, to $14,600, the amount earned by a teacher at the top of level 7.

Annual experience increments vary from $180 to $400, depending on the level and the number of years employment.

The board still assumes one-third of the cost of premiums for teachers with Ontario Insurance and Ontario Health Services Insurance plans.

Gordon Bennett Seeks Election

Gordon Bennett, 51, an insurance agency operator in Marmora, has announced that he will seek re-nomination as a trustee on the Hastings county board of education.

He will contest a seat for the area including Marmora, Madoc and Deloro villages, Rawdon, Marmora, Lake Madoc, Elzevir and Grimsthorpe townships. The present incumbent is James Spry.

GORDON BENNETT

A part-time resident of Marmora since 1946, Mr. Bennett has made Marmora his home since his retirement from the RCAF five years ago.

Since taking up permanent residence in Marmora, Mr. Bennett has been active in community affairs.

As chairman of the Marmora and District Centennial Celebration Committee, he coordinated community activities for that year.

For two years he served as president of the Marmora and district Chamber of Commerce and is now president of the Highlands of Hastings Tourist Council, secretary-treasurer of the Centre Hastings Winter sports area and chairman of the local Cancer Fund Committee.

Education has always been of great interest and concern to Mr. Bennett.

He taught for two years before enlisting in the RCAF in World War II and returned to teaching in Tweed, Marmora and Madoc in 1966 for a further three years. He served for four years on the Marmora and Lake township public school board.

Mr. Bennett is married and has four sons. One attends Centre Hastings Secondary School in Madoc, one is at Carleton University, one at Memorial University in St. John's, Nfld., and one is a captain in the Canadian Forces.

Sales and Ad Speaker:

Law Safeguards Our Way of Life

A warning that Canadians "should safeguard our way of life" was related to members of the Belleville Sales and Advertising Club Tuesday night by Syd Brown, president of the Metropolitan Toronto Police Association.

"Everything that has happened in the U.S. will happen here if we don't work to prevent it," said Mr. Brown. On a recent tour of the United States "I was urged to stay off the streets of Washington after five o'clock . . . in Houston everyone has two or three guns. Law enforcement agencies give the impression they have lost the war."

Mr. Brown said Canadians are living "in strange time" and unhappily police and laws "are ill - equipped" to deal with the problems. "We are involved in social unrest and becoming social workers. We are dealing with humanities and police are ill - equipped."

Speaking on police training, Mr. Brown said policemen should receive psychological training, exposure to the behavioral sciences and a broader more comprehensive training program. He suggested this was difficult to do at the police college where "conditions are deplorable."

Mr. Brown outlined a few points in regard to the interrelation of police departments and the citizens and objected to "police getting injured at peaceful demonstrations." He said 285 Toronto police officers were assaulted last summer and asked why "a citizen hits an officer it is common eyewash but if the officer punches him back it is police brutality."

Mr. Brown touched all bases in his address.

On Marijuana: "If ever there was legal we will have hoards of draft dodgers on the way immediately."

On rock festivals: "Society is involving police in situations which are completely their responsibility. So many persons are breaking the law that the police cannot do anything. It reduces the police to a perimeter action which is embarrassing and there are media reporting flouts the law."

On Quebec: "The situation has gone on for eight years. The government had to take last action, otherwise there would have been chaos."

On wiretapping: "The police must have the law under the supervision of the attorney general."

On capital punishment: "In 1967 there was a free vote in favor of capital punishment (where police officers and guards are involved). But it is not being enforced by the legislators. They should do so or withdraw the legislation."

Removal Advocated

Bay of Quinte Water High in Nutrients

By HARRY MULHALL
Staff Reporter

Could the Bay of Quinte become a lasting ground for programs to combat water quality deterioration in the Great Lakes?

The possibility of such a project for the Quinte waterway — where water quality has long been a topic of public criticism — is indicated in a report to the Ontario Water Resources Commission.

The report — an assessment of nutrients in the bay — is the result of an extensive in-depth survey headed by Murray G. Johnson, University of Guelph zoologist.

The study says the bay shows symptoms of over-fertilization, "markedly similar" to those of Lake Erie.

"In fact," it adds, "the Bay of Quinte may be a useful area for the first large-scale attempt at nutrient control in the Great Lakes."

The Bay of Quinte annually receives 112,000 lbs. of nitrogen and 9,000 lbs. of phosphorus per mile. This compares to 450,000 lbs. nitrogen and 6,100 lbs. phosphorous in Lake Erie.

The bay received about 3,700,000 lbs. nitrogen and 260,000 lbs. phosphorous in 1968. The present contribution — 89 per cent nitrogen and 69 per cent phosphorous — was land drainage. The remainder came from municipal - industrial sources.

The report stresses the urgency of removing phosphorous from municipal and industrial wastes flowing into the bay.

Nutrient removal in Quinte water-pollution control plants was not high, the study found.

About 30 per cent nitrogen and 40 per cent phosphorous were removed.

But 95 per cent phosphorous removal should be possible, says the report.

It estimates the annual cost of such removal from the flow from treatment plants and unconnected industries at about $200,000.

No cost - benefit study has yet been made of such a removal program.

But such a cost would be lower than the price paid by lower cottage and resort values, and the price of treating such water for domestic use. While the benefits might be intangible, the study points out that tourism in the area drew close to two million people who spent $7.8 million dollars around the Quinte tourist region in 1962.

"Will phosphorous removal be effective?" asks the Johnson report.

"Improvement in water quality in Lake Ontario would be expected — provided that programs for nutrient removal in the lower Great Lakes progress throughout their basins."

The report, says a covering letter from John H. Neil, director of the OWRC's laboratory division, is a "much needed assessment" of nutrient inputs into the bay.

It "demonstrates the special significance of low - volume high concentration municipal inputs — which are instrumental in contributing to excessive vegetation."

Mr. Neil says there is increased optimism for improved water quality — if removal techniques being investigated by the OWRC can be practically applied to sewage treatment plants.

Development of such facilities would considerably benefit the bay and Lake Ontario, says Mr. Neil.

What's A Million?

Canada needs to widen the base of its cultural activities, but are we justified (even on the statement of Finance Minister Benson that the era of tight money has ended) in spending vast sums of money on it?

There was the National Arts Centre in Ottawa which cost the taxpayer several million dollars more than was estimated. And now, we may see another excess of zeal for the arts, or for mere extravaganza, justifies the $8 million over the estimate for Ontario Place, the entertainment area the provincial government is building at the 1967 waterfront in Toronto.

Here we have a great deal of money being concentrated in one project, and in a city which already has the kind of cultural facilities associated with big metropolitan areas. But will the rest of Ontario benefit? We think not. Yet that additional $6 million (if it must be spent at all) could go a long way toward spreading the arts around a larger audience, on bringing any of Canadian ballet and opera companies to centres which have not seen them.

The extra money for Ontario Place, we are told, will be spent on newer expanded facilities. Well great — for Toronto. But what use is it to the citizens of Thunder Bay or Kapuskasing or Hawkesbury or even Belleville?

In any event, are there no curbs on the spending of money as fast as excess of what was estimated? Does this come under the sphere of influence (which some elements in Ottawa are currently trying to "narrow") of the Auditor-General?

And what about the Ontario Municipal Board which in its annual report, just released, notes: "To a greater extent even than in 1968, the Board, because of the scarcity of capital funds and very high interest rates, accelerated its policy of encouraging local government bodies to scale down and limit demands on the capital market to the need for more urgent capital works.

"Once again," the report adds, "the response at the local level was creditable and certainly commendable, displaying a keen appreciation by local officials of the serious situation they faced."

So there we have it, more double talk — on the one hand the federal finance minister tells us that "there is no tight money in Canada at the present time," and the OMB talking of scarcity of funds and high interest. And hanging over it all, the spectre of government extravagance as typified by Ontario Place.

Reds Demonstrate

Perhaps NDP leader Tommy Douglas will not be so anti-American or so virulent in his criticism of the government's anti-terrorist measures, now that he has had a taste of the tactics of extremists.

We refer to the incident in Edmonton when Mr. Douglas was interrupted by seven persons bearing red flags, a portrait of Mao Tse-tung and armed with tomatoes. The group, calling themselves members of the International Extremist Party, and led by a blonde woman, shook their fists at the NDP leader and advanced in a threatening manner. They were stopped by party officials and fled before police arrived.

Said Mr. Douglas: "The real question we are facing is whether we are going to effect change peacefully and democratically, as the NDP wishes, or violently . . . as those who are making a noise here to-night."

Exactly. The only thing is, nobody is really sure what Mr. Douglas and his party mean by "change." In any event we think this incident may have been a valuable lesson for the NDP leader.

Ill-Prepared

The affluent countries of the world are always quick to get aid to regions where natural disaster has struck, but the real irony and tragedy often lie in the inadequacy of the countries affected to cope.

While relief planes started arriving in Pakistan Tuesday, the only Pakistani plane operating in the disaster area was a single helicopter and it had to be grounded for maintenance after 14 hours aloft.

The magnitude of this catastrophe of course would tax even the resources of a wealthy nation, had it been the victim instead of relatively impoverished Pakistan. The lesson nonetheless is that Pakistan, which fought a costly war, with neighboring India over Kashmir in 1965, should be better prepared in future for civil disaster.

Icelandic Study

New Light on How Television Affects Children

ANTHONY SMITH in UNESCO Features

Is there a monster in the sitting room, or is the television set an educational force greater than the world has ever seen? This question — or one of its variants — is being hotly debated, both in countries where children spend more time in front of their sets than at school, and in those where a television service is still only a possibility.

Those who claim television is a power for good can draw some comfort from a Unesco - supported study of the effects of television on school children which has just appeared. However laudable and arguable the results of such studies are, this one indicates that while both brighter and duller children can become better informed through the medium; children are not passive receptacles into which anybody can pour prejudice or prescription.

The study, by Torbjorn Brodbeck, a sociologist of the University of Lund, (Sweden) of 2,000 school children between 11 and 15 years old in three communities in Iceland, is probably unique. At the time of the research, the country's television service was at such a stage of development that direct comparisons could be made between those who had had television for some time, those to whom it was relatively new, and those who were totally unexposed to it because they lived beyond the range of transmitters. This kind of comparison is now virtually impossible in most other countries of Western Europe.

Of course, the statistics of a piece of research such as this have to be accepted with caution. The answers were obtained from a written questionnaire taking a number of alternatives, rather than by personal and individually confidential interviews. They were also taken from an not anonymous (a fine distinction to make, we admit to make on any case), so that while the researchers could trace relationships between viewing and family income, school performance and other significant "variables", there was small guarantee that the children did not occasionally tell us what they believed was the "acceptable" answer, rather than what they really thought. For example, relatively few boys admitted to ever being frightened by television, while a majority of boys and girls thought that it was wrong to be satisfied with life" A true most important to be honest, rather than to be rich or popular. Of any of a number of suggested alternatives implying possession of a house and a car.

One thing gave the study special interest: a television service was created in Iceland only after a service had been started for United States forces stationed there in 1951. Reception was at first confined to the capital, Reykjavik, and then spread to the rest of Iceland. Comparison was therefore possible between the effect of "foreign" TV and the home-produced variety.

The first obvious result of this comparison was that, although the American television was related as being the more "frightening", there was no evidence that it was changing the children's values. Icelandic TV was rated as producing more "sadness" and "anger" and the United States was nowhere near the top of the popularity tables for foreign countries.

In fact, no one nation emerged as clear leader when the children were asked to name their favorite foreign country. Although more of those who had been exposed for a long time to the American service were inclined to name the United States, Denmark, a country with which Iceland has special links was the only one to score over 10 per cent in any group, while preferences for the United Kingdom, Norway and Sweden were spread evenly through the age who watched television consistently and those who watched it occasionally.

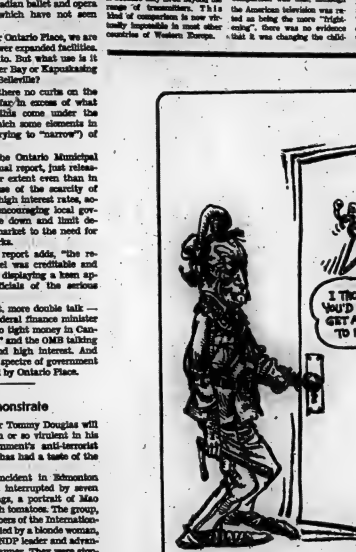
Although the study was limited to 10-14-year-olds and, being made in a country where television is relatively new, does not show what things might be like after long exposure, it does indicate that children can make sifting it into the pattern of their activities treating it very much as part of life and no more: 11 per cent of the Icelandic youngsters questioned said they stopped looking when there was something they were not interest them, compared with only 79 per cent of British children in a similar study.

Asked what they would most like to do if they wanted to enjoy themselves thoroughly, the 10-year-old boys questioned answered "read a good book" and "Watch television," in that order. The 11-year-olds gave television preference over reading, and by the 13-year-olds it shared top preference with sports, but among 13-year-olds television viewing was displaced by cinema and theatre visits and among 14-year-olds by the cinema alone. The high preference for television was also indicated by the results of reporting up. In view of the high percentage claiming to read newspapers every day (55 per cent in the Reykjavik community) it is not surprising that the children ran news programs high among their favorites, third in order of preference. This is a long way behind the undisputed "crime" program favorites "Dangerman" and "The Saint", but even programs were named by 36 per cent of the children, while in the British study they never got more than 9 per cent of favotes from any group.

The taste for news programs, also shared by Swedish children, may be due to a better presentation and timing of news than television. Professor Brodbacon believes. The Nordic style, he remarks is a peak-hour mixture of news and commentaries, national and international events. Working at least something of interest to everybody, and he contrasts this with the appeal, on the one side, of five-minute news periods and, on the other, of sidebarded current affairs programs with discussions, commentaries and films on special topics.

What knowledge did the children gain? While only 18 per cent knew exactly who Ed Sullivan was and only 12 per cent exactly who Richard Nixon was, the fact remains that they were asked only about people "mentioned frequently in the news". Since, at the time of the study, the pre-race answer to "Who is Richard Nixon?" was "Former U.S. Vice President" or "Former Presidential Candidate," the Icelandic children's knowledge was probably not below average on every question.

Professor Brodbacon also aimed to establish a relationship between the material a child views and his performance in school. His results here tend to confirm earlier findings in the United States that, while high achievers generally view less than low achievers, there is no evidence that the viewing causes low marks; the child who is frustrated at school is likely to seek relief elsewhere.



The most interesting sidelight on the educational role of television is shown in answers to a question about learning where children get their information. Less than 30 per cent of the boys said that they hoped to learn what expected future jobs at school, while 70 per cent looked to school about their society and how it works, they seem to find television a far better source of information to relate it to their own role in society and few fresh ideas as to how they could serve it in a new way."

On this topic, Brodbacon collected some compelling information about a comparatively little known function of television: its role as an agent of social change.

Children were asked what job they would most like to have if they could. These "dream jobs" were then classified according to a scale of prestige and compared with the occupations of the boys' fathers on the same scale; boys who wanted jobs 20 points higher than their own father's in the prestige scale were in the majority in Reykjavik, which has had television longest, about half came from the town where TV was relatively new, and they were in a minority in the town still without television.

Most of these children, naturally, said that they learned about the "dream jobs" through television, and Professor Brodbacon notes that in both Swedish and Icelandic films are a that the children consciously use television as a source of information about jobs. It is a "magic doorway into a world of fantasy, glamour and excitement". Admittedly, the Icelandic children scored low in popularity, but "eight per cent is better than nothing and it is tempting to think that the percentage could be increased."

In fact, in countries where there is no commercial television, TV is almost entirely up to the policy makers and program producers to build an image of society as a source of information and education as well as that of being the most effective means of entertainment, relaxation and escape."

40 YEARS AGO

November 30, 1938

After wandering aimlessly about in the bush north of Marmora since Monday noon, Thomas Davies, 36, shell shocked veteran, appeared last night at a farm home near the community of Millbridge seeking food and shelter. He stated that he had completely lost his bearings and could not find his way out of the bush until ow.

Hunting parties are returning from various parts of the Hastings district with varying tales of luck, some good and some bad; but a motor truck was observed passing through Tweed yesterday with 10 fine deer.

50 YEARS AGO

The Dutch Fair held in St. Thomas' Parish House under the auspices of the Women's Guild was a great success.

It is reported that 450 hunters and 250 hounds were north of Bannockburn one day last week. The train which carried them was four hours late in reaching Bancroft.

Nixon's Dilemma

Unemployment, Inflation, Living Costs Plague U.S.

By BOB CURRIE

WASHINGTON (CP) — With clouds of political verisage still hanging over the land in the wake of the recent United States elections, the experts now are busy adding the air for indicators of the big presidential campaign of 1972.

Their reading at this early date seems to be that if President Nixon can make good his promise to turn the economy around, the presidency is his for another four-year term.

But the consensus among many economists and political observers is that he can't pull it off.

If by some miracle he could reverse the spiralling unemployment rate while also cooling the inflationary trend, they contend, he could whip any Democrat in sight.

Possibly the most important indicator was that the American voter frequently showed himself to be more preoccupied with dollars and cents than with law and order.

If the law-and-order issue becomes more important during the next year or so, the stern hand of the Republican administration would likely be more influential with the voters.

Currently the president and his aides are speaking encouragingly about the state of the future economy in terms somewhat reminiscent of the pre-depression about prosperity being just around the corner.

Already unemployment is at a near record high of 4.6 per cent and some economists have predicted a seasonally adjusted rate by February of 4.5 or even more. Cost-of-living statistics continue to climb.

Of even greater concern is the demonstration in recent months that prices can go up at the same time unemployment increases.

Wednesday, the administration suffered another setback with announcement that industrial production — major indicator of the state of the economy — registered its sharpest decline last month since 1958.

There is nearly unanimous agreement among experts that the reason for President Nixon's equation for righting the economy won't work is because of a relaxing vital part—a system of wage and price controls.

But the administration's persistent opposition to such a policy is well known. This opposition has its foundation in the Republican conviction that it would be wrong to interfere with the private market mechanism.

Nixon reiterated this philosophy early in his presidency, and continues to hold to it.

But none of the alternatives offered by the president could, in the view of experts, do the trick.

For instance, he could make major economies in government spending—perhaps in the field of space or the vastly expensive cour-er-missile system—but that would bring greater unemployment.

On the other hand, he could stimulate the economy by big spending—programs—but that would surely bring a new round of inflation.

Re-election Is Sought By Board Chairman

James Clarke, incumbent chairman of Hastings county board of education, today became the first trustee to announce he would stand for re-election Dec. 7.

JAMES CLARKE

Mr. Clarke served as the last chairman of the Bay of Quinte District High School Board before its merger with 12 other boards to form the Hastings county board of education. He was elected first chairman of the new county board in Jan. 1969 and was re-elected to the same position for 1970. He was also chairman of the committee set up to organize the changeover from individual boards to the county system.

"When the board was formed two years ago it was faced with an immense task of integrating 13 previous small boards, all with individual problems," says Mr. Clarke. "In the last two years our board has accomplished a great deal."

The chairman listed the first county board's accomplishments, including integration of secondary and elementary school systems, changing the transportation system, setting up new business administration procedures, accommodating an increased student enrolment, updating outmoded school facilities, upgrading the professional staff and wrestling with a tight budget limited by low ceilings on provincial grants.

"We held the budgets well within the provincial guidelines and kept administrative and other costs much lower than the provincial average," Mr. Clarke says. "We were faced with a problem common to many boards — amalgamating many townships, each with a different tax basis."

In 1970 this resulted in 33 per cent of Hastings taxpayers having a decrease in their education tax, 57 per cent having a less than one per cent increase, 11 per cent having a 2 to 5 per cent increase and 9 per cent having a 6 to 23 per cent increase.

"This board has avoided the difficulties of many other boards — teacher negotiating problems and custodial staff strikes, for example," continues Mr. Clarke. "We have built a strong, sound organization, with a tremendous spirit of progress and co-operation.

"But there is no cause for complacency. There is a lot to be done in the next two years to consolidate our position and to attempt to eliminate some of the inequalities that still exist within our county. I feel the experience gained in the last two years will be vital in the years to come and therefore I am seeking re-election."

Mr. Clarke is a professional engineer, who is president of Wilson Concrete Products Ltd. and has two children in elementary school.

Uncertainty Marks Picton Politics

PICTON (Staff) — Mayor H. J. McFarland said Thursday he has not yet made up his mind whether he will seek re-election in office at a nomination meeting here next Monday.

He remarked there has been a "great deal of public pressure" but said he could not state his intentions at this time.

Reeve Bernard Hepburn has announced he will definitely seek re-election.

Councillor Margaret Ackerman, now completing her first term, said that she definitely will not run for councillor.

Asked if she would be interested in seeking the offices of mayor, reeve or deputy reeve, she said "yes" but declined to indicate which office.

Councillor Bessie Ward said she remains undecided about seeking office.

Councillor Harold McLoughlin, now completing his second term, said today he too remains undecided. However, he indicated he remains very interested in Picton's recreation committee and feels it has now taken a definite direction.

He has served on the committee for four years.

Councillor Harry Abram, now ending his first two years on council, said he remains undecided about seeking a renewed term.

Veteran councillor James Bird is also in hospital and was not available for comment.

A Picton businessman, Corey Walraven, has announced his intention to seek a seat on town council in the upcoming election Dec. 7.

A real estate agent resident here for 10 years, Mr. Walraven said he would like to see "properly-serviced land available for industry."

It is his first bid for public office.

Councillor William Lane, a Picton lawyer completing his first term of office has stated that he has not yet decided to seek re-election. Mr. Lloyd Seeley and Mrs. S. W. D. Hart, two of Picton's representatives to the Prince Edward County board of education have announced that they intend to stand for re-election. Both are completing their first term as members of the county board formed two years ago.

Builder Attacks Urban Restraints

Harold Shipp, vice - president of the National Homebuilders Association, charged that low cost housing construction was being hindered by certain "inhibitions and prohibitions" on the part of certain municipal governments.

"Two federal housing loan programs have made improvements in housing production for 1970" with "expectations of 180,000 unit starts . . . predictable, having accounted for close to 30,000 starts."

$300 million, has had a "salutary effect, not only on industry but on municipal administration."

And here his voice rose with emphasis.

"Arousing for the first time, some local governments to their responsibilities and abilities in facilitating housing for groups long neglected."

He charged that until the "inhibitions and prohibitions are removed in total, it will not be possible for Canada's total housing requirements to be met either for certain segments of the population or in certain geographic areas where municipalities persist in saying that they cannot afford low cost housing."

Mr. Shipp informed the Quinte Homebuilders Association in his address Wednesday that the NHA was giving full support to Robert Andras who was recently given full ministerial powers as the Minister of State for Urban Affairs in housing.

First Aid Lectures Offered

St. John Ambulance, under the direction of its 130 Divisional Surgeon, Dr. Bruce Morgan, will hold several lectures this winter in conjunction with its regular training program, it was announced this morning.

The lectures are expected to be of wide public interest and will be presented free of charge at 162 First Street. Each lecture will feature a doctor specializing in the particular field of medicine being dealt with at the time.

Dr. Morgan, himself, will conduct the first lecture Dec. 10 discussing burns and scalds.

Other lectures will be held Feb. 11, Mar. 25, May 13, and June 24, covering such topics as emergency childbirth, control of hemorrhaging, poison, strokes, heart attacks and heat exhaustion.

Miss Hope and Runner-up

Miss Hope winner, Carolyn Arnott, and runnerup, Lynn Robertson, pose after the Belleville Kinsmen Hydrix Unit of the Canadian Cancer Society's Miss Hope contest last night. Miss Arnott moves on to district finals next week in Kingston.

Highway 2 Tender Call Expected Next Year

Conditional on the completion of property acquisitions, tenders for the reconstruction of Highway 2 between Trenton and Belleville are expected to be called some time next year.

This was indicated today by DOH district engineer Vernon Snell of Kingston who said that department programming scheduled a tender call next year unless "problems" came up.

One of the "problems" which could delay the tender call would be the final outcome of expropriation proceedings to acquire the several remaining properties which still remain to be purchased.

Expropriation proceedings could be entered into by the highways department for at least seven properties along the highway route.

A special hearing to determine whether the proposed expropriations are fair and reasonably necessary is expected to be held.

However, a large percentage of the property owners involved have either settled amicably with the highways department or have agreed to negotiations with respect to price.

And some of the buildings near the present right of way have already been moved back to make way for the widened roadway.

Property sale agreements call for possession by the highways department as early as February of next year.

Plans are to rebuild Highway 2 to four lanes from the Trenton air station to the western city limits at Belleville.

Included in the rebuilding would be construction of a complex grade separation over the CPR tracks at what is now known as the cemetery crossing.

Adding to the complexity of the grade separation at this point is the nearness of Avonlough Road and the entrances to Towers and Bell Boy shopping areas.

Carolyn Arnott Our Miss Hope

An attractive student nurse will represent the Belleville and District Unit of the Canadian Cancer Society Monday night in Kingston when she takes part in the district finals of the Miss Hope Contest.

Miss Carolyn Arnott, 21, won the chance to go to the district finals in the Belleville district competition last night at Education Hall.

Miss Arnott is a student of the Edith Cavell School of Nursing. Miss Lynn Robertson was runnerup in the competition.

Judges for the event were, Miss Ruth Gew director of Nursing Services at the Belleville General Hospital; Dr. J. Hartz; and Gerald Joyce.

The contest saw the contestants give a short address on cancer and the society which was considered with personality and appearance in the competition.

A number of student nurses joined the general public who attended the contest and were treated to a film about cancer.

Refreshments were supplied by the Cancer Society.

MR. AND MRS. DAVID B. RABY

Raby – Gulis

Rev. Peter Test officiated at the recent wedding ceremony in St. Thomas Anglican Church, Belleville when Marie Elizabeth Gulis, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Steve Gulis of Belleville was united in marriage to David Brian Raby, son of Mrs. E. Raby of Belleville and Mr. H. Raby of Stirling.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a floor length gown of crystal peau featuring guipure lace yoke with round neckline and three-quarter length sleeves. A sweeping train of matching lace extended from the yoke line at the back of gown. Her headdress was a cluster of lace petals adorned with pearls and stamens from which extended a four-tier silk illusion veil with appliques of lace. She carried a white Bible crested with white carnations and yellow roses.

Miss Wanda Baker as maid of honor wore a floor length gown in winter green bonded crepe featuring an A-line skirt trimmed with lace and velvet. She wore a matching headdress and carried a bouquet of white and yellow daisy mums. Bridesmaids Mrs. Jo-Anne Gulis, sister-in - law of the bride and Miss Debbie Laprade, niece of the bride-groom were attired identically to the maid of honor but in pastel yellow and mint green shades with matching headdresses and bouquets. Miss Dina Thompson, goddchild of the bride as flower girl was attired identically to the other attendants but in orange shade and carried a nosegay of yellow and white baby 'mums.

George Raby attended his brother as best man, ushers were Nick Gulis brother of the bride and Rick Shelley, cousin of the bride. Charles Laprade, nephew of the bridegroom was the ring bearer.

For the wedding reception held in St. Thomas Parish Hall, the bride's mother greeted the guests wearing a gold jacket dress of imported English crimplene with brown accessories and a corsage of talisman roses. The bridegroom's mother assisted wearing a burgundy crimplene dress with pink hat, black accessories and a corsage of sweetheart roses.

Leaving on the honeymoon trip to points west, the bride chose a navy blue suit with red and white accessories and corsage of red and white carnations.

Mr. and Mrs. Raby will reside in Belleville.

DISTRICT WOMEN'S INSTITUTES

QUINTE W.I.

The November meeting of Quinte Women's Institute was held in the W.I. Hall with 22 members and two guests present.

Mrs. Arrood Mitchell, president welcomed all those present and opened the meeting in the usual manner. Mrs. Mitchell asked for a moment of silence in remembrance of the fallen heroes of the war.

Mrs. Jack Parrott, international convenor took charge of the meeting. Mrs. A. D. Fleming, delegate to area convention, brought a detailed report, especially the address of the provincial president. This was an outstanding convention with an attendance of 243.

The motto, "The measure of life is donation not duration" was given by Mrs. Fleming who dealt with the origin of the Remembrance Day poem "In Flanders Fields".

The time was late summer of 1917, the place a field hospital in Boulogne, France, close to the English Channel and original the part of Belgium known as Flanders. The doctorin charge, Dr. John McCrea wiped his sleeve across his forehead in a weary gesture, as it had been a long, terrible night one after another stretchers had been coming in. Taking a short break he walked to the rain streaked window and watched the sunlight reach out to the lines of crosses which stood not far distant and where the deep crimson poppies bloomed in profusion.

Deep down in his mind a few groping phrases began to form. Taking his notebook outside and sitting on the running board of a field truck he began to write. "In Flanders Fields the poppies grow between the crosses row on row."

Dr. John McRea, a Canadian, who was born in Guelph in 1872. Few people knew him well because he was a shy sensitive person. This poem he composed that day he never saw in print. The following January he died at the age of 45 years in a Field Hospital at Boulogne. At this early age he had not only given his life, but left this world famous poem adopted by British and Canadian armies as their official Armistice Day poem.

Mrs. Jack Parrott gave a commentary on colored slides of their trip to the Canary Islands which were most interesting and enjoyed by all.

SOCIAL and PERSONAL

ENGAGEMENT NOTICE

Mr. and Mrs. Ray E. Short, Stirling, announce the engagement of their youngest daughter Eleanor Irene to Antonius Johannes Mackitg only son of Mr. and Mrs. John Macking, Colborne. The marriage will take place in the Church of St. James the Minor, Stirling on December 19, 1970 at 3 p.m.

* * *

Previous to her recent marriage Mrs. Dave Raby (nee Marie Gulis) was entertained at several showers. One was held at the home of Miss Wanda Baker; a miscellaneous shower at the home of Mrs. Phil Speed in Napanee with Mrs. Douglas Thompson and Mrs. John Speed as cohostesses, and another at the home of Mrs. Hoskin with Miss Barbara Hoskin as cohostess. Following the rehearsal, the wedding party was entertained at the home of the bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Steve Gulis.

To Each His Own Endeavor

Belleville's Art Association's fourth exhibition is continuing at the Belleville Library gallery until Dec. 5. Association president Oscar Bonin while holding a hanging sculpture views a number of other works on display. These include a water color painting by Philippa Faulkner, a batik by Mrs. Audrey Davies, a hooked abstract wall hanging by Mrs. W. L. Peddle and an oil painting entitled 'Born Free' done by the president, all of which were individually created.

Works of Local Artists Displayed at Library

The Belleville Art Association's fourth exhibition is now on display at the Belleville Library gallery and the 42 exhibits of art will be shown until Dec. 5.

The works shown include oil and water color paintings, batiks, hooked wall hangings and hanging sculptures and those selected for the show were chosen by Ralph Allen, director of Agnes Etherington Art Centre, Kingston. Each item shown is an individual creation of the artist without any other instruction or guidance being given.

The exhibition was officially opened during a recent preview, by His Worship Mayor J. R. Scott before a crowd of over 100 people. In his address Mayor Scott extended appreciation on behalf of the citizens of Belleville to the Art Association for their contribution to the cultural life of the community.

Art Association president Oscar Bonin as head of the group is endeavoring to promote fine arts in the city and district. He expressed appreciation to Mayor Scott and welcomed the gathering in attendance.

Manor Auxiliary Plans Events

To open the meeting the this time Mrs. J. McLaren welcomed the members and read an appropriate poem. At this time Mrs. D. McLaren reported on the visits of the various church groups.

The Auxiliary has chartered a bus for the residents to attend a tea and bazaar at the Centennial Manor in Bancroft on Wed. Nov. 18. A number of items have been purchased for the use of the residents and these include films, bingo sets, playing cards, checkers, cribbage boards and 18 card tables.

Those having birthdays in November were honored and refreshments were served in the dining room with Mrs. Rushnell and Mrs. McLaren pouring tea. John Alford who was marking his 88th birthday cut the birthday cake.

Nurses Gain New Ideas

OTTAWA (CP) — Two nurses from India and one from Nigeria, visiting Canada for two months on fellowships from the World Health Organization, hope to take some new ideas home.

Mary Clara Xavier, 50, of Lucknow, is assistant superintendent of nursing services for the state of Uttar Pradesh in India. She is mostly concerned with recruiting candidates for general nurses' training and supervising training programs for nursing and midwifery students. The purpose of the fellowship is to allow me to observe administrative nursing services and education programs for nurses at basic, post-basic and graduate levels so that when I go back to my country I may be able to use some of my experiences to better the nursing services in my country," she said.

Her counterpart from Ahmedabad, India, Mrs. Kanchan Surendra Shah, 37, and Mrs. O. A. Adewole of Lagos, a nursing officer in Nigeria's federal health ministry, are the two other nurses on fellowships.

Wearing a flowing, brown-and-yellow "iro" and a matching "gele" or hat, Mrs. Adewole said she is greatly impressed by Canadian nursing. Like Miss Xavier, she was trained in England and this contributed to her desire to visit Canada.

During their stay in Ottawa the visitors met federal health officials and toured the offices of the Canadian Nurses Association. They will go to Toronto and Montreal before spending a further two months in the United States.

Education Required to Perform Social Welfare Work

By DORIS CLARE

Dear Doris: I am interested in social work when I finish my education this year (graduating from commercial/secretarial school.) I would like to work for a welfare agency.

During summers I have been a playground supervisor, and presently I am a Sunday School teacher. If at all essential, I have my driver's permit. Is there a demand for a person with my qualifications in this field? — Molly.

Dear Molly: If you really want to get into a people-helping job in some depth, get more schooling. You need to study why people act as they do, how they get their lives all mixed up and going wrong and you need to learn how to help them extricate themselves in depth—you need a college course as a social worker.

But then there are some in between helping jobs, and there are community colleges now offering two-year courses to prepare young people like yourself to be social work assistants. These are shorter courses, containing opportunities for learning how to help people in such a way as to make them feel better about their lives, even though they are down on their luck.

DORIS CLARE

* * *

Dear Doris: I am a male, grade 10 student, 17 an considered intelligent, but in the last two years I have gotten nowhere. I have definitely flunked this year. I hate school, and because of this I just can't drag myself there.

I am also considered a "rebel" too! I think it would be best for everybody if I did not attend school any more.

(1) If I enrolled in a correspondence school would I be able to receive a regular graduation diploma?

(2) Are graduates of this type of school looked upon with the same merit as graduates from regular secondary schools? — Disgusted.

Dear Disgusted:

(1) Eventually.

(2) Yes, if you make it.

But if you find day school distasteful, you'll never drag yourself to a solitary desk at home to do correspondence study. You are practically spoon fed at high school and don't know it.

It takes intestinal fortitude to stick with anything which demands concentration. You'll be in a better position to return to the system when you have absorbed all that our Canadian schools give you.

* * *

Dear Doris: Enclosed is my self - addressed and stamped envelope and 20 cents for your pamphlet, "Children With Learning Disabilities."

But for the phrase "above average in some subjects", that child in your column could be mine. At seven and a half, she is, I feel, quite immature and having a terrible time at school.

She is no problem at home.

Rejected

Dear Rejected: It may well be a learning disability. But we need, to know her basic potential first, and this can be determined through some simple intelligence tests administered by someone who is trained to distinguish between native alertness and a special problem.

If the capacity is there, then the visual - perceptual difficulty can be treated and greatly minimized or cured altogether.

My leaflet is on its way. Seek further guidance from your local board of education.

Kitchen Tested Recipes

A Variety of Homemade Soups

By MARY MOORE

QUESTION: I was wondering if you had in your collection of recipes one for homemade mushroom soup? My husband brought some mushrooms from the plant the other day and he wants me to make him some soup. Seeing I have no such recipe I am stuck. — Mrs. Andre C. T.

ANSWER: Because I am receiving an increasing number of requests for homemade cream soups below is a repitition of a column I have here on the subject in December, 1963.

GENERAL PROPORTIONS FOR MAKING CREAM SOUPS

These are based on a thin cream sauce, to serve 4 or 6 made by blending together 2 tbsps. butter or margarine (or chicken fat) with 2 tbsps. flour and 1 tsp. salt and then stirring in 2 cups milk until thick. To this you add 2 or 3½ cups vegetable stock and pulp. Often this pulp is strained.

CREAM OF TOMATO SOUP

Make Cream Sauce as above. Simmer 1½ cups finely chopped celery and leaves with 2 or 3 slices of onion in 2 cups boiling water until celery is tender. If desired force celery through sieve. Add this celery pulp and stock to the cream sauce. If desired, additional butter may be added before serving. As a French touch serve Parmesan cheese at the table to be sprinkled over soup in bowls.

CREAM OF MUSHROOM SOUP

Make Cream Sauce as above. Finely chop ¼-lb. scrub boil mushrooms with stems on, and to them add 1 slice onion and 2½ cups boiling water and simmer until tender. Add to the hot White Sauce along with 1 chicken bouillon cube or ½ tsp. MSG. Some cooks like to add parsley or parsley seeds to the mushrooms while they are cooking. Note 1: I was taught in cooking school to make a brew of 1 tsp. parsley seeds and ½ cup water, simmering them together for 20 min. and then straining the brew into the soup as you are assembling the white sauce and mushrooms and broth. Parsley seed brew has an affinity for the flavor of mushrooms. Note 2: Other vegetables that may be used in the same ways as above are potatoes, carrots, cauliflower, cucumbers, corn, green peas, asparagus and onions. Leftover vegetables are perfect for this if you remember to save the vegetable liquids.

Ann Landers

What Happened To Grandma?

DEAR ANN LANDERS: Whatever happened to Grandma? I mean that gentle, soft-spoken matronly woman with the silver-gray hair and glasses? She wore floral print house dresses and sensible shoes. Her grandchildren loved to sit at her feet and listen to stories about "the olden days."

I had two wonderful grandmothers. They were an important part of my growing-up years. My own children, I'm sad to say, are less fortunate. One Grandma lives a thousand miles away. The other Grandma is within 30 minutes by car but rarely see her. The in-town Grandma is a platinum blond. She wears fake eyelashes, 15 pounds of jewelry, no bra, and a cigarette holder. What values will they learn from her? None. She isn't around enough. And from your description, it's just as well.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: Bill, age 46, was my steady fellow for three years. He received an attractive job offer in another city and asked me to go with him. Had he suggested marriage I would have said yes, but he did not.

That was two years ago. Bill is back in town, vague about why the job didn't work out and full of stories about a "crooked" boss and "crooked people." He is argumentative and blows up if he doesn't get his way. Last night he said I was trying to get rid of him because I have a new love. This is absurd. Perhaps he said it because I complains about severe headaches but refuses to see a doctor. Frankly, I want to end our relationship but I'm afraid of what he might do to me. Help me, please. — TERRIFIED.

DEAR T.: Tell Bill it's all over. If he bothers you, get a peace bond. In a final gesture of friendship, urge him to see a doctor about a thorough neurological examinatie. His erratic behavior suggests personality changes for which there might be an organic reason.

* * *

DEAR ANN LANDERS: Last night my husband and I attended a public meeting. I was seated on the stage and had a good view of 1700 people. What I saw made me ashamed of my fellow Americans.

When the National Anthem was played, some people didn't even stand up. Several men did not remove their hats. A few dozen people (men and women both) saluted. Other placed their hands over their hearts. Some people didn't know their hearts are on the left side.

Half the people I watched didn't know the words. They faked it or didn't sing at all. Comment please. — PHIL.

DEAR PHIL: When the National Anthem is played, everyone should stand. Men should remove their hats. If the flag is on display the hand should be placed over the heart. For those who don't know, the heart is on the left side.

Mother: "What did you and Susie have a fight about? You must have hurt her feelings if she won't go to the dance with you.

Son: "I don't want to talk about it."

Be receptive to confidence, but don't insist on invading your teen-ager's privacy by urging him to tell you everything. Some things he may want to keep to himself.

Son: "Susie isn't going to the dance with me."

Mother: "Oh, I'm sorry to hear it. I know you were looking forward to it."

Son: "Maybe I can get another date by Friday."

Provincial, City Officials Concerned Over Bicycle Safety

"Wheelie" on Freak

By IAN ROBERTSON
Staff Reporter
Second of Two Articles

Prohibition for bicycle riders under nine may be quite possible, Ontario Department of Transport Minister Irwin Haskett said Wednesday.

"Legislation now would be premature, but I would not rule it out," he said.

These remarks were issued following the release of a department study on bicycle accidents and their relation to children's riding habits.

Author of the report E. H. Brezina, manager of the research section at Queen's Park said that children cannot differentiate left from right before the age of eight or nine.

He said that approximately 80 per cent of children who ride bicycles learn by the time they are seven.

"They're being let loose to run on the roads and fend for themselves."

In a recent interview, Mr. Brezina told The Intelligencer that "psychologists claim kids can't learn and follow rules. They can recite the rules, but they don't really know what they mean."

He explained that rules governing the operation of an automobile are relatively enforceable.

"Adults know what to stop for," he said.

The report indicated that the motorist, whose environment the rider shares, operates "on the basis of absolute rules which he is trained to obey even in the absence of apparent risk."

From a child's viewpoint "if they don't see the risk, why should they stop?"

This risk may not prove hazardous on most occasions, but risk is increased when attention to traffic and control over the bicycle is obstructed.

These include emerging from (sight) obstructions such as driveways and intersections, playing games on bikes, riding at night or in the rain, and carrying passengers or hand-held goods.

Closer to home; children were observed leaving school on two different occasions. One such occasion, with Inspector Ralph Blanchford of the Belleville Police Department, close to two dozen youngsters were observed entering a main thoroughfare near the school.

A few hesitated, a few looked in either direction; but not one came to a complete stop although vehicles entering from school buses to cars were close to the intersection.

"A child has to understand the purpose behind the rules before he will react properly," the inspector said.

Conversations with the inspector and safety officer Corporal Robert Hall, revealed that both men were finding it extremely difficult to cope with the problem.

"Parents are in many cases indifferent to the problem," Corporal Hall outlined several incidents after which he was compelled to bring the children before their parents.

In most of the parents just didn't realize the extent of the problem (points brought forth in the Brezina report) but the majority were indifferent," he said.

This nursery school syndrome has existed for a number of years as a large number of people, not just parents, find it easier to let others, in this case police and schools, take the responsibility.

As frustrating as these events are, coupled with the courts' reluctance to enforce laws, safety officers throughout the country realize that education in the schools might prove to be the best bet.

Early Training on Tricycle

"A child who goes before the court, has that incident on his record . . . there's one of the problems; the other is court time," the inspector asserted.

"We have found it more effective, in some cases, to deal with the problem ourselves. Not only better for the child, but better for us; we're right on top of the problem, the courts are too tied up with regular legal problems," he explained.

Safety Officer Advises Youngsters

In 1968, the city had five car - bike accidents with three injured: in 1969, 19 accidents, eight injuries; up until Sept. of this year, 19 accidents, nine injuries.

Double the accidents, triple the injuries.

Mr. Brezina indicated that the department was considering adequate tests for children; something along the line of a scaled - down, motor vehicle test.

"It is my personal view that bike training should be important in schools," he said.

He indicated that many parents simply favor purchasing a $70 bike of any description and release the kids to the streets rather than spend adequate time training the youngster in the operation of the vehicle.

The report indicated that "the adjustment of the bicycle to the rider has a significant influence on the risk of collision, especially among young riders."

Through research, it was concluded that minimum risk is asserted by bicycles which allow the rider to reach the ground comfortably with their extended foot when seated.

"A five - fold increase in risk was found for young riders who could not reach their pedals comfortably from a seated position.

And this notation is considered extremely important. "Unlike 2 and 4-wheeled vehicles, the bicycle is unstable and requires rider effort to maintain its stability which in turn depends on forward motion."

This stability problem was found to be exaggerated at low speeds, the bicycle collapsing at speeds under five mph unless restrained by the rider who dismounts or places his foot upon the ground.

As outlined in the first of this series, the bicycle has evolved through many years of adaptations, improvements and changes in design.

- Children's bikes have been developed, to many models from a scaling down of the frames by the manufacturer.

Edward H. Brezina

The report admits that the new high-rise bicycle is a breakaway from previous technology, but does not reach the conclusion that the new style in any way adds to the safety of the rider.

The report contained, in its findings, simple methods of determining when a child was adequately suited to his bike.

"When the bicyclist's ground clearance exceeded 3½ inches, which corresponds to the minimum ground clearance of the pedals for many bicycles, the rider was considered to be "at a disadvantage and in a position, which sometime, might prove detrimental."

In countries where bicycles are prevalent automobile traffic is not as dense as North America's; car size is much smaller, and streets are more winding; a better environment for bikes and scooters than autos.

Most dangerous to the young rider is his attempt to ride a vehicle which is not suited to him. this has been a main point of discussion between police safety squads, school officials, parents and lawmakers.

From a study of 275 school boy bicycle traffic collisions, 54 per cent of the vehicles were high-rise type bikes (wheel diameters under 18 inches). Standard bicycles accounted to 46 per cent of collision-involved machines.

The two Belleville officers and the Department of Transport researcher agreed that a significant number of "freak" bicycles were involved in collisions and near-collisions.

The report states a high danger level of being seated at an overbalanced angle, especially for older riders.

Standard dangers range from riding double, carrying parcels, inattention and improper handling, inadequate equipment both for night and daylight riding to the extremes of recklessness observed even in the limited space of the past few weeks.

Mr. Haskett has called for more thorough education programs in elementary schools.

A report from Belleville Police Chief D. T. Crosbie informs parents that the department is "endeavoring to increase our Safety Programs to bring to the attention of the young people the need for obeying the traffic laws with respect to the operation of bicycles" and is attempting to "advise parents and seek their assistance."

As Inspector Blanchford stated, "the proportion of deaths to injuries may be slight, but we are attempting to reduce it even further."

"It is not our desire to scare the child with explanations of the dangers of the road: more it is to make him more aware of his environment."

Haig Road Overpass Proposal Is Postponed Indefinitely

Thurlow township residents who have been forced to use alternative routes into the city since the closing of the Station Street CN crossing will have to wait a while longer for improved conditions.

This was indicated Wednesday at a meeting in Belleville city hall when township and county officials called for an answer to the once proposed construction of an overpass over the CN double tracks at the northern extension of Haig Road.

Township officials and the Hastings county road and bridges committee came to the meeting armed with a 500-name petition urging that something be done to improve access into the city from Thurlow township.

But it doesn't appear that the once - proposed overpass at the CP tracks will be constructed in the near future — if at all.

City council was told that the county had approved the closing of the CN crossing on Station Street on the understanding that the overpass at the Haig Street extension would be constructed.

As a temporary measure to provide an access from the second concession of Thurlow into the city, the county had rerouted part of road 18 around the railway yard extension to connect up with Bryon Street in the Hillcrest area.

But this route into the city was said to be totally inadequate: it was indirect and contributed to an almost hopeless bottleneck on the Highway 37 access into Belleville.

The other alternative for area township residents getting into the city is by way of Elmwood Drive and Highway 2.

Township resident Archie Greatrix said both routes were sadly lacking in directional signs with the result that strangers were frequently getting lost.

He didn't agree that the site of the proposed overpass at the north extension of Haig Road was the right place.

He said the railway grade at this point was the highest in the area and claimed construction of an overpass there would be a complex and costly project.

The question was raised whether or not the Haig Road route would be extended north to cross Highway 401 and meet up with Highway 37 north of the city.

The feeling of many was that unless Haig Street was extended north to Highway 37 there would be little point in constructing the overpass. The question of what DHO grants might apply was also raised.

This plan was one of several proposed by planning consultants two years ago as a means of helping to alleviate the city's east end traffic problems.

Now, however, engineering consultants Totten, Sims and Hubicki have been retained by the city to do a north-south arterial roads study for the downtown area of the city and the feeling is that until this is received requirements in the east end can not be known.

Until it was known what was to be done with Canadian Road, no decision could be made on actual requirements for the city's east end, it was claimed.

One thing agreed on was that whatever was done should be for the benefit of both urban and rural residents.

In the meantime, improvement of either Byron Street or College Street east of Highway 37 to link up with county road 18 east of the CN yards was agreed as being vital.

The eventual extension of Victoria Ave. as Bridge St. to Elmwood Drive east of the city were other possibilities mentioned.

The possibility of another clover leaf east of the city on Highway 401 to relieve congestion at the Highway 37 and 14 turnoffs was also mentioned.

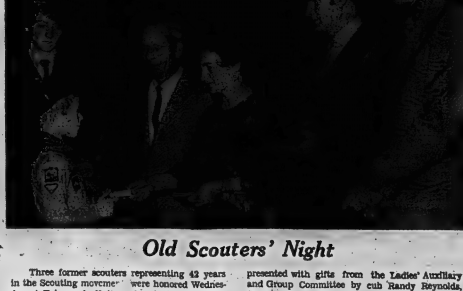
This had previously been requested by Thurlow township but had been turned down by the highways department as not being warranted.

In the end, county and township officials reluctantly agreed that under the circumstances the city could not be expected to make any permanent decision on Haig Rd. until the report on north-south arterials for the downtown district was received.

The city will take into consideration improvement of Byron Street or College Street to meet county road 18 northeast of the city and the erection of directional signs leading into the township.

Also, a recommendation will be made to the county road committee for further improvement of county road 18 leading into the city.

Woman's Body, Gas Can Found



Provincial police are investigating circumstances surrounding the death of a woman whose badly-burned body was found in a field at Rossmore this morning.

Firehall Opens

The Point Anne firehall of Thurlow township fire department will be officially opened tomorrow.

The hall will be open to the public from 9 a.m. to 6 p.m.

Official opening ceremonies will take place at 2 p.m. Music will be provided by the Royal Canadian Sea Cadet Corps Quinte band.

Old Scouters' Night

Three former scouters representing 42 years in the Scouting movement were honored Wednesday at Tabernacle Church. Mrs. Flowella Akey, Mac McClelland and Milton Akey were presented with gifts from the Ladies' Auxiliary and Group Committee by cub Randy Reynolds, Queen's Scout David Lott and one of the 6th Belleville's first cubs, Jim Stanfield.

Ottawa Pivot Faces Test

TORONTO (CP) — Wresting aside, there's little more at stake Saturday when University of Manitoba Bisons meet the University of Ottawa Gee-Gees in the College Bowl for the national collegiate football championship.

Ottawa's quarterback, Paul Paddon was selected this week as Canada's outstanding collegiate footballer, but you'd find it hard to prove by the Bisons.

"I haven't seen Peddon, but he has to be one hell of a player if he's better than Kraemer," said Bison's line coach Ray Ash of Bison quarterback Bob Kraemer. "Kraemer has to be an outstanding professional prospect . . . . A lot of teams could use him as a backup quarterback."

"He's got great moves and can catch the ball," said Ash.

Ash got support for his praises of Kraemer from Frank Tindall, coach of Queen's Golden Gaels, 34-26 losers to Manitoba in the Western Bowl last weekend.

"I can't compare him to Paddon," admitted Tindall, "but let me tell you this. Kraemer looks real sharp.

"And he has good runners with him," added Tindall referring to Dennis Hrycaiko, a five-foot-five 170 pounder, and Bob Toogood, who carries 230 pounds out of the fullback slot.

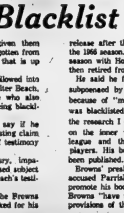
The Canadian Football Coaches Association, meanwhile, at its first annual dinner, made presentations to Johnny Metras of the University of Western Ontario, and Warren Stevens, former athletic director of the University of Toronto.

Metras spent 34 years as coach of the Mustangs' football team until this year while Stevens, who leaves next week for Australia, had his award accepted by Dalt White, Varsity's former coach.

Hot 'n Heavy Foot Work

In the final day's playoff between Prince Charles and Avondale public schools, Avondale took the Prince Charles Invitational Soccer Tournament trophy with a final score of 3-0, the final point coming in the last quarter of play. Hot and heavy competition existed between the 11 schools. The winning teams are coached by vice-principals Bob Burnett, Avondale, and George Empson, PC3. While the teams were being harrowed down, various special interest programs were offered at Ben Bleecker Auditorium for the day-long event. Also featured were archery, roller skating, small games and ping pong.

Mo-Hawks Face Hot Crescents In Senior A Game Tonight



The Belleville Mo-Hawks, who seem to play up, or down, to the calibre of their opposition, will have something to shoot for in tonight's game against the Owen Sound Crescents.

Despite the fact the Crescents are near the bottom of the OHA Senior A standings, they managed to come up with a 3-1 win over Orillia last weekend, the first loss of the year for the league leading Terriers.

Belleville began getting the looked for production from their third line last week as Jones moved to centre between Ray Johnston and Wayne McConnell.

One Mo-Hawk who started slowly, but has been going strong ever since is centre Doug Senior, who has now totalled eight goals and five assists to put him among the league scoring leaders.

DOUG SENIOR

Steve Reza also managed to move into the top goaltending ranks and appears ready to assume his position as one of the loop's top twinetenders. Mo-Hawk scorers will have their work cut out for them tonight attempting to put the puck behind Owen Sound's Chuck Jewell. The veteran goalie has bounced back from a serious face injury last season and should be a formidable obstacle for Belleville in their 8 p.m. game tonight.

NFL Probes Blacklist Allegations

CLEVELAND, Ohio (AP) — A special federal grand jury investigating charges of the National Football League was in recess today after hearing testimony about alleged blacklisting of players in the league.

Bernie Parrish, a former member of Cleveland Browns' defensive backfield, said he told the jury Thursday he felt he had been blackballed.

Parrish told reporters he thought the jury, which is looking for possible anti-trust violations, would return some indictments.

"I can't see how there cannot be any indictments with the information I have given them and that they have gotten from other witnesses, but that is up to them," he added.

Parrish, 34, was followed into the jury room by Walter Beach, a former team-mate who also has complained of being blacklisted.

Beach declined to say if he had made the blacklisting claim during three hours of testimony before the jury.

Parrish was with the Browns from 1958 until he asked for his release after the first game of the 1966 season. He finished that season with Houston Oilers and then retired from football.

He said he felt he had been subpoenaed by the grand jury because of "my feeling that I was blacklisted and because of the research I did for my book on the inner working of the league and the treatment of players. His book has not yet been published.

Browns' president Art Modell accused Parrish of talking "to promote his book" and said the Browns "have not violated any provisions of the anti-trust law nor any other law."

Modell, who asked to appear before the grand jury as the earliest possible time, said the jury quizzed him about blacklisting and trade and waiver procedures in the NFL.

The jury apparently is investigating owner-player relations for possible anti-trust violations under the Sherman Act, which prohibits restraint of services; in this case the players' services in the sale of blacklisting.

Such violations could bring criminal indictments. Conviction could bring a fine of up to $50,000, a jail sentence of up to one year, or both.

Frazier Claims Clay Running Scared

DETROIT (AP) — "He needs me more than I need him—he has to come to me," Joe Frazier said Thursday in reply to taunts from Muhammad Ali.

"He's nuts," Frazier added. "He must be mad because he's scared to death. I never think of him. I'm ready to fight where and when Yank tells me to."

Yank—Yancey Durham, trainer and manager of the world's unbeaten heavyweight champion—slept late Thursday, the day after Frazier destroyed light heavyweight champion Bob Foster in three minutes 41 seconds.

Ring promoters agreed that Durham holds the whip-hand in any negotiations for a match between two undefeated champions.

The target for the Frazier-Ali fight is sometime in February, with Houston's Astrodome or New York's Madison Square Garden the site. Muhammad is still unlicensed in Houston, where in 1967 he refused to take the step forward for military service and sat in motion a series of his heavyweight title.

Promoters are talking of a $10-million extravaganza, but this figure was pooh-poohed Thursday by Harold Conrad, vice-president of Sports Action, Inc., which has had a role in many big fights in recent years.

Fleming Predicts Win

HAMILTON (CP) — Look for Wally Gabler "at quarterback Saturday when Hamilton Tiger-Cats entertain Montreal Alouettes in the second game of the Eastern Football Conference two-game, total-point final.

But the unsung hero of any Ticat victory will likely be running back Dave Fleming who led the EFC in receptions this year with 56.

Fleming, not the talkative type, came out of his usual silent mood Thursday to predict that the Als were in for a surprise after their 33-22 victory in the EFC final opener Sunday.

"Alouettes are in for a big surprise if they think they've gotten come in here and walk all over us," said Fleming, selected this week to the EFC's all-star team. "If we get the first touchdown, the pressure will be on them bad and we'll see how good they are."

Fleming said the first game in the mud didn't prove anything for the young Montreal club, and that Hamilton "gave them two touchdowns."

"Moe Lamb fell down and Sonny Wade hit Gary Lefebvre with a pass to set up one touchdown," said Fleming. "Then Lefebvre caught a touchdown pass on a busted defence.

"That won't happen again."

However, Montreal's wide receiver Terry Evanshen is likely to prove a thorn in the side of the Ticat defensive unit.

Evanshen caught only 37 passes this season, but his value to the Montrealers is based on the fact that in most games the opposition was forced to use two men to cover him.

Evanshen said Thursday he and quarterback Wade are slowly getting to anticipate each other's moves.

"It's been a long time coming," said Evanshen, former all-Canadian with Calgary Stampeders before moving to Montreal. "When they are throwing to me a lot, catching the ball becomes almost second nature.

"When they don't, you have to work at it a little more. I didn't catch the ball when I first went to Calgary either."

Evanshen says he's hopeful a muddy field will free both clubs for Saturday's game because "the edge has to go to the receiver."

"They can't play you that close and hope to recover the way you can."

Western Teams Bruised and Sore

CALGARY (CP) — Trainer Larry Chace will pack more than the usual amount of sticky tape when Calgary Stampeders leave to play Saskatchewan Roughriders Sunday in the Western Football Conference final.

After trying to demolish each other in the first two games of the best-of-three playoff, the teams have succeeded in bruising or straining the muscles of almost every player in each club.

Saskatchewan appears to have suffered the most with injuries. Don Lancaster looked for the game Sunday and offensive end Nolan Bailey and defensive halfback Barry Dorsch definitely out.

Defensive halfback Bob Krouse has lost some of his effectiveness because of a pulled muscle and linebacker Charck Kyle had to be helped from the field during the brutal second game Wednesday which Saskatchewan won 11-3.

Calgary, winners 28-11 of the first game, last Saturday in Regina, are not likely to be short any players but coach Jim Duncan has to look a long way down the bench to find anyone who is totally healthy.

"One or two are questionable, but it appears they'll all be able to play Sunday," Duncan said.

Flanker Gerry Shaw is suffering from a badly pulled leg muscle, trainer Chace said, and is the largest question mark for the Stampeders.

Wide receiver Uriel Johnson, who has proved one of the fastest men on the team since he joined Calgary in mid-season, is suffering from a bad knee. Defensive end Craig Kolman has a bruised hip.

The injuries to Calgary will slow down the Calgary pounding attack but Saskatchewan's injuries will open up the Roughrider passing defence.

Lancaster, who suffered bruised ribs and back and a strained back muscle Wednesday, appeared for practice but did not work out.

He was having difficulty walking and coach Eagle Keys said tests had been taken to determine whether there was any internal injury but results were not available.

Keys said Bailey, who has a strained knee, would be ready to go to the Grey Cup if Saskatchewan beats Calgary. Dorsch is scheduled to enter hospital Monday for surgery on his knee.

The game Sunday will be shown on the CBC national network beginning at 2 p.m. CST (3 p.m. EST).

Staub First Signer

MONTREAL (CP) — For the second consecutive year, right fielder Rusty Staub has become the first member of Montreal Expos to reach contract agreement with the National League club.

No terms of Staub's new contract with the baseball club were announced, but his one-year pact is believed to call for a salary in excess of $60,000.

Savard Signals He's in Top Shape to Aid Canadiens

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

When Serge Savard broke his leg in three places in a National Hockey League game last March, Montreal Canadiens broke a 22-year streak at Stanley Cup play appearances.

The Canadiens, minus the services of the 210-pound defenceman, and New York Rangers closed the season with 92 points each but the Rangers took fourth spot in the final standings by a two-goal margin over Montreal.

"There was a time when I was afraid I wouldn't play again," Savard said earlier this year. "The break was moving inside and it wasn't until August that I was encouraged."

Savard got the green light to start skating shortly after the start of training camp and joined the team for scrimmages the last week of October.

The Conn Smythe Trophy winner, as the outstanding performer in the 1969 playoffs, rejoined the Habs Nov. 7, when the Canadiens walloped Buffalo Sabres 11-3. Savard picked up an assist.

But Thursday night, Savard, who scored 13 goals and 19 assists before last season's injury, gave every indication that he was back to aid Montreal in this year's Stanley Cup quest when he fired his first two goals of the season as the Canadiens clipped Toronto Maple Leafs 5-1.

In other action Thursday, St. Louis Blues edged Pittsburgh Penguins 1-0 and Philadelphia Flyers dumped California Golden Seals 6-2.

At Montreal, the Canadiens jumped to a 3-1 first-period lead and added goals in the second and third periods to keep Toronto in the East Division cellar with eight points, two back of Buffalo Sabres.

The win moved Montreal out in front in the division standings, one point ahead of both Boston Bruins and New York Rangers, both with 23 points.

To add to the Leafs' troubles, rookie Brad Selwood apparently suffered a back injury midway through the second period when he and Savard collided against the goal post at the side of the Toronto net.

Selwood was removed from the ice on a stretcher and taken to a Montreal hospital where Jim Gregory, Leaf general manager, said a preliminary examination indicated no spinal damage.

However, Gregory said last season's Western Hockey League Rookie of the Year would remain in hospital overnight for further tests.

At Pittsburgh, Christian Bordeleau's fifth goal of the season gave the end of the second period provided St. Louis with the victory.

The goal came when Dunse Rupp, the last Penguin defender between goalie Al Smith and Bordeleau, fumbled the puck and the former Montreal Canadien stole it.

"I just gave him the deke and he just opened his legs," Bordeleau said.

"We have the puck at centre ice, then we take it back to our ice—for them—and they put it in the net. The Blues would have been happy with a tie. They check well for our mistakes. They finally got one on a platter."

The three-year veterans, who normally plays centre, had only one goal this season before Thursday night.

Jarrett Out Ten Days

CHICAGO (AP) — Doug Jarrett, veteran Chicago Black Hawks defenceman, suffered a shoulder separation in practice Thursday and will be out of action for at least 10 days, Coach Billy Reay of the National Hockey League team said Paul Henry and Ray McKay, will fill in for Jarrett in Saturday's game with the Blues in St. Louis and with California Golden Seals here Sunday.

Dixie Flyers Suspended

NEW YORK (AP) — A special meeting has been called for Monday night to determine the fate of 14 players of the Nashville Dixie Flyers who were suspended indefinitely by the Eastern Hockey League.

Tom Lockhart, the league's president, made the announcement Thursday night after the players had been suspended earlier in the day for not showing up for a scheduled game against Charlotte Tuesday night.

The players had gone on strike Monday in a dispute over fines, medical treatment and travel conditions but had voted to end the strike Wednesday.

"We had to take action," Lockhart said Thursday. "The players sign a contract before the season starts and agree to play in all league games.

Petes Scramble to Gain Deadlock

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Two ties were registered in Ontario Hockey Association Junior A action Thursday night, with only one minor change in league standings.

Ottawa 67's scored with less than three minutes remaining in the game to tie 7-7 with Hamilton Red Wings. Hamilton moved into a tie for fourth place with Montreal Junior Canadiens with the tie.

Peterborough Petes and St. Catharines Black Hawks, the two top teams in the league, battled to a 2-2 tie.

The Hawks collected 19 of 15 penalties called by referee Jim Lever as they played a rough game to hold on to a second period lead of 2-1.

Rick Kehoe and Jim Moxey both scored twice for Hamilton as Tom Williams, Jim Schoenfeld and Larry Gould collected single goals.

The Ski Whiz Rocky Mountains Endurance Run

Nationwide Consumer Testing Institute drives the Ski Whiz over 2,000 torturous miles in ten days — 12,000 feet up in the Rockies

We gave the Nationwide Consumer Testing Institute four of our Ski Whiz 400-SST stock models, fresh from the production line, and told the independent testing company to put them through the most punishing endurance test they could devise. And they did their worst.

They took them to a rugged site 12,000 feet above sea level in the Rockies. Up to the treacherous terrain of the Continental Divide. Up where the air is so thin we thought the engines would burn out in no time. NCTI told us 500 miles of driving under these rugged conditions would be equal to one full season of normal snowmobiling. They called it "Accelerated Testing." You'd call it sheer torture.

The whole idea was to find out just how much punishment the Ski Whiz could take without a major breakdown.

No repair that couldn't be fixed by the driver at the Endurance Run Campsite, (9,000 feet up on the run) with just normal replacement parts and a Ski Whiz instruction manual would be permitted.

After seven days and 1,509 miles, the first Ski Whiz stopped running. A maintenance check revealed that the engine needed new points and a tune-up. So we took it out of the run. After ten days and 2,063 miles, the last Ski Whiz was disqualified because it required a major repair.

According to the standards set up by Nationwide Consumer Testing, taking into consideration all the conditions of the accelerated testing program—that distance equals four full seasons of operation.

Aside from durability, the NCTI test drivers said they were also impressed with the unusual stability, the seating comfort, and the exceptional steering response of the Ski Whiz.

The Ski Whiz Rocky Mountains Endurance Run has proved that there's a snowmobile out there that does a lot more than just meet the test. It proved Ski Whiz is the machine you can count on to get you back—wherever you take it. There are four tough models to choose from, all built for keeps by Massey-Ferguson, the company with 123 years of engineering know-how.

OHSIP Stand on Doctors' New Fee Schedule Due Next Week

TORONTO (CP) — Ontario residents will have to wait until next week before receiving official word on whether a new fee schedule announced by the province's doctors will mean higher premiums under the Ontario Health Services Insurance Plan.

Health Minister Thomas Wells, asked to comment Thursday on the fee schedule announced by the Ontario Medical Association, said he would make a statement in about a week.

Mr. Wells said he and officials of the medical association had met regularly since late last year to discuss the new schedule which increases fees an average 4.5 per cent effective next May 1.

Statements by Mr. Wells and other government officials in recent weeks indicate that although they are increasingly concerned over rising health costs, no immediate move to increase OHSIP premiums will be made.

One factor working against any immediate increase in premiums is that a provincial election, although not due until 1982, is generally expected to be called next year.

The percentage increase in OMA fees was first announced in Ottawa last May. Then and now, association officials noted that an over-all increase of 12 per cent would have been justified on the basis of wage and other economic indexes used to determine fee patterns.

The smaller figure of 4.5 per cent was set in accord with the non-inflationary guidelines of the federal prices and incomes commission, said Dr. Reba Stephenson, the Toronto physician who took over in May as the OMA's first woman president.

The increases go mainly to family doctors, pediatricians and psychiatrists, although fees for other specialists also were revised.

While the fee schedule is not binding on the 9,000 members of the OMA, it plays a big part in determining the cost of OHSIP which was introduced Oct. 1, 1969, under federal medical care legislation.

Dr. J. S. W. Aldis, director of OHSIP, declined comment Thursday on the cost of OHSIP in its first year. This information would have to come from the government.

In its last financial report, for the year ended March 31, the government recorded revenues of $187,713,699 from OHSIP, premiums after the health plan had been in effect six months. Claims against the plan totalled $93,823,905.

Big expenditures on all health services totalled $540,686,000, or 18.9 per cent of net general expenditures, for the fiscal year 1969-70. Health expenditures in the fiscal year 1978-79 were put at $3,091,870,000, or 13.4 per cent of total expenditures.

Provincial Treasurer Charles MacNaughton said in the report the 1969-70 budget had seen some major additions both for premium revenues and spending under the OHSIP program.

OHSIP premiums now are $5.98 monthly for single persons, $11.80 for a couple and $14.75 for a family—the highest in Canada.

Under the plan, the province pays 90 per cent of fees recommended by the OMA. Doctors have the option of billing the patient directly for the remaining 10 per cent.

Community College Students Worried By Proposed Pledge

OAKVILLE (CP) — A meeting of community college regents was interrupted Thursday by students who said they were concerned about a proposal to compel them to sign a document binding themselves to follow college rules.

The student action was prompted by their discovery a month ago of a confidential letter sent to fellow college presidents last April by George Bowen, chairman of the committee of presidents.

The letter asked college presidents to attend a meeting of "course urgency" at Niagara Falls, Ont., to discuss a motion by the council of regents which said:

"That the council of regents in view of the disputes which seem to be a growing problem . . . declare a firm policy that students entering any course at any college . . . be obliged to sign a formal commitment that he or she will observe the rules . . . and that a similar provision apply to . . . staff."

Reaction from college presidents indicated, however, that such a policy was not needed, Mr. Sinco told the meeting Thursday and the matter was dropped.

Quebec to Stop Teachers From Preaching Revolution

QUEBEC (CP) — Claiming some Quebec students are being subjected to "extremist pressures" in the classrooms, the education department is taking action against revolution-minded teachers.

Education Minister Guy Saint-Pierre told the Quebec national assembly Thursday his department has undertaken a four-pronged fight against teachers who preach "political propaganda and indoctrination."

He said academic freedom "must not become an umbrella to hide incompetence and intellectual dishonesty."

The only woman in the 108-seat legislature later said in the continuing debate on the Liberal government's action in the current terrorist crisis that some CBC reporters practise biased journalism.

Tourism Minister Claire Kirkland-Casgrain accused some news commentators for Radio-Canada, the French - language CBC network, of "pouring out verbiage which was occasionally very biased, often senseless and, finally, extremely disturbing."

In other legislature activity Thursday, a health commission report said Quebecers are less healthy, have a shorter life span and suffer a higher rate of infant mortality than other Canadians.

Mr. Saint-Pierre said the key action against teachers who "take advantage of their contact with students" will be the appointment of a special commissioner of inquiry.

To be nominated within a few days, the commissioner would hear complaints from concerned parents and school administrators and possibly recommended government action under the Public Instruction Act.

Other steps include letters sent to heads of all educational institutions in the province, warning of the potential dangers to students, the formulation of a code of ethics for teachers and professors and watching action by the Superior Council on Education, a government advisory-body.

Mr. Saint-Pierre told the assembly:

"I have stressed that I will defend with all my energies the right of teachers to have opinions which differ from mine in matters of religion, politics and ideology."

But any "legitimate" desires for social change should steer away from "attitudes of provocation."

Mrs. Kirkland-Casgrain said certain CBC reporters were guilty of "distortion of the facts" during the Cross-Laporte crisis.

They had written stories that "not only did not convey the truth but also gave rise to the opposite of the truth."

She said governments should establish "new institutions which will allow journalists to improve their competence."

U.S. Is Being Urged To Reduce Pollution

OTTAWA (CP) — External Affairs Minister Mitchell Sharp told the Commons Thursday that energy problem means is United States government to reduce pollution, especially in the Great Lakes.

He was replying to M. T. McCutcheon (PC—Lambton-Kent) who asked whether the government is using the U.S. need for resources as a possible bargaining point in the matter.

G.M. Talks to Resume

TORONTO (CP) — Settlement of a minor snag cleared the way for resumption of talks in the General Motors strike today, leaving negotiators again confronted by the major issues of wage parity and non-monetary clauses.

The talks between General Motors of Canada Ltd. and the Canadian United Auto Workers, are aimed at settling the 85-day strike by 23,000 Canadian auto men. The talks broke off Monday.

Robarts Says English Canada Now Aware of Area Grievances

NEW YORK (CP) — The terrorist kidnappings in Quebec—"a rude jolt to Canadians"—have given the English-speaking population a new awareness of regional grievances and the need for solving them, Ontario Premier John Robarts said Thursday.

"I am convinced the country remains stable and structurally sound," the premier told 700 persons at a luncheon of the Canadian Society of New York.

After an up-beat presentation of Ontario's economic position, the Conservative premier gave his views on two matters which he believed of prime interest to an international audience—Quebec's separatist movement and foreign investment in Canada.

"We shall be less tranquil in future and life will never be the same again," he said, referring to the kidnappings of James (Jasper) Cross and Pierre Laporte, and the murder of the latter, with the subsequent intensive search for members of the Front de Libertion du Quebec.

"Many English-speaking parts of Canada have acquired a new awareness of the cultural and linguistic duality of the country," he said and noted that Canada is attempting to amend its constitution to provide for this duality.

Robarts said Ontario encourages outside investment, although foreign ownership of Canadian business "is causing real concern among many Canadians."

"Some argue that Canada cannot be an independent country unless free of foreign ownership. I cannot accept this argument.

"Modern nations are more independent than they once were and are better able to shape their society through the democratic process. . . . I don't think we have been prevented from controlling our destinies by the pattern of industrial ownership."

Robarts said Canada will do what is necessary to prevent certain key sectors—he mentioned banks and trust companies—from being dominated by outside interests.

"We retain the right to define other sectors which must have sufficient proportion of Canadian control. But we see no significant threat to the ability to control Ontario's destiny."

TORONTO (CP) — Premier John Robarts met with Transport Minister Donald Jamieson in New York Thursday to discuss proposed sites for a new Toronto airport, an official in the premier's office said.

Why not Canadian vintage wines?

For the same reason that the great majority of imported wines are not vintage wines.

In making candies or carriages, cookies or cars, nature isn't a factor; the product can be made to a certain standard regardless of the weather outside.

In wine making, nature calls the shots. In those years when there is just precisely enough rain, just precisely enough sun the vines bulge with perfect grapes that produce a "vintage" wine. But those years come about once in every ten. If we were to produce only vintage wines—wines made from grapes grown in one particular year only—you'd have one chance in ten of getting a great wine, nine chances in ten of getting a standard wine or worse.

That's why Brights and the great majority of wineries throughout the world blend their wines. That's why in the 74 Sherry you sip there might be a sherry from ten years ago, one from seven years ago and three years ago—blended so that the resultant wine tastes as near as a human palate can judge to the 74 Sherry produced last year or two years ago.

Among Brights fine Canadian non-vintage wines is this outstanding "cellar" you can readily have in your own home:

74 Sherry	A delectable appetizer wine.
74 Port	Superb with cheese and crackers.
Mazal Tov	A delicious dessert wine.
DuBarry Sparkling Rosé	An "anytime" fine wine.

OFF THE RECORD — By Ed Reed

STOP KILLING YOURSELF

By Peter J. Steincrohn, M.D., F.A.C.P.
Author of "The Doctor Looks At Life"

Patient Deserves A Clear Verdict

Down, boy! Down, boy! Come down from that ivory tower.

Nothing makes me so anxious to — to — to — not — nervous" as when I receive such a letter as the following from an unhappy, frustrated reader.

Dear Dr. Steincrohn: I am at my wits end. I pray that you can advise me. I have been having chest pains, occasionally radiating down my left arm. At times I feel a sort of pressure in the chest and shortness of breath. I don't have these feelings often. They may come on when I'm sitting and not exerting as much as when I walk fast.

I have had regular cardiograms taken and the doctor says "they are not good and not bad" — whatever that means. Recently I had a two-step cardiogram and nearly died after having to go back and forth over those steps 47 times. At the age of 52, I should have had the good sense to quit bowling. But I was so anxious to find out what was wrong, that I kept on. It took me a day to recover from that exertion. And what report did I get after the two - step test? The same answer, "Not good and not bad."

What kind of an answer is that? And I go through the rest of my life wondering whether or not I really do have heart trouble? Stomach and gall bladder X rays have been negative. I seem to be all right except for this terrifying and worrisome answer: "Not good and not bad." Any advice will be appreciated by a lady who is beginning to feel unhappy about the whole business. — Mrs. S.

Comment: As I indicated, Mrs. S., here I come leaping down from my ivory tower without parachute — I'm so anxious to stand beside you and give you support.

Whenever a patient receives a questionable, half-hearted diagnosis, I am tempted to ask his doctor if he ever heard of iatrogenic disease (caused by doctors). In your present state of mind, you have the right to ask for consultation so you will learn whether you do or do not have heart disease.

A patient deserves to know. If I received a verdict of "Not good and not bed" I'd feel as upset as you do, Mrs. S.

Incidentally, you bring up an important point about the two - step ECG test. Recently, during a routine physical checkup, my own doctor — a close friend — ordered one for me, too. Halfway through it, I felt like you did. Exhausted. I wanted to quit. But also carried on.

In my case, the report was answer, "Not good and not bad."

"Swell. Your tracing's normal." I was happy to hear it. Nevertheless, I told my colleague that if I'd had a few more steps to climb I'd probably have got a heart attack out of it.

What I'm trying to say, Mrs. S., is that the two-step test often is essential. But when it isn't, why risk a heart attack while on the stairs?

But what's even more important, the patient should not receive an evasive answer after examination. Being told "your tracing is not good and not bad" simply doesn't sit right with my way of thinking.

For Mrs. H.: It is true that one's memory sometimes slips when one is in the 70s — and over. That is, a person's name, the ending of a recent movie, what one had planned for breakfast may be forgotten. It is usually tied in with some interference with circulation in the brain. I know of no medicine that will "guarantee" restoration of memory. Often it returns without any medicinal help.

For Mrs. G.: Eating snacks between meals is often a greater reason for obesity than most people realize.

Calibre of UN Staff Is Said on Decline

UNITED NATIONS (CP) — A Canadian delegate who worked for years for the United Nations said Thursday that in recent years there has been a "grave decline" in the morale and general competence of the 4,000-member staff of the UN secretariat.

Part of the reason for this, said Hugh Keenleyside, is that some governments and their officials have not lived up to the high ideals and obligations of international civil servants.

Without naming any countries, he indicated that some nationals are advancing the interests here of their native countries in contravention of the UN charter and UN regulations.

Another part of the reason is inadequate salaries for employees, even in the high-cost New York area.

Keenleyside told the General Assembly's budgetary committee he is in favor of increased salaries for professional staff.

Keenleyside was the highly-regarded first head of the UN's Technical Assistance Program. He left UN service 11 years ago. Before his appointment here he was Canadian deputy resources minister. He is now chairman of the B.C. Hydro and Power Authority.

Keenleyside, 72, said there also has been a decline in the "over-all quality" of the UN.

Sydney J. Harris Says

Travel Grows Harder

By SYDNEY J. HARRIS

We speak glibly of "the marvels of transportation" in this modern age, but I think a good case can be made out that the average traveler is worse off than he was 30 years ago, not better.

The average traveler does not fly from New York to Los Angeles, and it is the long and leisurely trip that has been enormously shortened by jet flight. The average traveler flies from 200 to 500 miles, and here he finds the airplane a dubious advantage over the older forms of locomotion.

One day this summer I had to fly from Green Bay, Wisc. to Escanaba, Mich., a distance of less than 200 miles almost directly across Lake Michigan. I won't bore you with the grisly details, but suffice to say I could have flown from Green Bay to Paris in less time — actually.

On second thought, I will bore you with the grisly details. My plane let me off in Grand Rapids, for a two-hour walk. Another plane put me down in Traverse City for an hour's wait. I arrived at the Pellston airport later than if I had taken a non stop jet to Chicago and transferred to another of the same going to Paris. And it was even longer getting back — a four-hour wait in the Grand Rapids airport.

Airplanes do not, and perhaps cannot, fill the place left by the discouraging railroad. Smaller cities and towns are ill served by them; and as more and more people in such communities are driving their cars hundreds of miles and clogging up the highways for no good reason.

Some colleges I have visited are almost totally cut off from public transportation, even though railroad tracks run right through the town. Planes don't land there, bus schedules are sparse, and everybody has to have a car to get home for the holidays. In many other places, the air age has isolated people far more than bringing them closer.

Decades ago, such historians of technology as Lewis Mumford deplored and decried the massive government subsidies to highways and air carriers, predicting correctly that neither the auto nor the airplane could provide adequate substitution for the declining railroads. But nobody listened, and we have no national transportation policy that makes any sense for now or the future.

Rail transit, both within and between cities, is the most sensible, economic, efficient and comfortable way to travel. Five "progress" should consist of supplementing one advantage with another — not of abandoning tracks for wings and then learning painfully that it doesn't pay to land a plane in Podunk, after the depot is dismantled.

For November 21

Your birthday today: Your path through this year seems at all times all laid out, with no real choices. Many incidents are already determined by your habits; what happens is the result of many, very small actions. Emotional ties come to fuller meaning for you. Material matters follow a normal rate of increase, according to your continued hard work. Travel involves usually have a broad range of personal interests. Frequently excel at managing large properties.

ARIES (Mar. 21 — Apr. 19): New information brings complex problems while accustomed routines glide easily. Some extra income may be earned today if you ask for the chance. Start early.

TAURUS (Apr. 20 — May 20): What you write today will be around a long time, so be sure you mean it. Creative ideas pop up faster than you can put them to use. Romance blossoms for those eligible.

GEMINI (May 21 — June 20): Put up with bickering without getting into a quarrel. There is too much to do, for you to waste time. Careers build or erode today. Decisions you make you use your energy.

CANCER (June 21 — July 22): Your bright ideas today bring a new outlook into your home. Being critical of others' ideas would spoil matters — you can smooth out the fine points later.

LEO (July 23 — Aug. 22): Unusual circumstances contribute to your financial position. Visitors bring news which turns out later to be helpful. You can get co-operation from influential people.

VIRGO (Aug. 23 — Sept. 22): Private plans shouldn't be published too hard — let others see their merits. Family offers reassurances for future use. Original ideas work now if ever — try them out.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 — Oct. 22): Proceed without fuss directly to what you want to do. Relatives are uncertain of your interest. You get co-operation in proportion to your reasonableness.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23—Nov. 21): Acquaintances bring fresh contacts. Business can be arranged during your travels. Accept comment from friends: ask yourself what makes them think as they do.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 — Dec. 21): Career prospects are building up: see what you can develop now. You can more readily seek help from people if they are assured you will not involve them further.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 — Jan. 19): Distant affairs, faraway people are of special interest. Emotional surges are more easily triggered than usual. The evening gives you much to think about.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20 — Feb. 18): You can make a good bargain but only when you really know your needs and have the facts. Nearly everybody is sure he has the best answer for local problems.

PISCES (Feb. 19 — Mar. 20): Movement, short journeys, or communication are part of your prosperity today. Resume neglected contacts, return borrowed articles. Gather friends for a social evening.

Marchand Answers Critics

Regional Expansion Impossible While Unemployment Is High

OTTAWA (CP) — Amid a day-long opposition barrage against the government's economic policies Regional Expansion Minister Jean Marchand told the Commons Thursday regional expansion programs could not succeed while national unemployment rates remained high.

Speaking on the final day of a two-day debate on Conservative and New Democrat non-confidence motions calling for Commons condemnation of economic policies, Mr. Marchand said that without regional incentive, programs, regional unemployment would be worse than it is.

Both opposition motions were defeated 123 to 64. Voting for the motions were 41 Conservatives, 16 New Democrats and seven Creditistes, against 123 Liberals.

The two-day debate on the economy interrupted Chamber clause study of the government's bill to replace the regulations of the War Measures Act. That debate will resume Monday.

The Commons does not sit today, allowing MPs to attend the funeral of Bernard Pilon, government whip and member for Chambly, who died Tuesday of a heart attack.

The Conservative motion said the government had increased regional disparities by opposing a full employment policy and refusing measures to create permanent-level poverty and social injustice now widespread in Canada.

The NDP added an amendment condemning government failures to develop national standards of health, welfare and education.

Mr. Marchand said the regional programs were "never set up to combat general recession" in the economy.

They could only be effective "when the economy is functioning normally," and could not be expected to change the general unemployment picture.

On the merits of the government's anti-inflation policies generally, Mr. Marchand said he was "far from sure" whether the government would take the same measures if it had the chance to act over again.

In hindsight, "perhaps stricter policies" would have been more effective.

Gordon Aiken (PC —Parry Sound-Muskoka) said the government had been distracted from economic tasks by the "situation in Quebec."

"A couple of dozen revolutionaries in Montreal have made fools of the Canadian government and the Canadian people. They have succeeded the government into declaring a state of war or insurrection."

Jerome McGrath (PC —St. John's East) demanded to know why Newfoundland had received $285,000 under the federal regional incentives program while Quebec received $40 million, half the national total.

But R. G. L. Fairweather (PC —Fundy-Royal) warned that a "substantial amount of cash" will be needed for Quebec.

He said he hoped English Canada would understand the needs of Quebec and support financial aid despite a potential rise of opinion on Quebec issues.

Walter Carter (PC—St. John's West) accused the government of being so preoccupied with terrorism in Quebec it has overlooked "more serious problems" in the rest of Canada.

"The prime ministers and his colleagues have been groping around like blind men as though they don't believe unemployment is real or serious."

A Quebec Conservative, Theogene Ricard (St. Hyacinthe) stressed the economic plight of Quebec, where the unemployment October was 8.3 per cent, the highest of any region of Canada.

Donaldson Bureau of Statistics reported the national rate in October was 6.5 per cent.

He urged the government to aid firms establishing in Quebec with low-interest loans.

Paul Yewchyk (PC—Athabasca) urged the government to improve the conditions of the western farmer by seeking markets in Canada and abroad.

THE LITTLE WOMAN

"At least the phone is connected. Who cares where the van is with our furniture?"

Epic Battle in Offing Over Auditor-General

OTTAWA (CP) — An epic parliamentary battle is taking shape over the government's bill to restrict activities of the auditor-general, Parliament's overseer of federal spending.

Opposition spokesmen say they will force the government to use closure rather than agree to such a measure. Closure is the parliamentary device used to choke off protracted debate.

The Conservatives and NDP appear delighted that the government has given them an issue on which they believe they can get widespread public support.

A government spokesman said there will be no retreat by the administration.

In the middle, making no comment, is Maxwell Henderson, auditor-general for the last decade who has upset the Trudeau government for more than two years with such exposes as the $13 million refit of the aircraft carrier Bonaventure just before its sale for scrap for less than $1 million.

Mr. Henderson, whose salary is $80,000 a year, has not been given a raise by the government since 1985 though deputy ministers have had three pay hikes since then and earn up to $42,000.

He has complained that the government will not give him the staff he needs to perform his watchdog role properly.

The government's bill, introduced Monday in the name of C. M. Drury, treasury board president, would impose limits on the liberty to call Parliament's attention to "any other cause" he thinks should be reported in addition to any enumerated misspending of public funds.

Henceforth, "any other case" would have to be related to the auditor-general's specified duties: the proper keeping of accounts and the expenditure of money as directed by Parliament.

The auditor-general would also have to tell the government in advance what he planned to say in his annual report and the government would be entitled to publish simultaneously its own observations on his findings.

The government's argument is that Mr. Henderson has been commenting dictionarially on government policy endorsed by Parliament.

It claims that the auditor-general has no right to make remarks about policy even though that policy may have resulted in wasted expenditure.

For example, it was Conservative government policy to build the Prince Edward Island causeway and Liberal government policy to cancel the project. Thus, it is contended, it was not the auditor-general's job to remark on the amounts spent before cancellation.

The auditor-general's office has always maintained that it does not make comments on policy but only presents facts on wasteful and improvident expenditures.

The Trudeau government was particularly upset earlier this year when the auditor-general's office made public figures giving the names of Canadian car manufacturers who had received some $80 million in rebates from Ottawa under the Canada-U.S. auto agreement.

The figures were released through the Commons public accounts committee of which Alfred Hales, Conservative MP for Wellington, is chairman.

It was soon after this that the Liberals attempted to get rid of Mr. Hales as chairman. The plan became known publicly and backfired. Mr. Hales is still chairman.

Women Stay Apart

OTTAWA (CP) — The Women's Liberal Federation of Canada survived a day of discussion on its future and came up smiling, at least until the next general meeting.

In a tight vote of 72 to 61, delegates to the meeting here Thursday decided in favor of continuing the organization as it is rather than integrating it at the national level with the main party body, the Liberal Federation of Canada.

Lawyers Won't Question Defendants

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Charles Manson's three women co-defendants in the Sharon Tate murder trial have insisted they want to testify—only to encounter a refusal by their lawyers to question them. The next move today seemed to be up to the judge.

"I may watch someone commit suicide, but I won't help them" said one lawyer after the defence dropped a bombshell Thursday by resting its case without calling a single witness.

Paul Fitzgerald, leader of the four-lawyer defence team, said the decision was a drastic effort to block testimony by the two ex-defendants, all members of Manson's hippie-style clan.

"When you get to what the defendants have to say," he said, "you will know why we did it."

Manson, 35, is on trial with Susan Atkins, 22, Leslie Van Houten, 21, and Patricia Krenwinkel, 22. The state has said

There were reports that the three women, still loyal to Manson, were determined to tell a number of the bloody slayings which would clear Manson of blame while incriminating themselves.

Trenton Relief Planes On Way to Pakistan

Puzzle Pieces Fitted

MONTREAL (CP) — Testimony at the coroner's inquest into the death of Quebec Labor Minister Pierre Laporte added new pieces Friday to the puzzle of how three of four suspects in the kidnap-murder managed to hide in a secret closet under the house of police.

Two young women and a 19-year-old unemployed laborer described how the fugitives built the hide-away closet in a west-end apartment.

The three said they sheltered and ran errands for the four men being sought for conspiracy in the Laporte kidnapping. The witness helped build the hideaway which concealed three of the fugitives for almost 34 hours after the raid in which a fourth suspect, Bernard Lortie, was captured.

Lortie apparently ducked into the wrong closet when police raided the apartment Nov. 6, three weeks after the murder of Mr. Laporte.

Bellefe, an unemployed native of Victoriaville, Que., testified he built wood and wallboard used to build the secret compartment behind the wall of a clothes closet where the three suspects hid to elude police.

Miss Therrien said she bought the locks for the operation, and later delivered a terrorist note written by Paul Rose, 27, one of the four suspects.

Rose is still at large as are his brother Jacques and Francis Simard, both 23.

Lortie, 18, was the key witness at the opening of the inquest Nov. 17 and testified that he, the Roses and Simard took part in the Oct. 10 abduction of Mr. Laporte, who was found strangled in the trunk of a car eight days later.

"They could get inside in about one minute," he said.

The false compartment was built of wallboard and had two plywood panels on it, making an almost-perfect camouflage.

The panel at the bottom left of the closet was removable and had two handles affixed so that it could be closed from the inside.

Francine Therrien said the Rose brothers and Simard, who had visited the apartment previously, moved in Oct. 17.

Bellefe said the three were sleeping in the apartment when he returned Oct. 19 after a weekend trip to his parents' home in Victoriaville.

"There were no introductions," he testified.

He said on return from another visit to his parents Nov. 2, he helped his sister move out of the apartment. He said Lortie was there then along with the other three. Again there were no introductions.

However, Bellefe said that at the time he knew the four were being sought by police.

Miss Therrien described in her testimony the events on the night of Lortie's arrest in the police raid at the north-end apartment:

"It was on Friday . . . . around suppertime. Francine was asleep. I was asleep.

"There was a knock on the door and I knew it was the police."

"I yelled out to wait, that I was getting dressed. Jacques got up quickly and went into the closet. I closed the closet door after him and asked if he was all right . . . he said yes, yes."

Airlift Begins to Pakistan

Crews at CFB Trenton were loading planes last night with relief supplies for victims of the East Pakistan cyclone. Bundles of blankets were loaded in the Boeing 707 shown above that also carried an advance party of technicians when it left at 9 p.m. Four Yukons are following today.

Yukon Airlift Starts

By KENNETH SMITH
Staff Reporter

TRENTON (Staff)—Yukon aircraft are leaving the Canadian Forces Base here at six hour intervals today bearing relief supplies to the cyclone victims of East Pakistan.

External Affairs Minister Mitchell Sharp announced Friday afternoon that $2 million worth of emergency items would be sent by the Department's Canadian International Development Agency.

Minutes later defence department sources confirmed that Trenton's 437 Squadron would carry out the operation.

The first of four Yukons involved in the airlift departed Trenton at 9 a.m. today en route to Dacca, Pakistan. Each plane will make three flights to the Dacca terminal, distribution point for all international relief efforts.

Canada's 300,000 - lb. contribution includes 50,000 blankets, 2,500 tents and 200 lbs. of bandages. Monday the federal government donated $20,000 in cash for Pakistan relief.

Food, medicine and bedding materials will follow in a second phase of the airlift.

Air Transport Command authorities were forewarned of the possibility that a emergency operation would be organized and supplies were moved in by truck Friday from an emergency stockpile at Cobourg.

A 40-man advance party of technicians and flight crews left CFB Trenton at 9 p.m. Friday by Boeing 707. These are being prepositioned at Lahr, Germany, Keveld and Dacca, Pakistan—points where Yukon aircrews will be changed and the aircraft serviced. Dacca will be the main base for Canadian efforts.

The 707 had held its cabin space allotted to cargo. More than 30,000 pounds of freight, water containers and thousands of blankets went out on the advance flight.

THE WEATHER

Synopsis: As yesterdays storm moves away improving weather conditions will spread northwards across the provinces. However, a new weather system is in evidence in the Arctic can northwest and is expected to move rapidly eastwards today producing a chance of mild milder weather to the lower lakes on Sunday but more snow is anticipated for the north.

Bombing Of North Resumed

SAIGON (AP) — Waves of United States fighter-bombers pounded North Vietnam today in the deepest raids since the American bombing halt over the North more than two years ago.

Eyewitnesses at Da Nang, 100 miles south of the demilitarized zone in the northern part of South Vietnam, said nearly 50 U.S. Air Force warplanes armed with bombs and rockets had taken off from the American base there throughout the day.

Up to 300 other jets were available from bases in Thailand and from two carriers off the Tonkin Gulf, one of which steamed into position Friday night just before the air raids began.

TORONTO (CP) — The Globe and Mail says that legislation providing "substantial increases" in the guaranteed income supplement for nearly 900,000 needy old-age pensioners will be introduced in the Commons early next month. The government's long-awaited white paper on social security is to be tabled at the same time, the story says. "Ottawa sources indicate that the legislation will also alter the formula for adjusting old-age pension levels so that they will be more closely in line with increases in the cost of living."

Hydro Undersells Trenton

TRENTON (Staff) — The Trenton Public Utilities Commission has lost one of its largest customers, the Dantar Paper plant, because Ontario Hydro will give the firm cheaper rates

"Dantar will buy power cheaper than we buy it from Ontario Hydro" commission chairman Cliff Baker explained at yesterday's PUC meeting.

"It is ridiculous that an industry can buy cheaper than a utility . . . we are subsidizing industry" he asserted.

Mayor Duncan McDonald contended that "Dantar cannot be blamed for taking advantage" of the situation.

Swedish Favorite Fails To Win

Stink Bombs Protest Cattle Show

LONDON (AP) — After a pageant disrupted by smoke bombs and women's liberation slogans, Miss Grenada danced until dawn today to celebrate her controversial win as Miss World 1971.

The 22-year-old West Indian, Jennifer Josephine Hosten, said she did not understand why demonstrators tried to wreck the contest Friday night.

"I do not really know enough about what they were demonstrating against," said Miss Hosten, the 20th Miss World. "All I know is that it has been a wonderful experience competing for the Miss World title."

Miss Africa South, Pearl Gladys Jansen, 20, from Cape Town, finished second. Iride Lavi, 18-year-old Miss Israel, was third. Miss Sweden 20-year-old Ida Christel Johansson, the 7-to-1 betting favorite, was fourth.

Miss Dominion of Canada, 19-year-old Norma Joyce Hickey of Darnley, P.E.I., was among the contestants.

About 50 women and a few men hurled smoke bombs, stink bombs, ink bombs and leaflets in a brief demonstration during the pageant and shouted: "We are liberationists! Ban this disgraceful cattle market!"

Comedian Bob Hope, who was to crown Miss World, fled the Albert Hall stage as the missiles began to fly. Returning after burly security guards cleared the demonstrators, he said: "Anyone who would try to break up an affair as wonderful as this has got to be on some kind of dope."

One demonstrator threw a heavy salamander used at soccer matches at the judges, who included the prime minister of Grenada, Sir Eric Gairy. The rattle just missed another judge, a Danish singer known as Nina, and bounced to within a foot of another, American singer Glen Campbell.

As ink bomb spattered a nearby official and the arena was softened briefly by the scent of smoke bombs. The judges and contestants escaped injury.

After the contest, callers jammed switchboards at Fleet Street. London's newspaper row complaining that neither the winner nor the runner-up was white. The first time this has occurred.

Miss Jansen, a mulatto, is classified under South African racial laws as "colored." The white contestant from South Africa, 20-year-old Jillian Jessup, finished fifth.

Marchand Heckled

CORNWALL, Ont. (CP) — Jean Marchand, federal regional and economic expansion minister, was heckled at a banquet Friday night when he failed to announce new industry for this unemployment-ridden area.

During a speech which capped a three-day industrial promotion here, Mr. Marchand said he had "solid reason to believe new industry will come to Cornwall. A number of industrial prospects are now very seriously considering a Cornwall site."

Among them, he said is one major industry which could eventually employ about 1,000 persons.

Just prior to the banquet at which Mr. Marchand made his announcement, reporters swept the hall that he was going to announce the location in Cornwall of such an industry.

Cornwall's unemployment rate Oct. 1 was 17 per cent. A major textile plant, Courtauld's Canada Ltd., has announced that starting Dec. 3 it will lay off 320 employees for seven weeks.

The three-day industrial promotion show was organized by seven Cornwall citizens in an attempt to raise the town's spirit. "We won't quit, we'll try harder" was its motto.

Quiet Diplomacy Fails

Canada Berates U.S. Over Pollution Policy

BURLINGTON, Ont. (CP) — Canadian patience is running out over the failure to get United States agreement on measures to clean up the pollution of the Great Lakes.

Energy Minister J. J. Greene publicly called on the Americans to replace rhetoric with action and come to next week's Ottawa conference of cabinet ministers armed with powers to negotiate binding agreements.

"I am impatient. I wish you would clean up your outfalls as fast as we are cleaning up ours on the Ontario side."

Mr. Greene was equally blunt:

It was time a great and powerful nation, which could afford to traves to the moon and spend $28,000 million on war, found the money "to clean up its drinking and befouling mess before dumping it in its neighbor's back yard."

He accused the Americans of violating the 1909 boundary waters treaty which says neither country will pollute waters used by the other. As a result Lake Erie was on the verge of death, the other lakes were threatened and Canada could not develop the Canadian shoreline.

He recalled that the International Joint Commission, the agency both countries set up to deal with boundary waters, had found massive pollution mainly stemming from the United States.

Canada had agreed to take all the steps the IJC recommended to clean it up. But at a meeting last June the Americans would not commit themselves.

Canada had acted anyway, cutting phosphates in laundry detergents sharply and aiming at elimination of this chemical in detergents by 1972.

This step had cut by up to 20 per cent the amount of phosphates entering the Lakes, where they nourish algae and other plant life which rob fish and marine life of oxygen.

Mr. Greene said the phosphate-cut gave a breathing space in which to carry out steps to limit nutrients out of municipal sewage and to cut down nutrients washing into the Lakes from farm fertilizers.

Only Chicago and Suffolk County, N.Y., had taken similar steps. With 80 per cent of pollution coming from American industry and municipalities, Canada's action was unavailing.

"Maybe in the past we haven't spoken out loudly enough and maybe the border . . . needs not armed guards but anti-pollution guards," he said.

Failure of Washington to act, he said, indicated the "soap lobby" was effective there.

Mr. Greene indicated that his words, interpolated in a luncheon address and repeated later in part in a second speech, were his own, not the government's.

But later in reply to reporters' question he said he believes Prime Minister Trudeau "is equally disappointed" as other Canadians with the slow progress of quiet diplomacy.

The alternative?

He said he didn't think anyone would suggest Canada march on the U.S. Nor did he think "exercises or clubs" were the answer. Other aspects of Canadian-American relations such as trade treaties also were not part of the picture.

"It's a matter of negotiating and persuasion."

"One of the anomalies is that the mouse has to squeak lowfully loud and often to get the elephant to hear."

Suit Launched Against Officers

A civil suit for damages has been launched against two Belleville City Police constables, claiming false arrest and assault.

In a writ filed with the County Court Nov. 6, Ian Rutherford and his father, William, of 77 Auburn Street, claim damages for false arrest and assault of Ian Rutherford Sept. 24.

The writ named Constable Jack Boulter, aged 29, a three-and-a-half-year veteran of the force, and John Hill, aged 25, a member of the force for three years.

It claims damages from both constables for assault of Mr. Rutherford at the Belleville police station Sept. 24, and for false arrest of Rutherford, earlier the same day.

Both officers are at present working regular shifts.

The firm of Temple and Russell is acting for the plaintiffs in the action.

Johnny Meyers and Neighbor-to-Neighbor Envelope

Belleville Test Ground For Fund-raising Plan

Belleville will be the testing ground for a new style fund - raising campaign early next year.

The pilot project will be launched by the Ability Fund — once known as the March of Dimes — the organization which assists rehabilitation of disabled persons.

The plan, outlined to Belleville fund organizers this week, replaces the door-to-door canvasser with a neighbor - to - neighbor envelope.

Johnny Meyers, the young disabled Belleville man who is the Ability Fund's Ontario campaign director, explains it this way:

The envelope is actually a combined campaign kit and donation box — all in one slim package.

Half the envelope contains campaign literature and individual donation packets. The other half is a compartment where donations may be deposited.

The envelope is circulated by neighbor to neighbor in blocks of about 20 houses, returning it in a mailing paid to about two weeks, where it's picked up by a Fund worker.

It's a system that enables people to ponder their donations without the pressure - presence of a canvasser waiting on the doorstep.

It greatly reduces campaign costs by eliminating canvassing task forces — and the pressure on organizers to find so many volunteers.

First tried in the United States, the neighbor-to-neighbor plan also resulted in a tripling of donation totals, said Mr. Meyers.

The likelihood of theft is remote, he says. People don't steal from their next - door neighbor.

If successful in Belleville, the plan will be tried elsewhere in Canada.

This would include rural districts — areas which have always been physically difficult to canvass, says Mr. Meyers.

Speaker Says Wolves Have PR Problem

The legendary image of the big bad wolf stands up badly under scientific observation, Bellevillians were told last night.

Unfortunately, wolves have a "considerable public relations problem" going against them, Douglas Pimlott, University of Toronto zoologist, told an audience in Pinnacle College lecture theatre.

Pimlott, mainly think of wolves as "animals skulking in dark corners", travelling in predatory packs, said Dr. Pimlott, an expert on wolves who spends much time attempting to alter their public image.

"Not very often do we think of them as animals who are very quiet and very docile in many ways — only a quiet time with themselves and other wolves."

Organization Meeting Held

An organizational meeting for the new Quinte Region Water and Sewer Advisory Council was held this week at the county administration building in Belleville.

Attending the meeting were the mayors and reeves from each of the municipalities in the Quinte region who approved of the membership on the advisory council.

The Ontario Water Resources Commission will name a chairman and secretary for the board. Managers of public utilities commissions will act as a technical advisory committee.

Purpose of the new Quinte Region advisory council is to assist in planning for needed area water and sewer services, with construction of a new water service line from Lake Ontario as one of the first major objectives.

Dogs Suspected Sheep Killers

The mysterious sheep killings of the 2nd concession of Thurlow are continuing and Thurlow township council has become even more concerned.

For months now a number of farmers in the southeastern portion of Thurlow township have lost sheep to mysterious marauders.

One of the farmers involved was on hand at the regular monthly meeting of council Thursday at council's request to learn some of the clues of the murders.

Clinton Brown told council that in the past, when it was a pack of dogs, the animals would be spotted and shot. But this time the marauders have not been seen.

The confusion surrounds discussion as to whether the predators are wolves or dogs or something else.

Inconsistancies in the slayings are showing up when the bodies of the sheep are analyzed.

Wolves generally only kill to eat, some experts say. In addition they tend to kill only the very young, the very old and the sick.

Dogs, on the other hand, kill for sport and eat very little of it's a misunderstanding reaching back to the forest clearings of antiquity when wolves first preyed on man's flocks. The wolf thus emerged as a competitor.

Belief that wolves will attack humans also goes far back in history and is surrounded with uncertainty. Documented instances of such viciousness are rare, involved animals which were hybrids — not the genuine wolf, Dr. Pimlott believes.

There may also be a modern scientific explanation for some such attacks: Rabies.

Dr. Pimlott who has worked close to wilderness wolves for years, says he has been followed by them wolves appear "very curious" animals — but never attacked.

The continuance of a wolf bounties in Ontario communities, he believes, is more "zoological and political" than biological.

Dr. Pimlott says he believes Lands and Forests Minister Rene Brunelle would "like very much" to dismiss the provincial wolf bounty, were it not an issue of "powerful political forces" for some Northern Ontario MPPs.

But, if the wolf isn't as harmful as man fancies, what good does it do?

"I suggest we really don't have the right to ask that about another animal." Dr. Pimlott told a questioner at his lecture.

This particularly applies in a society now preoccupied with life - quality.

"When we're all so concerned about environment . . . I think we should ask what good are we," retorted the zoologist.

Broadcaster Flays War Measures Act

TRENTON (Staff) — "The" government has made a bunch of gangsters into political heavyweights" through its handling of the Quebec crisis, Tom Gould, executive producer of news for the Canadian Television Network said here Thursday night.

Mr. Gould was addressing the annual Trenton chamber of Commerce dinner meeting. Charles Templeton who had been slated as guest speaker took ill at the last minute.

In his speech, the former CBC Ottawa correspondent contended that the much - talked - about revolutionary conspiracy at the root of the Quebec crisis was a "myth".

"The FLQ was getting a large amount of publicity" and the government in its decision to "stop it created the myth," he said.

Referring to the conspiracy theory, Mr. Gould asserted that "no single politician would give it out directly", adding that the "cabinet gave it out through a smokescreen" of spokesmen.

Both Hon. George Hees (MP Prince Edward - Hastings) and Defence Minister Donald MacDonald were expounded such theories in Trenton speeches in the last 10 days, Mr. MacDonald explaining that the conspiracy followed a "well - known three - fold formula".

Tom Gould pointed out that, although the text of the conspiracy theory is being used freely by various parliamentarians to justify invocation of War Measures, copies of the document have never been released.

The newsman expressed the view that the War Measures Act was unnecessary in view of the fact that existing Quebec legislation, including the Coroners' Act and the Firearmshals' Act, gives police the power to incarcerate individuals without laying charges against them.

"But was not the War Measures Act a stop - gap measure?" someone asked from the audience. Mr. Gould replied curtly "Have you checked the text of legislation to supplant the War Measures Act?"

Freedom has been lost, he contended, explaining that there were "far too few countries like the one we had".

"We must reject the politics of confrontation . . . we just cannot go along that dumb blind alley smashing anyone who opposes. Democracy must take in all shades of the pale," he said, criticizing those who would now say "It is time they put the boots to Quebec."

"Montreal has unemployment that is a disgrace to this country and slums worse than those in the coal country of the U.S.," Gould explained, adding that there is still corruption in Quebec political life, a political life that has "only been democratic since 1962 and Lesage".

Examining the "profile of public opinion" on the Quebec crisis, he concluded that Canadians had been "apathetic" and that they are "in danger when they do not question government".

Public opinion, he said, "demonstrated an intolerance, a vindictive revengefulness and a polarization". One thing he found particularly disturbing were the results of a CTV survey that showed that 56 per cent of urban Canadians favored censorship of the press, 57 per cent in Quebec.

Discussing mass media coverage of the Quebec emergency, Mr. Gould said "I do not think we did our duty, we elephant of public opinion . . . elephant of public opinion . . . a lot of us pulled in our ears."

"An overwhelming majority feel that we give overemphasis to fringe groups . . . but the measure of true democracy is the way it treats minorities," he suggested.

Madoc Farmer Gets Scholarship

Better late then never is the good motto as far as Madoc township dairy farmer Grant Ketcheson is concerned.

A year ago Mr. Ketcheson was awarded a Nuffield Foundation Scholarship to study agricultural organization in Britain.

But a few weeks before he was to leave on the six-month trip to England, the barn on the family farm with more than 50 head of stock was lost in a fire and Mr. Ketcheson called the trip off.

"There was just too much to do," he said.

So he re-applied for the scholarship and this week Mr. Ketcheson was announced by the Canadian Federation of Agriculture as one of two Ontario farmers to be awarded the Nuffield scholarship for next year.

The scholarships, which include travel and living expenses for six months will see Mr. Ketcheson and J. W. Lymbe, a West Zorra sheep farmer, go to England early next year to commence their studies. The scholarships are open to young farmers between 20 and 35 from a number of Commonwealth countries. The program in Canada is administered by the Canadian Federation of Agriculture.

Mr. Ketcheson said the first two or three weeks of his trip to England will be spent meeting with farm organizations following which he will visit English farms to study operations as part of an arranged program.

At the conclusion of the stay he will make a preliminary report on his studies to Nuffield headquarters and will make a detailed report on his return to Canada.

Thurlow Seeks Garbage Dump

Council members Thursday discussed possible locations for a dump but would actually the legislation of the waste management branch of the department of energy and resources branch in Kingston.

Council yesterday voted to apply for permission from the waste management branch to open the present dump open until the fall of next year.

Legislation states that dumps have to be at least five feet higher than the water table and the present dump is below that, Mr. Thurlow will also apply for an extended permit to burn articles in the present dump until next fall, this time to the air management branch in Peterborough.

With respect to burning, the township has until Dec. 30 when their present burning permit expires to get new permission.

A new site will have to be located by fall or next year, when waste will be buried on the new site and burning regulations tightened.

Communism's Aims

There are those who know this to be fact, among them Countess Alexandra Tolstoy, daughter of the celebrated Russian author. In an open letter to Soviet Premier Kosygin and party secretary Brezhnev, Countess Tolstoy recalls the excesses that have been perpetrated under Communism — the oppression, brutality and executions, the banishment of people to slave camps and even incarceration of some of the country's leading writers in mental institutions.

The latter tactic is one that is employed in the Soviet Union even to this day, as television footage smuggled out of the country by an American newsman recently revealed. The interviews were with a number of young writers.

Having noted this aspect of Soviet life, one which the people of the West hear little about, because of the superficial goodwill that exists between east and west today, Countess Tolstoy goes on to warn of the spread of Communist ideology, ableism included, in the countries of the West.

She points for instance to increased crime and to "immorality, godlessness and drug-addiction." This, she declares, is aimed at weakening the willpower of western youth and preparing the ground for fulfillment of Communism's final aim of world power.

Does this seem far-fetched? We do not think so. Countess Tolstoy is merely reiterating the warnings of other observers familiar with Communist doctrine and objectives. The events in Quebec and Northern Ireland and on the university campuses of North America, as well as the demonstrations in the streets of our cities, are only too eloquent of what is happening in this regard.

Add to this the not too subtle outpourings of some sections of the communications media, both press and radio, and it is not difficult to discern what Premier Bourassa recently described as the growth of "a parallel power" in this country.

We may not have reached the concentration camp stage in Canada yet. None of our writers have been consigned to institutions for the mentally ill; but we have witnessed one terrifying example of what the FLQ subversives and others of like mind in this country would do if given free rein — the kidnap murder of Pierre Laporte. Meanwhile, the tenor of Countess Tolstoy's letter suggests there is no reason to believe things have changed all that much on the home front. Those who oppose the system do so at their peril, and the overall goal of international communism remains the subjugation of entire peoples to its godless and repressive ideology.

A New 'Hamlet'

From Dr. Kildare and its undemanding if hackneyed Shaspian talents to the Birmingham repertory company and the title role in Hamlet, later to be perpetuated in a two-hour television special — that has been the traumatic experience of actor Richard Chamberlain.

And what a triumph is has been, as viewers were made aware Tuesday night when Chamberlain, English accent, superb diction, tortured soul and all, took on William Shakespeare's masterly work. The distinguished cast included Sir Michael Redgrave, Sir John Gielgud and Margaret Lydon.

How Chamberlain transformed himself from television's "pretty boy," as one observer has dubbed him, to an actor of power and depth, and acquired (in the space of about a year) the well-modulated accents of the educated Englishman, must rank as one of the more remarkable theatrical events of our day.

Perhaps his accomplishment becomes a little easier to understand when we learn that he majored in philosophy at Pomona College, California, and acted in student productions of Christopher Fry, Bernard Shaw and — yes — Shakespeare.

A Hard Lesson

The apathy of Canadian society in face of the rise of terrorism and in face of the economic and ideological forces behind it, is now having its unhappy consequences. It is as Barnet Deanon, Liberal member for North York, said in Montreal the other day, Canada's "present malaise — even despair" is in large part due to past neglect. How true; we need to exercise more foresight in this country, while at the same time taking steps to eradicate the social and economic conditions that encourage political unrest.

Montreal MP Raps Critics of Public Order Bill

By RICHARD JACKSON

OTTAWA — Warren Allmand, Liberal MP for the Montreal constituency of Notre-Dame-de-Grace, in his five years in Parliament, has established himself in the Commons as being reasonable almost to the point of utter dispassion.

If any MP could be counted on to listen to both sides of an issue and then take a position he was convinced was balanced, and fair — usually at the dead centre of almost any political issue or controversy — it was Warren Allmand.

He perhaps best could be described as a quiet Liberal, a bit on the small city side of Pierre Laporte, sometimes a bit overly tolerant in some of his party colleagues, more than anything else essentially a man of understanding and compassion.

And that could be the very best reason for listening to what he had said in Parliament about the FLQ, the terror in Quebec, the threat to the rest of Canada and the way the House of Commons has agonized over how best to cope with it all.

The whole best reason to hear him is that this young (36) lawyer, social-worker and conscientious supporter of good and worthy causes, is from Montreal — not the Maritimes, nor Ontario, the Prairies nor the West Coast from where so many of the self-appointed experts in how to combat the FLQ seem to come — and knows the key for some from having lived in it.

Listen to him then as he spoke when the Commons was burning and bawling, fussing and fuming over Justice Minister John Turner's "Public Order" bill.

First, and most uncharacteristically, he let Conservative Leader Robert Stanfield have it right between the eyes.

"The Conservative leader," he cried in almost disbelief and shocked dismay, "triumphantly declared that the government has accepted his 'leadership' in this FLQ matter.

"What kind of a statement was that . . . one minute he supported the bill and the next minute he did not . . . Canadians and especially the beleaguered people of Quebec are not concerned with the winning of political debating points at a time like this . . ."

Mr. Allmand was stunned that all Conservatives all through the course of the debate, damning evidence of apprehended insurrection.

"For those of us who live in Quebec the evidence is strong. My home is in Montreal. My wife and children are living there.

"We in Montreal who have lived amid the evidence have known it hideously. We have heard the bombs going off, and we have watched the exploding stones.

"We have lived and worked in the buildings which have been partially blown apart. Some of us knew Jasper Cross and many of us were friends of Pierre Laporte. We did not know him as a shadow on the TV screen or a name in the headlines, but as one of our own.

"We have lived among and listened to and have seen those who call themselves the F.L.Q. We have heard their hate and felt the bad blood of their hostility, and not from a distance as if we were watching a drama on the screen. We have seen and heard and felt it all in the St. Jean Baptiste riots, the Francois march on McGill, the violence and death in Lafontaine street, the fire-bombs in St. Léonard.

"I am not a member of his Cabinet, and the government may have evidence that I do not have to that I am fed stories of . . . but the evidence I do have, which is known to all who wish to understand it, is more than enough in my mind to support what the government has done and is doing in the face of this political terror.

"I don't quibble at the evidence, the bombs, the riots, the marches, the FLQ propaganda in printed form on how to mount a revolution, make explosives, manufacture fallow cocktails, raid banks for funds and armaries and gunshops for arms and ammunition.

"We have heard the FLQ publicly dedicate itself to terrorism and the destruction of the state and of society. We know the FLQ made dynamite, bombs and fire-power in accord with their program through explosions, riots, kidnappings, massacres, holding government and all Canadians to ransom . . . and the opposition, Conservative and New Democratic alike, have no right in demanding hard evidence of some spectacular mass uprising, a coup d'etat, open revolution or civil war.

"Terrorists, urban guerrillas fight to disrupt society peacefully, keep it off balance and break it, until it survives.

"Terrorists fight to create the immediate destruction of governments and instant chaos through anarchy.

"They aim at the will of the people to serve in public office . . . aim at the will of the people to speak out in protest against organized disorder . . . at the will of the people to strive for truth . . . at the will of the people to serve in the courts as judges and juries . . . at the will of the people to invest in Quebec and Canada . . . the will of the people to safeguard liberty and true freedom.

"Thank God these terrorists have miscalculated in the way they identify the will of the people of Canada, the government of Canada, the government of Quebec and the government of Canada."

And thank God for MP's like Warren Allmand.

A World Away

Recognize this place? Moores perhaps, as seen from Tahiti? Or your favorite island in the Caribbean? It is neither, but rather Hayman Island, a popular resort amid Australia's Great Barrier Reef. Those Australians who cannot make it to such relatively nearby vacation havens as Norfolk Island or New Caledonia can find the same kind of exotic tropical atmosphere right at home off the Queensland coast.

Pensions, Living Costs and Medicare

Editor,
The Intelligencer.

I am a retired pensioner trying to maintain a modest standard of living on a company pension plus government old age security, both of which are being continually eroded in purchasing power by inflation. . .

As much as I dislike the term, I suppose I must be classed with the group generally called "The Aged." Therefore I was naturally interested in two separate items appearing on your editorial page (Nov. 12), both of which referred to this group and rightly so, I think, at least, minority in our population.

The first item by Richard Jackson, "Pensioners Concerned Plan Coast-to-Coast Tour" outlined in some detail and with clarity the plight of the aged, and set forth what most people will consider the just claims of "Pensioners Concerned" on behalf of a large segment of the population who to date have been unorganized and therefore unable to make any impression on government at all levels. It is to be hoped that all old-age pensioners will respond to the "Pensioners Concerned" appeal by writing to both Federal and Provincial Government Officials to ask for relief from an unjust taxation structure and from inflation.

A second item was a letter to the editor by Charles J. Allen advocating the nomination of Dr. Potter as "Man of the Year" in recognition of his efforts on behalf of the aged. Mr. Allen should enlighten us about the efforts by Dr. Potter for the aged because I am sure like myself a great number of people in the Quinte area are not aware of these efforts.

It is true that Dr. Potter has had a lot to say about medicare which is a boon to anybody who can afford the excessive premium cost, but to my knowledge all of his statements were in support of the medical association stand which in no way favored or gave consideration to the pensioners.

Here are some of Dr. Potter's words on medicare as reported in headlines by The Intelligencer. "Ontario made mistake entering federal medicare" — "If medicare is total care I'm for it" (I suppose anyone with income of $10,000 plus does not have to consider cost and so he does not suggest who would pay for total care) — "PSI should use reserve funds for medical education" — "Better bait incentives for health betterment is designated aroes' (Financial guarantees to doctors who settle for practice in designated areas.)

It is true that Dr. Potter has favored extending medicare benefits to cover cost of homes for the care of aged but at no time has he told us how this extension can be financed or what effect such improvement will have on OHSIP premiums.

Dr. Potter should know that lower and middle income classes of our people, including most of our aged pensioners find it an almost impossible burden to meet the cost of premiums (the highest in all Canada for hospitalization and OHSIP particularly when they are not subsidized as are all our provincial employees and most unionized workers. But if Dr. Potter ever addressed himself to this problem I have failed to see any report of it.

Maybe I am wrong in my assessment of the Doctor's so-called unselfish purpose — I am willing to be enlightened.

Men Who Leave Their Stamp on Our Times

Letter to Editor
The Intelligencer.

This letter is prompted by your editorial of November 17 entitled "Heroes Still".

You are to be complimented on pointing out editorially that perhaps we do not hear enough about those youngsters whose heads and hearts are in the right place and who still derive inspiration from the adult world.

Being a sports-minded individual, and recognizing the place that Maurice Richard occupies in the sporting world, I hasten to fly agree that his career, as well as his personality, and of his professional life, should well be an inspiration to today's youth.

You mention in the second paragraph of your editorial that there are others in different walks of life who made this country what it is, and no doubt the inference here is that they, too, should be an inspiration to today's youth. With this I also heartily agree, but with a somewhat puzzled mind.

Quite recently this Province regretfully lost a man who, in making a name for himself, did much for this country generally and this Province particularly; and what is even more important in this letter is that he is a Belleville boy, I refer to the late Keiso Roberts.

Most metropolitan dailies saw fit to announce his passing on the front pages of their papers and to express editorially the type of man that he was and the contribution that he made during his life as a public servant. These were tributes well deserved, and I am sure that in the context of your editorial, may also have been an inspiration to some young people.

Unfortunately, The Intelligencer saw fit only to place the article regarding his passing on the second last page of the paper, and failed to even mention it editorially. In my humble opinion, the least your paper should or could have done would have been to recognize, editorially, the life and accomplishments of one of Belleville's more illustrious former citizens upon the occasion of his passing.

LOOKING BACKWARD

GLEANINGS FROM OUR FILES OF STOCKE YEARS

20 YEARS AGO

At the conclusion of the morning service in the Victoria Avenue Baptist Church on Sunday, the choir met in honor of Russell Soule who is now stationed at Penetanguishene in the Royal Dragoon Brigade. The presentation was made on behalf of the choir by Marjorie Bales with Russell replying graciously expressing his appreciation to the choir members for their thoughtfulness and kindly gesture.

Frank S. Fallwell, chairman of the Public Utilities Commission announced he will again be a candidate as commissioner for the Utilities. Mr. Fullwell has a long career in municipal life, having served for four years as aldermen and three years as mayor.

November 21, 1938

Opening their Fall activities, the OGIY of Christ Church held a gala masquerade party in the Parish Hall.

At Albert College Toronto Alumni annual fall dinner in the YMCA auditorium in Toronto, Dr. Fred W. Routley, Chairman of the Canadian Red Cross Society, a member of the Board of Governors of Albert College, will speak. It is expected that a number of the faculty will motor from Belleville for the evening.

Some $1,500 has been spent for playground equipment at the OSD. The most modern apparatus that money can buy graces the grounds, and judging from the way it is used, the boys and girls are certainly training themselves for future life in a physical fashion.

Elections in Belleville are only 10 days away and nominations has three days yet, and yet there is little indication that there will be a large or small field of candidates.

The Abortion Issue

Editor,
The Intelligencer.

This is in reply to the anti-abortion article appearing in The Intelligencer (Nov. 17/70). Let us substitute the zygotic/an prevalent there with a few hard facts.

About one million women in the United States and Canada have abortions every year, about 200,000 women are admitted to hospitals suffering the trauma of illegal abortions, and over 300 of these women die each year on the average. Ugly statistics, but more ugly is the fact that it all can be prevented — but has not.

The doctor may perform a legal abortion if the woman's life itself is in jeopardy, if she has been raped, if there is proof of a psychiatrist decides that the woman will commit suicide due to her pregnancy. These loopholes do not cover more than a few percent of the women seeking abortions. They certainly do not include the more important economic and social reasons that force the majority of women to abortion.

In 1969 the Church took it upon itself to solve the soul-titan problem, and decided that the soul enters the embryo at the exact moment of conception, hence, abortion would be murder. We supposedly live in a nation where the State and the Church are separate. This new life abortion 'controversy' derives from theological metaphysics and should not have been introduced to the courtroom. As a medical life is as sacred as living human life. The question is whether women have or have not a right to bear children, and whether the Church should influence the state (as it has so obviously done on this issue).

Any religious objections are lodged in a very deep chasm of ignorance. Fetal life is not human life but a potential human life. Religious objectors confuse the blueprints for a bridge with the bridge itself. Similarly there is life in the fetus, but there is just as much life in a person's appendix. A reflex action related to the removal of these parts of the human body?

Canada is working on abortion reform, but let us hope that such reform arrives before too many more women are faced with the decision of either bringing up an unwanted child or facing a butcher with a coat hanger in some back alley. Finally it must be pointed out that no matter how liberal the law becomes, a woman will never be forced to have an abortion; it will never be mandatory.

PAUL NARAS

Church Activism Is Receding In Favor of Ministry to Souls

NEW YORK (AP) — The pendulum of Christian life in the United States, which partially has moved back and forth between worldly activism and reflective spiritual nurture, now is headed in the direction toward the ministering to men's souls.

Powerful movements have arisen in the mainline American churches demanding greater emphasis on buttressing personal convictions of faith—rather than on mere immediate action on expressing it in social action.

"We have just lived through a period of revolt against worship in favor of social ethics," writes a noted Protestant theologian, Rev. Dr. Wm F. S. Pars of Wooster College in Ohio. "Now the tide is turning."

That doesn't mean that churches are abandoning their efforts to implement principles of justice in society, a prevalent objective in the last decade. But this is being balanced out with added stress on instilling basic beliefs and convictions.

"People all about us are hungry for dimensions of mystery, experiences of awe, a sense of the limitless, and the realities of transcendence," says Rev. Dr. C. F. Allison of the Episcopal (Anglican) Virginia Theological Seminary.

The modifying church concern reflects a widespread reaction against all-out modern secularism and its tendency to reduce faith to man's own capabilities and judgment, instead of faith being judged by it.

Theologians are pointing out increasingly that Christianity, although it is geared for the world, must not be "engulfed by it" or lose its own unique identity in it. They also are stressing anew that strength-ened inner resources are essential for any calm, valid directions amid the world's muddled motivations.

Indications of the developing drive for greater church identity is the sacred aspects of existence have come in the upsurge in private new movements, including the charismatic — "Holy Spirit" groups both in Roman Catholicism and Protestantism.

Also, numerous new associations have arisen in the churches, such as the Consecration of United Methodists for Evangelical Christianity, formed recently in Dallas, at which 1,000 church leaders called for renewed emphasis on Scriptural revelation.

The gathering affirmed that the church's prime mission is to draw individuals into a "saving relationship with Christ" and that the result would be changed attitudes and actions in basic conditions in society.

In short, it now the task of deepening personal faith as the primary aim, taking precedence over, and preparatory to, works to solve social problems. Many leaders still exist over this priority.

But the shift toward it has shown up recently in other social related denominations, including Presbyterians, Episcopalians, Lutherans and American Baptists. Southern Baptist's always have concentrated on personal salvation.

Toronto Church Program Varied

TORONTO (CP) — Churches these days do much more than just open their doors for a couple of hours each Sunday.

"We started a Korean church with 30 members, and they left us with 170. At the moment, we have also started an Arabic group."

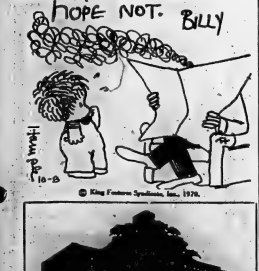
Knox draws its congregation from more than 20 nationalities. Members come from across Metropolitan Toronto and from as far away as 40 miles to hear Dr. Fitch.

But the minister is most proud of the congregation's substantial support of the church's missionary program. More than four-fifths of the ministry budget comes from the congregation, he said.

Eldorado

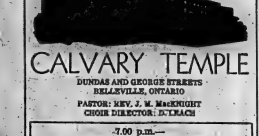
ELDORADO — Baptismal services were conducted by Rev. Sedgewick at the Eldorado United Church on Sunday when Joann Gwen Shaw, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Cyril Shaw, Barbara Ann Blakely, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Percy Blakely, Lori Joan McCann, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Arthur McCann, Linda Elizabeth Bailey, daughter of Mr. and and Mrs. Fred Bailey, Cindy Lou Wyvie, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. George Wyvie, Jeffrey Todd Wyvie, son of Mr. and Mrs. George Wyvie, Lori Ann Blackburn and Lynn Marie Blackburn, twin daughters of Mr. and Mrs. Harley Blackburn were baptized.

Toast Drunk On Roof



NEWCOMBSVILLE, N.S. (CP) — Rev. Biff Meikell, with a bottle of wine in his hand, climbed onto the roof of the new Fall Selkirk Lutheran Church here on a fall Sunday afternoon to revive an old German custom known as the rich-fest.

The rich-fest ceremony goes back hundreds of years in Germany. Workmen, friends and owner of a new building would gather to celebrate immediately after the roof was raised.



Pastor Meikell, the architect and a carpenter who worked on the church drank a toast and wished the congregation happy days in the new building.

A tree was hauled to the roof as a symbol of life, and prayers of thanksgiving were offered on behalf of the congregation for the new church.

MR. AND MRS. RUDOLPH G. COCEK

Cocek – Slavin

Christ Church, Belleville was the scene of a wedding on Sat. Nov. 14, when Roberta Deborah Slavin, daughter of Mrs. I. R. Slavin, Belleville was united in marriage to Rudolph George Cocek, son of Mr. and Mrs. V. Cocek, Trenton RR 3, Canon. R. B. Dehlels Wright officiated at the ceremony and wedding music was rendered by the church organist John Wilbers who also accompanied the sight choir boys who sang appropriate selections.

Given in marriage by her uncle Mr. T. C. Lewis, the bride wore a full length gown of ivory crepe with an overlay of imported ivory lace on the bodice which featured a round neckline and full bell-type sleeves. The straight cut skirt of ivory crepe was enhanced at back with a sweeping box train extending down from the waist and encircling the gown to two self bows at front. A headdress of matching crepe was accented with bands of pearls from which extended a bouffant tulle veil. She carried a cascade bouquet of Talisman roses.

The bride was attended by her sister Jane who wore an empire styled full length gown in gold velvet featuring short sleeves and accented with a velvet stole with ivory trim. She wore a matching velvet bow in her hair and carried a matching muff adorned with jewelled pin. The bridesmaids Miss Judy Lewis, cousin of the bride Miss Bonnie Lennox and Miss Mildred Cocek were similarly attired to the maid of honor but in Autumn brown, moss green and burnt orange respectively.

A reception was held in Christ Church parish hall where the bride's mother greeted the guests wearing a three-piece powder blue brocade wool suit with brown accessories and an orchid corsage. The bridegroom's mother assisted wearing a two-piece rose pink crimplene jacket dress, black accessories and a white orchid corsage. L. Lennox was master of ceremonies at the reception.

Mr. and Mrs. Cocek will reside at 421 Mohawk Drive, Burlington, Ont.

Church Groups

CHRIST CHURCH PARISH GUILD

An auction sale was held with Mrs. L. Jordan as auctioneer by the Christ Church parish guild after the regular meeting.

A donation was made to the Mental Health Association. Plans were made at the meeting for the December meeting and for the pot luck supper to be held before the meeting.

The meeting was chaired by Mrs. K. Lazier, president. Tea hostesses for the day were Mrs. C. Bishop and Mrs. W. Reed.

S. JOSEPH'S CWL

Sister Annette, guest speaker at the monthly meeting of the St. Joseph's parish council of the CWL held recently at the church hall led a group discussion on Christian living. The kingdom of God and what it means in her topic.

She was introduced by Mrs. J. Maloney. Mrs. Z. Kvarda discussed women's liberation.

Mrs. Maloney spoke on coming closer to God, Mrs. A. Eves on being kind to one's neighbor, Mrs. R. Hagrade on the Christian life of one's children) and Mrs. H. Clarke, president of the CWL on Christian involvement.

Earlier, Mrs. H. Carr-Brainf convener of the fall bazaar and tea thanked all those who had helped to make it a success. It was announced that the December meeting will be held on December 7 in the form of a party. President Mrs. H. Clarke reminded members that unwrapped gifts were to be brought to the party for distribution by the Belleville Mental Health Association to patients in nursing homes and hospitals.

TIME AND PLACE

KROONSTAD, South Africa (AP) — Town Councillor T. I. Ferreira objected to couples necking during lunch hour on the banks of the Vals River, complaining that "such intimate love - making should be indulged in at home."

COMMUNICATION

To seek learning is to desire greatness; to impart learning is to have surpassed this goal!"

* * *

Do you enjoy expressing interests you may have, other than your work or career; painting, collecting antique china, music . . . ?

Have you noticed that surprise is often shown whenever men in public life reveal a cultural aptitude? Still a dear grandmother of ours always said, "Where there is talent in one field, look out for one in another." Eisenhower and Churchill both painted. Prince Albert, Queen Victoria's husband, had a passionate love for music that stemmed from teenage days when he studied four hours a week beside keyboard practice. Even the great Mendelssohn said he played both piano and organ professionally. He was a good singer, too, and composed songs of charm which just recently may be heard on a disc labelled "Music of Prince Albert" (ARGO ZRG 597.)

Such interest, such pursuits imply an accord with the belief of today's modern composer, Pauline Oliveros:

"It does not matter that not all composers are great composers; it matters that this activity be encouraged among all the population, that we communicate with each other in non-destructive ways." And one might say if there is a blessing in this!

"Consider a young man who came over here from Germany as a young violinist," recalled Dr. Leslie Bell. "He played at funerals, weddings and receptions, but felt the need of the people for good music. So he tried giving a concert. He sold tickets in front of the hall, then dashed around to the back entrance, to don a dress-coat and went in then to do his playing.

"With a small musical group he next toured the country. This was a great novelty. One cowboy squirted tobacco juice in the bassoon player's instrument. They played in the open air, in old halls, even stations. The young German violinist said:

"I've fulfilled my purpose if just one person takes pleasure from my playing."

The result was a small symphony orchestra sprung up all over the country. He helped form the New York Harmonic Symphony Society. Due to his influence Chicago organized and financial backers built a fine auditorium. He died a few weeks later. He was a great conductor and little is ever heard of Theodor Thomas of Germany."

But his work lives on.

Miss Gail Elaine Dawson, daughter of Mrs. Evelyn Dawson of Corbyville and the late Edward Dawson, has been successful in passing her registered record librarian examination. Gale graduated from the Sister Campion School of Medical Record Library Science, Hotel Dieu Hospital, Kingston. Gale is a graduate of Quinte Secondary School, Belleville. She has accepted a position on the staff of Belleville General Hospital.

CFB Guild Holds Tea

The CFB Trenton Protestant Chapel Guild held its "Frosty Fair" on Wednesday, November 18 from 2 to 5 in the afternoon, in the comfortable surroundings of the 4RD Officers' Mess.

The members had been busy preparing some lovely sale items. The sewing tables featured fancy and practical aprons and other kitchen items, children's garments, dolls clothes and novelty items. There was home-baking of exceptionally fine quality, delicious home - made candy, canned nuts and peanuts, jams, jellies, pickles and preserves.

An array of unique boutiques were assembled featuring many gift ideas for young and old alike. An assortment of religious books, Testaments and church calendars were also available. Many were interested in the collection of plants and shells.

A variety of knitted articles included both useful and attractive items. The white elephant table as usual had something for everyone.

Tea was served and small children were entertained in the nursery provided.

SOCIALS

Before her marriage last Saturday, Mrs. R. D. Cocek (nee Roberta Slavin) was honored at a luncheon and shower given by Mrs. L. Lennox with daughter Bonnie as co - hostess; at a kitchen shower held at the home of Mrs. W. D. Day with co-hostess Mrs. T. C. Lewis and a presentation party by the staff at Guernsey Trust.

Engagement Notice

Mr. and Mrs. Karl Jos. Mandrisky announce the engagement of their daughter Monika Elisabeth, to Norman Douglas Wise of Toronto. The marriage will take place on Saturday, Dec. 5 at 2 p.m. in St. Joseph's Church, Belleville.

Medical Secretaries Visit Distillery

The Quinte Medical Secretaries visited Corby's Distillery recently and were guided on a morning tour by Mrs. Mary Lou Whorley, beginning with a color - slide projection of the methods and equipment used to produce alcohol and ending with a walking tour of the plant.

The different aromas produced in the various stages of distilling were noticed as the group proceeded from building to building. It was interesting to note that part of the Moira River detours into Corby's, passes through their many vats and tanks and finally through their filtration system and back to the Moira River. The by - product or spent mash is processed for cattle feed and the end - product was sampled by the secretaries.

The regular meeting of ANSA was held the same evening in Education Hall, BGH. Members and guests were welcomed by the president, Mrs. Diana Maxwell. Treasurer for the 1970-71 season is Mrs. Sherry Mott and program chairman is Mrs. Jacky Vivian. A general correspondence course will be presented in September '71 and each lesson will cover a system of the body with the accompanying medical terminology.

Those planning to attend the Christmas dinner were asked to notify Mrs. Lena Anderson (c/o Dr. J. S. Laynes) of their choice of menu, not later than Monday, November 30; also reminded to bring an unwrapped adult gift. These gifts are for placement in mental institutions for special care by the Canadian Mental Health Association.

Those wishing to attend the Circle day in Kingston and require transportation were asked to call Mrs. Doreen Ware (c/o Dr. R. F. Miranda).

APPROVAL GIVEN

ALBANY, N.Y. (AP) — The state education department says preliminary reports give approval to its experimental program of letting girls participate with boys in no - contact high school sports such as tennis, golf and bowling. The department said the only negative result was in the social acceptance of the idea.

Ann Landers

Good Advice Given By Teen Who Knows

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I just got hit between the eyes by a letter that appeared in your column. It was really your answer, not the letter, that did it. I'm referring to the 16-year-old who signed herself "Worried To Death."

You said, "If some of you girls believed a boy before you wouldn't worry so much."

I'm a 16-year-old girl who has done more than my share of worrying. I started to go steady at 15. My mom was against it and we had some terrible battles. One day she sent for, your booklet, "Teen-Age Sex and Ten Ways To Cool It." She handed me the booklet and I refused to read it. I told her she had thrown out 50 cents and I didn't need Ann Landers to lead my life.

About two months later I could have written you a letter and signed it "Worried To Death." I thought I was pregnant and I was going out of my mind. I started to bust for the booklet and found it in my mother's desk. There were so many things in that booklet that applied to me I was spaced out.

When I told Jim I thought I was pregnant he got like panicked — not about the spot I was in; but about the spot he was in. What would the coach say? What would his parents do? What about his future in his old man's business? He finally told me I'd have to get out of the jam as best I could because it was my goof.

Two days later I learned I was not pregnant. By then I was ten years older and 100 times smarter. Ever since that scare I've been like a different kid. My life and I'm much happier. I can look people in the eye without wondering what they think of me. I have a much better opinion of myself. Please, Ann Landers, keep telling teen-agers that high school sex is overrated. It's a bad scene — and not worth the worry and the fear. — ALL TOGETHER NOW.

DEAR ALL: One word from you is worth 1,000 from me. Most listen to other kids. I hope a few million will listen to you.

* * *

DEAR ANN LANDERS: A good friend of ours is in a difficult position. Her brother's wife died three months ago and he moved into her home to recover from the grief. He left a good job and now says he isn't up to looking for work. He writes poetry under a fictitious name which is just as well because he uses dirty words in his poems as well as in his conversation. Once when I told him to launder his language he said, "If that word is not to you, it's time you heard it."

This man offends me and I don't want him in our home. His sister insists she can't leave him alone. We hate to exclude her. What do you suggest? — SOUTH BEND.

DEAR SOUTH: Tell your friend to let you know when Glosberg moves out, so you can start inviting her again.

Successful Living

Will You Be Missed? by Dag Hammarskjold

WILL YOU BE MISSED?
The day you were born, everyone was happy.
You cried and laughed.
Make your life such that in your last hour
All share the weeping
And you are the only one without
A tear to shed.

Then, you shall calmly face death.
Whenever it comes.

— Dag Hammarskjold.

* * *

Dear Doris: My girl friend's brother and his wife seem to be deliberately alienating themselves from his mother. This couple is going so far as to not allow his mother to visit her grandchildren.

My grandparents have always been very dear to me, and I think they should honor what the older generation does for us.

My girl friend agrees with me but neither of us knows what to do. — Brownie.

Dear Brownie: You haven't said how this alienation has got started but let me guess:

1. Grandmother paid for the furniture or in other ways helped this young couple to get going, and now they resent this.

2. The daughter - in - law does not approve of grandmother spoiling her children.

3. The lives they live are quite different, and no one has made the slightest effort to bridge the communication gap between the generations.

With a little more love, there would be a chance to mend relationships. The way it is going now, everybody stands to lose. This message is for your girl friend's brother.

* * *

Dear Doris: I have been going steadily with a boy whom I like very much. He doesn't want to "go steady" as he thinks this is r sort of trial engagement period.

My father doesn't like the idea either and is afraid of me ending up in trouble. I suppose if I were older and more mature I'd know better than to say, "It won't happen to me." Besides, it should be two, twice.

I am afraid now that he wants me only as a boy desires a girl; not as one person to another. He tells me I'm very pretty, but I'm not sure he means it. He's very popular with girls and I just have fun now and then. I could be wrong, but I'm not sure. Please help me. — Jeanne.

Dear Jeanne: Don't be too sure you're wrong. Your parents have been together the time flies and every time he leaves you it would help to come back.

Do you think our relationship will grow into love? I am 16, and he is 19. Infatuated.

Dear Infatuated: Don't push him. Your steady has made it pretty plain that he wants no strings attached right now, and I must say I agree with him. But don't let the good times that have become normally involved.

Your parents had real class to see that you are going to have to put controls on every aspect of your relationship — or you may score - him off altogether. Then you'll never know if it might have grown into the real thing.

Bartlett Engravings Popular in Canada

Bartlett engravings are among the most plentiful and most collected on the Canadian scene, Henry Bartlett was born in London in 1809 and died at sea in 1858. He was trained as a draughtsman in the office of John Britton, an architect and member of the Royal Society of Arts.

Bartlett was a prolific illustrator. His published works started with "Switzerland Illustrated" in 1836 when he was 23 years old. He produced for John Britton, "Cathedral Antiquities of England" and "Picturesque Antiquities of English Cities" about the same period.

He made three or four trips to North America between 1836 and 1852. At some point he met Nathaniel Parker Willis, three years his senior, who had founded the American Monthly Magazine and had eventually become associated with G. P. Morris, editor of the New York Mirror.

Willis had published, as addicts to many articles, "Pencillings by the Way" in 1835, a series of articles on travel. It was natural that he and Bartlett would combine to produce travel books to be written by Willis and illustrated by Bartlett.

In 1838 they produced "American Scenery" in two volumes and in the following two years issued "Canadian Scenery". The latter is described as having 118 fine engraved views of the best artists, drawings by W. H. Bartlett, Bierney department by N. P. Willis. The book was published by O. Virtue, London.

Although Bartlett did the drawings a variety of engravers were used. Original engravings have W. H. Bartlett on the lower left hand corner and one of the following engravers names on the lower right hand corner: F. W. Topham, R. Brandard, J. Tingle, J. Sands, J. T. Wilmore, W. Linnaeus, J. Smith, J. Cousen, H. Adlard, J. C. Bentley, H. Griffiths, S. Bradshaw, E. Benjamin, E. Radclyffe, J. C. Armytage, R. Wallis.

Bartlett's own portrait was done by E. Roon and engraved by E. Hall in 1838 and forms the frontispiece. For some reason it is not found as frequently as his engravings. Neither are his maps, with no attribution, which were issued in the same publication in exactly the same quantity.

For many years Bartlett engravings of Canadian scenery, hand tinted, sold for $1 apiece. Complete sets of Canadian Scenery only fetched $20 to $30 bound. By selling the pictures separately dealers could obtain $150 for the 118 engravings and hence broke up many books.

With centennial interest in Bartlett prints was renewed and prices went up to $5 apiece eventually reaching $25 to $30 in a frame. Bound volumes are now somewhere around $400 and the price is advancing.

Canadian Scenery has been reprinted by a Canadian publisher during centennial. However he was careful to mark his edition clearly so it could not be mistaken for the original.

Kitchen Tested Recipes

Wartime Butterscotch Cookies

By MARY MOORE

LETTER: Here is another recipe for the "Wartime Cookies" asked for recently. I have not used it for years, but I remember we enjoyed the cookies when sugar was rationed back in 1940s. You notice it is the pudding powder which is used, we liked the butterscotch better than chocolate. Have enjoyed and used many of your recipes in my Home Ec. classes. — Norma B.

ANSWER: Thank you Norma. I am especially glad to hear I am a help to your classes. To pursue the lesson, your secretary's 14-year-old daughter Donna eagerly accepted the assignment of testing your Wartime Butterscotch Cookies and sent me a sample. They are recommended. Thank goodness it is not wartime though.

WARTIME BUTTERSCOTCH COOKIES (4½ dozen)

One 4-oz. pkge. butterscotch pudding and pie filling (not instant)

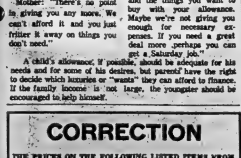
SATURDAY
(Guests)

Dinner Menu

Japanese Chicken Wings (see Thursday); Creamed Mushrooms (see Monday); Frenched Green Beans; Waldorf Salad; Pineapple Squares; Tea.

1 cup quick-cooking rolled oats
1 cup sifted but not sifted all - purpose flour
½ tsp. baking soda
1 tsp. cream of tartar
½ cup cold shortening
1 egg beaten
Into mixing bowl measure the pudding powder, rolled oats, flour, baking soda and cream of tartar and stir to mix. With pastry blender cut in shortening until size of small peas. Stir in beaten egg. (No liquid is added to this cookie dough.)



Roll with wet palms into 1" balls and place on ungreased cookie sheets 3" apart. Flatten with wet fork tines. Bake at 375 deg. F.for 7 min.

NOTE: Donna made a second batch of Chocolate Cookies using a chocolate pudding and pie filling. I thought they were good but as Donna commented the dough was stiffer and the yield was only 4 doz.

Attention reader in Windsor area who sent unsigned letter requesting recipe for Gum Drop Cake: Please send self-addressed stamped envelope and 10 cents and we will mail it to you. We gave this recipe here in March of this year.

Points for Parents

By MARY BRYSON

Son: "I don't think my allowances is big enough."

Mother: "There's no point in giving you any more. We can't afford it and you just flritter it away on things you don't need."

* * *

A child's allowance, if possible, should be adequate for his needs and for some of his desires, but parents have the right to decide which luxuries or "wants" they can afford to finance. If the family income is not large, the youngster should be encouraged in help himself.

Zdenek Kvarda announced Friday that, he has tendered his resignation to the Belleville and Suburban Planning Board in order to seek an elected position on the Hastings and Prince Edward Separate School Board.

"As a parent I have become increasingly aware of the complexities of our education al system, and the need for involvement of all people to assist in assuring that our children receive the best education possible."

To this end, Mr. Kvarda explained that he had carefully weighed the duties and responsibilities involved with the position he will seek.

Mr. Kvarda, outspoken chairman of the BSPB, has been with the planning board for the past three years.

He is not a newcomer to educational affairs, serving as vice-president of the St. Joseph's PTA.

Mr. Kvarda has been involved for some time in community affairs. ni present an bilernational awards" for as Jaycees, past president of both the Ontario and the local Jaycees, national director for three years.

As well as being a past director of the Belleville Chamber of Commerce, Mr. Kvarda served on the Regional Centennial Committee and the Centennial Project Committee for Belleville.

His position on the Allore situation?

"If I were in a position to be called upon to officially express an opinion, I would look into all the facts concerning the case before reaching conclusions," he stated.

"Of course, not all the facts have been released to the public at this time."

A supervisor with Aluminum Star Products in Belleville, he is married. Margaret and Zdenek Kvarda have two children, Stephen 7, and Karen, 4. They reside at 213 MacDonald Avenue.

Sentence Suspended

PICTON (Staff) — A 69-year-old Picton man convicted of unlawfully causing bodily harm following a shooting incident in his home last May yesterday was given a suspended sentence and placed on probation for a two - year period by Magistrate Supreme Court Justice S. H. S. Hughes.

Mr. Justice Hughes told Mr. Brandbent that he was being discharged on probation but cautioned him against violation of the probation order and described ignorance of its stipulations as a separate offence. Mr. Brandbent was warned that he must not own, possess or carry a weapon during his probation.

Cranmer Positive About Outcome in West

CALGARY (CP) — Halfback Dave Cranmer thinks positive and says Calgary Stampeders will defeat Saskatchewan Roughriders in the final game of the Western Football Conference final.

"Man for man, I think we're a better team," said Cranmer, who starred in the first game of the series.

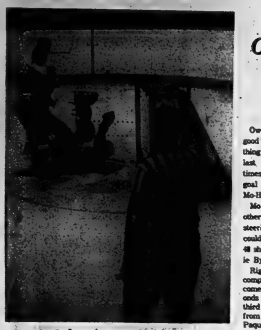
"In playoffs, experience doesn't have anything to do with it . . . it's the ability of the players and positive thinking."

Cranmer, who missed playing in Calgary's last Grey Cup appearance in 1968 because of a leg injury, says "it's just a matter of doing our jobs" when Stampeders meet the Roughriders in the deciding game of the best-of-three final in Regina Sunday afternoon.

The game will be shown on the CBC national television network starting at 4 p.m. EST.

The Stampeders won the first game 39-11 in Regina Nov. 14 with Cranmer's 94-yard touchdown on a pass-and-run play accounting for the big points.

In Calgary Wednesday, the Roughriders took an 11-3 decision and Saskatchewan tackle Ed McQuarters came up with the big play—an 87-yard touchdown when he grabbed a loose ball from quarterback Jerry Keeling late in the fourth quarter.



"I'm sure the guys will be up for the game," said Cranmer, 28-year-old native of Sarnia, Ont.

Crescents Pull Out Last-Minute Win

Caley's Down . . . . .

Hot Goalie Helps Overcome Two Goal Belleville Lead

By ERIC EMERSON
Staff Sportswriter

Owen Sound Crescents got good mileage from something besides their team bus last night, counting three times in only 35 shots on goal to edge the Belleville Mo-Hawks 3-2.

Mo-Hawk forwards, on the other hand were due for a steering alignment, as they could direct only two of their 48 shots behind standout goalie Byron Caley.

Right winger Dave Vipond completed an Owen Sound comeback with only 47 seconds of play remaining in the third period as he dashed from the corner to tip Mayo Paquette's drive behind Steve Rexe for the winning goal.

Belleville dominated play in the first period, but were able to beat Caley only once, despite holding a 19-5 edge in shots on goal.

Billy Armour had one of the best scoring chances for the Mo-Hawks as he stickhandled his way to the goalmouth but was unable to lift the puck over a sprawling Caley.

Owen Sound's strategy of banging a forward in the centre ice area paid off in the early going as Don Whiting collected a breakaway pass, but was caught by backbehind by Greg Marchen. Seconds later they had another breakaway chance go astray, the drain as Bill Abbot deflected Whiting's pass wide of the Belleville net.

Wayne McConnell finally got Belleville on the scoresheet at 15.07 of the period. The right winger drove a low screened shot into the far side of the net as Armour won the face-off in Owen Sound's end.

Vipond made a key defensive play for the Crescents with only 38 seconds remaining in the opening frame, getting back to deflect the puck away from Dave Lewis who had combined on a nifty two - way passing play with Doug Senior.

It was pretty much the same story in the middle period as Belleville again fired 19 shots at Caley but came up with only one goal.

The Junior B graduate thwarted good scoring chances by Doug Senior and Lee Colligan early in the period when the Mo-Hawk forwards worked in close.

Bob Tunstead squared mailers early in the final 20 minutes of play circling the Belleville net unmolested and jamming the puck past Rexe on the short side.

Owen Sound's attack picked up considerably in the final period as an almost total lack of hitting by the home team allowed them time to start looking for passes.

Belleville's best chance came when Ralph Plume stickhandled his way in only to be seen flying into the goal post by a sprawling Caley. The Mo-Hawk captain injured his head on the play and was limited action for the remainder of the game.

Bill Abbot narrowly missed winning the game when he cleared the puck behind Rexe, but through the Belleville goal crease, Minute later, however, he helped set up Vipond for the winner.

Belleville wasn't able to get Rexe out of the net in favor of an extra forward as the Crescents kept them bottled up in their own end for the final 47 seconds of the game.

Owen Sound drew eight of the 19 penalties, including majors to Plant and Keeling for a first period brawl.

Vipond and little Mayo Paquette were the top offensive threats for the Owners.

Defenceman Greg Marchen continued his standout play on the Belleville defence, while winger Les Colligan was one of the few Mo-Hawks hustling for the entire 60 minutes.

The two teams meet again Sunday night in Owen Sound.

. . . . . Caley's Up

Fairways Seek First Victory

Belleville Fairways are proving out to be the March hockey team of the Eastern Ontario Junior B league. They come in like lambs and go out like lions.

In their last two games the Fairways have looked terrible in the first period, mediocre in the middle and great in the final frame as they battled back to tie Cobourg and Kingston.

Belleville will be looking for their first win of the regular season, Sunday when they take on Trenton Golden Hawks in Belleville at 4 p.m.

One piece of good news for the Fairways is that right winger Dave Scott will probably be dressed for the game. Smith, one of the team's top offensive threats has missed the last two contests because of illness.

Six foot defenceman Rick Holmes appears to be the answer to some of Belleville's problems back of the blue line. The Tweed native did a fine job of checking Kingston forwards from in front of Ron Jury in Tuesday's 3-3 tie with the Frontenacs, in addition to providing an acceptable offensive showing.

Holmes, coupled with the continuing improvement of Dave Ferguson, should go a long way towards giving the Fairways the defensive strength they require.

Trophy winners from last year will be announced at the game Sunday as players from the 1969-70 team voted for the Most Valuable Player, Most Gentlemanly Player and Rookie of the Year.

Sutherland Paces 10-2 Kinsmen Win

Five goals in the final period helped carry the Belleville Kinsmen Bantams to a 10-2 win over Napanee last night.

Bruce Sutherland counted a hat trick to pace the Kinsmen. Jeff Brown and Rick Barbeau each notched two goals with the others going to John Morphy, Chris Kalmaz and Dan Cowan.

Canucks Win 7-1

Kurtenbach's Value As Leader Again Evident

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

One of the first things Vancouver Canucks went shopping for in the National Hockey League's expansion draft last summer was a leader. They came up with 34-year-old Orland Kurtenbach.

Not flashy, Kurtenbach has retained his reputation as a policeman and leader despite an off-season operation in 1968 to fuse his spine.

With Vancouver, the Calgarborn, Saskatchewan native has won the respect of both team-mates and opposition.

As a bonus, he has been amassing points at an unusual clip. He now is tied with Jean Ratelle of New York for eighth place in the NHL scoring list.

Friday night, he scored the winning goal and added an assist as the Canucks trounced Los Angeles Kings 7-1 in the league's only game.

It was his seventh goal of the season and with 12 assists given him 19 points.

His best NHL season was the 1963-64 campaign with Boston Bruins when he racked up 12 goals and 25 assists for 37 points.

Wayne Maki, Kurtenbach's

CHARLIE HODGE

linemate, who holds down fourth place in scoring with Boston's Johnny MacKenzie each with 21 points, gives the centre credit for him being there.

At Vancouver Friday, the Canucks led 4-0 midway through the second period before Los Angeles scored its lone goal. The Canucks added one more in the second and two in the third to complete the whitewash, with rookie defenceman Dale Tallon scoring a goal and collecting two assists.

Elsewhere in the NHL, George Armstrong returned from retirement for the third consecutive year when he signed a one-year contract with Toronto Maple Leafs.

The 39-year-old left. winger, a Leaf for 19 seasons, scored 13 goals and 15 assists in 49 games with Toronto last year.

Toronto defenceman Brad Selwood was reported in satisfactory condition in a Montreal hospital, recovering from a back injury suffered when Montreal Canadiens dumped Toronto 6-1 Thursday night.

GEORGE ARMSTRONG

Harold Ballard, Leafs' executive vice-president, said in Toronto that the rookie would miss one month with a cracked vertebrae.

In other games tonight, California Golden Seals travel to Toronto, Philadelphia Flyers play host to Boston Bruins, Detroit Red Wings tangle with the Penguins at Pittsburgh, Buffalo Sabres meet the North Stars at Minnesota, Vancouver travels to Los Angeles and Chicago Black Hawks take on the Blues at St. Louis.

Minnesota goes to New York Sunday; Pittsburgh visits Boston, Detroit travels to Philadelphia and Chicago is at home to California.

Edmonton Make NHL Bid

EDMONTON (CP) — A group of businessmen has made a bid for a National Hockey League franchise for Edmonton by 1973, it was announced Friday.

Written application has been submitted to NHL president Clarence Campbell and William Wirtz of Chicago, chairman of the league's board of directors, William D. Hunter said.

Hunter, general manager of the Edmonton Oil Kings of the Western Canada Hockey League, said he was making the announcement on behalf of a group of associates with "financial resources and backgrounds which I am positive will make them acceptable to the governors of the NHL."

The names of his associates were not announced.

Next Wednesday, Edmonton ratepayers will vote on a $22.5-million covered centre which will include a football field, hockey rink and trade and convention areas.

A group, of which Hunter is a member, is urging residents to vote for the centre, Omnidec. The football field would be converted to a hockey rink by moving seats on tracks, providing seating for 18,028. Such a capacity would make the home of an Edmonton NHL club the biggest in the league. Chicago now is the biggest with 16,666 seats.

Power Play Tactic Wins for Barrie

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Garlepy used the power play for most of the third period with five forwards on the ice. His club was forced into sudden-death overtime, but the end result of the stressed offence was a 4-3 Ontario Hockey Association Senior A series triumph over Woodstock Athletics.

In other Senior A play Friday, Orillia Terriers fought off Galt Hornets 3-3 and Owen Sound Crescents moved up to fifth from seventh by edging Belleville Mo-Hawks 4-3.

In Barrie, the tactic resulted in shooting edges of 18-5 in the third period and 9-8 in overtime for the Flyers along with the tying and winning goals, both scored by John MacMillan.

NBA Stops Merger Activities

NEW YORK (AP) — Commissioner Walter Kennedy of the National Basketball Association said Friday night his league will stop its efforts to get congressional approval for a merger with the rival American Basketball Association.

Kennedy disclosed the NBA action in a terse telephoned statement.

Later, Jack Dolph ABA commissioner said:

"We have received the statement from the NBA," said Dolph. "I will discuss it with our league's merger committee on Monday."

Congressional approval is necessary for any merger because of anti-trust laws, from which Congress must specifically grant pro basketball immunity. Professional baseball and football already only such immunity.

Toronto In Soccer Expansion

TORONTO (CP) — Toronto has been selected as an expansion city in the North American Soccer League, Bill Fisher, chairman and president of the Toronto entry, said Friday.

Fisher said the organizing committee of the yet-unnamed Toronto team has been accepted by the NASL and had forwarded its $10,000 membership. Sunday, Canada's constitution, commissioner, said the Toronto team has received approval to join the NASL from the Canadian Soccer Football Association and the Ontario Soccer Association.

A Montreal team is also expected to join the league, which has six franchisers in Atlanta.

Clubs in the league last year were Dallas, Atlanta, Kansas City, Rochester, St. Louis and Washington.

Associated Press Sports Writer

Are Kansas City's Super Bowl champion Chiefs ready to roll? Can Georgia Blanda of Oakland Raiders be is again? Will Green Bay be able to stop Minnesota Vikings? Are Los Angeles Rams real, or not? How tough is San Francisco?

Some, or all, of those questions will be answered Sunday as the 13-game National Football League program highlighted by five key contests.

Chiefs at Kansas City, San Diego Chargers at Oakland, Green Bay Packers at Minnesota Vikings, Los Angeles at Atlanta combined for an exactor payoff of $38 in the South, while Maggie Maggins and Amberdora returned $76.20 to exactor bettors in the seventh.

The remainder of the schedule shows Houston Oilers at Cleveland Browns, Pittsburgh Steelers at Cincinnati Bengals, Dallas Cowboys at Washington Redskins, Baltimore Colts at Miami Dolphins, New York Jets at New Orleans Saints, Boston Patriots at New York Jets and Buffalo Bisons at Chicago Bears.

The New York Giants are at Philadelphia Eagles in a Monday night game.

The Giants, running one game behind St. Louis in the National Conference East, will probably spend Sunday watching Cardinals and Chiefs on TV.

It will have strong bearing on the NFC Eastern race as well as the three-team battle for honors in the American Conference West where Oakland shows a 5-2-2 record, Kansas City, 5-2-1 and San Diego 5-4-2. And it will provide an opportunity to measure the Chiefs' offense against a legitimate title contender.

The Chiefs, who have sputtered on defense this season, whipped Pittsburgh 31-14 last week as Len Dawson connected 19 of 34 passes for 257 yards and three touchdowns while guiding a unit that seemed to be smoothing with precision. Kansas City clocks only three straight shutouts, will provide a stiffer test.

At the same time, the St. Louis Cardinals will be leaning back Mac Arthur Lane and rushed No. 1 in the NFC, with a Kansas City defensive unit ranked No. 1 in the AFC.

Who's the Chiefs are taking on the Cardinals, San Diego and Oakland risk their streaks when they meet. The Raiders are unbeaten in their last six games—Houston has had a hand or a foot in the last four—and the Chargers are unbeaten in their last five. They battled to a 27-27 tie in their first meeting.

The Vikings are running way out front in the NFC Central with an 8-1 record that is the best in the NFL, but that one defeat was administered by Green Bay 23-20 on the third weekend of the season. A healthy Bart Starr at quarterback should help the Packers.

Plaques Awarded

TORONTO (CP) — Plaques honoring five men for their lifelong contributions to Canadian football, will be presented Friday at the Grey Cup dinner.

Receiving the Canadian Football League-Canadian Rugby Union plaques will be Chet Hokuson, Hamilton; Pat Mahoney, Calgary; Andy Currie, Winnipeg Jack Rochet, Windsor, and Sam Shebley, Toronto.

Hokuson served as president in negotiations with the Players' Association and today is a trustee of the players' pension plan.

Currie, from 1957 to 1968 supervisor of officials in the WFC, was also chairman of the CFL rules committee responsible for revising the rule book.

Rochet was president of the junior Ontario Rugby Football Union from 1951 to 1966 and in 1965 was president of the Canadian Amateur Football Association.

One More For Hawley

TORONTO (CP) — Sandy Hawley collected one win in seven races at Greenwood racetrack Friday, bringing the 20-year-old jockey's total victories to 474 in his pursuit of Willie Shoemaker's North American record of 485 wins in one year.

Hawley, a 31-year-old native of Calgary, Alta., has already set a record for Canadian wins in one year. When the racing season ends at Greenwood, he will move to Florida for the remainder of 1970.

At "Sunday-Day" ceremonies today at Greenwood he will be presented with a suit, golf clubs, radio and a diamond ring.

McGill Withdraws From OQAA Sports

By BOB SUDLOW

TORONTO (CP) — McGill University of Montreal Friday officially announced its withdrawal from all Ontario-Quebec Athletic Association sports, effective in the 1971-72 academic year.

The announcement was made at a news conference by Harry Griffiths of McGill who is chairman of the OQAA administrative council.

In addition, he said Laval University of Quebec City and the University of Montreal will withdraw at the same time. These four will still play themselves with schools in the Ottawa-St. Lawrence Athletic Association.

Griffiths said the withdrawal is subject to the approval of the OQAA's board of governors which meets in March, but the board will probably have little option then to rubber-stamp it.

"Anything we do is just a recommendation," he said. "But if the board of governors won't accept McGill's withdrawal it will have to close up shop for good."

McGill was an original member of the 12-school O-QAA when it was formed in 1955.

Griffiths said the school still has an option to stay in the conference as a football member only but this option expires Dec. 30.

The result means a massive reorganization of intercollegiate athletics in Central Canada, which now is under way, Griffiths said.

The remaining members of the O-QAA are Ottawa, Carleton University of Ottawa, Queen's University of Kingston, University of Toronto, McMaster University of Hamilton, Guelph University Waterloo University, University of Western Ontario at London, and University of Windsor.

Griffiths suggested that the result of the realignment of Central Canada schools would see the current three conference—O-QAA, the Ontario Intercollegiate Athletic Association (which becomes the Central Canada Intercollegiate) Football Conference in the football season because not all OIAA teams play football and the Ontario-St. Lawrence Athletic Association—dissolve into two conferences.

Canada Loses 12-0

CARTAGENA, Colombia (CP) — Defending champion Cuba trounced Canada 12-0 Friday night in the 18th world amateur baseball championship tourney.

The Cubans battered three Canadian pitchers for 16 hits in their powerful attack. Victoria Contreraids, Canada's representative in the championships, managed only two hits off two Cuban pitchers and had four errors afield.

Tindall President

TORONTO (CP) — Frank Tindall of Queen's University Golden Gaels, Kingston, Friday was elected president of the Canadian Football Coaches Association.

The meeting, held in conjunction with functions leading to today's College Bowl football final between Hamilton Marines and Ottawa Gee-Gees, was attended by college coaches from across the country.

It was decided during the the association to fill football coaches at the high school and junior level as well as university.

Mike Lashuk of University of Calgary Dinosaurs was elected vice-president of the association and Ron Murphy of University of Toronto Blues, secretary-treasurer.

Armstrong Joins Leafs.

TORONTO (CP) — George (Chief) Armstrong delayed retirement for the third successive year, Friday when he signed a one-year contract with the Toronto Maple Leafs of the National Hockey League.

Details of the contract were not disclosed.

West Germany Appears To Be Show Winner

TORONTO (CP) — West Germany will lead Canada in fiercely competitive team championship on the North American full pitching circuit when they meet in a tie for second in Friday night's international event at the Royal Show Arena.

Hartwig Steenken picked up second-place points with his ride on Simona. After the second round was Neal Shapiro of the United States, riding Snoopy.

The Germans, who won the team championships with most did Higarola on Manzir.

Bystander Injured By Gun-toting Bandits

BELLEVILLE (CP) — One of the largest payrolls in Ontario's history is stolen way for the three men who held up an armored truck Friday, escaped with $4,000, shot a bystander and injured two guards.

The bystander, George Mabrah, 52, was in serious condition in hospital after a bullet shattered through his right arm, broke a rib and lodged in his right chest cavity.

Two bandits had swooped in on two employees of Loomis Armoured Car Service just outside the Park Plaza Shopping Centre store as they carried about $4,000 in cash to their truck in four sacks.

The bandits were prevented from taking the money already inside the truck by the driver, who pointed his revolver through a porthole between the driving compartment and the cargo area.

The bandits then injured the two guards outside the truck, grabbed four sacks and ran to a car driven by a third man. They left firing a volley at bullets.

The two guards, meanwhile, where lying on the ground in pain. One of them, George Leslie Atkin, had been struck with the butt of a shotgun. He was reported in satisfactory condition in hospital where he was being treated for a fractured leg.

The other man, Joseph Ernest Fraser, suffered bruises when a gun muzzle was slammed into his side but was not admitted to hospital for treatment.

Judges 'Unrealistic' On Drug Availability

TORONTO (CP) — Delegate students work into into the night in school conference on marijuana during street drugs, an addiction researcher told 75 judges Friday.

Rev. Lawrence Purdy, Toronto regional director of the Ontario Addiction Research Foundation, was replying to the judges' skepticism on the availability of drugs.

He said the law should try to control rather than eliminate drug use. But he feared that judges are living in a different world and are not dealing realistically with the drug culture as it exists outside their courtrooms.

Death Will End Duke's Exile

LONDON (Reuter) — The Duke of Windsor's long voluntary exile from the country where he will soon king will end at his death. He will be buried in Britain, it was learned Friday.

Buckingham Palace confirmed a report that the 76-year-old duke and the duchess, the woman he gave up his throne for when she was commoner Wallis Simpson, will be buried on the grounds of Windsor Castle.

Tate Trial Concludes Manson Says Innocent

LOS ANGELES (AP) — "I've killed no one and I've ordered no one killed," Charles Manson declared in a dramatic, unsolicited statement that wound up testimony in the Sharon Tate murder trial.

Out of hearing of the jury, and over his lawyer's objections, the short, dark-haired cult leader talked for about two hours Friday. He emotionally expounded his philosophies. He told spirited society and condemned portions of the state case against him.

As he approached the stand he told his three women co-defendants:

"You don't have to testify, now."

And the women—who previously had been described by their lawyers as eager to take the stand and confess to save Manson—later withdrew their requests to testify.

The judge warned the 52-week-long trial until Nov. 30 to allow both sides to prepare final arguments for the court, charged with seven murders in August, 1969.

Manson's narrative was heard without the jury present as any testimony in a courtroom could be eliminated. But Manson declined to do a repeat performance, saying: "To repeat what I said would be boring. But I'll say it. . . . I have already relived all the pressure I had."

The jury will hear his testimony, but it remains in the trial record and could be considered if the case is appealed.

The four defence lawyers handed the court room Thursday by themselves. "The defense rests," just as its case was to open.

They said that they feared Manson's three women followers planned to take the stand and incriminate themselves. Manson, they said, was a way to stop that.

The women turned the tables Friday morning when they refused to speak outside the jury's presence. That move volunteered to testify.

Manson's narrative was heavily salted with four-letter words, Minister quotes of his wisdom, defendants and other young people. He explained the hatred the prosecution which tried unsuccessfully at the suburban Spahn movie ranch.

Rebutting testimony of a witness who said he ordered the killings, Manson said: "I don't even like to eat meat because that is how much I am against killing. So, you heard got her gut that is against killing on the witness stand, and you are all asking him to kill you."

Analysts Say Investors Cautious With Savings

By ART JOHNSON
Canadian Press Staff Writer

Canadian stock markets showed little change this week after five sessions of uncertain trading.

The Toronto Stock Exchange's industrial index, a prime indicator of market movement, was up 23 to 182.82.

At the Montreal and Canadian exchanges, the composite index eased 26 to 161.45.

Analysts said investors were cautious throughout the week and are awaiting substantial evidence of an improvement in the economy before seriously setting down to buying and selling shares.

The Toronto market moved downward during three of the five trading sessions.

The session during the three sessions, however, was slight, and failed to offset a sharp advance posted Tuesday.

The golds index flickered upward 32 of a point to 183.46, while base metals declined .49 to 89.36 and western oils 1.46 to 191.32.

Markets generally showed some strength early in the week, on speculation, say observers, that there might be further reductions in the rate structure in the United States discount rate and prime rates.

This hope was smothered, however, when Paul W. McCracken, chairman of President Richard Nixon's Council of Economic Advisers hinted that interest rates might rise if the basic U.S. economy expands quickly.

Markets have shown some signs of easing in the last month. Markets moved downward during three of the last five weeks.

Richardson Securities of Canada Ltd., a Toronto-based brokerage house, says in its November investment letter: "The outlook for most oil industry remains bright. As for the rest of the market, most technical indicators are neutral for the shorter term.

"But on the longer term," the investment letter goes on, "the indicators continue to confirm our view that most stocks now their lows last May, and that we are in the early stages of a recovery period.

"Over-all, the investment climate should remain favourable for some time, and well-chosen stocks should continue to fare well."

Volume at Toronto was 16.59 million shares, up from 8.86 million last week.

At the Montreal and Canadian exchanges, combined volume was 8.30 million shares, compared with 3.39 million last week.

Losses outnumbered gains 163 to 138 with 132 issues unchanged.

GOD SAVE THE QUEEN

We've done our thing. Now you can do yours.

Our thing has always been to make the Bug solid, dependable and practical.

But lately, some people have been taking our thing, and doing their own. (like adding cute flowers and kinky paint jobs.)

Frankly, we're delighted.

And what's more, we'd like to offer a few suggestions: the snazzy mag wheels, chrome stoneguards, driving lights, or our racy racing stripes. (You can get them at any VW dealer's.)

The beauty of it all is, that now you can take an old Beetle and put it back in the groove, or do some far out things to a new one.

We've always built the Volkswagen tough enough to survive anything anybody or any place could dish out.

Now it looks like it will even survive a whole new generation.

Tradeau Breezes Through Stewardship Account

OTTAWA (CP) — In an event widely billed as a historical first in Canada, Prime Minister Trudeau was called before a National Liberal convention Friday night to give an account of his stewardship and, as everyone predicted, he was greeted like a son coming home for Christmas.

Apart from a few tacky questions, the prime minister was breezed through an easy two-hour session of friendly inquiries after he delivered a 25-minute speech which promised a relentless fight against unemployment. And he was given a resounding burst of applause when he tore after the "fanatics and barbarians" responsible for recent terrorism in Quebec.

At the end of his two-hours of "accountability" to the party, the perspiring prime minister was given a 45-second standing ovation—three seconds longer than the one greeting his arrival.

"Are we satisfied with the prime minister of Canada?" shouted Senator Richard Stanbury, president of the Liberal Federation of Canada?"

It was only after the long roar of approval died down that the lone voice of Gregory Morley of Ottawa could be heard. The bearded sessional lecturer in law at Carleton University, an alternate delegate to the policy convention, wanted to offer a dissenting voice.

What he objected to, he explained amid boos and interruptions, was the lack of explanation that accompanied the invoking of the War Measures Act. He was unsuccessful in proposing a motion demanding as a matter of principle, full disclosure of information in such cases.

But he later explained to reporters he had no beef against Mr. Trudeau. "I have a great respect for him. What I am concerned about is the precedence of invoking the act this way. Some hot-head leader may do it in the future."

Apart from this brief flurry, the accountability session—heralded highlight of the three-day policy convention—belonged to the prime minister.

Even the toughest question of the evening—Why didn't the government stop the sale of Ryerson Press to American interests as it did with uranium mines?—was answered to cheering approval.

Mr. Trudeau said the federal government didn't have the same statutory tools to stop the sale. But perhaps something could have been done under provincial legislation.

"If you don't like the decisions taken by your provincial government, then you can change them," he said.

Asked whether Quebec terrorism resulted from long-term indifference on the part of English Canadians to problems in that province, the prime minister said there have been inequalities, but no one should receive a push from terrorism in reducing the violence. Nothing justifies violence like this, he said.

Unanimity—resolutions—they were all submitted in written form and no debate was involved—Mr. Trudeau said he didn't think individual identification cards would be effective and he personally didn't favor them. But if any province found a way to require them within its legislative framework, the federal government would not oppose it. He found cards "distasteful and antithetical."

He also told another questioner there are no immediate plans for a guaranteed-annual-income program. It simply couldn't be done without cutting back on other programs.

To what extent is the federal government responsible for budget? nondoor asked.

To the extent of $1 billion a year, said Mr. Trudeau.

Frederick's Bail Is Confiscated

MONTREAL (CP) — The confiscation of a $15,000 bail was ordered Friday by Mr. Justice Kenneth Mackay in the case of Kennedy J. Frederick, who is charged with 12 counts in the Sir George Williams University riot of Feb. 11, 1969.

Frederick, a 30-year-old West Indian, failed to appear when his case was called at the fall assizes opening early this month. His trial had to be postponed then this spring when he sent word he was too ill to come here from his Caribbean home.

When he finally showed up he was again admitted to bail, at the increased $15,000 figure.

Tuesday defendant made application Friday asking that the confiscation of the bail be deferred to enable him to locate Frederick.

Mr. Justice Mackay rejected the plea, when prosecution attorney Fred Kaufman pointed out that a three-week delay had already been accorded following Frederick's default at the opening of the assizes.

Trudeau began speaking Friday night, and others watched the accountability session on closed circuit television in nearby rooms.

In his speech, he said the terrorist situation had diverted the government temporarily from other important tasks but now that the situation was in hand there would be an unrelenting fight against such problems as unemployment.

"The indignity of poverty and the humiliation of unemployment are human conditions which are repugnant to every Canadian and are inconsistent with the Liberal philosophy.

"I pledge to you my unrelenting efforts to overcome them."

He outlined all the programs undertaken by his government, ranging from the reorganization of his own office to efforts to combat Arctic pollution.

"Just as the tasks at hand are not finished, we know that time will bring new problems which will demand new strategies and fresh solutions. I anticipate these with relish, confident in the strength of Canada and in the genius of Canadians to accommodate to the future."

"We have seen the face of despair—we have encountered the effects of violence. We have sworn as one people to drive them both from our land."

The evening meeting of the policy convention was devoted entirely to Mr. Trudeau's appearance after the morning and afternoon sessions had been devoted to the cumbersome process of wading through some 300 resolutions that will eventually provide the framework for the "Liberal charter for the '70s."

It will be some time before the full results of the voting will be analyzed because of the preferential balloting system which gives delegates five choices on each issue.

One policy forum dealing with The Individual rejected a resolution that would call for the establishment of an independent review board to protect individuals against abuses under the War Measures Act. The forum approved another resolution favoring a moratorium on marijuana prosecutions until next spring when there will be a final report by the Le Dain commission on non-medical drugs.

In other forums, a resolution was approved which says the Toronto publishing houses of Ryerson and W. J. Gage Ltd., should not be sold to American interests. Another called for an end to special tax concessions to Time magazine and Reader's Digest.

There was forum approval for a resolution which says surprise defeats of governments in the Commons should not count. Twenty-four hours notice would be required before a vote could result in a government being defeated.

Manitoba PCs Set Leadership Meet

WINNIPEG (CP) Manitoba Progressive Conservatives will hold a leadership convention within the next 12 months.

The decision Friday came after a gruelling four-hour session opening the party's annual meeting, a session which nearly split the province's official opposition into two warring factions.

Walter Weir, the present leader and former premier, sat impassively throughout the prolonged debate but refused to say whether he considered the motion a vote of non-confidence. He also refused to say whether he would seek to hold the leadership.

The session was ostensibly to approve changes to the party constitution but soon developed into a shouting match between rival factions with constant catcalls and bissing.

Two amendments were turned down by the meeting. One demanded a leadership review within six months and another would have allowed the convention to be held at times within the next five years.

The motion finally approved provides that the leadership convention be held within the next 12 months but not before the end of the next session of the legislature.

China Is Coming Closer to UN Seat

Although it could take longer — 1972 or even later — the Communist Chinese ambassador to settle into the chair kept warm for 20 years by his Nationalist enemies, few observers doubt that a Communist Chinese ambassador—distinguished representative in UN parlance—has his foot in the door following the voting on Chinese representation in the 127-country General Assembly Friday.

The annual Albanian resolution calling for expulsion of Nationalist China and the seating of the Communists was approved—for the first time in history—by a three-vote majority. Last year it was defeated by eight votes.

Canada, which recognized Peking last month, voted yes for the first time this year.

The three-vote majority was not enough to pass because previously the assembly had given a small majority to an American resolution saying that passage required a two-thirds majority of those voting.

The majority for this resolution, significantly, fell to 14 from 23 last year. A two-thirds majority would have required 87 votes for passage.

Canada also voted in favor of the American two-thirds resolution.

The votes Friday were:

Albanian: 51 for, 49 against and 25 abstentions. Last year it was 48 for, 56 against and 21 abstentions, including Canada.

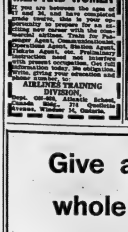
American: 66 for, 52 against and seven abstentions. Last year: 71 for, 48 against and four abstentions.

The atmosphere in the blue and gold chamber was electric just before the voting and several times President Edvard Hambro of Norway had to call for order. After the Albanian vote, applause prevented him from announcing the result for about one minute.

Sixteen countries changed their vote on the Albanian resolution and 12 on the two-thirds majority question. Only two countries changed from yes to no on the Albanian.

Observers said the erosion in the votes this year seen this year can be expected to continue. They said the voted showed that many countries are in a "transitional mood" as indicated by their switch to abstention.

And the Americans, the greatest opponent of Red China over the years, gave strong indication that they are considering a change in vote next year.



Some informed officials looked to France as the one single country responsible for the dramatic change in vote results. France was writing on her former African colonies for a change in vote. To a degree this was successful.

Observers say that France, strong believer in Communist Chinese membership in the UN, can be expected to have more success in a pressure campaign before the session of the assembly next fall.

Meanwhile, as post-mortems continue, it appears that Canada's recognition of Communist China, and the formula used for that recognition is looming large.

Canada and China found in talks in Stockholm a way to deal with Peking's demand that the world recognize its sovereignty over Formosa (Nationalist China).

The formula, also adopted by Italy, involved Canada's "taking note" of Peking's claim to sovereignty over Formosa.

National Grocers In Discount War

TORONTO (CP) — National Grocers, which supply 369 Red and White stores and 28 Super Save Markets in Ontario, announced Friday it will join the supermarket price war next week.

"We will be following our usual practice of being competitive in the Ontario retail food field," a spokesman said.

Earlier, the Independent Grocers' Alliance (IGA) announced its 139 Ontario stores will close Monday to mark down prices.

Dominion Stores Ltd. dropped its prices three weeks ago in its 249 Ontario stores. Steinberg's Ltd. of Montreal and Loblaws Groceterias Co. Ltd. of Toronto followed suit.

Did you know that the budgets of all school boards are subject to the approval or disapproval of the Minister of Education?
This guarantees all taxpayers that public funds for education will be used to their fullest advantage.
Separate Schools have always been operated economically. Their supporters approve the sharing of services, facilities and special programs, to avoid duplication of costs.
Naturally if Separate schools were extended to include the last three high school grades the practice of economy and cooperation would also be extended.
The extension of our schools to the end of high school would not cost any more than the education of our students in a public school system.

Bourassa's Postion Stronger Since Crisis and Backlash

QUEBEC (CP) Premier Robert Bourassa's six-month-old Liberal government, emerged Friday from an emergency debate in the Quebec national assembly on the present crisis apparently strengthened by a backlash of public opinion against dissenters.

The backlash, indicated by a public opinion survey and the emergency debate, seemed to put the government in an excellent position to crush those it terrorism and its alleged supporters.

The government says the mail it has received since the kidnaping Oct. 5 of British diplomat James Cross indicates overwhelming public support for its actions, especially after the slaying of Labor Minister Pierre Laporte.

Newspaper and radio and television public opinion surveys also show a strong reaction against the "troublemakers" in Quebec society, a group that takes in virtually everyone identified with dissent, social and political activism or radicalism and, since the crisis began, critics of the government.

This group now is widely held responsible for terrorism, disorders and unrest in Quebec and a majority which in some surveys is as high as 67 per cent wants the government to do something about it.

This mood was reflected in the six-day emergency debate in the 104-seat national assembly, where only the dozen members of the Parti Quebecois stood against the almost perfect unity of the Liberals, Union Nationale and Creditistes.

The debate was in have been the occasion for strong Opposition questioning of the government's actions and the reasons behind those actions, and Premier Bourassa promised to answer all questions.

However, the Assembly became the forum for bitter attacks on the government's critics accusations and insults.

Opposition Leader Jean-Jacques Bertrand began the debate by asking for "all the facts" behind the government actions, but he refrained from criticizing the government, which he gave "the benefit of the doubt."

From then on, Mr. Bertrand's Union Nationale party was in full support of the Liberal government, refraining from criticizing it or pressing it with the questions Mr. Bertrand had promised.

Early in the crisis, the UN had been silent, refusing to criticize the government to avoid possibly worsening the situation.

A few days before the debate, Mr. Bertrand announced that UN was breaking its long silence to join with the PQ in seeking answers to questions about the government's handling of the crisis.

However, only Marcel Masse (UN—Mecatina), who was ordered whether the Quebec government has been dominated by Ottawa in its decision-making, really questioned the government from the UN benches.

The UN's tacit approval of the government's handling of the crisis effectively isolated the PQ in opposition, enabling Mr. Bourassa's Liberals to take the offensive against its critics.

The support of the Creditistes, who rarely oppose the government in the assembly, was a foregone conclusion, and with the UN on their side as well, the Liberals struck out at dissent.

Troublemakers, real and imagined, were the targets for volleys of finger-pointing blame from the UN, the Creditistes and Liberals in mistaken and backbenchers alike.

But the separatist party was usually ridiculed in any backbencher's Member list, drawn with journalists, teachers, labor leaders and activists, all of whom have denounced the having promoted terrorism, disorder and unrest in Quebec.

The list included everyone from Michel Chartrand, the radical Montreal labor leader now on trial for seditious conspiracy, to Claude Ryan, the moderate, widely-respected publisher of Montreal Le Devoir.

However, the PQ and its leader, Rene Levesque, were the most frequent targets, followed closely by journalists.

FLQ 'Fanatics' Says Stanfield

LONDON, Ont. (CP) — Quebec terrorists do not represent a massive fear to an important group of people, but are a "small number of fanatical men who took criminal measures in an attempt to destroy society," Conservative Leader Robert Stanfield said Friday.

"In their acts, these men were representative of nobody," he said a meeting of the Women's Canadian club in reference to terrorist kidnappings by the Front de Liberation du Quebec.

But they did represent people cynical of Canadian society, "who have no visions of a country called Canada."

"I am not speaking here about the so-called FLQ, but about the young people, or a good many of them, who feel no loyalty to this country."

It is the duty of the older generation, Mr. Stanfield said, to lay some groundwork for a Canadian vision, "a vision that has a meeting by the young people, both English- and French-speaking, of this country."

A text of his speech was released to the press before of delivery.

STOP KILLING YOURSELF

By Peter J. Steincrohn, M.D., F.A.C.P.

Author of "The Doctor Looks At Life"

Operate Early For Cross-eyes

Dear Dr. Steincrohn: Would you please straighten me out on strabismus which is quite common these days? My son, 5½, started wearing glasses at 2. When tired, his eyes turn in (left eye especially.)

I've been taking him to an eye specialist every six months for a checkup. The doctor will not operate on his eyes because he says it does correct his condition — but he's still cross - eyes.

My feeling is: Why be cross-eyed if you don't have to? Is there danger in such an operation? Shall I get another opinion? — Mrs. M.

Comment: In the beginning while the child is still very young, conservative measures — including exercises and glasses — sometimes help. However, when indicated, eye specialists have told me best results are obtained by early operation.

It is not dangerous when performed by a capable surgeon. In reply to your last question. I agree: your present specialist is welcome another opinion. Why not ask for consultation before you son gets much older?

* * *

Dear Dr. Steincrohn: I am 11 years old, and weigh 120 pounds. Would you please send me a good diet that I would enjoy eating? — Miss F.

Dear Dr. Steincrohn: I am 11½ years old and I am overweight. Please, can you help me? I would like to be very slim. Your friend. — Miss P.

Comment: I wonder how many mothers realize that lack of communication and sympathy for their youngsters' problems is the reason they write to me rather than ask them for advice.

My advice, Miss F. and "my friend" Miss P. is that you show this column to your parents. It's likely they'll call your family doctor for reliable diets. (But I can't promise, Miss F., that you will "enjoy" dieting. Even most grownups find it quite difficult at first. But you and Miss P. are wise in beginning early — before too much weight piles on.)

* * *

Dear Dr. Steincrohn: Here's my problem. I am almost 13 and am already five feet, seven inches tall. My mother is five feet, eight inches, and my father is over six feet tall. I'm scared I'm going to grow taller.

That's something which I can't face. I have grown nearly all the time I'll grow so taller I'm taller than all the girls in my class. And with my mother. She says "I went through that, too. I know how you feel. But I'd rather be tall than short. You look better in clothes and most models are tall."

But I'm not pretty enough to ever be a model. I'm tease me about my height and this makes me feel voluptuous, so it gets me down. I hate it. I have anything a doctor can give me to stop growing? I don't smoke, but wish I did. Please answer soon. I live in Canada. The more I think of getting taller the worse it hurts. Please, it bothers me a lot. Thank you. — Miss C.

Comment: (I have often said that the most painful change of life is that of the teenager. What seems like misery problems to us adults loom large to youngsters. And for good reason.)

First, Miss C., I am glad you don't smoke. We have no proof that smoking will keep people from growing tall. Neither, I'm sorry to say, does the doctor have any medicine to keep you from growing.

As you get older, you'll find that your greatest problem becomes less important. I say this, because in many young girls like yourself who have grown much taller than their playmates, rapid growth has suddenly lessened and the others have "caught up."

By the time you are 21 you may not be taller than your mother. I can't make any promises, but I have seen this happen so often. I suggest that you cheer up.

For November 22

Your birthday today: The sun enters the sign Sagittarius today at 11:36 PM Eastern Standard Time. Babies born before this minute are Scorpios, those born after are Sagittarians. The time the Sun changes signs is not the same in different years, can even be a day before or after dates generally used. Both Scorpios and Sagittarians born today are promised last-minute opportunities of all sorts and a probable shift in vocational interests. Today's natives: Scorpios like to be powerful friends of the poor. Sagittarians seek precision, exact expression of thought, rarely in the abstract.

ARIES (Mar. 21 — Apr. 19): Save your money but don't fret over it. Focus on ways of improving your general situation. Think seriously about the wisdom of your present course.

TAURUS (Apr. 20 — May 20): Pastimes are apt to claim much of your energy today. Trust your subconscious can digest recent work experiences and come up with stronger intuition on what to do next.

GEMINI (May 21 — June 20): So something to make home life better, even a seemingly minor thing. Healthy self-interest and an awareness of your situation will find the answer.

CANCER (June 21 — July 22): The temptation is to stay home with your favorite pastimes, while your best interests likely involve starting over with others, even traveling to do so.

LEO (July 23 — Aug. 22): Added energy is indicated; spend so it makes a lasting difference. Plan a good surprise for your loved ones; clear up any misunderstandings.

VIRGO (Aug. 23 — Sept. 22): Get an early start, do your share in the community's observances. There are people you should see, and most are in a friendly mood. You may discover an old, well - kept secret.

LIBRA (Sept. 22 — Oct. 22): Carrying your share of family and community affairs forward brings rewards, some immediate. A great deal is to be learned—listen carefully, study the meanings of what you hear.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23—Nov. 21): Add your own ideas to your mission adds up to quite an achievement. Co-operation, simply presented, gets the greatest number to organize.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 — Dec. 21): Your part in community observances turns out to be important to both you and your neighborhood. Renew old acquaintances, return past favors.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 — Jan. 19): Your feelings are closer to the surface on this active day. Seek fresh social contacts, opportunities for self-improvement. Feel any bad habit; make your resolution early.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20 — Feb. 18): Check out your income, with, in simple plans. Family affairs promise pleasant surprises. Evening hours are for entertainment — find or give a small party.

PISCES (Feb. 19 — Mar. 20): You come to a turning point — what you do now produces great effect later. Stay on the move. Enjoy sharing life with loved ones and friends.

For November 23

Your birthday today: Responsibility comes to you this year, with not much leeway for personal planning. Homespun chores come to you from your community. Most of what you undertake will require perspective, and thus depends largely on faith and intuition rather than press themselves strongly and well under the stresses of the day. Today's natives strive for precision and perfection in all they do.

ARIES (Mar. 21 — Apr. 19): For once an early start only adds to confusion — nothing is quite right. It seems to be at first glance. Let things settle a bit, then do what is most urgent.

TAURUS (Apr. 20 — May 20): Wide economy of effort do only that which is essential. If the money is not all yours, do not spend it now. Reflect on what should be done about your situation.

GEMINI (May 21 — June 20): Creative work is favored, at the expense of routines with resultant misunderstandings. It will take a while to figure out today's mysteries so think about them.

CANCER (June 21 — July 22): Go along with today's wayward mood humor and tripping schedules. Just be sure what you do is well recorded. The evening is for lavish entertaining.

LEO (July 23 — Aug. 22): Your imagination brings you much drama, poignant tribulations of a romantic nature, but isn't very practical for financial planning. Investment. Relax early.

VIRGO (Aug. 23 — Sept. 22): Your interests and earnings advance as you feel your way a bit ahead of others, attended conditions that you may not yet understand. Let well enough alone.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 — Oct. 22): Promises today are little, more than wishful thinking. Staying put, checking things out pays better than intricate search patterns, hasty journeys.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23—Nov. 21): Extra care with possessions is advisable. Any significant deals involve factors not readily visible; you find later the lady is far more complex.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 — Dec. 21): Business and personal ventures thrive despite confusion and shocking disclosures. Intuition — intuition avoids unnecessary changes or hasty reactions.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 — Jan. 19): Strive for a direct approach. Don't seek mystery, invent, distortion. Rely on your own effort; the needs of others upset their applecarts. Accept overtime as a special opportunity.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20 — Feb. 18): Afternoon brings improved conditions. You can achieve a great deal by untangling the results of morning errors. Put in extra time if it is feasible.

PISCES (Feb. 19 — Mar. 20): Start late or if you can, take the day off for refreshment of mind. If you must work, expect misunderstandings. Patience brings rewards later.

FLQ Suggests Thant Intervene in Quebec

Review Board Backed

OTTAWA (CP) — Liberals at a weekend policy convention tended to support a resolution proposing that the federal government establish an independent review board to guard against abuses under the War Measures Act regulations or the forthcoming public order legislation.

Strong support also was shown for a resolution saying that "retroactive punishment" clauses should be removed from the public order bill.

On the five-choice ballot used at the convention, the vote on the review board resolution went this way: Agree strongly 318, agree 278, not sure 114, disagree 161, disagree strongly 363.

In a straight yes-no vote, the resolution would have carried 491 votes to 634.

The review board was proposed by Robert Edwards, 30, Glendon College, Toronto, who said Quebec Premier Robert Bourassa and Justice Minister Jerome Choquette didn't seem to be the best people to supervise the emergency legislation.

The Commons resumes debate today on the government's proposed bill to replace regulations under the War Measures Act to deal with terrorism in Quebec.

The legislation, the Public Order (Temporary Measures) Act, 1970, is being studied in committee-of-the-whole, after debate before third and final reading. On Commons passage the bill would be sent to the Senate.

The Commons has voted against an opposition motion for a review board.

Cardinals Lose Vote After 80

VATICAN CITY (AP) — Pope Paul decreed today that the cardinals of the Roman Catholic Church cannot hold Vatican office or vote for a pope after reaching 80.

The decree said cardinals 80 and over cannot even attend a conclave to elect a pope. But a cardinal who becomes 80 during a conclave can stay on.

Despite the new restrictions, cardinals remain members of the Sacred College of Cardinals of the church until they die, the Pope said.

The decree goes into effect next Jan. 1.

THE WEATHER

Synopsis: An intense storm which brought three to four inches of snow, mostly to the upper lakes region, is moving east of Ontario and in its wake cold arctic air continues to drop southwards accompanied with high winds. Much colder temperatures are indicated for tonight and snow flurries will continue in the lake shore districts on Tuesday.

PRIME MINISTER TRUDEAU receives a standing ovation from some 2,000 delegates as he enters the Liberal policy conference centre in Ottawa.

Liberals Ignore Warning of PM On Annual Income

OTTAWA (CP) — A Liberal policy convension Sunday expressed strong support for a guaranteed annual income, despite Prime Minister Trudeau's statement that the welfare system would be too expensive for the country at this time.

Delegates voted 639 to 187 in favor of a guaranteed annual income "when possible" and also adopted a harder resolution—by a vote of 596 to 230—saying the federal government should establish by 1972 an "income maintenance system."

The convention was spurred on by the arguments of I. H. Asper, Manitoba Liberal leader, and Phil Elder of London, Ont., leader of a small but vocal ginger group.

Mr. Trudeau said the plan would cost $3.9 billion and was beyond Canada's means in the near future.

The convention rejected two of 22 poverty resolutions. One would have required day-care facilities in any plant with more than 50 female employees. The other would have given public housing tenants the right to reverse, by majority petition, management decisions.

Among major resolutions passed:

—A minimum income for the aged of $1775 monthly for single persons and $275 monthly for couples over 65.

—Escalator clauses in income maintenance programs to meet inflation.

—Extension of medical care insurance to include dental care and prescribed drugs.

—Decentralization of health services with more emphasis on preventive care.

—Integration of medical care and hospital insurance programs, universal coverage, and better cost control.

—Extension of hospital insurance coverage to residents and patients of nursing homes.

—Use of a federal computer to keep an inventory of available jobs and unemployed persons able to work.

Pakistan Aid Work Flounders

DACCA (AP) — President Aga Mohammed Yahya Khan is returning to Dacca Tuesday to look into the foundering relief program for the hundreds of thousands of storm victims in East Pakistan still in need of food, shelter, clothing and medicine.

The Red Crescent, Pakistan's Red Cross is operating independently of the East Pakistan relief commission after a 24-hour dispute over possession of 20 inflatable rafts and outboard motors flown in Saturday by the British Red Cross. The Red Crescent grabbed the boats rather than contend with government red tape.

CARE, the American volunteer agency, has halted shipment of all relief supplies into East Pakistan.

"We have all we can effectively control," said a spokesman, reflecting unwillingness to let the government distribute the organization's supplies.

John Lee of the Save the Children Fund said the League of Red Cross Societies has advised its members around the world to stop sending personnel, including doctors, to East Pakistan unless specific skills or persons are requested. Personnel and goods are piling up in Dacca, 100 miles north of the stricken area, but red tape and a shortage of transport are keeping the bulk of them from moving out.

Cross Letters Also Received

MONTREAL (CP) — Two letters apparently written by kidnapped British diplomat James (Jasper) Cross and a note purportedly from the outlawed Front de Liberation du Quebec were being studied by police experts today.

A provincial police spokesman said no decision has been made as to the authenticity of the communications discovered by reporters for two French-language newspapers, after anonymous telephone calls Saturday afternoon.

Justice Minister Jerome Choquette said in an interview Sunday on radio station CJAD the communications "appear to be authentic."

The note signed "FLQ" and the public letter signed "J. R. Cross" were being compared with earlier communications apparently from the terrorist kidnappers.

The FLQ note suggests U Thant, United Nations secretary-general, intervene to secure the release of 24 so-called political prisoners sought by the terrorists in exchange for the release of Mr. Cross.

The public letter, signed with the name of the kidnapped trade commissioner, says he is well and "still hoping" for "my liberty and my life," but wondering "when and how will this bad dream end."

"They (the FLQ) consider me as a political prisoner and they will keep me in captivity as long as the authorities do not accept their demands."

The spokesman would not say if an attached private note addressed to Mrs. Cross at the British embassy in Berne, Switzerland, was also being studied or if it was forwarded to the diplomat's wife.

Meanwhile, the fourth session of a coroner's inquest into the death of Pierre Laporte, kidnapped from outside his home Oct. 10, continues today.

The FLQ has claimed responsibility for the abductions of both Mr. Cross and Mr. Laporte.

The late Quebec labor minister's body was found in the trunk of an abandoned car Oct. 18. He had been strangled.

If authentic, the communications found Saturday would be the first direct word from Mr. Cross, kidnapped from his home Oct. 5, in more than a month.

The last letter from him was found in an east-end church only hours after the discovery of Mr. Laporte's body.

The letter published by the two newspapers Sunday was addressed "to whom it may concern" and says:

"I want to assure those who are interested (if there are still some) that I am in good health and being well treated." But "time drags very heavily after six weeks of incarceration."

"I have hot dinners every day, I also have my pills (for high blood pressure) and I can wash and have clean clothes. . . .

It ends:

"To whom and on what depend my liberty and my life I don't know. But I am still hoping."

The letter is dated Nov. 15 but the accompanying note signed by the "Viger information cell" of the FLQ is dated Nov. 21.

The most recent evidence that Mr. Cross is still alive, prior to the discovery of the communications Saturday, was a set of photos found Nov. 4 showing him playing cards. Although no date could be put on the photos, police said at the time they appeared to be recent.

U.S. Planes Resume North Vietnam Raids

SAIGON (CP) — U.S. reconnaissance planes were over North Vietnam today to assess the damage caused by heavy weekend American bombing raids.

The Pentagon said the raids on the north ended at dawn Sunday Saigon time, but the U.S. command in Saigon continued its blackout on all news of the raids.

Informed sources said Defence Secretary Melvin Laird was due in Saigon today to "manage the releases."

After the raids on North Vietnam ended, U.S. fighter-bombers struck targets on bombing North Vietnamese supply routes through Laos and Cambodia.

Pre-dawn sources said the U.S. raids on North Vietnam were in retaliation for the downing of a reconnaissance Phantom jet over North Vietnam Nov. 13.

Nhan Dan, the North Vietnamese Communist party's newspaper, said today the U.S. air raids on North Vietnam "are proof that the United States is resuming its bombing of the Democratic Republic of Vietnam."

Portugal Is Blamed For Guinea Invasion

ABIDJAN, Ivory Coast (CP) — The government of Guinea said today that mercenaries hired by Portugal tried through the night to land on its shores but Guinea forces repulsed them.

The UN Security Council at an emergency meeting Sunday night called for the immediate withdrawal of all foreign forces in the West African country and agreed to send an investigating mission.

"The fight has not ended," President Sekou Toure's government said today in a broadcast from Conakry, the capital. "The enemy is still here. All night he tried to disembark other mercenaries, but in vain . . . Thus the second day of the war that Portuguese colonialism has imposed upon us is beginning."

Earlier broadcasts from Conakry charged that about 250 European and African mercenaries under the Portuguese flag attacked the defence ministry and the airport early Sunday to divert Guinean troops from northern and middle Guinea.

The radio reported captured invaders said six to 18 ships left Bissau, Portuguese Guinea's capital, moored in Guinean territorial waters and sent in boats with the landing party.

The radio said a second group of mercenaries tried to enter Conakry Sunday night to overthrow President Toure, but had been off. The radio said the government still controlled the capital.

The radio broadcast this morning also said the invasion forces were living the Guinean frontier with the Ivory Coast, Sierra Leone and Portuguese Guinea.

It said three members of the banned Guinea Opposition party, Nabi Youla, former ambassador in Paris, Ibrahim Kake and a man called only Diallo, were in Abidjan, where they were directing the invasion operations.

The radio said a captured mercenary leader, Portuguese Capt. Ambrose Fernando, told his captors the mercenaries were calling themselves "commandos of death."

He said before they left Bissau each was given about $35,000.

The Portuguese government in Lisbon said Guinea's charge of Portuguese involvement in the invasion was without "the slightest foundation."

Trade War Feared Between U.S. and Euromart Countries

LONDON (CP) — A trade war could break out between the United States and the European Common Market splitting the Atlantic region into two competing blocs, says a report issued today by the British-North American Committee.

The study, written by Theodore Geiger of the National Planning Association in Washington, says the danger of such a trade war will increase if Britain and other countries join the six-member Common Market.

The report also says a free-trade arrangement among the Atlantic countries would help Canadians make the most of their relationship with the United States "while minimizing dangers they (Canadians) perceive to their economic and cultural independence."

Geiger, chief of international studies of the Washington association, warns of the dangers of starting "a vicious spiral" of mutual restrictions and retaliations between Western Europe and North America.

Statesmanship and public understanding on both sides of the Atlantic will be needed to stop a deterioration in transatlantic relationships and prevent a split that could undermine the security and prosperity of the West, the report says.

Heightened U.S. fears that the Common Market is "nothing more than an expanding preferential trading arrangement" might lead the U.S., Canada and Japan—and others—to set up their own trading bloc, the report says.

They could impose tariffs and quantitative restrictions on imports "evolving into a major trade war."

Enlargement of the Common Market would increase the scope and importance of the trade discrimination which Canada and the U.S. will suffer due to the community's preferential arrangements, the report says.

Turning to possible solutions, the report says "broader or more uncompromising application of the extra-territoriality principle by the United States could strengthen European fears that the subsidiaries of large American corporations were in fact "Trojan horses" for subjugating their national economies to American control."

Geiger recommends a creative approach to the problem which should include moving as rapidly as possible towards free trade and better co-ordination of economic community.

This would take in Japan and other countries willing and able to participate.

The report, entitled Transatlantic Relations in the Prospect of an Enlarged European Community, is published by the British-North America Committee.

Sponsors of the committee are the British-North American Research Association the National Planning Association and the private Planning Association of Canada, all non-profit groups.

The British-North American Committee includes business, labor, farm and professional leaders in Britain, the United States and Canada. It was set up last year to study relations of ships among the three countries.

The committee, headed by Lord Howick, chairman of the Commonwealth Development Corp., has as chairman of its executive committee Robert M. Fowler of Montreal, president of the Canadian Pulp and Paper Association.

Dinner Honors County Warden

Nearly 300 persons turned out Friday night at the Sacred Heart Parish Hall in Marmora to honor Hastings County Warden John Wilkes and Mrs. Wilkes at the annual warden's banquet.

The warden and Mrs. Wilkes were hosts to county councillors and their wives, members of township council, county department heads, area members of parliament and municipal heads.

In his address of welcome, Warden Wilkes said the banquet was the highlight of his municipal year.

Commenting on the success of this year's county administration Warden Wilkes said this would not have been possible without the co-operation of municipal and county officials.

During the year he was happy to have seen the formation of the county planning area, taking in all townships with the exception of Sidney and Thurlow. Following negotiations would range the benefit of proper planning, he said.

Another important move during the year had been the appointment of a municipal reform committee charged with getting the opinions of municipal officials as to the direction, if any, which municipal reform should take.

Warden Wilkes was confident that the huge chip mill operation proposed for North Hastings would go ahead despite criticism which had been raised for the processing plant in Prince Edward county.

If it went ahead, Warden Wilkes said the chip mill would be one of the biggest developments ever to happen in North Hastings.

As chairman for the evening county clerk treasurer and administrator Carl R. Bateman paid tribute to Warden Wilkes who he said was a veteran of 35 years' experience in municipal affairs. He served 14 years as councillor and has been verve of his township for the past 11 years.

With the trend toward regional governments, Mr. Bateman said that warden's banquet some time in the future might be no more.

"But this change will not happen overnight," he said. The people of this county are proud of their heritage, their traditions, their local government and their accomplishments."

Tradition dies hard and to those who advocate major change, I can say only that they face a very rocky road.

Arthur Duncan of Batawa, well known for his ability as an after dinner speaker, was the guest speaker. Others heard briefly included Hastings MPP Clare E. Hall, Hastings MP Lee Grills and Mayor J. Russell Scott of Belleville.

Warden and Mrs. Wilkes were presented with a silver tea service from the county while Marmora and Lake townships presented them with a set of tableware.

Our Pakistan Relief Arriving on Schedule

TRENTON (Staff) — Almost half the first phase of Canada's relief operation in East Pakistan is complete, defence department sources here indicated today.

A total of 389,000 lb. of supplies is currently being allotted to the Dacca distribution terminal by Trenton's 424 Squadron. More than 139,000 lbs. of the payload has already arrived and is being distributed.

Distribution of aid has been plagued by a shortage of light aircraft in Pakistan, particularly helicopters, to carry material to the Ganges basin islands where the disaster is most acute.

However, details will be made available this afternoon when a Boeing 707, the first Air Transport Command aircraft to leave CFB Trenton on the operation, returns.

ATC authorities have authorized that the 707 crew arriving at 1:30 p.m. today from Dacca may release information concerning the aircraft. The plane left Trenton 9 p.m. Friday with a 36-man advance party and 5,330 blankets.

Four Yukon flights that departed Saturday have transported an additional 22,000 blankets, 640 tents and a sizeable quantity of bandages to the Pakistan tidal wave victims. The first is expected back Tuesday night or Wednesday morning.

The first phase of the airlift is scheduled to be completed as early as December 3, W. S. Crowell, project officer, CFB Trenton said today.

External Affairs Minister Mitchell Sharp announced Friday afternoon that Canada would send $1 million worth of aid to East Pakistan.

A second phase of the Canadian aid program will take medicine and building materials into Dacca.

It is uncertain today whether Air Transport Command will be involved in this phase of the relief operation designed to assist homeless families in re-establishment. The aid will cover the bulk of these supplies, Doug Haslam, External Affairs press officer, said The Intelligencer today.

Hearing Site Not Decided

The hearing into the suspension of separate school supervisionsent F. B. Allore is "likely" to take place in Belleville.

But Frontenac county Judge A. E. Campbell said the Intelligencer this morning that the hearing "could possibly take place in Kingston," or "since both parties have their respective solicitors in Toronto, it could possibly be held in Toronto."

However, Judge Campbell repeated that "I will likely be going to Belleville".

He gave no indication of when the hearing will be held, saying that he has a heavy court load facing him in Kingston.

"But they want me to get it in as soon as I can," he added.

No indication was given of the nature of the inquiry — whether or not it would be held in camera or in public.

Judge Campbell said he is meeting the middle of this week with department of education officials from Toronto for a briefing on the matter.

Solicitor for the Hastings-Prince Edward separate school board since its creation in January, 1969, has been James Murphy of the Toronto firm of Robertson, Lane, Parrett, Frankish and Exley.

This morning, E. J. Buckle-arate school board, issued a statement on the hearing.

Noting that the position of the superintendent of the "abolitappointment," he said, "a dismissal may be decided, upon by the board, but it too must be ratified by the department."

"The purpose of this commission is to provide an investigation of the matter and to make recommendations, both from for the information and consideration of the Minister."

Mr. Buckley added: "As a body of elected representatives the board has always conducted its affairs in a responsible fashion. In the interests of the welfare of the entire system, students, staff, parents, ratepayers, the board has a refused to become involved in provocative arguments. The public has recently been subjected to false statements and conduct, irresponsible and immature, when for-ced the board to consider that suspension was its only course of action. The board regrets the politics of confrontation so lately entered into by disgruntled employees."

"There is every confidence that the findings of Judge Campbell will support the decision of the board and the minister when so advised will terminate this position."

Point Anne Firehall Now Open

POINT ANNE (Staff) — Thurlow Township's Point Anne volunteer fire department had its new hall officially opened here Saturday by Thurlow Reeve Horace Casey, Chris Rollins, MPP Hastings, and John Wilkes, Warden for Hastings County.

Mr. Rollins congratulated the community on its efforts in preparing the new hall.

This is the first of two halls the township expects to build in November. The second garage, in Corbyville, will be opened next Saturday.

The Point Anne Fire Department was organized under chief Fred Collins, 20 employees of the Canada Cement plant appointed to fill the ranks.

Uniforms and a certain amount of the equipment was obtained on the men's own income.

A new vehicle was provided last year by the township, with training obtained through Clyde Pope, a fire services advisor with the Belleville-based Ontario Fire Marshal's Office.

Cementing Employee Relations

Open House at Wilson Concrete Saturday, was jointly set up by union workers and management. Primarily originated for their wives to display their work to family and friends, visitors were also welcomed. On view to the more than 500 who toured the plant were the new poured concrete ceiling beams for the new rink under construction, Canadian Tire Store gas bar canopies, pebble-surface concrete slabs for exterior of government buildings in Ottawa, concrete testing laboratories and machines automatically pouring concrete blocks and shaping building surfaces. More than 200 employees now work on precast concrete and masonry. Operating the automatic concrete block machine is Tom Donahue while Mr. and Mrs. Ron Walmsley and son David watch the last blocks roll onto storage trays, ready for the kilns.

Candidates Known Tonight

Public and separate school ratepayers will know tonight the identity of candidates running for election as trustees of the two school boards here.

Nominations will be taken tonight in Belleville and in all throughout the county for 16 trustees for the Hastings county board of education and 12 trustees on the Hastings - Prince Edward separate school board.

Belleville public school supporters will elect five trustees. Two have already indicated their intention to run, Mrs. Miriam Graham and James Clarke, board chairman during the first two years of the amalgamated board's existence.

Gordon Bennett of Marmora has announced his intention of running as a public school trustee in his area, and S. C. Genoja of Tyendinaga will contest county board seat for the second time against incumbent Laurison Gunning of Shannonville.

Only one candidate, Zdenek Kvarda, has announced his intention of running for the separate school board. A new comer to school board elections, he resigned last week as chairman of Belleville and Suburban Planning Board in order to accept the nomination.

Trenton Nominations Tonight

By KENNETH SMITH
Staff Reporter

TRENTON — The 1970 election campaign will begin officially tonight. Nominations will be taken in the Town Hall for councillors, public utilities commissioners and school board representatives between 8 and 7 p.m.

From 7 to 8 p.m. names of candidates in the municipality contest will be accepted. Mayor Duncan McDonald has indicated that he will be in the race. However, no one else has stated an intention to contest the mayor's seat.

Two councillors say there is a very real possibility that the mayor will be acclaimed. One man who definitely will not stand against Duncan McDonald, a local representative of Canadian Pacific Railways, is the ex-mayor, D. James M. Donald, who some are trying to persuade to seek the post again.

The Trenton hardware merchant, mayor for 10 years, says that he will neither let his name stand for mayor nor council. He will however be seeking a seat on the Public Utilities Commission.

"Jimmy" MacDonald expressed an interest in the affairs of the PUC in an Intelligencer interview last week and has since confirmed rumors that he will be running for a commission post.

Councillor Ted Parker, a leading Conservative, definitely will not run for mayor but will again run for council. Mr. Parker endorses the Post Office development scheme, a project to which he has devoted considerable attention.

Veteran councillor George Greer, a postal employee, indicates that he will definitely be in the running for council this year. Insurance broker Neil Roberson, says that he will not be seeking re-election to council or any other public office.

Dr. Bob Patrick, on council for one year, held off decision last week but now reports that he will be bidding for a seat on the new council. Councillor Patrick, a dentist, introduced the resolution that put the fluoridation question on this year's ballot.

Paul Tripp, owner of a local wholesale firm, says he will be running for office this year. Councillor Tripp declines to say which position he will seek. Sources doubt that he would run for mayor, although Mr. Tripp has been giving the matter consideration.

Liquor Control Board employee, councillor Stan Ketchen, has kept quiet on his intentions, explaining that his position will be known tonight. He has indicated to friends he run for mayor, but whether or not he will seek re-election for council.

Charles Hilton, a retired contractor, with eight years experience on the Public Utilities Commission and two on council under previous administrations, indicated to The Intelligencer last night his desire to re-enter town politics.

Mr. Hilton said that he "would like to run" this year and confirmed that he will be nominated at the Town Hall tonight. He explained that he has been considering the possibility of running for either council or PUC and that he will allow his name to stand for one or the other.

Mrs. Eileen Forshin, a realtor and president of the Trenton Chamber of Commerce, has denied the circulating rumor that she will be running for council.

Both Doug Kinney and Van Lang have denied reports that they will seek public office. Pharmacist George Brown however confirms that he is "considering" the possibility of seeking a council post.

Election issues remain undefined here, aside from two questions, one on the post office scheme and the other on fluoridation, that will be submitted to the public on election day, Dec. 7.

Realtor Frank Barry says he he definitely will not seek re-election to the Public Utilities Commissioner nor will he be after other posts.

Cliff Baker, this year's PUC chairman and a 15-year commission member, says he will be running again. Mr. Baker is manager of a local cotton mill.

Only two Trentonians have formally announced their intentions to run in the school board contests. John Forbes, a paper mill purchasing agent and member of the Hastings County Board of Education's advisory board, stated last night that he would try for a seat as Separate School representative to the Hastings Board.

William Menzies, a local Ontario Hydro employee, who is now president of the Prince Edward Public School Association, told The Intelligencer he will seek to represent Trenton on the Hastings-Prince Edward Separate School Board.

Mr. Menzies was appointed to the board last year to replace Neil Roberson of Trenton who was elected to town council.

Only two Trenton representatives will be elected Dec. 7 to the separate school board. The number will be reduced from the present three. Other Trenton representatives, besides William Menzies, are Ben Krzesz and Austin Scott, neither of whom has declared his intentions.

High Winds Mean Timber!!

Saturday's gale-like winds which ripped across the Bay of Quinte district dumped this big soft maple tree on Geddes Street cutting hydro service in the area. Fortunately no one was injured but the big maple blocked traffic and carried away hydro service lines.

Nomination Week in Hastings

It's an off year for municipal elections in Belleville, but for most of the rural municipalities and villages in Hastings County, election machinery is already in motion.

Nominations are already under way in many of the townships with nine such meetings scheduled for today.

In four municipalities — Maye, Carlow, Rawdon and Herschel — nominations have already been held. In two others, Tudor and Cashel, both in the town of Deseronto, reeves have still one or two years to serve out their terms, while in the remaining municipalities nominations will be held on different days in the end of the month.

But in Carlow township there will be an election for both reeve and council.

In that township, incumbent reeve Mack Douglas is being opposed by newcomer George Lackey. Also five aspirants have qualified to run for council. They are Incumbents Cleveland Caverley, Basil Wilson, Gordon Mayhew and Kenneth Wilson along with Dean Foster.

Faraday and Herschel townships had their nominations Saturday night with nominees having until today noon to qualify.

Sidney, Thurlow and Tyendinaga will hold their nominations on Wednesday; Tweed will hold its meeting on Thursday, and Huntingdon, Wollaston, Limerick and Marmora Village on Friday.

Stirling and Elzevir will hold meetings on Nov. 30 as will Madoc township. .

Park to Honor Former Mayor

The memory of a former Belleville mayor and member of the Belleville Public Utilities Commission for 16 years is to be honored in the naming of a new park in the west end of the city.

Last fall the PUC, in co-operation with the parks board, provided a passive park on Commission property at the corner of Dundas and Sidney Streets and it will be named "Duff Park" in honor of the late Morley P. Duff.

Mr. Duff was mayor of the city in 1938 and served on the utilities commission from 1932 to 1948.

A plaque with suitable wording over the name of utilities Lyle A. Langabeer and Alderman Paul Russell chairman of the parks board, will be erected at the site.

High-level Meeting On Bridge Is Set

Provincial members of parliament, along with Department of Highways and Department of Transport officials, will be Belleville this week to discuss the construction of a new high-level by-pass bridge with local municipal officials.

The special meeting to be held at the Belleville Shrine Club on Wednesday, Nov. 25, is being sponsored by new MP for the Lake Ontario Regional Development Council.

Discussion on the need of a new bay bridge to replace the present obsolete swing structure has been in and out of city council on several occasions during the past few years, but highways department officials have taken the stand that the present structure is still adequate for some years.

But with traffic volume building up each year and lineups as the result of bridge openings becoming longer, council has refused to take on for an answer.

Accordingly a meeting with government representatives was requested and LORDC made arrangements for the meeting to be held next week.

Quinte area municipalities, as well as the two provincial members, Dr. Richard T. Potter (Quinte) and Norris Whitney (Prince Edward - Lennox) have both indicated their support for a new bridge to connect Belleville and Prince Edward county.

Belleville Mayor J. Russell Scott said the LORDC meeting in connection with the possible new bay bridge would not supercede the meeting with provincial officials which the city council has proposed.

"We (the city) are still planning to hold our own meeting with department officials — hopefully before the end of the year," the mayor said.

Bleecker Hall Closed Week

Lorne Williams of the Recreation Department this morning announced that starting Sunday Nov. 30, Ben Bleecker Hall will be taken over for a 10-day period by the Santa Claus Parade Committee.

Plans for events normally scheduled at the auditorium will be announced later this week in The Intelligencer.

The Santa Claus Parade Committee has been allowed the use of the facilities for construction of floats for the 1970 parade, being held on Dec. 5.

Crowds Attend Trenton Crusade

TRENTON (Staff) — An inter - denominational religious crusade sponsored by the Trenton Ministerial Association is drawing large crowds to the High School auditorium here.

Injuries Minor

A Belleville man sustained minor injuries Sunday morning when his car went out of control on Bridge Street West and collided with a telephone pole.

Ronald W. Mansfield, 40, of Orchard Drive sustained minor cuts to his chin when his car struck the pole at 11:30 yesterday between Bridge and Octavia Streets.

Damage was slight in the incident.

More than 400 turned out on both Friday and Saturday nights to hear Canadian evangelist, Rev. Marcey Patterson, who has worked with Billy Graham previously, directed an Episcopal evangelism seminar session in California.

Rev. Patterson is keynote speaker for the rallies that continue here nightly until November 29. The program also contains hymn singing by a 75 - voice community choir, composed of members of various town congregations.

Trenton ministers of various denominations are speaking at the crusade throughout the week. Cost of the crusade is being borne by churches represented in the town's ministerial association and by donations.

Bodies Found In Aircraft

TRENTON (Staff) Search and Rescue spokesmen here have confirmed that the bodies of two airmen were found in the wreckage of a CF-101 Voodoo that crashed Friday 81 miles northwest of Bagotville, Que.

Dead are Capt. Dave Hickman, 29, an American exchange pilot and his Canadian navigator Capt. Dave Lauder, also 29.

The crash site was discovered 3:30 p.m. Friday by a Dakota from Trenton's 424 Squadron and subsequent investigations by Canadian Forces personnel taken to the scene by helicopter revealed that the men had been unable to bail out.

Radio contact was lost 18.32 a.m. Friday when the plane was on a radar-monitored practice interception run.

ANAF Weekly News Notes

William Cooper, secretary - general of the Royal Canadian Air Force Association, representing 58 countries of the world with a membership of 25 million, will be in Toronto either Nov. 30 or Dec. 1 to attend a meeting of the Canadian Legion.

He will proceed from Toronto to Ottawa after the meeting where J. C. Lounsbury, Dominion President of the Army, Navy and Airforce Veterans in Canada and member of the Duke of Edinburgh Unit of Belleville, will be the host at a luncheon for Mr. Williams with the other guests being the Minister of Veterans Affairs and his staff. A full discussion will be held on the situation as it relates to Canadian veterans' pensions and what may be expected in the near-future.

The annual New Year's Eve Ball has been all arranged with arrangements the same as last year. The number of tickets is limited to fifty couples. Club members will have the preference. Tickets will be available next week as per yours early and avoid being disappointed.

Another afternoon of darts doubles was held but somewhat delayed in starting because of the football game. The results follow; singles winner, Austin White; runner-up, D. Pelletier. 1st Doubles Austin White and Norm Barlage runners-up, B. Bean and T. Newman. 2nd Doubles winners, R. Workman and C. Kerkhoven runners-up, H. Ford and D. Thomson.

Remember the grand dance being put on by the Pipe Band on Sat., Dec. 12 with some fortunate person having a portable color TV set to take home and put under the Christmas tree. Any member who hasn't turned in the tickets he received in the last bulletin is asked to either mail them in or hand them in to the stewards, this will be sincerely appreciated by the Pipe Band Committee.

After the turmoil and struggling entailed by the, extra work that has been necessary of the approach of Christmas, members and their guests will find that the Tartan Lounge is a pleasant and comfortable place to relax and let the quiet music and comradely surroundings repair those shattered nerves before driving home. A full program for the next few weeks to discuss the pros and cons of the comrades that you would like to see elected for your 1971 executive.

Mr. and Mrs. Darts. Please register before 8 p.m. Enjoy a pleasant evening with lots of fun, prizes and delightful lunch. Come join in the fun. Bring your partner as they also are welcome to join in the playing.

The club feels fortunate that the sick list is remaining so short with the following comrades in the Belleville General Hospital, Charley Davis, room 613 and Doug Locke, room 625.

The Education Scene

As nominations are received to-night for membership of Hastings County Board of Education as well as for the Separate School Board, a look at education costs is appropriate in view of continuing public concern in this sphere.

A brochure put out by the Hastings board affords some interesting figures, comparisons and "planning" for 1971. In 1970 the estimate per pupil were: $451 and $965 for elementary and secondary students respectively, as against the provincial guideline of $500 and $1,000.

Where taxes are concerned some are better off than others, as the following indicates: "Twenty-three per cent of Hastings taxpayers had a decrease in the amount they paid toward education; 57 per cent had an increase of less than one per cent, 11 per cent had an increase of from two to five per cent, and nine per cent had an increase of from six to 23 per cent.

At present the board notes it is unable to meet all the educational needs of the county, and adds, in the jargon of the day, "but we are attempting to maximize each dollar that is spent." Priorities had been established and these had resulted in kindergartens or beginners services being extended; a professional development program for teachers, curriculum developments in three distinct spheres of education — family life, auto driving and the outdoors, as well as oral French in at least one grade of elementary school.

Special education programs have also been extended (with speech correction teachers, psychologists, psychometrists, curriculum consultants and teachers of perceptually handicapped children) and improvements effected in other spheres such as use of buildings, transportation, maintenance and teacher benefits.

All this reflects a lot of hard work by board members and whoever comes forward to-night for the 16 places involved can expect to be further engrossed with priorities and with obtaining the maximum educational benefits from the money available.

The country's youth are well served by existing staff and facilities and still further improvements can be expected. The students themselves have a responsibility to take full advantage of their years at school, for it is there that they lay the groundwork for what can be happy, interesting days in the workaday world.

Mixed Bag

To be sure it has been a crazy mixed up weather year in the Quinte area of late. Sometimes we feel we are somewhere else — say, on some windswept heath in Ireland.

At the weekend a fitful sun played on the choppy dark blue waters of the bay and the sky overhead was a lighter shade of blue and cumulus clouds marched across this strangely unpolluted firmament like so many legions. For there is a peculiar clarity about the light that comes with the dawn and remains, except that in the bustle of daily activity it tends to go unnoticed.

Then rain too has been persistent this year, rivalling Ireland at any time of an Irish year or a winter (summer here) in the north island of New Zealand.

But we have seldom seen as much November sun as we have this year, or winter snow take such a back seat. It will come of course, but meantime the wind and rain and sun are out in front.

In Praise of Youth

A letter on this page today acknowledges the help given by a boy scout to two Quinte area women whose car got stuck.

The letter noted that "one reads in the newspaper each day the misdeeds of young people and very seldom do you read about the good things they do."

We agree with the letter's sentiments in all but the foregoing, for this newspaper, at least, devotes considerably space to the best efforts of our young people.

The public, we submit, will find plenty of information on praiseworthy youth activities, if they will just recognize it when they see it.

A Choice

A young American flag burner was taught a salutary lesson in court recently. A judge in Arlington, Mass. ordered Martha Meyers, 17, to march three miles to Harvard Square, carrying the American flag. She did so, escorted by court officers, and noted later that it was better than going to jail for six months.

Overseas Teachers Predominate in African Countries

John Ardagh in UNESCO Features

"I've five foreign nationalities on my staff here," said the African headmaster of a typical secondary school in a small West African country a Frenchman, a Pole, a Canadian girl, a Peace Corps volunteer from Kentucky and two VSO teachers from Lancashire. If it weren't for such expatriate teachers, many of the secondary schools in this country would virtually have to close." He admitted it to me ruefully, but without rancour, as an undeniable local fact of life, like the heat of the climate or the poor state of the groundnuts market.

As I disappeared on a record tour of this part of Africa, local teachers are in short supply as the school population swells rapidly each year — and many countries still have to rely heavily on expatriates. In Ghana, more than half the secondary school staff are foreign, many provided by British or American aid schemes such as the Peace Corps; in Senegal the proportion of expatriates is much higher still, mostly supplied by France. Africans accept this temporary realistically, and their visitors are made welcome. So on so, national pride can sometimes suffer. And what is more, this expatriate era is heavy expense for their host countries, who usually contribute handsomely to their costs. In Ghana I was told that a teacher from abroad, may cost the Government three or four times as much as a Ghanaian.

Most African countries are now giving priority to the training of their own teachers, as a long-term investment. Unesco is helping them, and on my tour I found that by far the largest part of Unesco's overall effort in these countries goes into teacher training, helped by funds from the UN Development Program. Each of the five countries I visited had a Unesco-aided secondary teacher training college — or soon normals superieurs, as the French call them. Some of these colleges were in an early stage of development; in others cases Unesco had withdrawn as planned after completing its allotted task, and the college was being run entirely by the national authorities.

The most serious shortage in schools is of teachers of science. And this is where the main effort is now being directed. The shortage is in part a legacy of the colonial period: in those days the British and French put the accent on turning out lawyers, preachers and administrators, and the African was given scant opportunity for developing scientific skills.

Today there is a kind of "technological gap" in Africa, with a small number of export activities and suppliers working in service posts, but below that rank almost no one — virtually no equivalent of the junior technician or jobbing mechanic so common in Europe, who can easily turn his hand to repairing a bicycle or rewiring a lamp. Perhaps this is why so many modern African offices wear such an air of neglect: the clocks have stopped, the airconditioning has broken down, no one knows how to mend the typewriters. Hence the urgent need for good science teaching in secondary schools, to provide a generation of future blue-collar workers with the essential early background. It will be a long, slow, and uphill struggle.

I visited three science secondary superieures in francophone cities — Dakar (Senegal), Abidjan (Ivory Coast) and Yaounde (Cameroon) — which appeared to be running smoothly. In Dakar the ENS is a tidy modern buildings on the edge of the city close to the impressive university campus. It has in fact been incorporated into the university, and I found that Unesco's participation there had ended this year when the college would be handed over entirely to the Senegalese. The shy Belgium who headed the team of resident Unesco experts told me that one of his main problems was to extract bright young Senegalese like teaching most of them preferred office jobs, and although they might be prepared to teach in Dakar, they dreaded being posted to some rural school in the bush. Another problem, he said, was how to Africanize the education system which, after 10 years of Senegalese independence, was still based to per cent on the French model.

At Abidjan, Unesco helped to found the ENS in 1962 and then to run it for seven years. Now it has withdrawn its participation as planned, and the college is entirely Africanized though a few foreigners remain on the staff. The source problem principal told me: "There are still some 1,500 expatriate teachers in this country out of 5,000 French. We should need in practice 150 teachers a year at this college in order to replace the expatriates within a decade — but at present we don't succeed, as the country's needs keep growing."

The multiracial old pattern for the college at Yaounde, pleasantly situated above a lake, has now also run its course and seems to be working well, though the Cameroon Government is short of funds for keeping it fully equipped. The young Cameroonian director of studies, a Sorbonne doctor of philosophy, told me that he was making progress with applying Cameroon's educational policy of bilingualism. All the young graduate teachers leaving the college will it is planned, be able to teach both English and French, whether they come from the anglophone or francophone parts of the country.

Schools Too Universities Refuge for Subversives

Letter to Montreal Gazette

You have rendered a great service to our community in drawing attention to the remarks of Dr. Roger Gaudry of University of Montreal. Our entire educational system has become the Modern Horse of Troy in which the enemies of democracy are invading to destroy us. The inflammatory diatribes of our school teachers and professors are acting on the unstable minds of some of our young people and the result is bombs, kidnapping and murder. Prior to the last provincial election, teachers in the lowest grades were dismissing their 7 and 8 year-olds at the close of school and admonishing them to "Go home and tell Mama and Papa to vote for 'Le Parti Unite'.

It is imperative that the provincial government impose on these teachers and professors, whose salaries we are taxed to pay and who are thus civil servants, the same restrictions applicable to other civil servants, i.e. nobody has appointed them the social engineers of our society. They must leave their politics at home when they go to work. These academicals are only too often people utterly unaware of the real world and they bear on their shoulders a large chip because they have failed completely to come to grips with the world. Listen for instance to Laurier Lapierre and his mouthings. He is unable to answer the pragmatic and practical arguments of even the man on the street who corners him on open line programs. His only defence is to say an angry "Good night" and have the encore cut the line.

The greatest danger to our civilization is the mob but today the enemies seeking to destroy our values have a sophomism. They call it the "consensus". We must not forget that Socrates was a great and good man whose only crime was that he asked questions. But the "consensus" caught up with him. True, Plato stepped up to the dock to defend him but it's crowd dragged him down from the dock. Shades of Hickel and the cacophonous mob that disturbed his speech at Princeton.

Plato told the mob that Jesus was not guilty of breaking the law but the "consensus" demanded His blood and would not be denied.

The list is endless — Dreyfus and so on. At the turn of the century there was an historian, Achad Haam, who argued with some conviction that the "consensus" is usually wrong.

The fascist academic liberal left stands idly by concerned with civil liberties but with no regard or mention of civil obligations or duties. My own feeling is that we who foot the educational bill must close down the universities until we have had a chance to smoke out the pseudo patriots, the false prophets, the moustebanks, the Cagliostros and humbugs. They are easy to detect. They parade like asses in the lion's skin of patriotism. Their party is always more "national" or "Quebecois" than any other which reminds us of Dr. Johnson's shrewd remark — "Patriotism is the last refuge of scoundrels".

As Dr. Gaudry implies, the university must protect the right of the minority, even a minority of one, to speak its mind.

Patrick O. Wells.

Mao Tse-Tung Keeps A Tight Rein on Power

By JOHN RODERICK

TOKYO (AP) — China today is like the man who prompts us to ask uneasily, "Now what did he mean by that? when all he said was "Good morning."

Affability is not a usual trait among the Communist Chinese. Since coming to power in 1949 they have gained a reputation for ill humor, disdain and self-righteousness in relations with other countries.

Yet in 1970 Mao Tse-tung seems rather than glowers. He is friendly with Marshal Tito of Yugoslavia, exchanges ambassadors with the cordially detested Russians, shows more than a passing interest in the United Nations. He rewrite the flag down to half mast for Charles de Gaulle.

All this raises questions whether Mao has turned over a new leaf, now is disposed peaceably to join the community of nations.

The United States often has said it would be glad to improve relations once Peking changes an attitude of belligerency. The Americans and other concerned nations are looking for evidence of China's intentions now that a new—and perhaps closer—role looms in the United Nations.

Observers seem more likely to find signs of change in a study of Mao's domestic policies, for any liberalization of Chinese foreign policy seemingly calls for decentralization at home, loosening of restrictions on China's millions.

The draft of China's new constitution, soon to be presented to the National People's Congress for approval, holds out little hope for change. Instead of dispersing the functions of government, Mao has gathered them tightly into his own hands and those of his designated successor, Defence Minister Lin Piao. The constitution is a model for total personal dictatorship.

A test of the new draft that will come out of Nationalist China bears the earmarks of authenticity.

The original 1954 constitution provided checks and balances of power that now the party, which Mao heads, emerges as the seat of all power.

The sum total of changes seems to point to fewer checks and balances in the power system, greater concentration of leadership at the top and hence more rigidity in domestic and foreign affairs.

A Boy Scout to the Rescue

Editor,
The Intelligencer.

We are two women, who decided to take a shortcut last night through Mudcat Lane on our way to a meeting, not knowing that it was under construction and needless to say we got stuck.

Only through the assistance of a young man by the name of Jim Bergeron did we manage to get out. Jim did everything he could to help us, but to no avail. He then walked approximately one half of a mile back to the construction office and got someone to pull us out.

When we offered him something for all his efforts, he refused, stating that he was a Boy Scout and that good turns are part of scouting. Period.

We would like to, at this time, say a sincere "Thank You" to Jim and also to the gentleman who came to our rescue.

One reads in a newspaper each day the misdeeds of young people and very very seldom do you read about the good things they do. We are writing this letter to you in the hopes that it will help to prove that there is good in our young people of today.

Spends Night on Lake But Gets His Muskie

Sunday he went seeking the stubborn muskie a second time.

It was a challenge that unexpectedly turned into an ordeal or endurance.

Today, Mr. Soule, 40, of 23 Harris Crescent, and an intelligencer compositor, was recovering from the chill of being marooned overnight and the battering of a gale that struck his boat after the motor stalled.

An ardent fisherman, Mr. Soule yesterday already had landed a big muskie — weighing 16-1/2 lbs. — before his troubles started. However, there was still no sign of his battle-scarred quarry from two weekends ago who he decided to return to shore about 5.15 p.m.

First, a 35-horsepower motor stalled. He replaced it with a smaller 7.5 horsepower unit used for trolling. A strong wind swept the lake as the second motor cuit, raising four-foot waves and brushing the boat about one and one half miles across the lake into a swamp.

Deciding to ride out the storm, he turned his boat into the wind, huddling beneath its deck for shelter.

In hopes of attracting help he kept flashing a light in the darkness. Ironically, he quit signalling about 9 a.m. Shortly after, provincial police from Madoc, alerted by reports he was missing, arrived to scan the lake.

He was found about 7.30 a.m by the operator of a nearby trailer camp searching the area for him.

Big Meeting Night in Prince Edward

By MARGARET HAYLOCK
Staff Reporter

PICTON — Nomination meetings will be held tonight in each of Prince Edward County's ten municipalities with several incumbent town hall township officials reluctant to announce if they will stand for re-election.

Mayor H. J. McFarlaid who has held office in Picton for 20 years, succeeding the late Burt Cooper, told The Intelligencer that he has made no decision about entering the election race this year.

Veteran councillor Harold McLaughlin admitted this week that he too is undecided on whether to run. Mr. McLaughlin acted as Picton's deputy clerk for 15 years before serving two terms on council.

Councillor Mrs. Ern (Bessie) Ward, well known for her interest in Picton's recreation and parks committee this year has said that she is not sure that she will seek another term in office.

Picton deputy - reeve Donald Thompson remains in hospital this week unavailable for comment on the coming election and tonight's nomination meeting.

Bloomfield reeve Allen Anderson, a familiar figure in county council, has stated that he is undecided about standing for re-election this year. Similarly, Hillier reeve Gordon Lloyd and North Marysburg reeve Harold Harrison have reserved their decisions on whether to run.

Among the county politicians who will be running are Picton reeve Bernard Hepburn, Hallowell reeve George Vincent, Ameliasburg reeve Russell Thompson, south Marysburg reeve Allan Raley, Wellington reeve Douglas Marvin and Athol reeve Keith Brummell. Reeves Thompson, Raley and Marvin have said that they have not learned of any indication of opposition in their townships.

Athol reeve Keith Brummell remarked, however, that opposition will be likely for him in the bid for re-election.

Former newspaper editor and prominent horticulturalist Dudley Doidge stated that there has been "a certain amount of public pressure" urging him to seek Athol's reeveship. Although he would not make any definite reply, Mr. Doidge did say that he has considered the demands the office of reeve could make on his time. A Cherry Valley resident Mr. Doidge will be seeking public office for the first time should he decide to oppose other nominees.

Insurance agent Archie Kingma has announced that he will stand for deputy reeve of Picton this year. A vice-president of the Prince Edward County Chamber of Commerce, Mr. Kingma will be seeking a seat in council for the first time. It is possible that councillor Margaret Ackerman will oppose Mr. Kingma since she has expressed interest in the offices of mayor, reeve and deputy reeve. She has refused, however, to specify a preference. Mrs. Ackerman, now completing her first term on council has said that she will not run for a second term as a councillor.

Liquor plebescites will be held this year in connection with the Dec. 7 elections in Ameliasburg township if council is not scrabbed tonight, voters will answer two questions in plebiscites concerning fire protection and voting privileges.

Temporarily protected by the Ameliasburg fire department, the electorate will be asked if they favor the securing of fire protection on a permanent basis. They will also answer whether they approve the extension of the voting right to persons 21 years of age who are British subjects and who have resided at least one year in the township.

Nomination meetings will be conducted in Prince Edward County as follows:

Picton: Nominations begin at 7 p.m. in Queen Elizabeth school for mayor, reeve, deputy reeve, six councillors, two public utilities commissioners and two board of education trustees.

Bloomfield: Nominations at Bloomfield town hall from 7:30 to 8:30 p.m. for reeve and four councillors. Two Prince Edward school trustees also will be nominated in Pinecrest Memorial Elementary school.

Wellington: Nominations at Wellington town hall from 7:30 p.m. to 8:30 p.m. for reeve, four councillors, two PUC commissioners and one school trustee.

Athol: At Cherry Valley town hall nominations from 7 to 8 p.m. for reeve, four councillors and one trustee.

Ameliasburg: Nominations beginning at 7 p.m. in the township hall for reeve, deputy reeve, three councillors and three school trustees.

South Marysburg: Nominations in Milford town hall at 7 p.m. for reeve, four councillors and one trustee.

North Marysburg: Nominations at the township hall in Wesleyan from 7 to 8 p.m. for reeve, four councillors and two trustees.

Hallowell: Nominations will be held in Pinecrest School, Bloomfield, from 7:30 until 8:30 p.m. for reeve, deputy reeve, three councillors and two trustees.

Picton Palomino Best at Royal

PICTON (Staff) — Bouquet Bourbon Bob, a two-year-old American saddlebred stallion owned by the Culmer Stables here was judged grand champion stallion at the Royal Winter Fair.

Entries in the palomino classes came from Western Canada and the United States.

The Parading Major, a palomino gelding owned by Culmer Stables, placed fifth Wednesday night in the palomino English saddle class with Mr. Culmer up. He placed among 14 entries from Canada and the U.S.

WHA President Gives Report On Further Hospital Additions

Mrs. B. E. Burley presided at the November meeting of the Women's Hospital Auxiliary. A floor sample on a baby doll with a wide assortment of hand made clothes, donated by Mrs. W. Ferguston's daughter. The lucky winner was Mrs. W. G. Harvey.

Mrs. H. W. Adams gave the hospital volunteer's report which stated that 983 hours of time had been distributed to patients and waiting rooms in the hospital during October. Up-to-date magazines are in constant demand and may be left at the admitting desk of the hospital. There is a need for drivers to transport patients to therapy, also for volunteers for the Paediatric playroom either mornings or afternoons. Anyone who is able to assist in these worthwhile services is asked to call Mrs. S. B. Bochonk. A new flower card box is now in the hospital, which can also be used by the Holiday Trests convener.

In the absence of Mrs. C. D. Ashley, Mrs. Burley reported that the sale of Mexican puppets are being made for the children.

Mrs. G. A. Campbell, convener of the Opportunity Shop, told the meeting of the constant amount of work being carried out by the volunteers at the Shop. There are many facets of the operation — to mention a few: pricers, salesladies, sorters, a pick up service and the collection of the cheque for $1,000 for October was presented to the president. A table for Christmas gifts to be sold at the Opp Shop was on display. There are boers were generous in their response.

Mrs. J. H. Forrester was commended for the bulletin that she wrote, as Mrs. N. K. Manning has been ill.

The Holiday Trests convener, Mrs. P. M. Till, is busy collecting handmade gifts to be given to the patients at Christmas. Mrs. Till commented on the clever ideas utilized for Hallowe'en tray favors by the Guides and Brownies.

Mrs. S. Kvarda, the social convener, was added to the present committee Mrs. M. Trefiza and Mrs. G. G. Hodson.

A dessert luncheon will be held in December at which time the executive will be hostesses to all volunteers. There will be an election of officers. Mrs. S. Kvarda has accepted the convenorship of the annual luncheon in January.

The delegates, Mrs. D. G. Barr and Mrs. J. E. Nelles, who had attended the Ontario Hospital Auxiliaries Association convention gave their reports. Mrs. B. E. Burley, representing the Board of Governors, told of her attendance also at the convention. It was the Diamond Jubilee year which added to the excitement, also it was the largest joint convention held with a registration of 1,986. The Honorable Thomas Wells, Minister of Health for the Ontario Government, was the guest speaker at the Auxiliaries luncheon. Mrs. A. A. Beeby was honored as the recipient of a provincial life membership at this banquet. As Mrs. Beeby is in India, Mrs. J. E. Nelles accepted the certificate and pin on her behalf. A startling statistic noted in Mrs. Burley's report was the fact that it now costs two million dollars a day to operate hospitals. Because of this, the Government is considering health care on an area basis rather than on a individual basis.

Mrs. D. G. Barr summed up her report by stating the emphasis today is to make the patient comfortable, cut down on admissions to hospital and treatment hospitals and make better use of present facilities. All social agencies must work to improve public health, with humanitarianism their guiding principle.

The delegates were pleased to take the Auxiliary's exhibit to the convention. Created by Mrs. J. H. Forrester, the revolving stand with puppets, tray favours and kleenex pack containers received many favorable comments.

Mrs. Burley attended a lecture stressing continuing medical education. "Each doctor should learn from each patient all his life." Regional schools of anatomy will have phased out the third year of training by 1978. The course will then be for two years.

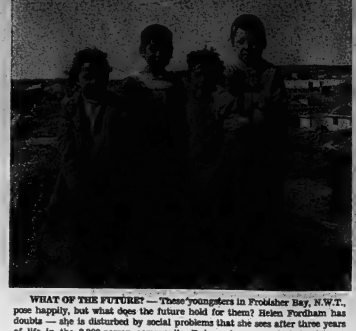
New Long Look Gives Head Gear New Status

NEW YORK (AP) — Hats languished in the shadow of the miniskirt for years, but the long look has given head gear a new status.

Retailers report that fashion hat sales, particularly in wide-brimmed styles, such as the gaucho, have increased this fall. Women are buying them to wear with longer skirts or pants suits. Fur hat sales are down, but retailers are generally optimistic.

"The short skirt, at its height, made the hat look ridiculous," said Charles Rothenberg, chairman of the Millinery Institute of America, a co-operative of hat manufacturers, unions and designers. "With skirts a little below the knee, the hat creates a balance.



Gone are yesterday's ornate hats with flowers, gimlicks, curliques, fake fruits, frosting and wierde shapes of the ones that prompted all this. "What is in now also goes is the tough militant chic of the 60s.

Today, the soft, tailored look has taken over. Big brims in Spanish sailors, gauchos, sweeping dramatic swagger shapes, padres and bretons help carry the longer silhouette. Designers are using velours, strap brim felts, cloches, knitted caps and suedes are also good for a casual look.

Despite interest in the fashion hats, few buyers are raving about over-all sales.

The big problem for many is sluggish fur hat sales. Retailers blame their troubles on late warm weather, confusion over the fashion picture or economic conditions.

WHAT OF THE FUTURE? — These youngsters in Frobisher Bay, N.W.T., pose happily, but what does the future hold for them? Helen Fordham has doubts — she is disturbed by social problems that she sees after three years of life in the 2,200-person community. But one improvement is in sight. A secondary school is to be opened next year, ending the need to commute to Churchill, Man., for a high school education. (CP Photo)

The Experts Say

Hospital Evacuation Proves an Asset

MONTREAL (CP) — An emergency mass evacuation of simulated patients at a major urban general hospital has been rated successful and an asset to the future of medical institutions and sick persons.

Lakeshore General Hospital in Pointe Claire decided to test emergency evacuation techniques after an actual malfunction of oil storage tanks last winter threatened loss of heat and sterilization procedures.

Fortunately, emergency supplies of heating fuel and storage control were made available, but hospital authorities considered that when it would have happened if they had had to evacuate patients in sub-zero temperatures.

"This brought home to us the need to test an organized disaster plan to cover such eventualities," said Dr. Stanley Knez, executive director of Lakeshore General.

"Last year we put to actual test the setting up of an emergency hospital with mobile equipment provided by the Federal Emergency Measures Organization. This year we tested procedures to relocate our total hospital population regardless of their condition."

Under investigation was the need to warn intensive coronary care units in other hospitals, delivery of critical cases to such units, spot maintenance of supportive therapy during transport, as well as the mechanics of transportation.

Nine Montreal-area hospitals were involved in the exercise. Some 170 high school students agreed to act as patients and a bus company and the St. John Ambulance supplied vehicles, drivers and communications equipment.

Each hospital was notified by phone late in the afternoon that Lakeshore had to be evacuated. The director of nursing at each institution was then requested to make a list of patients who theoretically could be discharged to make room for Lakeshore patients.

A gynecologist, surgeon and internist were put on standby to check the Lakeshore patients as they arrived. Housekeeping, admitting, x-ray, laboratory, dietary and nursing staff were informed.

Local police were dispatched to direct traffic from each hospital entrance area and patients, each holding his medical chart, were delivered by bus, ambulance and patrol car.

Lakeshore hospital executives directing the exercise then arranged to have one bus simulate a breakdown while carrying patients to one of the other institutions.

The incident got slightly out of hand, however, when provincial police arrived on the scene and tried to fill out accident reports. A hospital director eventually had to be called to explain that the breakdown was planned. Investigating officers agreed that the evacuation idea was worth while, but recommended that police be given prior warning in future, particularly as patients were being moved over provincial highways.

A de-briefing session was held so hospital representatives could file reports and recommendations.

It was found that an average of four or five hours elapsed from the time hospitals were warned of the need for evacuation of Lakeshore until patients were safely lodged in wards around the city.

Nursing staff decided the transfer of responsibility for the patients should be made as soon as the bus or ambulance arrived at a new hospital and authorized representatives received brief descriptions of the situation from nurses accompanying the patients.

It was also suggested that each hospital set aside a place to be used in the case of patient evacuations so stretcher-bearers would not have to hold patients while they were being sorted out, and to keep patients away from cold draughts.

Furthermore, it was decided press facilities should be established near the scene of action.

St. John Ambulance people reminded the hospitals that the civil defence department can make available communications services (portable units, mobiles, relay cars and radio operators) for dress rehearsals such as the evacuation.

Not Easy to Make Go of Things in North

FROBISHER BAY, N.W.T. (CP) — Her intended three-week vacation in Frobisher Bay stretched into more than three years, and still Helen Fordham is not convinced of the virtues of life in the North.

"I don't intend to make the North my life—no way," said the 59-year-old widow from Paris, Ont.

"I came here for a three-week vacation after my husband died and I'm still here, but sometimes I think it's three years too long."

Shortly after arriving here to visit a son, Mrs. Fordham found herself running a small restaurant in a wooden building typical of many of the homes in this community, 1,200 miles north of Montreal.

But it's not easy to make a go of things in the North, she said.

In February, 1969, she lost $22,000 when her restaurant was destroyed in a wind storm. Now, with plans for a new restaurant, she hopes to recoup her losses in a few years and return to Ontario.

Mrs. Fordham said she is disturbed by social problems in Frobisher Bay, a town of 2,200 persons, two-thirds of them Eskimos.

An ordained minister in the Spiritualist Church, Mrs. Fordham believes excessive consumption of alcohol is the worst feature of northern life.

"I would say that 75 per cent of the whites here came because they have an alcoholic problem. They know they can't keep on drinking and find a job in the south, but they do in nature stories, she said.

"The problem affects both the whites and Eskimos. I blame the white man for the way the Eskimos behave."

Mrs. Fordham's older son is married to an Eskimo, and she has become familiar with the way of life of the native peoples.

Running a restaurant has exposed her to another problem facing young Eskimos.

"The young kids come in here and have a soda pop and chips or candies for lunch," she said.

"I try to get them to take some fruit to improve their diets."

However, transportation from the south is not always reliable and shipments of fresh foods, fruit and vegetables are sometimes delayed.

While she has no trouble containing her enthusiasm for many aspects of northern life, Mrs. Fordham feels her 11-year-old son Roger has made a smooth transition from life in southern Ontario.

About the only thing Roger dislikes she said, is the lack of swimming facilities in Frobisher Bay.

"There is one lake but the water's too cold for most whites."

Roger's urge to swim should be satisfied with the completion of an indoor swimming pool, under construction in the town's apartment-hotel building.

Another problem for most families is the lack of a secondary school in the area, Mrs. Fordham said both Eskimos and whites desiring a high school education must go to Churchill, Man., or schools in southern Canada.

Construction is underway to distant locations will end for Frobisher Bay students next year when a comprehensive school for the community is completed.

Writer Marks 100th Birthday

As a free-lance writer she wrote weekly columns on birds for the Globe and Mail, its successor, The Globe and Mail, for 20 years beginning in 1936. The columns, Wings in the Wind, were published in book form in 1954.

She was a correspondent in London, England, for a number of Canadian dailies during the First World War.

U.C.W. Meeting

MOUNT PLEASANT — RAWDON UCW

Mrs. Herbert Smith and Mrs. E. Chapman presided over the program at the November meeting of the Mount Pleasant - Rawdon UCW which was held at the hall with 30 women in attendance.

Mrs. Percy MacMullen read a poem and Mrs. James Hoard sang. Others assisting were Mrs. Stanley Williams, Mrs. Burton Snape and Mrs. William Gibson.

The special worship was based on remembrance and peace. The Bible study concerned "Sarah, the mother of nations."

Mrs. Garth Joslin presided and the various officers presented their yearly reports. In November the group had catered for a wedding and for the Rebekah birthday banquet. The proposed 1971 budget prepared by the finance committee was accepted. At the December meeting gifts will be received from the unknown friends.

Those who assisted the conveners were Mrs. Jack Dunham, Miss A. Holmes and Mrs. Douglas Campbell. The president closed the meeting with a hymn of faith and a thought for the week. During the social hour Mrs. Claire Knight and Mrs. W. C. Cox served light refreshments.

GIRL GUIDE, BROWNIE NEWS

1st FOXBORO BROWNIE PACK

District Commissioner Mrs. Ada Schreiber gave a special welcome to the mothers of the brownies who were "Flying up" at the ceremony held on Tuesday November 2. The brownies who were flying up were Beth Grant, Andrea Long, Marlene Clare, Joanne Stanley, Marie Williams, Karen Lott and Anita Piercy.

The 1st Foxboro brownie pack formed their brownie ring to begin the ceremony. The brownies were called to the toadstool where Brown Owl Marie Treacy and Grey Owl Betty Shaw tied large golden wings on each girl. Past Brown Owl Aileen Skuse-ham and Snowy Owl Beverley Stewart presented the girls with their Brownie wings and they were given the Grand Howl in recognition of their achievements.

The girls then boarded the Girl Guide Express to the Guide gate and were taken to the acting Guide captain Marie Madden who welcomed them into guiding.

The guides who are working for their hostess badges served lunch.

Breast Cancer May Be Caused by Virus

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — Breast cancer may be caused by a virus and possibly can be treated with a drug now being produced experimentally.

This was disclosed Thursday by Dr. Frank J. Rauscher, chief of virus research at the National Cancer Institute.

He said recent research has isolated virus in monkey breast cancer and found a particular enzyme within it that may cause normal cells to become cancerous.

Dr. Rauscher presented the findings to a conference sponsored by the Council for the Advancement of Science Writers.

He said that if research on the enzyme and a possible drug treatment is successful, 'at the very least we should shoot for reducing breast cancer by half by 1975."

Rauscher said the enzyme is polymerase, a member of a group usually associated with transcribing genetic messages within the cell.

Research indicates, he said, that "this polymerase is essential to the continued propagation of the virus and, therefore, the continued maintenance of the cell as a cancer cell."

Ann Landers

Doctor Has Obligation To Sustain Life

DEAR ANN LANDERS: Our mother is 94 years old and has been in a private nursing home for seven years. Mother does not know where she is nor has she recognized any member of the family for six years. My two brothers and I share the cost and it has been a burden.

Three weeks ago the hospital called to say mother had fallen out of bed, broken her hip and was going into pneumonia. When we arrived at her bedside, we found her in an oxygen tent, tubes all over the place receiving intravenous feedings and getting poked with needles every three hours.

Four days later the doctor triumphantly announced that mother had passed the crisis and he was putting her in "therapy."

Why can't people be permitted to die in dignity? Why must doctors keep alive with machines and with mechanical devices when her mind has been gone for years and the maintenance of her ravished body is a financial and emotional burden to the family? What can be done about this incredible lunacy and ultimate indignity? — A DAUGHTER.

DEAR DAUGHTER: The doctor has an obligation to sustain life as long as possible. If, however, there is no hope and the family says, "Please leave her in God's hands, and forego extraordinary measures," the doctor will follow the family's wishes. My advice reflects the thinking of many distinguished physicians and theologians, including Dr. Irving Page, editor of Modern Medicine, and Pope Pius XII.

* * *

DEAR ANN LANDERS: My husband lived at home and helped his parents financially until the day we married. They always resented me.

Whenever my mother-in-law visits (about twice a year) she strokes my husband's face and calls him "my little boy." He is over 30 years old and six feet tall. She makes him uncomfortable when she does this and I want to up. I've told him how I feel but my husband refuses to say anything because he doesn't want to hurt her feelings.

I wish his mother would keep her hands to herself. Do you agree that she is out of line? — J.B.

DEAR J.B.: I cannot see that your mother-in-law is hurting you or your marriage by stroking your husband's face and calling him her little boy. No matter how old (or tall) children get, a mother always sees them as children. You don't say whether or not you have a son. My guess is that you do not.

* * *

DEAR ANN LANDERS: Please print this for all the mothers who are concerned about buying baby food in jars when it might have been opened by "food tasters."

Baby foods are packed in jars with a safety device that automatically tell whether or not the seal has been broken. They also tell whether the contents have been tampered with by selecting jars with lids having depressed centres. A raised lid indicates that the vacuum has been broken. When the container has a jar cap you should listen for a popping sound. If she doesn't hear it the jar should be returned to the grocer. — M.L.D. Ex. V.P. National Canner's Assn.

DEAR M.L.D.: In behalf of every mother who expressed concern, (and hundreds did) I thank you.

* * *

DEAR ANN LANDERS: Motherhood has been lauded, applauded and held sacred right up there with the flag and the U.S. Marines. It's high time someone stood up and said there's more to being a mother than giving birth to a child.

My 4-year-old mother is an overprotective juvenile delinquent. She hated my first husband and openly referred to him as "a low-class, ignorant jerk." Eventually she destroyed my marriage.

When I was growing up I was painfully shy and felt like the most stupid, unattractive girl in the world. My mother used to take delight in pointing out my inadequacies to family, friends, and neighbors.

Last year I got tired of her mouth and let her have it. She didn't speak to me for six months. That was the most peaceful period of my life. But now she has decided to "forgive" me and she's making my life miserable again. Must I let her do this because she is my mother? What is your advice? — HILLSDALE, MICHIGAN.

DEAR HILLSDALE: You should have had professional help years ago, but since you can't saw sawdust, honey, let's deal with the present. So long as your mother lives you will probably be at war with her. Protect yourself as best you can. See her less frequently and for short periods. Avoid explosive subjects. Try not to react visibly to her barbs. Treat her as you would a social friend with whom you do not get along very well, Easy! Of course not, but the better you do the better you'll feel.

Home Made Yule Decor At Horticulture Meeting

Three long tables held a colorful display of home made Christmas decorations at the Christmas meeting of the Stirling Horticultural Society held at St. Andrew's Church hall on Monday afternoon with an attendance of 50. Mrs. Floyd Armstrong presided.

There was a display of wreaths made from used cards and other materials. There were also a number of novelty items fashioned from plastic bottles, tin cans and cardboard. These were passed round for viewing. Besides the president Mrs. Floyd Armstrong, Mrs. Maurice Clancy, Miss A. Holmes, Mrs. Grant Hubble and Mrs. Raymond McConnell demonstrated their articles. Many articles provided by a woman from Marmora were displayed and sold.

A social hour and refreshments were enjoyed by all. The next meeting will be held in January 1971.

Successful Living

Everyone Requires Some Type of Diversion

By DORIS CLARK

"A professional man who cannot make a good living in 11 months yearly will not make a better one if he works 12."

So says a modern economist.

The point he is making is that you can't put too much of a good thing — work! If we live balanced lives we have more enthusiasm and more zest to put into the pursuit of our daily bread. I'd say this applies not only to professional people but to everybody.

It used to be that our fathers and grandfathers worked 11 hours a day, six days a week. The virtue of work was over - sold to us all. We need variety, change, recreation, in our lives, or the ability to work effectively is lessened.

We cannot even keep property if we haven't done something in the way of recreation or diversion. These things help us relax and find out who we are.

* * *

Dear Doris: My husband never says anything when he is sober but when he is drunk he is always saying terrible things. I am good for nothing.

When we are not at a party he'll have a ball. He seems to think all the other girls are just it, but I feel left out because I cannot put on a show.

I am getting so I've lost interest in him and don't care when he makes love, even. — Disappointed.

Dear Disappointed: He probably counts on you far more than you think he does. Your steady reliability is his rock.

Men time he is tipsy and starts saying these rude things, walk away. If necessary, leave the house and him alone an hr.

Next morning, when he is sober, tell him you are losing your love for him. Tell him what he said to you the night before. Sometimes husbands don't even realize how they sound.

If he comes through with an apology, don't bear a grudge. Try to find out what you do that bothers him. And hold on a while.

Dear Doris: The recipe I really wanted to send you is not within my reach. I have to wait till someone comes to visit me to ask them to reach it for me. Please excuse the mistakes in these recipes I have typed out, but the pains (arthritic) are really devastating this year. Doris, do you believe, in miracles? I do times more than what life is without any pain.

I wish you were my social worker, for I think it would be so easy and interesting to talk and confide in you. — Angelia.

Dear Angelia: I feel guilty receiving these interesting recipes from you, when I know you have taken pains (real ones!) to type them out.

Anyone wanting Angelia's main meat dishes, all sizes of them; may write in for them enclosing a six - cent stamped, self-addressed envelope and 20 cents to cover the cost of reproducing and handling.

Calgary's First Woman Letter Carrier Likes Job

"CALGARY (CP) — The commission of the ever-lined mail bag seem to grow even larger when it is slung from the shoulder of Calgary's first woman letter carrier.

For 22-year-old Marilyn Rempel, the bag is one of the toughest aspects of the route which takes her through part of downtown twice daily.

Although there are no markings days along the way and much of the circuit is through the controlled atmosphere of apartment buildings and offices, she has other hurdles.

A woman's uniform has been ordered by the post office and Miss Rempel hopes it will arrive before the really cold weather.

Despite the minor inconveniences, she has only good things to say about her job. The 5-day week is good, the workers friendly and the exercise great for the figure. And 15 pounds since she began in early September.

Like every other trainee, she received five days of preliminary work before starting on her own.

"That was a bad start. I got to work at 7 a.m. and didn't finish the route until 12 hours later.

"I was so tired I cried; I wanted to quit right there."

Not only did she stay, but she went out one evening and had "one of the best scares I've bowled all season."

Most working days she arrives at 6:45 a.m. and completes two hours of paper work in the depot before starting her route. In the afternoons there is more paper work and another delivery for businesses.

"The secretaries I deliver to are friendly — they were really surprised my first day on the job — and I have yet to fight off even one vicious dog."

Her husband, Dennis, has worked six years for the post office and since he enjoyed the work, she decided to apply.

"It's a natural for a woman. The salary is better than most jobs often, and the work is more than sitting behind a desk all day.

"And though there aren't many women letter carriers in Canada yet, I'm sure there will be lots more applicants when girls find out the job is open to them."

She applied in January, wrote a test shortly after and finished sixth highest among 38 applicants, 6 of them men.

She received a form letter in a few weeks saying her grades were not good enough for immediate employment but in August she was asked to come for an interview and the job was hers.

Kitchen Tested Recipes

First Prize Baked Custard

H By MARY MOORE

When Heather Mundy's Baked Custard won First Prize at Keg Lane School Fair in Paris, Ontario, I thought that many a nine-year-old could copy this simple delicious recipe and add it to their recipe b o x. Many children's recipe books contain simple cookie and cake recipes so this is an effort to extend their repertory.

HEATHER'S FIRST PRIZE BAKED CUSTARD

(8 standard custard cups)

3 cups hot milk
4 med. eggs
6 tbsps. sugar
1-3 tsp. salt
¼ tsp. nutmeg
1 tsp. vanilla
Nut sing for sprinkling top

In a bowl beat eggs until well blended then add sugar and salt and continue beating. Slowly add scalded milk while beating. Stir in vanilla and nutmeg.

Pour custard into eight individual custard cups or into 1 qt. baking dish. Sprinkle sparingly with nutmeg. Stand custard cups or baking dish in shallow pan containing ½ hot water; bake at 350 deg. Fahr. 40 min. for individual cups; 50 min. for single baking dish or until custard is set and top is golden. To test, insert knife at centre of custard. If it comes out clean custard is done.

Points for Parents

By MARY BRYSON

Father: "Why don't you let Amy take out the garbage and help clean up the kitchen?"

Mother: "I don't really need her help around the house. She's busy with her school work and I can do things faster myself.

A child's help at home should not merely be a matter of need. Children should learn to do things for themselves and for others. Stimulate a friendly 'exchange of help from the early years.

A child prepares for independence and maturity by assuming some responsibilities and by working with his parents or others in the home.

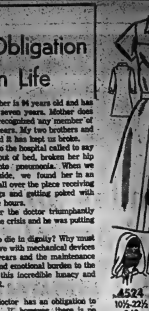
WOOLY LAMBS 4H CLUB



RYLSTONE — Mrs. Brunton, leader demonstrated invisible mending and the hemming of a skirt at the seventh meeting of the Rylstone Wooly Lambs 4H club held recently at the Women's Institute hall with seven members present.

Following the business period, a discussion was held regarding the plans for achievement day. The record of achievement is the members' pamphlet was completed by each member. During the group work period each member made a sample of invisible mending and continued making her skirt.

Members spent some time preparing record books and wool garments for achievement day at the final meeting of the club held at the WI hall on November 24. They also discussed the activities to take place on that day.

Achievement day will be held on Saturday December 12 at the Centre Hastings District High School, Madoc.

Stanfield Opposes Giving Equal Voice To Cities in Constitutional Parley

KITCHENER (CP) — Cities should not expect equal status with the federal and provincial governments at constitutional talks, Opposition Leader Robert Stanfield told a group of civic politicians Saturday.

Such status "would complicate matters more than they already are," he said.

He had been asked by Mayor Donovan Meston of Waterloo why large municipalities should be excluded from constitutional talks where small provinces like Prince Edward Island were given a voice.

Mr. Stanfield agreed municipalities should be consulted but said he did not think they should get involved "on the same plane" as the federal government.

"We haven't thought through in Canada how to involve municipalities in the discussions to a desirable extent and I'm not certain what a truly satisfactory method would be," he said.

"Perhaps a mechanism could be developed by which a municipal representative could participate as part of a provincial delegation."

Mayor Meston said that free municipal votes in a provincial delegation would not be sufficient.

"Some provinces would allow them a voice and others would not. We need a national decision, a strong and equal voice representing municipalities at the talks.

"Then if the federal government agrees with us the provinces could be over-ruled," Mayor Meston said.

Niagara Falls Family To Be Missionaries

NIAGARA FALLS, Ont. (CP) — A Niagara Falls man and his family are giving up a successful car-repair business and comfortable home to begin new lives as missionary workers.

Horst Schultz, his wife and two teen-age children left Saturday on the first stage of a journey which will end in the primitive wilds of New Guinea next summer.

Mr. Schultz and his wife, Eugenie, will contribute their skills at a mission base in northeastern New Guinea after undergoing preliminary training in Mexico and the United States.

Mr. Schultz will be trained as a jack of all-trades, performing numerous skills at the mission base. His wife will render typing and other office skills.

The Schultz family received the opportunity to serve in New Guinea when they joined the Lutheran Bible Translators and Wycliffe Bible Translators Inc., which also have workers in Mexico, Denmark, Colombia, Peru, the Philippines, West Africa and North America.

These missionaries put tribal languages into writing, prepare grammars, dictionaries and translate the Bible into whatever language is required.

Mr. Schultz, his wife and their children, Cornelia, 13, and Norbert, 14, will spend the next 12 weeks at a jungle camp in Mexico where they will learn how to cope with primitive conditions.

Few Persons Naturally Adept At Role of Foster Parents

TORONTO (CP) — Because few persons are naturally skilled at being foster parents, there should be a province-wide program for training them, the founding conference of the Federation of Children's Aid Staffs was told Saturday.

Perry Arnot, 35, of the Muskoka Children's Aid Society, said "a great deal of acquired skill and insight are necessary if our children are to receive the care they deserve," but foster-parent training is for the most part non-existent.

"For those who like talking in monetary terms, let us imagine that through such a program we could prevent just 15 children from being admitted to treatment centres whose average per diem rate is $25. In just two years we would have saved about one-quarter of a million dollars, certainly more than enough to finance a well-developed program of foster-care training."

He said basic foster-home boarding rates for teen-agers run from "an incredibly-beneficient $44 per month to a barely adequate $85."

The federation recommended that a joint committee of its representatives with the Ontario Association of Children's Aid Societies and child welfare branch staff study the possibility of a training program for foster parents.

The group also voted to seek starting salaries of $4,200 for staff of children's aid societies, and to seek a voice in society administration.

The federation was formed to seek unified representation for employees of 49 of the province's 51 children's aid societies.

Trustees Urge Boards Confer with Teachers

TORONTO (CP) — Ontario school trustees voted Saturday to ask individual school boards to meet with teachers about budget ceilings announced last month by Education Minister William Davis.

Trustees said at a conference there is little or no room to move in salary negotiations without increasing present services.

The conference, sponsored by the Ontario School Trustees' Council, was held to discuss salary matters which would involve more than 100,000 elementary and secondary school teachers in the province.

Delegates postponed for a year a proposal that salaries be based on two-year agreements, and set up a committee to study negotiating salaries on the basis of the calendar year instead of the school year.

Minority Party Gains In Australian Senate

CANBERRA, Australia (AP) — The Liberal party of Prime Minister John Gorton and the Labor party, the main opposition, both lost ground to popular votes to the minority Democratic Labor party in election today for half of Australia's 60-member Senate.

Final returns will not be announced for another two weeks but popular-vote results showed the Liberals were down seven per cent from balloting for the House of Representatives last November. The opposition Labor party was down 3 per cent. The Democratic Labor party's popular support was up four per cent.

In the pre-election lineup in the Senate, the Liberals held 21 seats, the Labor party 27, the Country party 7, the Democratic Laborites 4 and there was one independent.

Ontario Differs With Four States On Erie Drilling

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — Fear of pollution is keeping four state governments from permitting offshore gas drilling operations in Lake Erie.

At the same time, officials in Ontario say the pollution danger is "non-existent" and continue to draw more than a third of the province's gas production from their side of the lake.

Both Canadian and American authorities agreed that the real danger of contamination from offshore natural gas drilling is slight and that public opposition in the United States has been unreasonably stimulated by oildrilling accidents off Santa Barbara, Calif. and in the Gulf of Mexico last year.

There are no offshore oil operations on either side of the international border across Lake Erie. As for pollution accidents from gas drilling, only one has been reported — a five-barrel spill decades ago.

Ontario gets more than 30 per cent of its gas production from beneath the lake, but this amount represents less than two per cent of the gas consumed in the province.

Officials say that if the Lake Erie supply were cut off, it would be "no problem" to increase imports from Western Canada and the United States to make up the difference.

Food Price Struggle May Hurt Farmers

BRANTFORD (CP) — Frank Wall, vice-president of the Ontario Federation of Agriculture, said Saturday the food price war among supermarkets could mean less money for the already hard-pressed agricultural producer.

He told the Brant County federation of agriculture the cost of groceries to the Canadian consumer has only three per cent in the last 18 years and very little of the increase has gone to the farmer.

Mr. Wall said consumers are getting a bargain in food purchases and the average Canadian spends about 17 per cent of his take-home pay on groceries — the second lowest percentage in the world.

He compared this with 30 per cent in Britain, 40 per cent in western European countries and 50 per cent in Asian countries.

Woman, 76, Beaten

CREDITON, Ont. (CP) — Miss Pearl Fahner, 76, who lived alone in this village 20 miles northwest of London, was found beaten and unconscious Saturday in her blood-spattered bedroom.

She was in critical condition in hospital at London Sunday with a fractured skull.

Det.-Sgt. George Herries of the provincial police Mount For-est detachment said there was "evidence that she put up a terrific struggle."

He said the initial investigation indicates robbery was not the motive and the home was not ransacked.

Ron Jury received the support of both last year's, and his current teammates in the Belleville Fairways 8-3 win over Trenton Sunday.

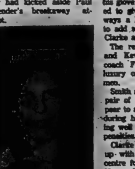
The Belleville goalie with the Afro hair style was lauded by the voting for the 1969-70 Most Valuable Player Award selected by his former teammates.

Except for a couple of lapses, his current goalie, also came up with some strong support of the Bobby Hull Trophy winner by holding the Golden Hawks to only 25 shots on goal.

Back at full strength for the first time in three games, the Fairways finally showed some semblance of a balanced attack as well as taking full advantage of 18 Trenton penalties.

Brian O'Cain got Belleville off to an early lead when he deflected a shot by Rookie of the Year winner, John Gibson past Peter Fetting, 111. Mulvihill had edged centre Danny Lupenette by one shot in race to the finish for Buck Ethier Memorial Trophy.

Sloppy play by the Fairways enabled Trenton to tie the score at 7.35 of the first period. Right winger Hugh Holmes picked up a loose puck in the Belleville end and beat Jury with a high shot into the open corner.



Nine penalties to Trenton opened the game for Belleville ways to build up a 4-1 lead at the end of the second period, as Gary Fredrick, Peter Ackerman and Joe Clarke all counted goals.

Clarke's counter came with Belleville using six attackers on a 5-minute power penalty against Trenton. The Fairways controlled the puck for a good 30 second before the first year centre could circle from behind the net and jam it in.

A let down by Belleville in the final period allowed the Golden Hawks to close the margin to 5-3.

Defencemen Carey Webb, who had made a key defensive play in the first frame by poking the puck away from Danny Lupenette on a breakaway, scored Trenton's second goal from a scramble in front of Jury.

RON JURY

Dave Smith, returning to the lineup after a three week absence, scored the key goal for the winners at 7.34 of the last period.

With the teams playing three men aside, the lanky right winger took a return pass from Peter Ackerman, split the Trenton defence and beat Pettingill with a drive to his glove side. The goal seemed to give the sagging Fairways a lift as they went on to add scores by Phil Kirby, Clarke and Jim Horwood.

Smith added an assist to his pair of goals and didn't appear to show any loss of form during his layoff, backchecking well in addition to hitting penalties.

Clarke and Kirby also came up with strong efforts at centre for the winners, while Horwood showed well in the third period.

Hugh Holmes and Paul Lavender were the major threats for Trenton, while Pettingill couldn't be faulted for the loss, coming up with 31 saves.

Jury was presented with the Hall Trophy by Mrs. Robert Hall Sr., with Gerald "Chief" Ethier presenting the Bucky Ethier Memorial award to Mulvihill.

A third award, the Bill Cook Memorial Trophy for combined Sportsmanship and ability went to John McConnell, who graduated from the junior ranks this year. The trophy was presented by Earl Johnson, sponsor of the Fairways and accepted by Dave Smith in McConnell's absence.

JOHN MULVIHILL

The Fairways next head is set for Friday night when they journey to Oshawa. Sunday, the Cobourg Cougars will be in town for an 8 p.m. game.

Mo-Hawk Net Woes Continue In 6-2 Loss to Crescents

OWEN SOUND (Special) — Belleville Mo - Hawk forwards are having more shooting problems than a myopic shoot enthusiast, and it's costing them a chance to pick up OHA Senior A points.

"We're not playing that badly, but, we just can't put the puck in the net", explained Mo-Hawk coach Dave Jones. "You can't say we're not hustling. We could be hitting more, especially in our own end, but even so, when you get 40 shots on the net and only two goals you can't expect to win."

This weekend was typical of the Belleville team's frustration as they blasted 52 shots on Bryan Caley of Owen Sound but could manage only four goals in their losses to the Crescents.

LIONEL BOTLY

Sunday night, they went down to defeat 6-2 on the Crescents home rink. "We played pretty well, but once again we couldn't cash in on our scoring chances", said Jones of the Sunday contest.

Bill Abbott and Bob Tunstead put Owen Sound ahead later in the frame, and the Crescents peppered Steve Rexe with 20 shots. The Belleville goalie handled 46 chances in the game while Caley was tested 25 times.

Dave McComb, Tunstead and Doug Whiting all hit the scoresheet for the winners during the second period, while Plane added Belleville's only other goal on passes from Senior and Botly.

Each team drew six penalties including majors to Ray Johnston and Mickey Kay for a first period battle.

The Mo-Hawks next home game will be Friday night when they face the Oakville Oaks.

Loyalist Drops Four On Western Road Trip

The Loyalist basketball team was defeated twice in Ontario Collegiate Athletic Association this weekend, Friday, in London, Fanshawe College won (96-66). Then on Saturday the Lancer's were downed by Windsor's St. Clair College (116-69).

On Friday night, led by their captain Rick Webster, the Lancer' played one of their best games of the year. Webster was the top scorer in the game with 27 points. Tom Jones was next on the Loyalist team with 9 points.

The game was close for the first three quarters but Fanshawe pulled away in the latter stages of the game.

On Friday the Lancers travelled to Windsor. After playing the night before, a tired Loyalist team could not cope with the strong St. Clair press which had them beaten in the corner even and for most of the game.

The tall St. Clair team took charge from the start and had a 36 point lead at half time.

By the end of the game Loyalist had no men left on the bench as five players were fouled out.

The Lancer's travel to St. Lawrence. Cornwall next Friday night and are at home on Saturday to play Sheridan College at Centennial High School at 2.30 p.m.

Friday the Loyalist Lancer hockey team met Fanshawe Community college at the Memorial Arena.

Both teams played evenly in the first period. At this point the game was 3-2 in favor of Fanshawe.

In the second and third periods the lancers out-played and out-shot the Falcons, but were foiled time and time again by the Fanshawe goalie. The final score was an 8-4 Fanshawe victory.

Saturday Loyalist travelled to the Windsor Arena where the St. Clair team quickly established the trend of the game with five goals in the first period. The effects on Loyalist of the long road trip were showing, at the start of the second period as St. Clair was 12-6 for St. Clair.

The teams scored two goals apiece in the third period as Loyalist managed a comeback.

The final score was 14-2 for St. Clair.

Apollo Lifters First Rate

TORONTO (Special) — Whatever they lacked in quantity, the Apollo Bar Bell Club certainly made up for in quality capturing five of the eight titles at the Toronto Contenders YMCA Open's 18th annual competition.

Six Belleville lifters competed against 46 others from across Ontario, Quebec and northern New York State, and all managed to place in their weight division.

Flyer Rally Fells Oaks

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Barrie Flyers provided the excitement in Ontario Hockey Association Senior A weekend play, defeating Oakville Oaks 6-3 Sunday after trailing 3-0 entering the third period.

In other games Sunday, Owen Sound Crescents defeated Belleville Mo-Hawks 6-2 and Kingston Canadians trounced last - place Woodstock Athletics 9-2. On Saturday, Galt Hornets defeated league-leading Orillia Terriers 5-2.

Windy Farewell for Riders

Chilled Stampeders Escape West for Crack at Grey Cup

REGINA (CP) — Calgary Stampeders won a Grey Cup berth with a 15-14 win Sunday over Saskatchewan Roughriders on a game-ending field goal that Larry Robinson said was "the greatest thing that has ever happened to me."

The 28-year-old defensive halfback, a native of Calgary who is in his 10th season with Stampeders, set his sights from the 25-yard line on the last play of the game and booted the ball against winds that gusted from 39 to 56 miles an hour as temperatures hovered around zero.

"I didn't have time to be nervous—I was too busy tying up my shoe," said Robinson, who earlier kicked a 17-yard field goal, two singles and a convert on the Calgary touchdown, a 63-yard punt return by Jim Silliye.

The game-winning boot earned Calgary a ticket to the Canadian Football League championship final on Toronto Saturday against Montreal Alouettes, the Eastern Football Conference representatives.

Saskatchewan, who finished the Western Football Conference regular season with 14 wins and two losses for the club's best record in history, held an 11-9 lead at half time over Calgary, the club that finished behind second-place Edmonton Eskimos.

Calgary led 9-8 at the end of the first quarter and 13-11 after the third.

Halfback Bob Pearce scored Saskatchewan's touchdown on a 43-yard pass and run play and Jack Abendschan contributed a field goal, single and convert. Calgary, veteran Granville Liggins fell on a loose ball in his own end in the second quarter to give up a safety touch.

Calgary won the first game of the best-of-three playoffs nine days ago in Regina, 38-11, and lost to Roughriders 11-3 Wednesday. The Stampeders' last Grey Cup appearance was in 1970, when they lost 24-21 to Ottawa Rough Riders.

With veteran quarterback Ron Lancaster sidelined by a shoulder separation, backup Gary Lane called all but the entire Saskatchewan game and threw only five passes, connecting on two for a total gain of 18 yards. Roughriders rushed for 154 yards.

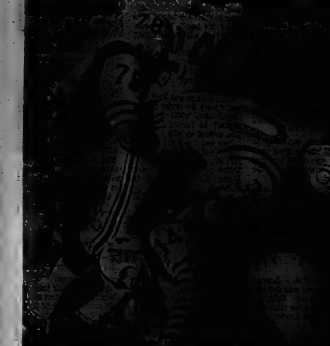
Calgary, with Jerry Keeling applied briefly by second-string quarterback Larry Lawrence, gained 132 yards through the air and 73 on the ground. Both teams were hindered by weather conditions in severe that the national anthem and the pre-game introduction of players before television cameras were waived to speed up proceedings.

The footing on the field was treacherous. Both teams stumbled four times. Saskatchewan lost four and Calgary two. The windchill factor of about 40 degrees below zero similarly eroded the quarterbacks' throwing place.

In the dressing room, Lane complained that officials should have awarded Roughriders a touchdown in the third quarter. He said the ball crossed the goal line with the ball on one play and was lying over the goal line on another replay.

"I guess it just wasn't in the books for us to win," said Lane.

Roughriders' coach Eagle Keys complimented Lane on his performance and said:



"They knew we had to make changes when it was obvious that Ronnie couldn't operate and they stashed another quarterback in the middle and it still it really tough."

Stampeders, three 14-41 in the closing minutes of the game, moved from their own 27 yard line in nine plays to the Saskatchewan four. The scoring threat then appeared to have been thwarted when fullback Hugh McDonald fumbled on second down and Don Sabasky recovered for Saskatchewan.

Roughriders, however, had to punt on third down from behind the goal line and Keeling fired a 16-yard pass to McDonald that brought the ball into position for the crucial Robinson field goal. Calgary beat Edmonton 16-5 in a sudden-death semi-final Nov. 11 to enter the series against Saskatchewan.

Doubled Up and Doubled Down

Hamilton Ticats' Allan Ray Aldrich (78) and Bob Krouse (14) doubled up to bring down Montreal Alouettes' Bruce Van Ness during Eastern Football Conference final in Hamilton Saturday. Montreal defeated Hamilton 12-4 to win the finals and gain a berth in the Grey Cup next Saturday. (CP Wirephoto)

Alouettes Do It Again To Prove Cup Berth

HAMILTON (CP) — Montreal Alouettes shattered the Eastern Football Conference playoff picture myth Saturday by swooping into the national final with an 12-4 victory over Hamilton Tiger-Cats.

Combined with the previous Sunday's 23-23 decision at Montreal, the Alouettes took the two-game, total-point series 0-26 to become the first third-place finisher in EFC history to advance to the Grey Cup game.

Their opponents in the East-West finale at Toronto Nov. 30 will be Calgary Stampeders, whose 15-14 clifhanger over Saskatchewan Roughriders at Regina Sunday gave the Calgarians the deciding game in their best-of-three Western final.

It will be the first Grey Cup appearance for Montreal in 14 years. Montreal head coach Sam Etcheverry and general manager Red O'Quinn were members of the 1968 Alouettes who were stopped 29-27 by Edmonton Eskimos.

The last Alouette team to win a Grey Cup was the 1949 edition. The Hamilton were the victims that year.

Saturday's game developed almost from the start into a defensive struggle in which the Als' front four and the Hamilton linebackers kept constant pressure on opposition quarterbacks.

The only touchdown of the game, a two-yard run by Montreal's Moses Denson, followed a pass-interference call deep in Hamilton territory when Ticats' defensive halfback, John Williams, got caught for covering Alouette Gary Lefebvre too closely.

Those two carried on their own little war of words on the field and were eventually ejected from the game early in the fourth quarter when Lefebvre took exception to a tackle and came up swinging.

Jake Gaudaur, Canadian Football League commissioner, said Saturday officials after reviewing the game's official report it further disciplinary measures will be necessary.

Grey Cup, CFL secretary-treasurer, said Sunday, however, he doubted the disciplinarian would affect Lefebvre's status for the Grey cup game since the incident occurred in the best of the moment.

Both teams took advantage of a stiff westerly wind as the Als built quarter leads of 1-0, 4-1 and 8-4 before linebacker Mike Widger put the Montrealers in corverted touchdown ahead by spilling Ticat quarterback Joe Zuger for a two-point safety.

Montreal quarterback Sonny Wade, who enjoyed his best play of the season in the four three games against Ticats—including an 18-18 tie in the season finale that gave Hamilton first place in the standings, kicked a wind-assisted 39-yard single and George Springate converted Denson's six-pointer that completes the Montreal scoring.

Hamilton used a second-quarter punt from the wind to do all its scoring: a 13 - yard field goal by Tommy Joe Coffey and Zuger's 30-yard single that rolled through the end zone.

The only Hamilton victory of the day was negotiated during unscheduled post-game activities on the field when Ticat safety Garney Henley attempted to hand the game ball to Prime Minister Pierre Trudeau.

Henley, who played about 40 minutes on both offence and defence, said one of the fans who swarmed on the field grabbed his face mask and attempted to take off his helmet.

"I started to punch him but Zuger grabbed me," Henley recalled after the game. Hamilton halfback Dave Fleming moved in and recalled Henley as a gallant with a combination of punches.

The Als played like most of them felt—hungry.

Etcheverry said he called off the usual pre-game meal because of remarks overheard at the hotel where the team was staying.

"We heard someone say 'Bet all you can on the Tiger-Cats. We got in the chef.' We didn't want to risk doctored food so we got down to the dining room before the players," said the former CFL passing great. "Most of them had steak. Some had eggs, and some guys didn't eat at all."

"We ate chocolate bars at half-time," said Springate, a member of the Quebec national assembly who is still being accosted by two Montrealers policemen because of the current political unrest in his province.

Etcheverry, who had an outstanding pro career as a quarterback in the CFL and National Football League before turning to coaching this season, gave Wade full credit for Saturday's victory.

He said fewer plays were sent in from the bench than for any other game this season.

O'Quinn said the victory was particularly gratifying for him. Although he had held a similar position in building up the EFC champions, he was fired by Montreal club president Nelson Skalbania following a disagreement with Etcheverry as coach.

"I'm happy for Sam because he's still golden a lot of second-guessers who said when we hired him as coach we did it for the wrong reasons," said O'Quinn. "But we always had confidence in his coaching ability."

Hamilton Joe Restic, discouraged about the final outcome, admitted: "They (Montreal) were a good team. Montreal did a good job on us in the second game."

Restic refused to blame his starting quarterback Wally Gabler for not moving the club. Gabler, who connected on just 13 of 29 passes before being replaced by Zuger, was forced to hurry his throws by smashing Alouette defenders and several times was caught cocking Ticat pass receivers who had worried their way clear.

Grand Prix Called Off

ASHQUELON, Israel (AP) — Israel's first international Grand Prix auto race was called off Sunday after only one event because police were unable to control curious spectators.

The Israelis, who had never seen a motor race before, screamed to the sides of the track, ignoring wire and rope fences and warnings of the police to stand clear.

Sport Briefs

MILWAUKEE (AP) — Boxing promoter Harry Simon announced Saturday that heavyweight Ernie Terrell will come out of retirement Dec. 13 to meet Tony Doyle of Salt Lake City, Utah, at Milwaukee. Terrell, 31, who held the World Boxing Association's version of the heavyweight title for two years, retired in 1967 with a 39-7 record, including 18 knockouts.

WASHINGTON (AP) — Wide receiver Charley Taylor suffered a collarbone fracture in the Dallas-Washington football game Sunday and will be lost to the Redskins for the remainder of the season, Taylor, the National Football League's leading pass receiver going into the game, suffered the fracture early in the third quarter after catching a 34-yard pass.

Blanda Tip Toes Through NFL Challengers

By DICK COUCH
Associated Press Sports Writer

Racing the clock has become a weekly ordeal for Oakland Raiders, but their 45-year-old anchor man is having the time of his life.

George Blanda, oldest player in the National Football League, kicked a 16-yard field goal with seven seconds to play Sunday, giving the Raiders a 20-17 victory over San Diego Chargers that extended their unbeaten string to seven games.

In the last five weeks, Blanda has provided the heroics—three times with clutch field goals in the final 10 seconds and twice with touchdown passes in relief of regular quarterback Daryle Lamonica.

Lamonica, who went the distance against the Chargers, failed to throw a scoring pass for the first time in 36 games. But Blanda's game-winning fourth quarter field goal gave the American Football Conference Western Division leaders a one-game edge on second-place Kansas City Chiefs, who downed St. Louis Cardinals to a 6-6 tie.

In other games, Miami Dolphins downed Baltimore Colts 24-17, Minnesota Vikings downed Green Bay Packers 10-3, Detroit Lions trounced San Francisco 49ers 38-7, Los Angeles Rams topped Atlanta Falcons 17-7, Dallas Cowboys thumped Washington Redskins 45-21, Cleveland Browns smacked Houston Oilers 28-14, Cincinnati Bengals beat Pittsburgh Steelers 34-7, Chicago Bears whipped Buffalo Bisons 31-13, Denver Broncos riddle New Orleans Saints 31-6 and New York Jets beat Boston Patriots 17-3.

At Oakland, Mike Mercer's 11-yard field goal with 4:46 remaining pulled San Diego into a 17-17 tie. But the Raiders came from their own 36-yard line to the Chargers' eight, let the clock run down to the 30-second mark down to seven seconds, called time out and then summoned Blanda.

His toe was true. Just as it had been three weeks ago to tie Kansas City on a 48-yarder with three seconds left—and two weeks ago to beat Cleveland on a 52-yard boot with three seconds left.

Jan Stenerud of St. Louis Cardinals kicked a tying 14-yard field goal with 1:49 showing on the clock at Kansas City and the ice-booted San Stenerud of the Chiefs was a couple of feet short on a 53-yard attempt with 20 seconds to play.

Stenerud and Bakken did all the scoring in their field goals in the first regular-season meeting of Missouri's pro powerhouses. The tie left the Cardinals one game ahead of the second-place Giants in the National Football Conference East.

Bob Grieso passed for two scores and ran 15 yards for another as Miami avenged an earlier 34-0 loss to Baltimore.

The Vikings nailed their seventh straight victory, and second for their lone setback of the season, by outmanoeuvring Green Bay on a one-yard scoring play by Chuck Foreman in the third quarter—set up by Gary Cuozzo's 37-yard pass to Gene Washington.

Bowl Games Take Shape

By DICK COUCH
Associated Press Sports Writer

The scent of Roses made revenge that much sweeter for Ohio State when Notre Dame survived another scare before seeking retribution via a second taste of Cotton candy.

Ohio State's sixty-high Buckeyes assured their second Rose Bowl appearance in three years and avenged their only loss over the same period by thumping Michigan 20-9 Saturday in an emotion-charged battle of U.S. college football titans.

Notre Dame agreed Sunday to return to the Cotton Bowl on New Year's Day for a possible national championship rematch with No. 1 ranked Texas after shading Louisiana State's tenacious Tigers off their backs 3-0 in another Saturday showdown.

Acceptance of bids by Tennessee, Texas Tech, Georgia Tech, Oklahoma, Auburn and perennial bowlers Alabama and Mississippi set up the following pairings:

Rose Bowl—Ohio State, 9-0, vs. Stanford, 8-3.

Cotton Bowl—Notre Dame, 8-0, vs the Southwest Conference champion, either Texas, 8-0, or Arkansas, 8-1.

Orange Bowl—Nebraska, 10-0-1, vs.' an opponent to be named.

Bisons' Pride Soothed by Win

TORONTO (CP) — The fate of University of Ottawa Gee-Gees was sealed last Friday, at least in the minds of University of Manitoba Bisons, when someone at the pre-College Bowl dinner failed to mention that the Bisons were defending Vanier Cup champions.

That oversight, coupled with the third-place showing of Manitoba quarterback Bob Kraemer in the balloting for top Canadian college player, provided the westerners with the impetus in their 38-31 stampede over Ottawa Saturday for the Canadian collegiate football championship.

Gee-Gees quarterback Paul Padden placed first in the Hec Crichton Trophy voting, much to the chagrin of the Bisons.

"It was possibly more incentive for my boys to play rather than for me," said Kraemer, who scored one of Manitoba's five touchdowns and threw for two others as the Bisons walked over Ottawa's defence.

"We rammed it down their throats," added halfback Mike Shyle. Shyle drove 21 times for 94 yards to help the Bisons' ground forces amass three passes for another 53 yards and registered one touchdown, earning the Teddy Morris Memorial trophy as the game's outstanding player.

Kraemer, who Manitoba coach Henry Janzen labelled "the best quarterback in Canada," was the award last year when the Bisons dumped McGill University Redmen for the title.

Hull Scores Three

Leaders Win, But Fail to Gain in NHL

By IAN MacLAURIN
Canadian Press Staff Writer

Boston and New York remained in a deadlock and Chicago Black Hawks continue to be pressed in the National Hockey League standings after weekend games in which none of the division leaders could improve their positions.

Boston Bruins clipped Pittsburgh Penguins 4-2 Sunday and Philadelphia Flyers 5-3 Saturday but remained in a standoff atop the NHL's East Division with New York Rangers, 3-4 victors over Minnesota North Stars Sunday and 5-4 Saturday against Montreal Canadiens.

The Black Hawks, meanwhile, drubbed California Golden Seals 9-0 Sunday as Bobby Hull collected three goals for the 25th time in his career, but had to settle for a 3-3 tie Saturday night against St. Louis Blues, their nearest rivals in the NHL West Division.

In another Sunday game, Detroit Red Wings tripped Philadelphia 4-3 after losing 6-1 Saturday against Pittsburgh.

Toronto Maple Leafs held on for a 5-3 win over California, Minnesota blanked Buffalo Sabres 3-0 and Vancouver Canucks defeated Los Angeles in other Saturday games as all 14 NHL teams saw action on the same day for the first time.

Hull's output at Chicago Sunday gave him 11 goals for the season. He needs only one more game in which he scores three goals or more to tie the NHL career mark of 26, held by Montreal Canadiens' now retired scoring ace, Maurice (Rocket) Richard.

The shutout for Tony Esposito of the Hawks was his third of the season. He holds the season record of 15, set last year during his rookie campaign.

Boston's Phil Esposito scored once and assisted on two goals by Bronnie Ken Hodge in the 4-2 Bruin victory to increase his lead atop the individual scoring race. The Bruins' centre now has 34 points off 14 goals and 20 assists.

PHIL ESPOSITO

Rookie goaltender Gilles Villemure stopped 34 Minnesota scoring thrusts, including 15 in the second period when the Rangers could manage only seven at Gilles Gilbert in the North Stars' goal.

But Dave Balon, with his fifth goal in three games, notched the winner and captain Bob Nevin on a breakaway padded the New York victory as the Rangers extended their home-ice unbeaten streak to seven of them victories.

Gordie Howe and Frank Mahovlich scored two goals each in Detroit's win at Philadelphia but the victory may have been costly to the Red Wings.

Howe, their 42-year-old all-star, missed most of the last half of the game after suffering a bruised rib cage in a collision with defenceman Joe Watson of the Flyers.

Dr. Stanley Spoont, the Flyers' team physician, said Howe's rib cage was packed in ice and the bruises did not appear serious.

Balon's two goals at Montreal Saturday paced the Rangers' victory and left the Canadiens third in the East, three points behind the pacesetting Rangers and Bruins.

Both goalies put in strong performances, Phil Myre in the Montreal goal facing 40 shots while his team-mates were directing 45 and New York's Ed Giacomin.

Third-period goals by Esposito, Don Marcotte, second of the game, and Derek Sanderson broke open a tight struggle at Philadelphia and offset a two-goal effort by Flyers' Bobby Clarke.

The Bruins bolstered Philadelphia's goaltending tandem at Doug Favell, who left after the first period when he twisted his knee and Bernie Parent with 49 shots, while Gerry Cheevers faced 35 Flyers shots.

Red Berenson's short-handed goal early in the third period lifted the Blues into a home-ice tie with Chicago.

The Blues' captain Interrupted a Bobby Hull pass while team-mate Christian Bordeleau was sitting out a minor penalty and blasted the puck past Esposito for his sixth goal of the season.

The Golden Seals rally at Toronto fell short when Paul Henderson scored his second goal of the night into an empty Gilbert goal after Gary Smith had been removed for an extra attacker.

The line of Henderson, Norm Ullman and Guy Trottier figured in three power-play goals with Trottier also notching a point for the Leafs.

Goals by Orland Kurtenbach and Andre Boudrias 95 seconds apart in the third period mapped a 1-1 tie at Vancouver where the visiting Los Angeles Kings outshot the Canucks 37-15 in the game but were held in check by goaltender George Gardner.

Veteran goaltender Caesar Maniago registered Minnesota's first shutout of the season when he was called on to stop only 22 Buffalo shots.

Six Penguins shared the scoring in their home victory over Detroit. The 6-1 score was the biggest margin ever for Pittsburgh over an Eddie Shore team since they joined the league in 1967.

Andy Bathgate scored once and added two assists bringing his career assists total to 691, only the fourth player in league history to eclipse the 600-assist mark.

Junior A Leaders Lose on Weekend

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

The two top teams in the Ontario Hockey Association Junior A standings both lost Sunday night by large margins.

League-leading Peterborough Petes were defeated 4-1 by Montreal Junior Canadiens and second-place Cataractes Black Hawks played to a 9-3 loss to seventh-place London Knights.

In other games, Hamilton Red Wings defeated last Ottawa 67's 5-3, Kitchener Rangers downed Niagara Falls Flyers 6-1 in Kitchener and Toronto Marlboros defeated last place Oshawa Generals 7-5 at Toronto.

Danny Gloor scored the Peterborough goal.

In Ottawa, the Red Wings scored three goals in the second period, including one on a penalty shot awarded to Tom Williams.

In Kitchener, it was the Rangers' second win in two days over the Flyers. Kitchener defeated the Niagara Falls club 4-3 Friday night.

Don Lever got the lone Flyers goal when Kitchener was playing a man short.

In Toronto, Dave Gardner led the Marlies with three goals, and Steve Shutt added another two. Steve Vickers and Bill Harris managed singles.

Gerry Meehn and Al Avery scored two goals each for Oshawa and Tom Simpson added the other.

Spurs Tumbled

Leeds Retains Lead Atop First Division

LONDON (CP) — Leeds United fended off a determined second-half onslaught from Wolverhampton Wanderers to hammer out a 3-2 soccer victory Saturday and stay four points up at the top of the English League.

The First Division program brought a slight reshuffle among the three London clubs huddled behind Leeds with Arsenal, 1-0 winners away at Ipswich, taking over second place from Tottenham Hotspur.

The Spurs tumbled to a surprise 2-1 defeat at home to Newcastle United while Chelsea, the other title-chasing London club, took both points from a 3-1 win at home to Stoke City.

Leeds, which has played one game more than its closest rivals, now has 31 points from 19 games followed by Arsenal (27), Spurs (25) and Chelsea (23).

Title favorite Leeds played without injured Scottish international stars Billy Bremner and Eddie Gray. But three first-half goals by Allan Clarke, Mick Jones and Paul Madeley gave United sufficient momentum to survive a brief challenge from Wolves after the interval.

Spurs never recovered from a 17th-minute setback when full-back David Craig shot Newcastle ahead. This was the first league goal Tottenham has conceded at home since Aug. 18.

Tommy Gibb later increased the Newcastle lead and despite a goal by Martin Chivers, Spurs could not avoid a surprise defeat.

A crowd of 54,000 saw Liverpool beat back to a 2-2 triumph over Everton after conceding two goals in a nine-minute spell in the second half.

After Alan Whittle and Joe Royle had put Everton 2-0 up in the lifted league clash between the two clubs, Liverpool slammed back to clinch a spectacular victory through goals by Steve Heighway, John Toshack and Chris Lawler.

Toshack's goal was his first for Liverpool since he was traded from Cardiff City for £300,000 earlier this month.

In the Second Division, pace-setter Leicester City clung to its two-point lead with a hard-earned 3-2 tie away to Norwich City, while Luton Town took over second place from Cardiff City with a 2-1 home win over Portsmouth. Cardiff was beaten 3-1 away to Bristol Athletic.

While the big names of English soccer were contesting their weekly league, teams from the First and Fourth Divisions battled with more than 30 clubs from the humble amateur and semi-professional ranks in the first round of the English Football Association Cup.

It was a day of shocks in the Scottish League with Celtic chasing its sixth successive championship held to a 0-0 tie against Falkirk while Rangers stunned Rangers with a third-minute goal by Ian Whitehead. David Johnstone, Rangers 16-year-old centre-forward, equalized in the second half but Quinton Young hit a late winner for Ayr.

English League Division III and IV standings will not be carried. No games were played Saturday.

Pistol Pete Maravich Unholsters Hot Gun in Weekend Twin Wins

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Atlanta Hawks led by rookie Pete Maravich for the second straight night, ambushed Philadelphia 76ers 125-115 Sunday.

Pistol Pete matched Saturday's season high by catching 32 points as Atlanta won its second in a row after a miserable 3-13 start.

Phoenix Suns clouted Cleveland 116-89 for the Cavaliers' 22nd defeat in 23 games Milwaukee Bucks powered past Portland Trail Blazers 138-104 and Los Angeles Lakers lashed Seattle SuperSonics 140-124 in the other NBA games Sunday.

Saturday it was New York Knickerbockers 103, Cleveland 96; Chicago Royals 114, Detroit Pistons 102; Atlanta 130, Baltimore Bullets 102; Chicago Bulls 118, Boston Celtics 107; Phoenix 125, Philadelphia 119, Portland 112, Buffalo Braves 106; Milwaukee 107, San Francisco Warriors 102 and San Diego Rockets 115, Seattle 113.

Maravich, Walt Hazzard and Lou Hudson combined for 40 points in the third quarter when Atlanta wiped out a 53-47 Philadelphia lead to enter the final period with a commanding 89-78 margin.

Lee Alcindor scored 36 points and Bob Dandridge 28 as Milwaukee won its 14th straight.

Will Chamberlain had 21 points and 21 rebounds and Jerry West had 26 points, 11 assists and nine steals for Los Angeles.

Sandy Has Day-Again

TORONTO (CP) — It was Sandy Hawley Day at Greenwood racetrack Saturday and the 19-year-old jockey from Oshawa came up with two wins, two seconds and two thirds.

The two wins, on Dominoer 3rd in the second race and Nearjay in the eighth, boosted his total for the year to 436, 30 behind Willie Shoemaker's record of 466, set in 1953.

Hawley was honored after the fourth race while his parents and grandmother stood proudly in the winner's circle.

Among the gifts received was a diamond ring from the Jockey Club.

A flag-shot, Hurhaberis, the second-place finisher, was the winner of the Featured $11,800 Mohawk Stakes and paid $16.40, $25.60 and $30.10.

The quinella of Beth Falcin in the first race and Dominoer 3rd paid $32.30 while the exacta of By Rook at Crook and Loomed Away in the sixth paid $16.40.

Separatist Levesque Calls Trudeau 'Grave-digger of Canada'

OTTAWA (CP) — Rene Levesque, leader of the separatist Parti Quebecois, has called Prime Minister Trudeau "the grave-digger of Canada" and accused the Ottawa and Quebec governments of fabricating the terrorist crisis in Quebec.

The Parti Quebecois leader, in a television program taped for the CTV network in Montreal Friday, described Quebec Premier Bourassa as a "shaky-wacky" politician, called the Montreal civic government of Mayor Jean Drapeau a "pro-fascist group," accused the Ottawa government of "manipulating the police" and said police work on the terrorist kidnappings was "sure as hell not good."

The interview with Mr. Levesque was shown at 4:30 p.m. EST Sunday on the program Question Period. A transcript was released in Ottawa.

Mr. Levesque was asked whether there was a threat in the provincial government or to maintenance of law and order in the Oct. 5 kidnapping of James Cross, British trade envoy in Montreal, and the Oct. 10 kidnapping of Pierre Laporte, Quebec labor minister, by the terrorist Front de Liberation du Quebec.

"No," he replied.

Mr. Cross is believed to be alive in FLQ hands. Mr. Laporte was strangled a week after his abduction.

Mr. Levesque was asked to elaborate on the reaction of the Ottawa and Quebec governments, which included invoking wide police powers under the War Measures Act and posting troops through the province.

"They did fabricate a crisis," he replied "one aspect of which is being used now a little bit as a scapegoat by Trudeau and by Quebec."

He said the reaction was "probably the mixture of panic and an urge to get rid of a lot of troublesome people from their point of view and that of the police."

Mr. Levesque said there is a "cut-off quality" to political leadership in Quebec.

"Mr. Trudeau is not a Quebecois. Mr. Trudeau is Elliott more than Trudeau...from my point of view and he had to be elected in the Mount Royal ghetto in Montreal to stand anywhere in Quebec. . . .

"Those guys are cut off from Quebec as this hysteria, I think, which came in great part from police forces that were completely out of touch with what have lost their heads, probably implemented at least some climate of panic. But there was also very cold calculation, especially in the Trudeau group in Ottawa, of using Laporte and Cross once they were kidnapped.

"I'm not saying the terrible thing that they wanted it but they sure as hell used it as an occasion to clamp down on Quebec and at the same time, without even noticing it, debasing anything called democracy here."

THE LITTLE WOMAN

"I think we're being berated in stereo."

Convention Passes Resolutions

Liberals Want Guaranteed Annual Income And Tough Policy on Foreign Investment

OTTAWA (CP) — A vigorous Liberal national policy convention has presented the federal government with a sheaf of ground-breaking resolutions, including demands for a guaranteed annual income system by 1972 and a tough line on foreign investment.

The three-day convention of 2,400 delegates also endorsed Prime Minister Trudeau's 31-month leadership of the Liberal party, at the same time showing its impatience with the government on several major issues.

A second ballot on whether a leadership convention should be held within a year was defeated 1,064 to 132.

The 132 votes weren't the result of any organized assault on Mr. Trudeau apparently. Some delegates said they voted for a leadership convention on principle, others that they wanted to shake out any complacency the government may feel.

Some were irritated Friday night when Mr. Trudeau said a guaranteed annual income would be too costly for Canada at this time. They responded with a resolution, carried handily, demanding such a welfare system by 1972.

T. H. Leiper, Manitoba party leader and tax consultant, said the present welfare system is wasteful and should be scrapped

One supporter of this view said the convention had to demand a commitment from the government to end poverty. If it didn't meet the goal by the time the next national policy convention is held in 1974, "we'll repudiate 'em."

The 1960s appeared dead and buried as delegates drafted their blueprint for this decade. The mood of resistance-liism that dominated the 1965 policy convention, and the emphasis then on constitutional matters, was gone.

The constitution was hardly mentioned and anti-continentalism was patently unpopular.

Revenue Minister Herb Gray, who is drafting a federal policy statement on foreign investment, heard delegates call for tough measures to gain and maintain economic control.

Toronto lawyer Paul Haynes, discussing resource negotiations with the United States on oil gas and water, said Energy Minister Joe Greene should be replaced with "the toughest minded Canadian nationalist we can find."

The convention embarrassed Mr. Trudeau by calling for a federal review board, to safeguard individuals against abuse, in the public order bill now before Parliament.

Mr. Trudeau, saying in an interview the resolution poses "a real dilemma," noted that Parliament has voted down a similar proposal.

"If I listen to the convention, I may be in contempt of Parliament," he said "If I don't, I may be in contempt of this convention."

He added that it would be a "retrograde step" for the federal government to look over Quebec's shoulder in an area of provincial jurisdiction.

Robert Edwards, 20, of Toronto, the bill's sponsor, chastised the government for "ramming through" the public order bill without safeguards and said the Quebec government "didn't seem to be the people" to rely on to prevent abuse.

He noted Quebec Justice Minister Jerome Choquette and Premier Robert Bourassa had cheered proposals for capital punishment, a military draft, press censorship and an identity card system.

The 1969 law on therapeutic abortion, which Mr. Trudeau introduced to Parliament as justice minister, was totally rejected by delegates.

They said abortion should be a matter for the decision between the woman and her doctor, and the matter should be removed from the Criminal Code.

Mr. Trudeau said this was "a significant change," in opinion and would have to be taken seriously by MPs.

The convention proposed a moratorium on prosecutions for possession of marijuana until the report on the non-medical use of drugs is made public next spring. It rejected a proposal that marijuana be made legal but said possession should be a minor offence punishable by fine.

"I'm very glad of the mood of this convention," Mr. Trudeau said. "It's one of being the guardian and the instigator of change."

However, at times the cabinet had to rein in delegates. Labor Minister Bryce Mackasey warned them away from a resolution that would have impeded the right to strike where layoffs resulted in other areas. He said that if the party adopted such a position it would have to get along without him.

Results of balloting on foreign policy, defence, pollution, agriculture and other areas were still being counted today.

The convention had its color —I'm for an independent Canada buttons, pretty girls and plastic straw hats—but the mood was business.

Debates were long and well-attended.

A small but vocal ginger group was led by Phil Edder of London, Ont., an assistant law professor at University of Western Ontario and a former executive assistant to Solicitor-General George McIlraith.

It bucked heavily into discussion on issues like poverty, pollution and foreign investment, showed impatience with Mr. Trudeau's guaranteed income brush-off, and gave cabinet ministers most of their headaches.

"They came here with their minds made up," Mr. Elder, 30, said of the cabinet. "We had to shake them up, not let them get complacent."

PM Says FLQ Failed to Divide Canadian People

OTTAWA (CP) — If the Front de Liberation du Quebec hoped to polarize Canada between French and English or between East and West, it "failed miserably," Prime Minister Trudeau said Sunday night.

He said there has been "no polarization" and "no backlash," as a result of the FLQ's terrorist tactics.

If the FLQ thought the federal government's reaction to proclaiming the War Measures Act and sending armed forces into Quebec would persuade more Quebecers to become radicals, they were mistaken, he said in an interview on the CBC television show Weekend.

The reaction in Quebec, shown through letters to the prime minister and members of Parliament in every party, showed "appreciation" of strong measures against the FLQ, he said.

Mr. Trudeau said he would make every effort to make the distinction that every separatist does not want violence.

New Broadcasting Guidelines Sought by Liberals

OTTAWA (CP) — The federal Liberal party Friday recommended new guidelines for broadcasting to prevent distortion of Canadian values by radio or television.

The Liberal Federation of Canada endorsed this and 10 other resolutions dealing with broadcasting at the close of a three-day policy conference.

Also endorsed was a recommendation calling on the Commons broadcasting committee to review current regulations in order to keep only those "which encourage creativity and protect the public interest."

There was a high measure of agreement with a recommendation that federal and provincial governments should give more support to private and public educational programming to help it compete with U.S. programming of a similar nature.

The recommendations are not binding on government. They are intended as broad guides to policy-making.

The convention also approved calling for a new agency to direct the development of a Canadian computer industry.

This idea is under consideration already by the federal communications department.

One recommendation supported by the delegates calls for regulations to force all broadcasters to have at least 50 per cent Canadian programming on their stations.

Convention Wan ts Sales Banned

OTTAWA (CP) — The Liberal policy convention which ended Sunday has recommended that the sale of two Toronto textbook publishing houses to United States interests be halted. It also has recommended that special tax advantages benefiting Time magazine and Reader's Digest be stopped.

The recommendations on the textbook industry and the American-owned magazines came from a seminar under the broad heading of citizen participation in government.

Farmers and Politicians Meet To Study State of Agriculture

OTTAWA (CP) — Representatives of farm organizations, agri-business and the industry and provincial governments start a two-day conference today to examine a generally optimistic assessment of agriculture prepared by the federal agriculture department.

More than 300 delegates are expected to discuss the implications of the projections in the 158-page report released last month.

Topics will include the general economic situation in Canada, international trade developments affecting the industry, the outlook for commodities—wheat, feed grains, and oilseeds —the prospects for dairying, poultry, special crops, livestock and horticulture.

The conference is expected to provide useful information for management and policy decisions.

The report estimates Canadian agriculture, excluding Newfoundland, will have a total net income this year of just under $1 billion compared with the preliminary figure of $1.4 billion in 1969.

It emphasizes the cost - price squeeze on farmers with total cash receipts this year estimated at $4.1 billion, down $1 million from 1969, while operating costs are expected to rise $1 million to $2.5 billion in 1970.

While the outlook for wheat has markedly improved during the last 18 months, the department says it is "premature to see the possibility of any general expansion in world markets.

In fact, looking to the future there may be a return to lower world demand and increased competition to meet it.

There is hope that if the various world wheat exporting countries prevent the level of stocks becoming unmanageable, as happened in Canada during the last few years, world wheat prices during the next one or two years could strengthen.

Stanbury Retains Liberal Presidency

OTTAWA (CP) — Senator Richard Stanbury of Toronto turned aside a youthful challenge Sunday to win a second term as president of the Liberal Federation of Canada.

Senator Stanbury, elected to the post first in 1968, was challenged by Robert Gibson, a

Students, Women Retain Their Own Groupings

OTTAWA (CP) — A Quebec drive to dissolve the national student women's wings of Liberal organizations Sunday ignited one of the most heated hours of debate in the party's three-day policy conference.

The discussion arose during consideration by a plenary session of routine constitutional amendments to the party's charter.

One of the amendments called for affiliation with the federal party of the Women's Liberal Federation of Canada and the Canadian Student Liberals.

Quebec delegates, including numerous MPs from the province, quickly moved a further amendment recommending that both the students' and women's organizations be disbanded and their members incorporated in the main party.

bearded student from Toronto's Glendon College. Senator Stanbury won the election 653 to 82.

Mr. Gibson told delegates to the Liberal policy conference their meeting had been "a serious mockery of the espoused principle of parliamentary democracy."

Senator Stanbury, speaking after Mr. Gibson, said the party has been trying to re-structure itself to such a way that it can provide a more effective channel of communication with all Canadians.

In other elections for executive positions the party announced Jane Westbury, a Winnipeg alderman, had been elected English-speaking women's vice-president, defeating Pauline Jewett of Ottawa and Jean MacDonald of Prince Edward Island.

Miss Jewett, a political science professor at Carleton University and former MP, had enjoyed a slight favorite before the voting started.

Jeanette Rodger of the Quebec delegation was acclaimed women's French-speaking vice-president.

Derek Lewis of the Newfoundland delegation defeated Murray Leader of Ottawa for the post of secretary and Gordon Dryden of Toronto was acclaimed treasurer.

Your Car
Power Brakes Still Work If Engine Quits, But Poorly

By RAY STAPLEY.

A reader writes:

"Two years ago I bought a 1953 car equipped with power brakes and power steering. As you probably know, if the engine stalls you have no control of the brakes or steering.

"I first found this out when, due to starting failure, I was being towed to a garage. We were moving at about 15 mph when the tow truck suddenly stopped. I applied the brakes, but they were ineffective. No damage resulted, but it was then I realized that without the engine running I could not stop nor steer the car.

"Again last winter while going down hill my engine stalled and I found myself with no brakes and had to drive into a snow bank to get stopped. Parking brakes are of little use when trying to stop on a steep hill. Any advice you have to offer would be appreciated." — Mr. T. F. F., Maitland, Ont.

All power - equipped cars are so designed that in the event of the engine stalling, the brakes and steering can be operated manually. However, the driver must exert considerably more effort to steer or stop his vehicle. Therefore, especially with heavy cars, the response can be sluggish to the point where the driver will panic and freeze at the controls.

A powerful vacuum force is generated when the engine is running, as well as operating other units, this force actuates a large diaphragm in the power brake assembly, which in turn does most of the work as the driver applies the brakes. When the vacuum force fails to do its job, the diaphragm tends to stick and much extra pedal pressure is needed to move it in order to apply the brakes.

Excessive sticking of the diaphragm can make it extremely difficult to apply the brakes manually. Most cars today are fitted with self-adjusting brakes, the mechanism, of which goes into action only when the brakes are applied as the car is backing up. Brakes that are seldom applied when the car is backing up can be badly out of adjustment. This can make it even more difficult to stop a vehicle when the power brake unit is not operating.

If, even though the power brake unit is functioning properly, stopping action seems sluggish, try backing up on a quiet, street and applying the brakes sharply several times. This should help to free them come up to its proper height, restoring normal braking pressure.

To help cope with any type of sudden brake failure keep the parking brake properly serviced. Though nowhere nearly as efficient as the service brake, when operating properly it can lock the rear wheels at about 30 mph.

Driven by the front crankshaft pulley, a drive belt actuates a powerful pump that generates hydraulic pressure to operate the power steering unit. If the engine stalls or the drive belt breaks, the vehicle is far more difficult to manoeuver than that of a car equipped with standard steering.

To prepare for sudden power or steering or power brake failure, drive slowly on a parking lot or quiet street. Select neutral, shut off the engine and go through a series of steering and stopping manoeuvres.

The important thing, of course, is to keep the engine thoroughly tuned to minimize the possibility of stalling. With rare exception, about the only thing that will cause a well - maintained engine to stall when moving along at high gear is an empty gas tank.

Man Tries to Open Hatch on TCA Plane

LONDON, Ont. (CP) — Provincial police have identified a man, who tried to open an escape hatch in a Toronto-Cleveland Air Canada flight Friday, as Paul Lombardo, 31, of South Euclid, Ohio.

Police in University Heights, a suburb of Cleveland, confirmed Sunday that Lombardo has been free on $5,000 bail on a charge of possession of heroin for purposes of trafficking and faces trial Wednesday.

Provincial police at London said Lombardo, who cut his left wrist with a knife then tried to open the emergency door, was subdued by passengers before he could open the hatch and jump.

Flight 361 was diverted to London where, after examination by doctors Lombardo was ordered deported and taken by bus to Detroit Friday night. Police at London said no charges will be laid.

KILLING YOURSELF

By Peter J. Steincrohn, M.D., F.A.C.P.
Author of "The Doctor Looks At Life"

Gas May Be Due To Gall Bladder

Case history:

Doctor: How long have you been complaining of gas and discomfort after eating?

Patient: I'd say about two or three years. Mind you, it's not always present. Only after I've eaten a large meal. Especially one that has french fries, butter with a lot of melted butter, pie a la mode, or a juicy steak. When I eat lightly and sensibly I don't have so much gas. But I will admit that lately I get gas pains between my shoulder blades even when I eat very little.

Doctor: Have you had any X rays?

Patient: To tell the truth I haven't been to a doctor until I came to see you. I've been taking some pills I've seen advertised on TV. When they didn't help I'd switch to another kind. I've even taken bicarb of soda to make me bring up the gas. But nothing has really helped. That's why I'm here.

Doctor: When the gas pressure comes on where do you feel it most? In your stomach or in your chest?

Patient: As I said, I'm surprised most of the pressure is between my shoulder blades, and sometimes in my chest. I rarely feel it in my stomach. That's the reason I've put off seeing a doctor for so long. I figured it couldn't possibly be coming in my gall bladder — or that I had an ulcer.

Doctor: I'm sending you to an X-ray man for studies of your gall bladder, stomach and intestines.

Resume:

X-ray films indicate that the gall bladder is filled with many small stones. There is no ulcer nor any other lesion. Operation and stones have been removed without complication. She is now dieting to lose weight and has had most foods without any discomfort.

Comment: This case history is informative. Thousands of people are treating themselves in vain with advertised pills and potions for overcome gas and indigestion. They are unaware that a faulty gall bladder may be the reason. Correct diagnosis is the cardinal need to overcome illness.

Guessing only prolongs the agony. Remember that gall bladder distress isn't necessarily confined below the diaphragm — it is often more commonly felt between the shoulders. Do you have pressure and gas? Better investigate.

* * *

For Mrs. D.: As I do not know you as a person, it's difficult to tell you what will help that disagreeable (and common) symptom known as "burning tongue." It's too easy to categorize such patients as neurotics. Often there may be a specific underlying cause.

For example, in some, allergy has been the culprit. One pipe - smoking patient felt better after he quit. Another patient improved after changing the brand of her toothpaste. Another found that eating chocolate caused her tongue to "burn" and be sensitive.

There have been some patients whose tongue "healed" after they began to take brewer's yeast. Some improved on taking iron to overcome anemia.

Many patients who have burning tongues label themselves neurotics and suggest they present themselves for study. They may find they wear a false label. Just taking tranquilizers doesn't invariably solve the problem.

* * *

For Mr. G.: A "perforated" ulcer, for example, is one that has ruptured through the wall of the stomach or duodenum.

Strictly Personal
Price of Dissent High

By SYDNEY J. HARRIS

Attending the premiere of Aleksandr Solzhenitsyn's first play, a few days after he had won the Nobel Prize for Literature this fall, I wondered if the people who pride themselves on being the "silent majority" have any idea what it costs to speak up and speak out in a hostile environment.

It nearly cost Solzhenitsyn his life, and may still. For his opinions of the stupid brutalities, repressions and injustices of the long Stalin regime in Russia, he spent 11 years in prison, work-camp, and exile from his beloved "country.

He has been expelled from the National Russian Writers' Union, and officially declared to be an "unperson." There is some doubt that the Communist authorities will permit him to go to Sweden next month to receive the Award. And none of his work has been published in Russia.

How many of us would have the courage to speak a word, should he has, when the punishment is so swift, severe and certain? I am not at all sure I would. I am glad you would find some way to compromise with the tyranny of the state, if compromise it is somehow "the lesser evil."

This is what the "silent majority" has done in Russia: what it did in Nazi Germany: what it has always done when faced with "state power." It is what the majority of American colonists did before our Revolution.

It is worth keeping in mind that throughout history it has not been the ordinary man who took a militant position against despotism: it has always been the intellectual, the creative person, the academician, the person who values the works of the mind and spirit.

If we look at contemporary Russia, we see that the poets and the students, the professors and the intellectuals who are the most outspoken in their defiance against the repression of thought, speech and action in the Soviet Union. Everybody else is just "doing his job."

In Germany, it was the great middle - classes who went along with Hitler, who felt it was "patriotic" to support Germany's expansionist policies, who refused to believe the atrocities on every side. They supported their government and thought they were being good citizens when they were being bad men.

What worries me a bit about Vice-President Agnew's intemperate attacks on dissenters is not that he disagrees with them, but that he apparently thinks they have no right to express their views. It is not that he opposes their views of the state — he has a right and a duty to oppose it — but that he seems to think we would all be better off if they, too, were silent. But a silent majority must be balanced by a clamorous minority, or the whole democratic process is doomed. What Mr. Agnew thinks of as "unity" is what Mr. Solzhenitsyn knows as moral cowardice.

Jeane Dixon's Horoscope

For November 24

Your birthday today: Aside from a tendency for period of relative crisis in which you must make a drastic change in your methods and habits, perhaps in your vocation, this should be a reasonably quiet and prosperous year for you. Use your own resources; concentrate on activities where you have all or most of the say. Romantic interests are sometimes inconvenient or difficult to pursue, but intense. Today's natives dream big dreams while remaining quite practical: Their work is generally accurate and neat.

ARIES (Mar. 21 — Apr. 19): Let others take the initiative today, and restrain your own response. Everybody plays a game of being arbitrary and challenging. Remain calm, clear-thinking.

TAURUS (Apr. 20 — May 20): Erratic people, shifting situations should not entangle you into sweeping changes. Serenity will instill things around them go on. Evening brings a new thought.

GEMINI (May 21 — June 20): Don't let emotional stress tempt you into forcing any issues now. Creative ventures thrive, if you handle the details yourself. Celebrate this evening.

CANCER (June 21 — July 22): You must grasp each passing moment of tension, excitement. Courtesy is essential. Impulsive actions may be the answer — they only pose further obstacles.

LEO (July 23 — Aug. 22): An upset in your routine is no larger a disturbance than you make of it. Some may learn something of value. Tact and patience come into full use.

VIRGO (Aug. 23 — Sept. 22): Outside conditions contain enough change now without your adding to the confusion. Take advantage of the opportunity to do something you have long planned, for the chance is fleeting.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 — Oct. 22): Your good ideas find little market. Do the best you can; plan for a better opportunity. Impatience can make you somewhat abrasive to others.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23—Nov. 21): To assume that others have as much ability as you is not single an error. Discretion regarding the facts is an absolute requisite now. Attend to health care.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 — Dec. 21): Friendships are hindered by temporary conditions, lack of communication. You may have the burden of keeping things on the right track.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 — Jan. 19): The going gets strenuous. Check for accuracy, discipline your drive so as not to provoke angry reactions. You will need co-operation later — preserve it now.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20 — Feb. 18): Pressing legal matters, religious questions have awkward distracting results. Postpone long journeys or, if you are on one, take a day of rest.

PISCES (Feb. 19 — Mar. 20): Make no unnecessary explanation or argument. Quiet listening and your intuition bring you through the day well if you work consistently at your routines.

Welcome to the Club

Retired superintendent L. A. Kells last night tossed his hat in the election ring for the first time as Belleville Mayor J. Russell Scott nominated him for a trustee's post with the school board that employed him until four months ago. Others nominated at city hall were incumbents Macdonald Smith, Everett Fairman, Nelson McKibbon, James Clarke and Miriam Graham.

Trio Held Discussion On Where Cross Held

MONTREAL (CP) — The whereabouts of kidnapped James (Jasper) Cross figured prominently Monday at an inquest into the Oct. 17 murder of Pierre Laporte, Quebec's former labor minister.

Richard Therrien, 26-year-old law student at the University of Montreal, told the inquest how a person known only as Pierre came to his apartment where four kidnap suspects were hiding Nov. 4.

Pierre's appearance, he said, precipitated divergent opinions over the whereabouts of Mr. Cross. British trade official kidnapped Oct. 5 and believed still in the hands of the captives.

Therrien said he was out of the west-end apartment during Pierre's visit Nov. 4, but he heard the visit discussed later by Paul Rose, Francis Simard and Bernard Lortie.

Lortie said Mr. Cross was in Montreal. Paul Rose said he seemed to know Pierre best, felt the victim was outside the city.

Simard often referred to the mysterious visitor as "petit Pierre" and the group felt he was above police suspicion.

Therrien said one member of the group—he could not recall who—said Mr. Cross was well-fed, had a shower at his disposal and was able to play cards.

Two French-language newspapers published Sunday one of two letters, apparently identical, from Mr. Cross. It says he is well treated.

Therrien denied any knowledge of talk by the four suspects about purchasing firearms in Texas. Earlier evidence was that Simard and the Rose brothers were in Texas when they heard of the Cross kidnapping.

On Monday, Prosecutor Jean-Guy Boisard asked Therrien if

Man Who Hanged Self Once Jailed in Quebec

LONDON (CP) — Police said today that a man found hanged in a jail cell here Sunday was wearing a name bracelet carrying the initials FLQ.

Richard Pierre Antoine Bros, 25 French-born with a Canadian passport, apparently had hanged himself from his cell bars with his twisted-up shirt a day after being arrested on a minor assault charge.

His body was found shortly before he was due to be questioned by Scotland Yard's Special Branch, evidently because of his connection with Front de Libération du Québec.

The inquest into the death of Mr. Laporte, abducted Oct. 10, continues today.

Therrien said he was out of the west-end apartment during Pierre's visit Nov. 4, but he heard the visit discussed later by Paul Rose, Francis Simard and Bernard Lortie.

Lortie said Mr. Cross was in Montreal. Paul Rose said he seemed to know Pierre best, felt the victim was outside the city.

POW Rescue Raid Fails

WASHINGTON (Reuter) — President Nixon has hung the threat of strong action over the heads of North Vietnamese leaders in Hanoi if they dare to take reprisals against U.S. prisoners-of-war in retaliation for an American rescue attempt Saturday that failed.

Defence Secretary Melvin Laird told a Pentagon news conference Monday night how U.S. helicopter assault troops penetrated to the Son Tay prison compound deep inside North Vietnam early Saturday, then left an hour later without finding any American prisoners.

Laird said the daring operation was launched on his recommendation and had the personal approval of the president.

Presidential Press Secretary Ronald Ziegler said that if any harm came to American POWs as a result of the raid, President Nixon would consider it a wilful act on the part of North Vietnam's leaders, and would hold them personally responsible.

Laird said he recommended the camp raid after receiving fresh reports that American prisoners-of-war were dying in North Vietnam.

Laird said the rescue team, led by air force Brig.-Gen. Leroy Manor and navy Cdr. Attour Simons, was comprised of

Invaders Repulsed

ABIDJAN, Ivory Coast (Reuter) — Radio Conakry announced today that foreign mercenaries tried to invade the country for a third time Monday night but again were repulsed.

The radio, monitored here, said warships carrying the mercenaries were still patrolling Guinea's offshore waters today and that the country remained in a state of alert.

It called on the population to return to work but to keep their guns by their sides.

Guinea has claimed the invasions have been made by a Portuguese-backed mercenary force, but Lisbon has categorically denied having a hand in the reported attacks.

The radio said earlier Guinean troops beat off a second mercenary assault Monday after the failure of Sunday's attack.

Guinea claims that the warships landed hundreds of mercenaries early Sunday at its capital, Conakry, and that many Guineans and a number of Europeans were killed before the invaders were driven off Monday. There was no word on casualties suffered by the invading force.

Eleven Named For City Seats

By LENNY WILLIAMSON
Staff Reporter

The bitter dispute over the suspension of separate school superintendent Fred B. Allore has spilled over into this year's elections as 11 persons were nominated last night for the five Belleville seats on the 12-member, two-county board.

Evidence of the dispute being largely a localized matter was the nomination of only five persons for the three other contested seats. Four seats in the county were filled by acclamation.

Backgrounding last night's nomination has been a series of confrontations with the board members by delegates from a Belleville ratepayers' association, briefs and public meetings.

The issue came to a head last week when Education Minister William Davis appointed Judge A. R. Campbell of Kingston to conduct a hearing under the public enquiries act.

At last night's nomination meeting at City Hall no one was admitting publicly the "Allore situation", as it has been tagged, was a factor in the decision to seek a seat on the Hastings - Prince Edward separate school board.

Four of the five incumbent trustees from Belleville were nominated — Mrs. Jean Wilson, Robert Lucy, Magr. Sullivan, Paul Wall and Chairman E. J. Buckley. Paul Mercier, the fifth incumbent trustee, stood by his declared intention of some months ago and declined to run for health reasons.

Paul Fleming, at present a separate school ratepayers' representative - at - large on the Hastings County board of education, was nominated as both Belleville representative - at - large for the public school board and as a candidate for the separate school board. He decided to run for the separate school position.

The remaining five running for election are John F. Granville, a history teacher at Prince Edward Collegiate Institute; Zdenek Kvarda, who resigned last week from Belleville and Suburban Planning Board to contest the separate school seat; James H. Wiseman, a technician at Ontario Hydro; John Joseph Chapelle, a 19-year- employee of the CNR; and Gerard F. Brennan, Belleville parks board secretary.

Some interesting conjectures developed by the time nominations had closed.

James Tobin, spokesman for ratepayers' delegations appearing before the board to inquire into the "Allore situation" was widely rumored to be standing for election. His name was not put up for nomination, but he nominated Mr. Brennan.

Robert Lucy, who with Magr. Sullivan was named by Mr. Allore as the two men who supported him during his pre-suspension conflicts with the board, nominated board chairman Buckley for election and seconded the nomination of Paul Wall. Mr. Wall and Mr. Buckley were named by Mr. Allore as two members of the "three-man power - clique" who engineered his suspension.

Mr. Lucy was nominated by Mr. Wall and his seconder was John J. Sherlock, manager of plant for the board.

Belleville Mayor J. Russell Scott and Ald. Arthur Rowse, who had earlier given public support to candidates for the public school board, said they would "remain neutral" in the separate school election.

"I can't vote, so I must remain neutral," the mayor said when asked whom he supported in the election to the separate school board. Mr. Keegan echoed his sentiments.

"I'm their mayor, but I can't comment on an election in which I have no vote," said Mayor Scott, a public school ratepayer.

Ten of the 11 candidates qualified before leaving City Hall last night. Only Magr. Sullivan, who did not appear at council chambers during the nomination meeting, indicated this morning that he intended to qualify before the 5.30 deadline tonight.

Helicopter Pilot and Gunner Rescued Massacre Survivors

FORT BENNING, Ga. (AP) — A helicopter pilot and his gunner have testified that they saw piled-up civilian bodies at My Lai, a U.S. soldier firing into a ditch with South Vietnamese in it, and an unidentified captain shoot a wounded woman.

Lieut. Hugh Thompson, 27, of Decatur, Ga., and his gunner, Lawrence Colburn, 20, of Auburn, Wash., said they saw bodies of elderly men, women and children in a ditch along with some South Vietnamese who were still alive.

Both told of the unidentified captain shooting a South Vietnamese woman lying wounded in a rice paddy, and of "unburying" a young child, unhurt, from a pile of slaughtered bodies in the ditch.

The two witnesses said they got little or no help from American ground troops in rescuing surviving South Vietnamese March 16 1968, when Calley is charged with murdering 102 civilians.

Colburn, cited as dungaree and an admitted marijuana user, told of seeing bodies along a trail near the ill-fated hamlet, in rice paddies and in a ditch.

Colburn said they landed their helicopter and the crew airlifted about 15 South Vietnamese civilians out of the area.

Under cross-examination by Richard Kay, one of Calley's civilian lawyers, Colburn was asked whether he saw any ground troops kill any people that day. He replied:

"Yes I did, in an area just south of the village."

He said he saw a woman lying in a rice paddy.

"She was wounded in the stomach and chest. I saw a man with captain's bars on his shoulders turn her over with his foot and shoot her."

Canadian Pakistan Relief Fills Need

By KENNETH SMITH
staff Reporter

TRENTON — A Canadian Forces pilot just back from the East Pakistan disaster area said here yesterday that a report in Thursday's Intelligencer from Ottawa, that "Pakistan's aid did not want U.S. helicopters from Vietnam" because they were machines of war, is

Capt. Frank White mentioned the possible anti-war charge during his address to the Trenton yesterday on a Boeing 707 aircraft, the advance plane in Canada's relief efforts.

The pilot said that British marines were there Sunday, aiding in the shuttling of supplies in the disaster. Seven Four British helicopters were at Dacca, he said.

Eight British choppers were brought into the area by the aircraft carrier Triumph, one of aircraft carrier Intrepid. Two American helicopters have been brought in from Nepal.

The Pakistani airforce is using three Hercules transports at Dacca and Chittagong, eight planes doing spot checks for locate concentrations of survivors, Capt. White explained.

When the Canadian Forces 707 arrived in Dacca 6 a.m. Sunday, it was ringed by Pakistani soldiers with bamboo sweepbrooms to keep away crowds on the tarmac.

Dacca airport, 48 miles from the delta inland where the disaster struck, has one 8,000 ft. runway and a large hangar similar to the Hangar 7 at Trenton base, Capt. White said.

Moncton, the captain said.

Cargo loading is efficient, they he explained, because R R is a centre for PIA (Pakistan International Airways)

The Faulkner house with its approximately 8,000 sq. feet of floor space would be adequate to house the Couldery collection as well as other displays owned by the society.

Mr. Foley said that Hastings county would also be approached to help underwrite the purchase price of the house.

However, he said, the house could be purchased by the city from assets of the Salesman estate without cost to Belleville taxpayers.

Mrs. Foley said that Mrs. Faulkner, owner of the house, is presently enrolled in a considerable sacrifice because of her interest.

The appraisal of the house would be $45,000. The cost of establishing it as a museum is estimated at $13,000 to which would be added another figure of approximately $13,000 for remodelling and alterations to the total of $77,000.

The federal government will contribute 50 per cent of $22,500 toward the purchase price of the house, leaving the city cost in the city of $54,000.

Committee to Consider Buying Faulkner House

A special committee of city council has been appointed to consider a brief from the Hastings County Historical Society recommending purchase of the Phillipps Faulkner house on East Bridge Street as a museum.

Committee members appointed by Mayor J. Russell Scott are Aldermen Gerald Ngon as chairman with Aldermen Rona David and Bas Corke as members.

The recommendation of the historical society is that the Faulkner residence (known as Glenmore House) be purchased and renovated for use as a museum.

Frank Foley, vice-president of the historical society and president of the society brief to council, noted that the present museum on Church Street was only temporary and new quarters would have to be found.

He said that new and larger quarters were necessary to properly house the Couldery Collection of arms and militare bequeathed to the city from the Salesman Estate in England.

This valuable collection had been "kicking around" the city for the past 13 years, he said.

City to Buy New Pumper

City council yesterday approved the purchase of a new pumper to cost an estimated $36,000 to take the place of an old piece of equipment which was purchased in 1948.

But the old pumper is in need of costly repairs — including a new motor — and other parts are no longer available.

Fire Chief Les Colborne in a report to council, said the motor in the pumper had been replaced at 127,000 "engine miles" and the present motor had logged another 100,000 miles.

The truck to be purchased will have a slightly greater capacity than the present pumper which will be kept as a "spare".

army and air force personnel. The strike was carried out at 2 a.m. Saturday - Vietnam time with the hope of rescuing a considerable number of the 378 American known to be in North Vietnam.

Laird said the Son Tay compound was located about 25 miles west of Hanoi. The raid was launched just before 200 American planes hit Communist targets just below the 19th parallel, about 150 miles south of Hanoi.

Laird said that while carrier jets dropped flares near the coast to divert North Vietnamese attention, the would-be rescuers went into the compound.

The first helicopter crash-landed inside the prison compound and was intentionally destroyed. The raiders, including some army Green Berets, destroyed the guard tower. Other helicopters [illegible] Every building was searched and the locks broken on the detention cells, but no prisoners were found. Resistance was light.

"We caught them completely by surprise," he said [illegible] adding that the raiders suffered but one casualty—a man wounded by rifle fire. Everyone got out safely, he said.

Manor said in reply to questions that there was no evidence the evacuation resulted from an intelligence leak. He believed the camp had been evacuated several weeks earlier.

Ivan Bell and Family Honored at Big Dinner

PICTON (Staff) — Prince Edward County agricultural representative Ivan Bell, his wife Barbara and their children Robert and Susan were guests of honor at a dinner sponsored by local farm organizations at PECI Friday night.

A buffet supper served in the PECI cafeteria was followed by programs of presentations in the school auditorium. Guest speaker, Rev. Robert Stewart, of the Church of St. Mary Magdalene, remarked that Mr. Bell was "a rather quiet person who, in his own quiet way, has exercised wisdom, judgement and very effective guidance to the community."

Rev. Stewart was joined on the auditorium stage by Norris Whitney, MPP Prince Edward - Lennox; Prince Edward County Reeve Percy Parsons; Dorothy Parks, Ontario Dairy Princess Dianne Gunning, Hastings County and PEC representatives from farm organizations throughout Prince Edward County.

The Bell family was called to the stage and a bouquet of roses was presented to Mrs. Bell by Clayton Lockyer, a member of the Prince Edward County Agricultural Society.

A table of gifts from the local farm groups was then presented to Mr. and Mrs. Bell, Robert and Susan.

Among those presentations was a painting by Prince Edward County artist Frank Johnson. A silde projector was also among the gifts.

Mr. Bell expressed his thanks to the conveners of this social evening and commented upon the co-operation he has received from Prince Edward County Agricultural Society, County Committee of Agriculture and ARDA Committee and several other related groups.

He noted that 40 per cent of Canada's working force is in the fields of agriculture and related industries. Only one per cent of Prince Edward's farm units have been 25 years of age, according to the last census, and only nine per cent were between 25 and 34 years of age.

The agricultural representative said that 25 per cent of this county's farmers are over 60 years of age, while 13 per cent fall in the 55-59 group.

"This is a real challenge and opportunity for our young people," he said.

At the close of his remarks, Mr. Bell suggested that more market research and better promotion will be needed in future for successful farming.

VON Takes First Step Toward Amalgamation

The Belleville and Trenton Branches of the Victorian Order of Nurses came one step closer to amalgamation last night when members of the Belleville Branch voted in favor of an amalgamation agreement and appropriate bylaws.

The Trenton Branch is scheduled to meet Wednesday night in Trenton to consider the agreement and bylaws, a favor or against the proposed unification.

Amalgamation has been discussed at times for the past four years during VON meetings but this is the first occasion that the decision to unite has been acted upon seriously.

During last night's meeting at the Belleville Family YMCA, VON director Grant Harrison explained some of the reasons behind the decision to work towards amalgamation, out lined the agreement, and spoke of necessary new bylaws.

Mr. Harrison said there would be less duplication in management as a result.

He added that there would be more flexibility for the movement of staff with the cancellation of present boundaries. There would also be more efficiency and therefore better service and travelling would be more efficient.

The regional supervisor of the VON would also work with one staff instead of two and there would be a decrease in expenses as, for example, the present two nurses in charge would be reduced to one.

The purpose of last night's meeting was to seek out the objections of the membership and the general public, but no serious objections were heard.

The new branch of the VON, should Trenton also agree to the amalgamation, will be called the Quinte Branch, with headquarters located in Belleville.

Reginald Nourse Is Laid to Rest

REGINALD E. NOURSE, QC

PICTON (Staff) — Funeral services for the late Reginald Eldridge Nourse, QC were conducted this afternoon in Picton United Church with Rev. R Sherwin officiating.

The prominent lawyer who had practised law in Picton for more than 40 years, died in Kingston General Hospital last Saturday from a heart sickness. He was 71 years of age.

Mr. Nourse graduated in Arts from Victoria College of the University of Toronto in 1922. In 1925 he graduated from Osgoode Hall and School of Law and was called to the Bar of Ontario in that year. He arrived in Picton to practise law on Jan. 1, 1926, entering the practice of the late R. M. Young, KC. and Mr. Young's death the young lawyer continued alone in this law office. While in some ways he conducted a general practice Mr. Nourse was considered a specialist — a trial court lawyer and an advocate. At his death a colleagues remarked that Mr. Nourse was in his area the last on afflicted and 'colorful' member of the Bar.

Mr. Nourse is survived by his wife the former Kathleen May Platt and four daughters, Barbara (Mrs. Gerald Prentice), RRI, Picton, Betty (Mrs. Ben Chrisant), RR3, Picton, Dorothy (Mrs. Roy Wight), RR4, Picton, and Doreen (Mrs. Walter Wilson), RR3, Picton. Three brothers, Edward M. Nourse and Wallace Nourse both of Whitcomb Herbert Nourse all of Toronto, also survive with one sister Mrs. Alice Mills, Mrs. Sinclair Robertson and Mrs. Donald McCrone, Toronto.

Active bearers for Mr. Nourse were colleagues Wilfred Lee, Harold McLaughlin, Douglas Walmsley, Robert Walmsley, Jack Ward and Malcolm McFarland.

Honorary bearers included Mayor and Mrs. Harold Cassidy, County Warden Gordon Lloyd, County Clerk Thomas Walker, Sheriff Richard Gallow, Crown Attorney Richard Sheehy, Judge W. S. Lane, Judge J. C. Anderson, Walter Williams, QC, Toronto, Dr. C. S. Slack and Jack Graydon, Interment was in Glenwood Cemetery.

ERNEST ALEXANDER LeSAGE
(Tweed)

Requiem Mass for Ernest Alexander LeSage of Tweed was held Tuesday, Nov. 17, in St. Carthage's Catholic Church in Tweed. Mass was celebrated by Rev. Father Murphy, Rev. Peter Murphy and Rev. Terry Boyle, the latter giving the Eulogy. The acolytes were Brian and Raymond Murphy.

Pallbearers at the ceremony were Rev. C Baker, Rev. C. Groenewegen, Rev. R. Burns, Rev. C. LeSage, Rev. J. Granger, Rev. J. McGillivray, Rev. W. Hamilton, Rev. L. Byrne, Rev. G. Byrne and Msgr. J. F. Sullivan. Sisters of Providence were also in attendance.

Interment was in St. Carthagh's Cemetery in Tweed.

The bearers were Walt Hollister, a son-in-law; and sons, James, Donald, Michael, Terrance and Ernest LeSage.

Mr. LeSage died Sunday, Nov. 15 at his residence. He was in his 68th year.

Born in Otter Creek, he was the son of the late Mr. and Mrs. Mitchell LeSage. Mr. LeSage farmed until 1929 when he became a partner in LeSage Motor Sales and he formed a company later called LeSage Brothers Ltd. which he helped to operate until his retirement in 1965.

He was a member of St. Carthaugh's Catholic Church in Tweed.

Blasts Critics

Harvey McFarland's Candidacy Uncertain

By MARGARET HAYLOCK
Staff Reporter

PICTON (Staff) — Picton mayor Harvey J. McFarland surprised ratepayers during a nomination meeting at Queen Elizabeth school last night with a speech denouncing his critics, emphasized by a refusal to state whether he will oppose councillor Margaret Ackerman in her bid for the mayoralty.

"The one who puts my shoes on their feet will have a job to do and God bless them, for they will have to have their purses with them at all times," declared the mayor after Mrs. Ackerman had qualified her nomination.

A former councillor now completing her first term of office, Mrs. Ackerman stressed the need for "new ideas and fresh approaches". She confessed that she could not visualize heavy industry in Picton but felt it could locate in surrounding municipalities.

The councillor remarked: "I feel Picton will develop commercially and become the hub of the county."

Mayor McFarland later replied in his address, "I heard Mrs. Ackerman say we need new blood and she is 46 years old — I'd like to tell you I'm Jack Benny's age." He then added: "If you are lucky enough to be elected anyone, little girl, God knows what lies ahead of you. If you want industry you have to wine and dine it."

Mayor McFarland outlined several projects he had personally financed for Picton, ians during his years in office and challenged: "I never been asked for anything I didn't give?"

Mayor McFarland recalled that he has never accepted a salary during his 39 years in office and makes more than 500 trips annually on the town's behalf without charge to ratepayers.

He urged voters to realize that today Picton is recognized provincially, federally, and even abroad.

He criticized the lack of communication between town and county councils which prevented help from being given when Prince Edward industrial commissioner William Duggan was hired and demanded "Why wasn't our finance committee brought up to date? I don't know his (Mr. Duggan's) salary or whether he has a contract."

The mayor noted that the town pays 30.8 per cent of the industrial commissioner's salary and said it was unfair to Mr. Duggan that he has not been formally introduced at a dinner with all municipal officials present.

He reminded ratepayers that $45 million of industry has located here in the past 15 years and related the part he recently played in the conversion of the former Camp Picton to hospital facilities.

"You go back to the day I became mayor and ask that God I could do something," he suggested.

Mayor McFarland told ratepayers that 30 years ago a bicycle with two flat tires represented transportation for town police constables.

"Who holds the office for the police?" he questioned.

He declared, "There are a bunch of doctors — crooners in this town and we all know who they are." Mayor McFarland then described his own accident which provoked criticism of his wife but he said said that he had "taken alone" in his efforts to bring industry into the town. He referred to a strike at the Proctor - Silex plant in Picton, now called the Proctor-Lewyt plant. "I got bombed and my wife was called on the telephone by crackpots at all hours."

"Here Mrs. Ackerman, I do hope you have at least 10 phones in your house" the mayor said, as he concluded his remarks about the persistent telephone critics.

Speeches by several council candidates last night emphasized a lack of industry in Picton and stressed that the town's youth, educated at a high cost to taxpayers, is leaving the community because there are no jobs available. "Your children leave town," said the mayor "but there are some that wouldn't work if they had an opportunity and you know it."

Mayor McFarland told the ratepayers that he had heard of "so many things that haven't happened" since he has been mayor. He showed out several printed pages advertising the achievements in Picton's interests during the past two decades and invited anyone interested to read about them. "You can contradict it if you want but it's all been in the press," he observed.

Mayor McFarland also asked for a one minute silence in memory of the late Reginald Nisbet, town solicitor, commenting: "When Mr. Nourse walked into that council chamber we knew we had a man offering judgment to the best of his ability and felt we were in good hands."

Mayor McFarland spoke emphatically when he recounted his illness. "My heart is with each and everyone of the boys but had there are a lot I wouldn't wipe my feet on." He stamped the stage with this remark then added, "I've given all I have and done all that is in my power." He left the auditorium after saying that he had not made a decision about running against Mrs. Ackerman. Mayor McFarland must qualify his nomination by 9 p.m. tonight.

Consumers Will Get Action Accountants Told

Legislenate consumer complaints will be made by members of the Quinte Chapter of the Society of Industrial Accountants, were assured at a recent meeting.

Members of the society and their wives heard Charles Hodgins, consumer consultant and James Kokesh, regional manager of the Ontario Regional Bureau of Consumer Affairs.

Protective legislation was outlined, and Mrs. Hodgins indicated she has written to us on complaints by consulting with the manufacturers and in some cases by amending legislation.

At the meeting Dec. 7, M. Sotenbury, CA will address the members on internal - external auditing.

Lineup for Election

The line formed up from the left promptly at 7.30 p.m. Monday as aspiring school trustees signed their nomination papers at city hall. Miss June Gerow of city hall staff received the forms from first cougars L. A. Kells, Everett Fairman, Paul Fleming and James Wiseman.

Council OKs Big Jobs In Five-minute Session

Council approval for major expenditure items sometimes gets the official okay in quicker time than some minor contentious matter.

Such was the case yesterday when city council gave the go-ahead for construction of the proposed Sidney Street overhead bridge, and also for construction of a new northwest Belleville storm drainage system.

Council approved that the new Sidney Street bridge over the CNR double tracks be carried out under one contract instead of under two.

The estimated cost of the work, including structure, roadwork, sewer and watermain relocations and property acquisition is estimated at $1,190,000 of which the city's share would be $596,400.

The northwest storm drainage system calls for a storm sewer to be constructed from the Moira River across the North College Hill district to a point 900 feet west of North Front Street.

Cost of the work is now estimated at $550,000, or a figure slightly higher than amount included in the city's capital works quota.

But City Manager J. R. Reynolds said he was hopeful the work would get approval from the Ontario Municipal Board as the municipality was being relieved of the capital cost of the new Moira River sanitary sewer which is now to be constructed by the Ontario Water Resources Commission.

It was Alderman Enos David who referred to the speed with which the two projects had been okayed by council.

"We have approved in the past five minutes, work which will cost the city more than a million dollars," he said.

But in fairness, a lot of groundwork had been done before the projects came to council for final approval.

The Sidney Street bridge has been before council for at least three years, while the north end storm sewer installation was included in this year's capital works program.

BANCROFT (Staff)—Reeve Jack Brown, who has headed municipal council here for 10 years, last night was acclaimed for another term.

For the deputy reeveship incumbent Earl Hawley already has qualified while a former deputy reeve, Mrs. Audrey Scannell also was nominated for the post.

Other nominations: Council (three to be elected) — J. S. Hattin, R. M. Hawley, Mrs. Rae Carswell, William Coffey, Thomas O'Malley, Fred Brotherton.

POC — B. W. Easton, W. E. Landry (acclamation).

Nomination Tomorrow

Sidney Township will hold its nomination meeting tomorrow night in the Sidney offices at 7.30 p.m.

Nominations will be held for the positions of reeve, deputy-reeve and three councillors.

Data Available Alderman Claims

The Ontario Department of Highways already has the necessary information respecting traffic to make a decision with respect to a new high-level bridge over the Bay of Quinte to Bronk.

This is the claim of Alderman E. A. Orr as he commented on a letter from Highways Minister George E. Gomme indicating that before a new bridge could be considered the department must have more factual information about peak periods of road and water traffic.

Mr. Gomme said to obtain the necessary data an on-site investigation would be necessary with next summer as the earliest opportune period.

But Alderman Orr says the highways department already has the traffic count information either in Toronto or at the Port Hope district office.

Also, he said, a weekly report on boat traffic at the bridge is provided by federal authorities.

Quinte area municipalities have been campaigning for a new high-level bridge between Belleville and Trenton for several years, but the highways minister feels that the present bridge is adequate for some years.

But local council members are not taking no for an answer and have asked for a meeting with highway department officials.

The Lake Ontario Regional Development Council has arranged for such a meeting for Wednesday night at the Shrine Club when Quinte area municipal councils and government officials will be invited to discuss the bridge question.

Thurlow Reeve Is Unopposed

Mr. Casey was the only man nominated for the position of reeve as more than 75 Thurlow residents turned out for the nomination meeting last night.

Gordon Forsythe, present deputy-reeve and Garnet Denyes, a councillor, were both nominated for deputy-reeve, but Mr. Denyes withdrew his nomination in favor of Mr. Forsythe.

Mr. Denyes was also nominated for councillor as were present councillors Fletcher Reid and Donald McKeown.

Mr. Denyes and Mr. Reid signed their qualification papers.

Mr. McKeown's fellow council nominees, Walter Hamilton, and Gerald Masterson, bat yet to sign.

Milford Walker, Thurlow's representative on the Hastings County Board of Education, was the only nomination for the school board and is therefore elected by acclamation.

Society Gone Soft?

Are things tougher at school today than they were in the era of the little red schoolhouse?

It is a more complex society all right. The easier communications of our day, the increasing time spent in travel and away from home, the consequential decline in family ties, the spectre of what sociologists and psychologists conjure up in the word "alienation," all these and other developments make it in many ways a more difficult world within which to cope.

What "other developments," it may be asked. Declining discipline comes to mind, and the increasing permissiveness which goes with it. Adult hypocrisy is another cited by the young and of course there is the widespread dissatisfaction with specific issues like the war in Vietnam. But then, that conflict appears to be slackening, at long last, and although we would not care to predict that this state of affairs will be maintained, it does remove to some extent one source of friction between youth and the establishment as represented by say the Nixon administration or by the Premier or the Pentagon.

Unfortunately that does not erase the godless political concepts and the mindless anarchy of the Communists — the Maoists, the New Left and all the rest of them — among today's generation. One thing, it does make the need for free men to fight their evil philosophy wherever it presents itself. As in Quebec, where according to Senator Paul Desruisseau many expatriate educators from other countries have found "easy grounds for preaching their doctrines and personal philosophy outside of their assigned courses."

* * *

But to get back to our original question whether life is harder for the young today. We do not think so; circumstances have changed out of all recognition, yes, and man has set foot on the moon. We are assured also that finding a job is much more difficult for young people. For one thing there is a paper need for specific skills, particularly in the scientific and technological spheres. But then having acquired such skills the young aspirant to a position may find available jobs scarce and competition for them stiff. Yet, should that not increase his determination? And how do we account for the defeatist, even spineless attitude of some sections of our young. Why do they turn to drugs, for example? As if that makes things any easier. The main reason, a young man said in a recent letter to The Brantford Expositor, "is school pressure." He pointed out that while the adult working world was being abortened students' seemed to be getting longer — four days less holiday for instance, this Christmas. Many students, he said, "find school work pressure unbearable, and turn to drugs as a release."

That there are other means of release, within the competence and ability and moral stability of the mind, seems to escape this youth and others like him. Luis Carlos Galan of Colombia, at 27 the world's youngest Minister of Education, put it this way recently: "Young people react differently to the crisis facing contemporary society. Some behave rationally, others take to drugs or escapism. ALL ARE AFRAID TO FACE THE PROBLEMS OF THE WORLD . . ." He spoke of the death of individual conscience and the birth of a new collective conscience and we are reminded of the words of Irish writer St. John Ervine, that the mob "is a weak and brainless thing," and that all concepts for human progress and betterment take place in the mind of the individual.

* * *

It is indeed the death of individualism and the rise of the collective mob society that we must fear today, whether on the university campus, on the streets or in the secret and pernicious growth of organizations like the FLQ. As for individualism, and raw physical and moral courage it is not quite dead. It is still alive among the vast silent majority, in men like Warren Harding, 46 and Dean Caldwell 27, who have just climbed the sheer face of Yosemite Park's El Capitan peak. Afterwards they sipped champagne on the peak. A drug? Maybe, but men of this calibre do not blow their minds on champagne, or anything else. They just know how to live and if we do not all subscribe to this sort of hazardous adventure we can still admire their grit and determination.

FLQ Threat May Necessitate Changes

Arrest and Bail Bill Remains Controversial Measure

By RICHARD JACKSON

OTTAWA — Justice Minister John Turner, still the White Knight of the Cabinet and first in line, should Prime Minister Pierre Trudeau ever surprisingly abdicate, at the door of the East Block, Ottawa, is re-introducing his bully - controversial Arrest and Bail Bill.

The legislation, which set its ruggedly disputed appearance at the last session, died on the Commons floor when Parliament recessed for three November months.

Now it is due back on the floor, and in very substantially the same widely debatable form.

For his office and the Justice Department alike insist that any changes — "if there are any at all," to quote Turner's own words, "will be only very inconsequential, extremely minor."

To all legal intents and purposes it will be the same Bill.

The Justice Minister, known, and in no joking way either, as the Big Stick of the Government which in itself is pretty, unlikely, seems to have forgotten that he unveiled his Arrest and Bail Bill last September — or, rather, very heavily so. Turner, individual rights which a great many people have still prove to be criminal Rights.

But the Justice Minister, who stood June stars in his eyes, argues it will allow the cop on the beat and the judge on the bench to be more "human" and fairer, and therefore the way he sees it, more helpful to the public eye.

Under the Bill, the 'beat policeman will have "a duty" not to arrest anyone without a warrant 'whenever he can reasonably avoid doing so.

Instead, he will present the suspect a sort of summons, requiring a court appearance on a specified date.

These instruments — not unlike traffic tickets — will be handed to suspected housebreakers, thieves, bank drivers, pornographers, fraud-men and con-artists, rioters and you — treat it right there in the beat.

Every suspected criminal will be accorded the courtesy of what amounts to an invitation to appear in court, presumably remaining at liberty, except those up against the most serious of crimes such as murder, treason, sabotage and a few other lesser offences.

"A police officer shall not arrest a person without a warrant . . . where he has reasonable and probable grounds to believe that the public interest may be secured by proceeding otherwise."

If he confines an arrest, he had better have a solidly documented, legally hole-proof reason or, under the terms of the Bill, risk a civil action later.

If, on the other hand, he pays it safe and issues a summons to his suspect, he had better be as solidly sure that the man will show for trial, that meanwhile the evidence will not be destroyed or that another crime will not be committed.

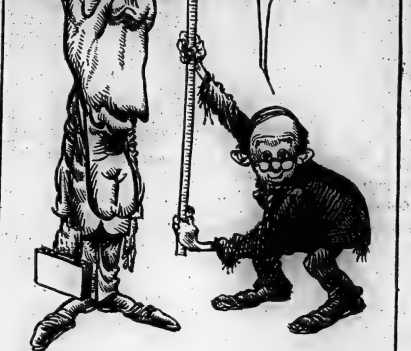
For if any of those, and other things happen, he will be on the departmental carpet with a rap on the fist.

The Bill has other jokers — as the police see it — like new bail procedures.

Just one example: It will be the general rule of police procedure that bail be granted an accused charged on the undertaking to show up in court at the appointed time.

In other words, bail to be the word. No money down, just a promise to appear before the Judge.

This Bill, when first presented back in the dying days of an unlamented June, rubbed such eyebrows even then that the Justice Minister found it advisable to attach some sop-like civilian club platforms with the assurance that, to quote him: "We are not going soft on crime."



It was all happening, he explained, in the name of reform.

But June is not November.

And it is not even the same Canada any more. Not since the FLQ ushered in an early winter of cold terror. And who knows, this year, it will be a Spring again.

The Justice Minister, though, is not going to make a really meaningful like of it.

But perhaps Parliament, under public pressure, may change it for him.

Identity Cards

Montreal Gazette —

The only grounds advanced for compulsory identification cards, bearing fingerprints and the photograph of the bolder, is that they would help the police. This is not enough. The onus should always be on the police to make their case. They can always ask a citizen to identify himself. If the identification is withheld or he protests, they go to the means to pursue their investigations. That should be quite enough.

Most of us carry some form of identification — a driver's license, a credit card. All of us should be able to establish our identities to the satisfaction of the police. Quite apart from the practical and constitutional difficulties that a compulsory identification card creates, what about, for example, the visitor from outside the province? — the international or state motorist is also entitled to be treated with courtesy.

Canadian Economy Pursues A Perilous Course

Winnipeg Free Press

The Canadian economy is moving into a hard winter, for reasons of its own making and reasons beyond its control. Unemployment and prices will be high, economic growth low, social tensions acute and politics more than usually troubled. It is inevitable, therefore, that the government will be increasingly pressed to end a business recession and somehow launch a new boom by a cure ultimately worse than the disease.

But nothing that government can possibly do through fiscal and monetary policies will quickly change the climate, because such policies, whether inflationary or deflationary, take time to work — a minimum of six months at least, and generally longer. This autumn, for example, the economy is feeling the brakes applied by the government about a year ago. In accordance with the same timelag, the easier policies now beginning — the switch of the federal budget from surplus to deficit and the large expansion of the money supply — will not show their basic results in the economy as a whole before next summer at the earliest, though they may help some groups during the winter.

The Economic Council of Canada, in the more polite official language of its latest report, says in the government's ears "told you so." Certainly the council argued, earlier in the year, that the government's brakes would take hold in the autumn and they have. But the council fails to tell the government what would have happened to prices if the brakes had not been applied. No one knows exactly, of course, but there is no question that the annual rate of price increase, now running below three per cent (which is still very high) would have been far higher.

Another vital fact should not be forgotten: The Canadian economy, sluggish in most areas is mainly supported today, and as a whole remains prosperous, by the great exporting industries. And Canada's massive, record-breaking exports this year would not have occurred if inflation had not been kept at a lower rate here than those of its foreign customers. Thus one result of the government's policies has been a huge export boom.

For all these reasons and others, the nation now faces a critical turning point. The Prices and Incomes Commission fully understands this fact, and its chairman, Dr. John Young, is desperately trying to prevent a future for the worse. His immediate fear was that labour, having agreed at the beginning of the year to keep its price increase below its cost increases, would refuse to renew an unprecedented undertaking when labor refused to accept any wage restraint whatever.

Apparently, however, business in general will maintain its self-denying ordinance for some time anyhow while labor will renew this year's wage demands next year and as long into the future as it can. The outlook for profits, already fallen drastically, is bleak in all but a few fortunately - placed industries and so, as a consequence, is the outlook for the enormous capital investment required to create new jobs and reduce unemployment.

As if the internal situation were not daunting enough, it is greatly worsened by conditions in the United States, which buys the bulk of Canadian exports and supplies most of its imported capital. The American price level has been increasing roughly twice as rapidly as the Canadian, the American unemployment rate a little less rapidly but by no means close to the line of political tolerance. The economic dilemma next door is complicated by many strikes and a heavy loss of production, the strike in General Motors alone affecting the massive economy and, incidentally, its future appetite for Canadian goods.

Where does all this leave the Canadian government? In a tight bind, obviously. Its only practical hope of escaping worse business conditions and higher unemployment, on the other hand, and another outburst of inflation on the other, not long hence, is a sharp reduction in the rate of wage increases. There is no sign of this yet, despite Prime Minister Trudeau's blunt warnings and Dr. Young's diligence.

Unfortunately neither of them has been able to persuade the labor unions in the most obvious fact of all — that the wage-cost push is fuelling accounting economic growth, increasing unemployment and hurting not labor alone but aged but also the work force as a whole. In such a situation, something is bound to give.

The alternatives now plainly before the Royal American economy are a belated change of mind in the labor unions; lacking that choice, stagnation or growth, or no growth, with high unemployment; a higher rate of inflation deliberately engineered by government, with temporary stimulation and then a worse slump when goods are priced out of domestic and foreign markets; or a resort to the final and, for more than a brief emergency period, unworkable remedy of direct state controls.

'Dick Ellis Rink' Is Official Name

Belleville city council by majority vote, yesterday went along with a special committee recommendation to name the new West Belleville covered ice surface the "Dick Ellis Rink."

A week ago the special committee voted to recommend to council that the new facility on Harder Drive be named after the late Richard Ellis, former city alderman and long-time supporter of minor sports in the city.

But local minor sports organizations as well as a few council members don't approve of the name.

The sports organizations favored "Richard Ellis Youth Centre," and this name also had the approval of Alderman Bea Carter and Robin Jeffrey.

But Mayor J. Russell Scott said the late Mr. Ellis was generally known as "Dick", Ellis.

"Also the citizens voted down a community centre, so there is no way that we can suggest that this is centre complex," he said.

West City Area To Get Hydrant

Residents of Pepper and Tripp Avenues in West Belleville who until now have been dependent upon wells for their domestic water supply are going to get a temporary water hydrant installed.

But at the same time they will be asked to petition for installation of permanent water mains.

The problem of water supply in the area was brought to council some weeks ago when it was noted that wells in the area were going bad. At the time council was to ask the public utilities to install a temporary hydrant.

Yesterday a letter from the PUC indicated the necessary materials for the water hydrant was on order and would be installed as soon as they were received.

Candidates May Appeal To Labor

Candidates seeking the support of organized labor in upcoming local elections are invited to address the Quinte District Labor Council Thursday night in Trenton.

The meeting, open to the public, will be held at the Canadian Legion Hall starting at 7:30 p.m.

The council at recent meetings has heard appeals for support from several candidates. It endorsed the appeals of two union members — Councillor George Greer of Trenton and William Menzies, Trenton - area trustee on the Hastings and Prince Edward Separate School Board.

However, the council was reluctant to widen its official support of candidates until last night's nomination meetings throughout the district clarified the local election scene.

Recital Saturday

Student musicians will take the limelight this Saturday night when the Registered Music Teachers Association presents a recital in recognition of Canada Music Week which began Sunday and runs until this Sunday.

The recital will feature the students of approximately 25 teachers belonging to the local branch of the association which encompasses Picton, Tweed, Belleville and Stirling.

The recital will feature the public, begins at 7:30 Saturday at Sir Winston Churchill Public School. There will be a small admission charge to assist the association's scholarship fund.

401 Closed At London

TORONTO (CP) — Highway 401 near London, Ont. was closed off today as raging snowstorms covered a good portion of southwestern Ontario.

Provincial police at London said more than 300 vehicles were reader deep and stuck in snow about 14 miles east of London and rural area schools were closed. Twenty inches of snow had fallen by 8 a.m. in London.

"We're telling motorists to stay away from the area," said an OPP spokesman. "There's no way they're going to get through until some time this afternoon.

Other areas of the province were also hard hit.

The department of transport in Toronto said the ski country around Collingwood had received about 18 inches by 8 a.m. as storms lashed into the eastern shores of Lake Huron.

The department of highways reported that all highways were passable except the 401 and county roads in the London area.

DIDN'T ASK

FREDERICKSBURG, Va. (AP) — Municipal Court Judge A. Wilson Embrey Jr. acquitted 65-year-old Gordon Wallace Shelton Jr. of failing to stop for a red light after the defendant explained that he couldn't stop because his wife was in pursuit. Shelton did not say why he was being chased, and the judge didn't ask.

Tenants to Move in Friday To Province-supplied Homes

Tenants this weekend will commence moving into the Pine Street "geared to income" rental housing on Pine Street it was learned today.

William James, local representative for Ontario Housing said that a few families — possibly as many as half a dozen — would start moving in on Friday and Saturday, following official opening ceremonies on Thursday afternoon.

The 91 units in the City of Belleville were built by the provincial government under an agreement whereby the federal government loans to the province the majority of the funds through Central Mortgage and Housing Corporation.

The city shares only in the operating cost of the projects, to the extent of advertising 7½ per cent of any deficit.

Assisting Mayor J. Russell Scott and a representative of Ontario Housing to officially cut the ribbon will be Mrs. Margaret Gannon, widow with several children, and Mr. and Mrs. Herbert Moon, parents of nine children, among the first tenants for the housing complex.

The first tenants will be in by the weekend but Mr. James noted that the prospective tenants have to give a month's notice at the present accommodation and most would not move until some time in December.

Rollins Construction is still completing landscaping and paving at the North Park Street low rental housing project and Mr. James says these units will not be available until some time next month.

Official openings are also scheduled for the North Park Street housing and also for the two senior citizens' complexes — one on Bridge Street opposite the fairgrounds and the other on Turnbull Street.

Despite hopes that the two senior citizens complexes might be ready earlier, these are not now expected to be completed until the new year.

They'll Tax Anything!

LONDON, Ont. (CP) — Even though Canadians hit the federal government of about $1 billion each year in taxes, says the director of investigations for the department of national revenue, the government goes to great lengths to get moneys owed in taxes.

James Gourlay told a meeting of the Chartered Accountants Association Monday of an instance in which a man on the West Coast who ran a $258,000 "red light business" was sent to jail for two years.

The revenue department looked after outlays of money for the operation while the man was in jail, he said. "For God's sake don't say the federal government ran the operation. We just looked after the outlay of money so the Crown could get its money owing."

He offered a few suggestions for anyone wishing to beat the government on taxes:

"Don't have a business partner; don't have any employees; don't have a wife; don't have a mistress; don't drink; don't spend any money; and don't die "because we will sure as hell get you then."

More Cheese In Dairy Show

After hitting a low a couple of years ago, entries in the British Empire Dairy Show are starting to creep back up again.

This year entries in the cheese show now being judged in the former Intelligencer business office at 102 Front Street, total 158—up nine from last year. Twenty-one cheesemakers are entered.

Judging for the show will be completed Tuesday.

The dairy show, with a heavy preponderance of square 40-pound blocks, also features 20-pound round cheese and 10 - pound stiltons.

Attractive display exhibits have been entered by six cheese factories. Entering displays are Eyregreen, Foxboro, Black River, Ivanhoe, and Empire factories, all from the Quinte district, and St. Albert, near Kemptville.

The cheese show is being held in conjunction with the 63rd Central Ontario Cheese Makers' convention scheduled for the Sun Valley Motor Hotel on Wednesday and Thursday of this week.

Two New Faces At City Hall

The city hall public works department saw two new specialized personnel report for duty last week.

One is Khaliq Nawaz Shah, 31, formerly of London, England and Pakistan, who has been retained as a traffic technician whose duties mainly will be the supervision of the new traffic control system to be installed in the city's downtown area. Mr. Shah will have an office at city hall and report to City Engineer Wilbur Purnell.

The other new city employee is Arthur Trites of this city who has been hired as supervisor of maintenance for city municipal buildings.

Mr. Shah is a native of Pakistan and before coming to Canada in July was with Scotland Yard as technician with that department's West London traffic scheme.

Grandmother Charges Ill-fated Jet Should Not Have Flown

TORONTO (CP) — A Montreal woman whose daughter and two grandchildren were among the 109 victims of a plane crash, shouted at a government investigator Monday that the jetliner "never should have been allowed off the ground."

The woman, in her late 50s, confronted Maxwell Henseall, a federal transport department, documents produced at the inquest on the first day of a federal inquiry headed by Justice Hugh Gibson of the Exchequer Court of Canada.

She refused to identify herself.

"I want to know why there were so many wags," she said after sitting through the morning session in the front row of the public gallery.

"I want to know why the plane took off at all. "My daughter and two grandchildren were on that plane."

Mr. Henseall turned away and did not reply.

The federal inquiry is trying to find out whether the accident was due to human error or a mechanical failure. An 11-second commission counsel R. J. McKinnon said the crash of the Air Canada DC-8-63 Jet July 5 was apparently caused by "inadvertent deployment" of the ground spoiler system.

He did not say how the deployment of the metal spoilers occurred. They fit on a wing, they destroy the wing lift and bring the pilots on the ground after it lands.

The spoilers rise at an angle to the wing surface automatically when the aircraft's wheels touch the runway. They can also be activated from the cockpit by the pilot or his first or second officer through a lever system.

In the July 5 crash the Montreal-to-Los Angeles plane, which had a scheduled brief stop at Toronto, smacked down from 68 feet onto a runway at Toronto International Airport, tearing loose the outer starboard engine.

The inquiry was told the aircraft left a trail of tiret beads, bolts and metal fragments from the starboard wing scattered 1,136 feet along the runway.

It lurched back into the air, spewing smoke and jet fuel before it screamed in a crash a few minutes later north of the airport.

Mr. Henseall read excerpts from the log kept by crews who flew the jetliner. It reported three minor malfunctions in the spoiler system.

He said all three were of a minor nature and had been corrected before the crash. The report would have shown if they were major check was at 219 hours on June 27, eight days before the tragedy.

McKinnon reported May 27 and May 31 involved the ground spoiler caution light in the cockpit. On May 27 it came on and wouldn't go off and four days later had two separate faults.

The initial fault was fixed by installation of a switch, and the second two faults were repaired by substitution of other electronic components.

The record showed the aircraft had been accepted by Air Canada from McDonnell-Douglas Corp. on April 30 — the day the plane flew 693 hours before it crashed. Its last — and fourth — major check was at 219 hours

Opposition Loses Move For Order Review Body

OTTAWA (CP) — Following the advice of Prime Minister Trudeau, Liberal MPs Monday defeated an Opposition attempt to insert into the government's public order bill machinery to review administration of the law legislation by Quebec authorities.

The House moved on to third and final reading of the bill after defeating by 73 a Conservative amendment that would have set up an administrative judge-in-council provincial application of the bill and ensure civil liberties were not abused.

The debate continues today.

Prime Minister Trudeau told the Commons earlier he rejected the establishment of a review board under the public order bill as an encroachment on provincial autonomy.

A weekend Liberal policy conference passed a resolution calling for such a board.

In the debate on third reading New Democrat Leader T. C. Douglas moved that the bill be sent back to the Commons and the whole for reconsideration. Speaker Lucien Lamoureux delayed ruling on that before accepting the motion until today.

Mr. Trudeau told the Commons that in discussions with Quebec Premier Bourassa no way could be found to establish a review board.

"He would therefore "bow to the premier of Quebec" who had promised to allow no abuse of civil rights through administration of the public order bill.

The prime minister said his government was not prepared to become a "big brother" to the provincial counterpart by imposing supervision of Quebec authorities.

Quebec had already established a watchdog committee under the War Measures Act, although that committee had no legal authority.

Legal authority was unnecessary because the province had an ombudsman empowered to protect citizens against governmental injustice.

The Public Order (Temporary Measures) Act, 1970, extends the powers of arrest and detention provided by regulations under the War Measures Act. It makes certain limitations, such as prohibiting persons from 15 days the period a person may be kept in jail without charge.

Then the government or police takes effect the regulations will automatically be revoked.

Another amendment, defeated 28 to 23 would have allowed 16 MPs to force a debate in the House on a proposal to repeal the law before the expiry date set in the bill, next April 30.

The bill allows only the government to end its application before then. Parliament's consent would be needed to extend it.

Douglas Rideroth (L—New Westminster) proposed an amendment—carried without a government to end application in the middle of an extension period.

In the debate on the Conservative amendment opposition spokesmen hammered hard at the government for rejecting the call of its own party's conference for a review board.

Conservative Justice Leader Gerald Baldwin called the prime minister's position on the review board a "shocking abdication" and suggested the government had "long ago entered into secret deals" with Quebec not to change the bill one iota.

Andrew Brewin, (NDP—Toronto Greenwood) agreed, saying Parliament would not be "insulting the people of Quebec" by setting up a board.

Mr. Baldwin said safeguards were needed because the bill took away from the courts the power to act and gives it to the attorney-general.

Former Prime Minister John Diefenbaker said Quebec Justice Minister Jerome Choquette had shown "he wants absolute power."

Eldon Woolliams (PC—Calgary North), who proposed the Conservative amendment, said the committee set up by Quebec, to which Mr. Trudeau had referred, had not the power to ensure against injustices.

Many abuses had occurred and more would take place in future.

Opposition Leader Robert Stanfield said he would support the bill only because it would replace the wide-ranging powers under the War Measures Act.

Abortion Report Brings Protest

OTTAWA (CP) — A Liberal MP Monday described as scandalous the CBC television presentation of an abortion on the Sunday program Weekend.

Ralph W. Stewart, MP for Cochrane, asked for immediate reference of CBC spending estimates to the Commons broadcasting committee so that an investigation into the program could be conducted.

State Secretary Gerard Pelletier said in a Commons reply that he will consider the request though he did not have complete authority in the matter.

Hugh Faulkner Peterborough, parliamentary secretary to Mr. Pelletier, said the performers had not been paid. He also said the CBC felt that abortion was a matter of public interest at this time, having been a subject of discussion during the weekend convention of the Liberal party.

Parliament's Patience With Police Gets Thin

OTTAWA (CP) — Parliament's patience with the police powers granted in the Cross-Laporte case is growing thinner by the day.

The questioning of the work of the Royal Canadian Mounted Police—at least 609 are working on the case—and of the Quebec provincial and Montreal police forces began mildly enough in the Commons Oct. 21.

At that time, George Hees, Conservative MP for Prince Edward-Hastings, noted the kidnappers of Quebec Labor Minister Pierre Laporte had used the same green car with the same licence plates to abduct him and a week later to transport his body to St. Hubert airport.

Since then, criticism of the police by all political parties has grown. It has been the unrelaxing job of Solicitor-General George McIlraith to try to defend them.

He didn't even try last week when it was learned it had taken the Quebec and Montreal police three days to inform the RCMP that three men wanted for kidnapping had escaped after hiding in a closet of an apartment where one suspect was arrested.

Mr. McIlraith said he just could not account for the delay.

Eldon Woolliams, Conservative spokesman on justice matters, vainly sought an independent investigation into the police work and David MacDonald, Conservative MP for Egmont, has described police "ineffective, inept and stupid."

Former prime minister John Diefenbaker said Nov. 16 that the police with "particular cunning and ability" had found the Montreal home of State Secretary Gerard Pelletier when they were looking for another Gerard Pelletier.

He proposed "appropriate decorations" for the nearsighted police who had missed the three suspects hidden in the apartment closet.

Prime Minister Trudeau first joined the criticism Oct. 27 when he said pointedly the country had full confidence in the RCMP "in the past."

On Nov. 16, Mr. Hees said the greatest peacetime manhunt in Canadian history, backed by the unrivalled

Harmony Studio Club Presents Certificates

The Harmony Studio Club held its first meeting of the season at the home of Mrs. Emily Veley, M37, on Saturday evening. Mrs. Veley opened this annual congratulatory meeting for the year 1969-70 with a special welcome to new members, and made several announcements.

The music for the evening's program consisted of a duet played by Elizabeth Shorey and Mrs. Veley, and piano solos by Christine Atkinson, Sheldon Rose, Beverly Lewis, Debora Grass and finally a medley of two hymns by Christine Atkinson.

The presentation of certificates for successful students of the 1969-70 year were presented by Mrs. Sydney Rose. In his remarks preceding the presentations Dr. Rose stressed the importance of music as a universal language and the final reward and appreciation that students may realize if they apply themselves diligently to their studies of music.

Receiving certificates were Grade 5 Piano — Helen Keskula; Grade 6 — Sheldon Rose and Mary Tadchiev; Grade 8 —Debora Grass, Beverly Lewis, Lois Scott, Lynn Walton, Irene Stankiuk and Mary Bailey; Grade 9 — Carolyn Lewis and Linda Soukup. For Piano, R.C.M. — Helen Keskula, Grade 1 — Sheldon Rose and Mary Tadchiev; Grade 2 — Lois Scott and Ann MacGregor.

Certificates of congratulations were presented by Mrs. Veley to those students who obtained the highest mark in each grade in the June conservatory examinations. The recipients were as follows for piano: Grade 5, Helen Keskula; Grade 6, Sheldon Rose; Grade 8, Debora Grass; Grade 9, Carolyn Lewis. Theory — P. R. Helen Keskula (100 per cent). Grade 1, Sheldon Rose and Grade 2, Lois Scott.

Mr. Walton presented the awards to the students with the highest number of points on his or her work during the year.

The prize winners were: beginners A, David Albert; beginners B, Elizabeth Truscan; A beginners, Stephen Belch; Grade 1, Marie Deline; Grade 2, Beth Shorey; Grade 3, Christine Atkinson; Grade 5, Helen Keskula; Grade 6, Sheldon Rose; Grade 8, Beverly Lewis; and Grade 9, Carolyn Lewis.

Plans Concerts

MONTREAL (CP) — Les Jeunesses Musicales of Canada, founded in 1949 to promote the careers of budding musicians and to establish music loving audiences, plans to sponsor 630 concerts by 58 artists in 120 cities during the 1970-71 season. The first took place Oct. 9 in Shawnigan Lake, B.C., and the last is scheduled for March 3 in the Magdalen Islands. At the same time, several Canadian artists will perform in Europe as part of an exchange program with member countries.

Search for Car Safety Seats for Children

TORONTO (CP) — A few months ago a three-month-old baby died in a car accident. There was no highway speed involved—it happened on the way home from the supermarket; No one else was even badly shaken.

The baby was on someone's lap in the front seat, and its fragile skull was smashed when the force of a minor collision sent it flying out of the passenger's arms.

For Joy Moon it was a tragedy that turned a private worry into what she hopes will become a public crusade.

Mrs. Moon didn't know the child, or its family. All she knew about the accident was its a brief news story. She read it after she and her husband had spent long, frustrating weeks trying to find a safe car seat for Jonathan, now 3½, and a safe car bed for the baby soon to be born.

What they learned during their search has upset Mrs. Moon badly enough that she wants everyone who is interested to join her in an effort to prevent more needless deaths.

She wants safe car beds and seats to be available, designed to fit children of every age. There are gaps now. No governments government regulations setting standards. She wants more people to know about and to use the seats that are available.

Anyone who wants to help can get in touch with her through the Consumer Association of Canada, 160 Gloucester Street, Ottawa. Letters should be addressed to Child Safety Seats so the CAC can handle them quickly.

Mrs. Moon said their family search for a safety seat began when Jocathan was 10 months old.

"We were going on holidays and he was beginning to climb out of the standard car bed things, so we decided to buy him a car seat.

"When we went to the store my husband was horrified. For one thing, he said the seat that hooks over the back of a car seat would just pop off in an accident.

"The sales woman showed us the kind with runners that slide under the back of the car seat. We might have bought one of those but they have a head rest. If you pushed down the foam covering, you could feel the points of the screws that held it to the frame—and you didn't have to push very far."

A friend suggested they call the Ontario Safety League. The league sent information that resulted in the Moons buying a safety harness that attaches to the car frame.

It resulted in their discovering there are no enforceable standards governing the manufacture of car beds and seats for children. Standards are being written by the United States and were due to be published in January, 1971, but there has been a delay.

The call also resulted in an invitation to a seat belt seminar sponsored by the Ontario department of transport.

At the seminar, Mrs. Moon asked a panelist about the efficiency of the seat harness and was told that in a collision it might crush a small child's chest.

Mrs. Moon said Dr. Donald Huntz, professor of anatomy at the University of Michigan, told her there is no really efficient safety seat or safety belt for a child who is out of the bassinet but not yet tall enough to sit 13 inches high.

She said the Ford Tot-Guard was recommended for a child who does sit that tall, along with a General Motors infant safety bassinet for babies.

"The Moons now have both —but only after a lot of trying, Mrs. Moon found that dealers for the companies said they had never heard of the safety devices. One said he had had a Tot-Guard once but sent it back to the company because no one ever asked about it.

Eventually, through a friend who knows the car business, the Moons located a dealer willing to look it up in the catalogue and order one for them.

Ford's public relations department in Canada sent Mrs. Moon a letter saying they had sold 97 from March, 1969, to December, 1969, and 134 from January to October of 1970. Another 39 were on order.

The 1969 census showed 2,197,000 children four years old and under in Canada.

Mrs. Moon has talked to doctors and anyone else who could give her background material. She has written letters to newspapers, called government departments, car manufacturers and the CAC.

Now she wants to find other people willing to do the same or able to supply her with more information.

BELLEVILLE DISTRICT COMMITTEE LADIES' AUXILIARIES

The second meeting of the Belleville District Committee Ladies' Auxiliaries met November 16 at Bridge Street United Church.

The president, Mrs. H. Thompson, opened the meeting in the usual manner. Introduced by the president were the speakers for the program. Scouts Paul Allore, Brian Cunningham, Ken Wootton, Bruce Milliken, Peter Maw and their ADC John Dodge. These scouts proceeded to show slides of their trip to Bermuda on a scout exchange. Twenty-six Scouts from the Bay of Quinte Legion went on this exchange.

Their slides included beautiful views of Bermuda Botanical Gardens, the Government Aquarium and The Crystal Caves. Others showed historical sites such as St. Peter's Church, the oldest church building in the Western Hemisphere, the docks at St. George's, Hamilton, ships docked in Hamilton Bay, St. George's and pictures of their campsite and of swimming in the ocean.

The Scouts also had arranged a display table of souvenirs from "Bermuda. Among the displays were pillow covers, pieces of coral, a group of water color paintings depicting various places and vehicles peculiar to Bermuda. There was also a photo album of colored pictures of their trip and number of shells.

A question and answer period followed the main section of the program and the Scouts answered questions about Bermuda, and told some of the experiences and fun of their trip.

Mrs. N. Smith thanked the Scouts and their ADC John Dodge for a well presented and interesting program.

A discussion on a bridge and euchre party to raise funds for the Scout movement in Belleville was the major item following the program. A tentative date for January 22, 1971 at St. Thomas Parish Hall was set.

Refreshments were served by the women of 2nd Belleville group committee who were the hostesses for the evening.

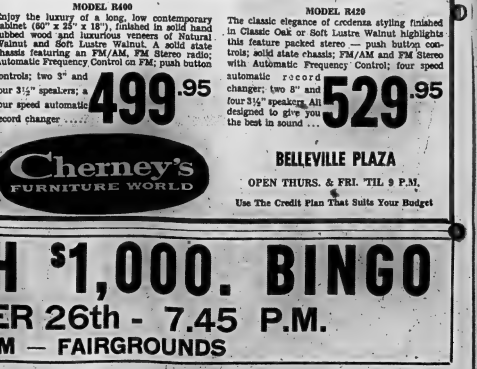
Points for Parents

By MARY BRYSON

Father: "Other parents don't have all this trouble and here's getting the kids to bed at night. This must be the tenth time Jimmy has called for quiet. Goodnight. I'll get you something. What he needs is a good spanking."

Mother: "He hates to be in there by himself."

Don't let your 1st turn the evening into a hectic round of drinks of water, trips to the bathroom and more drinks of water until you're worn out. Be kind, but firm, about ending the day's activities.



Mother: "You've had a drink of water and here's Teddy to sleep with you. Close your eyes and be very still. Jimmy has called for quiet. Goodnight. I'll get you something. What he needs is a good spanking."

Child: "Say "goodnight" to Teddy, too."

Youngsters Usually Sense Mother's Anxiety

By DORIS CLARK

"Doctor, what can I do about Bertie's diet? It takes an hour and a half to get even a little food into her."

The little girl in question leaned at him just as eagerly as her mother did. The doctor grinned back at her as he said:

"She looks pretty well. Suppose we just forget about it."

Mother looked startled but he silenced her protest with a steady glance. Later, with Bertie out of earshot, he explained:

"What's to blame a little girl if she finds herself being a star at mealtimes by refusing to eat? Don't talk about her eating habits — good or bad — in her presence. She must not know you are concerned."

Well! How many mothers would be set back on their heels with this one? When a youngster picks at his (or her) food, it is pretty hard to resist prodding him to eat.

Yet dinner time should be a happy, relaxed time. What's more, mother's insecurity carries over to Junior and, likely as not, makes him stall even more.

Dear Doris: Would it be suitable for a secretary of some 39 years to give her retiring boss a gift?

I know that according to etiquette and other boors, a secretary is not supposed to though she may give an secretary a Christmas gift — and this my boss and his wife have always done for me. — His Right Hand.

Dear Hand: More than suitable — beautiful. Some rules are made to be broken. Give him something he can enjoy in retirement. If you know he would enjoy, or one of those marvelous record albums like "Music for Memory Lane", which reproduces the best hits in every decade of this century.

A woman who hits given half her waking hours, five days a week to a man's concerns, over the period of years you have, has a right to express good wishes in a good solid material way when the job is done.

Ann Landers

Smoking of 'Pot' Can Kill Motivation

DEAR ANN LANDERS: My boyfriend and I had another fight. It could be our last. The fight was about the same old thing: Marijuana. I want Mike to quit smoking but he refuses.

He says he's going to admit he is hooked. He insists the only thing wrong with pot is that it's illegal. I told him that's reason enough for me and if he doesn't knock it off we are finished.

I can see a big difference in Mike when he is smoking but I can't get it across to him. He gets dreamy-eyed, doesn't want to talk or go anyplace — just sits and stares into space.

His grades are slipping and he isn't as neat about his personal appearance as he used to be. He doesn't see this either. Please, Ann, tell Mike what pot is doing to his life. He thinks you're square and I'll bet you can get through to him. Thanks. — POT HATER.

ANN LANDERS

DEAR P.H.: I can't tell Mike what pot is doing to his life because pot does different things to different people. I'd have to know first what the guy smokes. Is it pure pot, or the usual mix with alfalfa and hay? I'd half to know if he inhales and how often he smokes. Is it once a month or twice a day? The emotional stability of the smoker is another important factor. An unstable kid could get permanently zonked on grass. There are recorded cases of pot having triggered psychotic episodes. On the other hand, an emotionally healthy, well-balanced kid might get nothing more than a pleasant high. I'd have to know, too, why Mike smokes. Is it an escape? Is he doing it to be one of the "in" crowd? Is he experimenting? Or is he thumbing his nose at the establishment, his parents, or the law?

Your statement that Mike's grades are slipping and he is not as neat about his personal appearance as he once was, is a tipoff that pot may be destroying his self-esteem and sapping his energy. This, according to the experts is one of the most damaging side effects. While some kids can smoke pot and remain functional, other kids run into trouble. Pot can kill motivation and make dreamers out of doers. And the real hazard is that no kid can tell in advance what it will do to him. Moreover, the person who is being damaged by pot is usually the last one to know. My position is that no teen-ager should fool around with a mind-shaking substance of any kind — booze, pills or drugs, soft or hard. Especially if it's against the law.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I am a telephone receptionist who tries to be courteous to all callers. It's my job to make friends for the firm and I take my responsibility seriously. It is also my job to put callers in touch with the proper departments so I must ask specific questions.

This morning a man wanted to speak to the president of the firm. I asked the gentleman his name and the name of his company. He replied, "My name is - - - - - . I am with - - - - - . My grandmother's maiden names was Jones. I wear a G1 long part rye hair on the left side and my birthstone is the ruby. Is there anything else you want to know?"

I was so taken aback that I couldn't think of a snappy comeback to put him in his place. What should I have said? — ITHACA, N.Y.

* * *

DEAR ITH: Your job is to handle the calls — not put people in their place. During the course of a day you undoubtedly speak to a wide variety of people. If you are doing your job well your ignore the clowns and respond politely to everyone. That's the best put-down of all.

Orange Glaze Improves Taste of Meat Loaf

By MARY MOORE

It requires convicing and splaining to serve a meat loaf to guests. I had both concerning the meat loaf and they were fortified. I was curious about the orange flavor penetrating the meat and wondered how it would turn out on the platter. The guests enjoyed it and all turned out well.

UPSIDE DOWN MEAT LOAF WITH ORANGE GLAZE

(Serves 6)

1-3 cup light brown sugar
½ tsp. dry mustard
1 tbsp. corn syrup
3 large oranges, peeled and sliced
2 lbs. ground chuck beef
½ lb. sausage meat
3 slices whole wheat (or white) bread
1-3 cup orange juice
1 tbsp. lemon juice
1 egg
1 tbsp. chopped onion (or bottled flakes)
2 tsp. salt
Prepare 9 x 5 x 2½" loaf pan first by measuring into it the brown sugar, mustard and corn syrup. Mix them around and coat bottom of pan with them. Cut orange slices in halves and arrange in parallel rows over sugar mixture. In a large bowl soak the bread in the orange and lemon juices and egg. Mix thoroughly by hand to break up bread. Add meats, onion and salt and mix thoroughly. Carefully pack into prepared loaf pan without smoothing top. Stand in shallow pan of boiling water and bake at 350 deg. Fahr. 1 hr. Cautiously tip off fat which collects and return loaf to oven for 15 min. longer. Before inverting on preheated platter tip pan juices into a little sauce boat or pitcher to pass at the table. When this meat loaf is turned out all orange slices are snugly in place and make an interesting garnish. The orange flavor is subtle and refreshing.

Burning Rectal Itch Relieved In Minutes

This Special Hemorrhoid Remedy Contains a Unique Healing Substance That Relieves Pain As It Shrinks Hemorrhoids

One of the most common afflictions is a condition known as "Itching Piles". It is most embarrassing for the sufferer during the day and especially aggravating at night.

If you want satisfactory relief — there's good news. A renowned research laboratory has found a unique healing substance with the ability to promptly relieve this burning itch and pain. It actually shrinks hemorrhoids. This substance has been shown to produce a most effective rate of healing. In pain-killing properties it also is fully-powered Infection.

In one hemorrhoid case after another "very striking improvement" was reported. This improvement was maintained over a period of months! Among these cases, a wide variety of hemorrhoidal conditions was cited as "satisfactory".

This was accomplished by a new healing ointment (Skin-Dyes)—developed by a world-renowned research institution. This substance is now obtainable in rectal or suppository form known as Preparation H. Ask for Preparation H Suppositories (convenient to carry if away from home) or Preparation H Ointment with special applicator. Available at all drug counters. Satisfaction or your money refunded.

Dear Doris: Do you remember when sugar was rationed in World War II? No, you would not remember — but there was a cookie recipe and we used a jelly powder for sweetening. — Mislaid in Wartime.

Dear Mislaid: Indeed I do. We had a great time jubilating corn syrup and similar sweeteners in the cakes and other sweets we served to our young fry.

I wrote to a Canadian food manufacturer when your letter came and I am now sending on the cookie recipes he sent me, using jelly powder as a sweetening ingredient. He explains that these are not identical to the ones used in wartime but they are close. Let's hope they do the job for you.

"Just what 15-lt they hunt at that lodge?"

Despite Acreage Cut, Wheat Carryover Large

OTTAWA (CP) — Delegates to the Canadian Agricultural Outlook Conference spent Monday looking at a mixed bag of prospects for Canadian farmers.

Despite a drastic slash in wheat seeded this year—to 22 million acres from 24 million in the 1969 crop year—Canadians still face a carryover of 600 million bushels, A. M. Runciman, president of the United Grain Growers, told 300 delegates.

The conference ends today.

This is expensive for farmers since they must pay storage costs on any amount over 182 million bushels of wheat in elevators while making nothing from wheat still on the farm. The government pays storage charges on wheat over 178 million bushels under the Temporary Wheat Reserves Act.

And although wheat sales expectations in 1971-72 and 1972-73 are between 350 and 400 million bushels, no firm figure is possible, Mr. Runciman said.

He also said Canada's grain handling and transportation system appears to be capable of dealing with the record volume for export this year.

Despite concern about the ability of the system to move enough grain to terminals to meet all export requirements, the "game of balances" between producers and shippers seemed to be a "fairly satisfactory process."

Prof. J. A. K. Brown of the University of Saskatchewan said use of Canada's agricultural resources must be subsidized in order to meet changing world conditions, including a few importance for feed grains and oilseeds.

He stressed the need for more market-oriented research dealing with the supply-demand relationships of available markets. Attention should be given to new alternatives for Canadian agricultural products in world markets.

Although there are bright spots in the grain outlook for 1970-71, past knowledge should make Canadians hesitant to interpret this into an "automatic happy and problem-free future."

Prof. T. K. Warley, an agricultural economist from the University of Guelph, challenged Canadians to overcome adverse trade conditions with the U.S. by creating increased demand for Canadian goods.

He said any attempt to include agricultural products in a free-trade system between the two countries would be "exceedingly difficult" during the present protectionist mood of the American congress.

Improved demand could be achieved through more efficient production, processing, distribution and packaging of Canadian products, he said.

Such systems would be the result of improved use of provincial and federal marketing legislation.

Canada Wants to Increase Oil and Uranium Sales

OTTAWA (CP) — Joint United States-Canada ministerial talks soon to today on Canadian demands for enlarged oil and uranium sales, in addition to the concern of both countries over pollution dangers.

The Canada-U.S. auto agreement was also expected to come up.

The two-day meeting was expected to produce a joint communique outlining issues discussed by the U.S. cabinet secretaries and Canadian ministers.

Canada has been pressing the U.S. for years to enlarge quotas for Canadian oil. Canadians have also been pressing for a resumption of uranium sales to the U.S.

While larger import quotas for Canadian oil may be forthcoming, it is not likely the U.S. will resume uranium imports from Canada. The value of the mineral as a source of electrical power is still undecided and predicted demand has not developed.

Monday, the ministerial meeting dealt with questions of foreign affairs, trade and balance of payments problems.

External Affairs Minister Sharp assured the U.S. delegation Canada is not becoming isolationist in its foreign policy, but is acting only in those areas where it believes there is the greatest chance of succeeding.

U.S. delegation sources said Secretary of State William Rogers told the meeting there is growing domestic support for U.S. Vietnam and Middle East policies.

Canadian officials raised numerous questions about a protectionist trade bill already passed by the U.S. House of Representatives, sources said.

Mr. Rogers replied that the bill which still needs Senate and presidential approval, was not the kind of measure the administration wanted.

Canadian sources said Trade Minister Jean-Luc Pepin stressed the danger in world trade posed by the bill, which would place severe restrictions on some forms of imports.

The measure would have a grave effect on Canadian trade patterns and set back the cause of free world trade, Mr. Pepin said.

Also discussed was Canada's balance of payments surplus in trade with the U.S.

Canada has built up a record current-account surplus of $726 million on international dealings, partly by sharply reducing its deficit with the U.S.

The U.S. argues that Canada should co-operate in attempts to correct a worrisome U.S. payments deficit. They say a good way to start would be for Canada to agree to revisions of the 1965 auto pact on the ground that Canada had the best of the deal.

No firm decisions are expected from the meeting, designed as a forum where leading figures from both countries can exchange points of view.

Basford to Watch Supermarket War

OTTAWA (CP) — Corporate Affairs Minister Ron Basford told the Commons Monday his department "would investigate any apparent violation of the law" by supermarkets in pricing competition.

He was replying to a question by Wallace Nesbitt PC-Oxford who asked for investigation especially of the possibility that some of the major grocery chains may be trying to force small grocery operations in small towns out of business.

PM Is 'Unaware' Of Greene's Talk

OTTAWA (CP) — Comments by Energy Minister J. J. Greene and Fisheries Minister Jack Davis about U.S. pollution of the Great Lakes were raised in the Commons Monday.

New Democrat Leader T. C. Douglas asked what action the government intends in view of Mr. Greene's comment that the U.S. has violated the 1909 Boundary Waters Act in polluting the lakes.

Prime Minister Trudeau replied that he wasn't aware of Mr. Greene's comment—at Burlington, Ont., last Friday — but would consult him "on what he has in mind."

Mr. Douglas then asked about a New York speech in which he said Mr. Davis was quoted as saying Canada would withhold vital resources from the U.S. if it did not clean up the lakes.

Mr. Trudeau said that if the remark is exact, Mr. Davis will have to explain to the house and the government "how he intends to see this happen."

Gordon Aiken (PC—Parry Sound-Muskoka) asked whether, in view of the allegation of a treaty violation, Canada would take the pollution issue to the International Court of Justice or another tribunal.

Mr. Trudeau replied: "I take it that ministers who make this kind of statement have some idea how they're going to follow up on it."

Ontario Will Ban No-deposit Bottles

TORONTO (CP) — The Ontario government will restrict or ban no-deposit, non-returnable soft drink bottles early next year, Resources Minister George Kerr said Monday.

He would not give details of the planned legislation but said it is logical to require soft-drink containers to have a deposit high enough to encourage people to return them for a refund.

Standardizing the shape of soft-drink containers is also logical he said, because it would ease handling problems.

The Minister made the comments after receiving a brief from the University of Toronto's Pollution Probe advocating a ban on non-returnable containers and calling for standardized shapes.

Mr. Kerr said the planned legislation would attack the whole problem of littering and proliferation of no-deposit, non-returnable soft drink bottles.

Ecology Board Must Okay Valley Flooding

VANCOUVER (CP) — The Skagit Valley in British Columbia cannot be flooded unless a plan to do so is passed by Washington State's new department of ecology, the department's director told an audience Monday.

The issue, which has brought loud protests from B.C. residents, revolves around a Seattle Light and Power Corp. plan to increase the height of the Ross Dam in Washington State. This would result in flooding of the Skagit Valley, located near the B.C.-Washington border about 80 miles east of Vancouver.

Director John Biggs told delegates attending a meeting of the Pacific Northwest section of the American Society of Range Management here that so far Seattle Light has not applied to his department to increase the height of the dam.

Mr. Biggs said his department, formed in July and the first such administration in the United States, feels the Ross Dam issue needs a thorough public hearing and will accept briefs from Canada.

Liberals Want House To Rule on Water Sale

OTTAWA (CP) — Delegates to a Liberal party policy conference have voted overwhelming approval for a resolution that would force the government to get full parliamentary approval for any water sales to the United States.

Results of the weekend vote released Monday show 647 supported the recommendation, 69 were opposed and 62 said they were not sure.

Energy Minister J. J. Greene told the delegates during the weekend convention that only resources which are surplus to Canadian needs will be exported.

But many delegates argued that water sales are of such vital importance that the fullest opportunity should be allowed for debate and opposition.

None of the resolutions are binding on government. They are intended as broad guides to be used in forming policy.

BELLEVILLE, ONTARIO, TUESDAY, NOVEMBER 26, 1974

Informal Caucus

Eleven separate school candidates were nominated last night for Belleville's five separate school board seats in what promises to be one of the most closely contested school board elections in the city's history. Watching their names go up on the board were (left to right) Robertson Collins, Robert Lucy, Paul Wall, Mrs. Jack Wilson, Paul Fleming, Paul Mercier, Joseph Chapelle, Zdenek Kvarda, James H. Wiseman and John Granville.

Five of 17 Trustees Acclaimed for Board

Five of the 17 trustees on the Hastings county board of education won their seats by acclamation last night at nomination meetings throughout the county.

No elections will be held Dec. 7 in Trenton, where incumbent trustees Mrs. Jean Hutchison and Ralph Weaver were the only candidates nominated for Trenton's two seats.

Thurlow will have no contest for school board, with trustee Milford Walker returned by acclamation for his second two-year term on the county board.

The two separate school representatives on the public board also went in by acclamation — John Forbes as representative of the county at large, and incumbent Robert Sanson Collins for Belleville.

The second incumbent separate school representatives on the county board, Paul Fleming, also nominated for Belleville separate school, withdrew to run for the separate school board.

Seven candidates are seeking the five Belleville seats on the county board.

L. R. Ellis, an educator for 41 years and a superintendent with the county board until his retirement four months ago, was the first candidate to file nomination papers last night.

Mayor J. Russell Scott, who publicly declared his support of Mr. Ellis' two weeks ago, nominated him last night. Seconder was Lyle Langabeer.

Mayor Scott seconded the nomination of another candidate, Ron Lee, who is contesting a seat on the county board for the second time. Mr. Lee was nominated by Ald. Arthur Morgan.

The remaining five Belleville candidates are all incumbent trustees. They are Everett Fairman, James Clarke, chairman of the board during its first two years, Mrs. Miriam Graham, Macdonald Smith and Nelson McKibbon.

Mr. McKibbon, an unsuccessful candidate in the first county board elections, was appointed to the board this fall to fill the unexpired term of John O'Flynn who resigned from the board after he moved to Ameliasburg.

A newcomer to school board elections was Frank Fidwell, former Liberal candidate, parliament and mayor of Belleville. He was nominated for ward 6 councillor of Sidney, Frankford and Sidney township. He will compete for one of the two seats in the ward against incumbent trustees Ralph Weaver of Frankford and Donald Williams of Stirling.

A three-way fight is developing for the the one seat in ward 4 — Tweed, Hungerford, Huntingdon, Tyendinaga and Tyendinaga.

Lurissa Gunning of Tweed, trustee in the centre of the Tweed High School closure controversy, is seeking re-election. Two Tyendinaga men, S. C. Gesela and Teresa Ford, are also competing for the seat.

Marmora insurance business operator Gordon Bateman is challenging incumbent James Spry to represent ward 3 — Marmora, Madoc, Deloro, Elzevir, Grafton, Stirling, Harmony and Lake and Rawdon.

In the far north of the county, Emerson Robinson will compete for trustee for ward 1 with Mrs. Sybil Sayler. Ward 1 includes Haymouth, Bangor, Wicklow and McClure, Herschel, Monteagle, Carlow, Dungannon and Mayo.

The board's 1975 vice-chairman, F. John Pullo of Bancroft, Mrs. Audrey Sanderson, Mrs. Kenneth Ind and Lawrence Rawdon.

The board's 1975 vice-chairman, F. John Pullo of Bancroft, Mrs. Audrey Sanderson, Mrs. Kenneth Ind and Lawrence Rawdon.

Acclamation In Many Seats

Rawdon

Deputy Reeve Ray Short last night was acclaimed reeve of Rawdon township.

The acclamation came as Reeve Burton Morton, a veteran of township municipal affairs, declined nomination for another term.

Councillor Murray Heath was acclaimed deputy reeve.

Nominations for Council three to be elected): Alton Goodman, Wesley Finch, James Pollock, John Spencer.

Hungerford

There were two nominations for the township — incumbents William McCrae and Clarence Graham.

Nominations for council three to be elected): Fred Preston, Lorne Gunning, Marcellin Laberge, Gary Hunt, Anthony Alphen, Ray Phillips, Vincent Lynch, Maurice Golab.

Monteagle

Reeve S. J. Carr last night was acclaimed to another term as reeve of Monteagle township.

However, there will be an election for the four-member council of this north Hastings County municipality.

Council nominees — all of whom are expected to qualify — were: John Beecham, Jo-ann Bent, Harold Douglas, Joe Mountenny, Mrs. Iva Plunkett, Cecil Sarsens, Ian R. Davidson.

Marmora - Lake

Hastings County warden, John Wilkes of Marmora, will face a contest for re-election as reeve of Marmora-Lake township.

His challenger is Graham Bell, who qualified to seek the nomination along with Warden Wilkes last night.

Six qualifications for the four-member township council complete the election picture for the township.

Council nominees: Dermont Bedore, Tom Devolin, Gordon Jones, Frank Bird, William Jones, Robert Drummond, Douglas Bilnefi, Charles Clemens, John Cook, Mrs. Evelyn Maloney, Pat Bertram.

Ameliasburg

Reeve Russell Thompson of Ameliasburg Township was acclaimed by acclamation to another term during a nomination meeting last night here.

Councillors Norman Peet and Lyle Vanclief were both nominated to deputy-reeve. Six men, Laird Adams, Jack Fraser, Earl Ondercook, Roger Redner, Donald Sanborn and Arnold Weatherall were nominated to fight for the three council seats in the township.

South Marysburg

South Marysburg Township could see a two-man race for reeve in municipal elections this year.

Seven men were nominated for the four council positions — Joe McAlpine and Louis Rorabeck have already qualified, Bernard Keogh, Horace Brewer and Sidney Drury.

Incumbent school board trustee, James Plomer, was nominated and elected by acclamation to the Edward — Edward County School Board.

Sophiasburg

Two men have qualified their nomination to reeve of Sophiasburgh Township.

George Foster and Max MacDonald will run for the position. Roy Brooks was elected by acclamation to the post of deputy reeve.

Four men were nominated for the three council positions — Arthur McDermaid, Leland Bowes, Wayne Lindsay and Jack Sweetve. Mr. Dowse and Mr. Lindsay qualified.

Coun. Bert Jones was elected by acclamation to the Prince Edward County School Board.

Wellington

Five men have qualified their nominations for the position of four council seats. Mrs. J. Barrett, H. G. Hiles, R. S. Boyce, Cecil Insley and William Greer.

Four men were nominated for the position of Public Utilities Commissioners of which there are two positions. Nominated were Harold Boway, Gordon Nelson, William Yeager and Frank Brimley Jr. Mr. Young and Mr. Brimley qualified last night.

H. E. Robinson was elected by acclamation to the County School Board by acclamation.

North Marysburg

North Marysburg Township has a council for another term, all by acclamation.

Harold Harrison was reclaimedreeve and Jack Carter, Mrs. Avis Read, Gordon Horton and Jack Wells were acclaimed councilors.

Dorothea Carson was acclaimed trustee to the Prince Edward County Board of Education.

Bloomfield

There will be no election in Bloomfield this year as reeve and council were elected by acclamation last night at a nomination meeting here.

Allen Ashbourne was reclaimed reeve and Robert Fox, Donald Baxter, Jack Sleming and Douglas Pearce were elected to council.

Mayor Elected, Council Battle Looms

By KENNETH SMITH
Staff Reporter

TRENTON — Mayor Duncan McDonald won an additional two-year term of office last night. The Canadian Pacific Railways employee, in the chair for a year, holds the post by acclamation.

He was the only man named in the mayoralty nominations held at the Town Hall.

However, 13 individuals were recruited in the contest for six town council seats. Included were present councillors George Greer, a postal employee; Dr. Bob Patrick, dentist; Ted Parker, industrialist; Stan Ketcheson LCSO worker; Paul Tripp, wholesaler and Neil Robertson, insurance broker.

Councillors Greer, Patrick and Parker have stated they will allow their names to stand for re-election.

Paul Tripp announced last week he would seek some public office in the Dec. 7 election. He was only nominated for council.

Stan Ketcheson has not said whether he will qualify for council. However, Neil Robertson has stated that he will not be in the running.

Other nominees for the council contest are George Brown a pharmacist who is "interested" in a seat, realtor Mrs. Mrs. Eileen Forchuk who says she does not want to run, merchant Pete Aziz and insurance agents Doug Whitley and Samuel Potts, none of whom have declared intentions.

Austin Scott, a garage owner, was nominated both for council and Hastings - Prince Edward Separate School Board.

Public Utilities chair man Cliff Baker was nominated again to the PUC and he will allow his name to stand. Commissioner Frank Barry, also nominated will not try for re-election.

Other PUC nominees, ex - Mayor D. James MacDonald and Charles Hilton, have both stated that they will be in the race for commission seats.

Both Ben Kreese and William Mennies, the other two Trenton representatives on the Separate School Board were nominated. William Mennies a hydro employee and president of the district Liberal association, has declared that he will be in the race. Only two town representatives will be on the board this year.

John Forbes, a paper mill purchasing agent and member of the Hastings County Board of Education's advisory board was nominated as separate school representative to the Hastings board.

The town's Hastings County Board members, Mrs. Mary Hutchinson and Ralph Weaver were the only individuals nominated last night and were acclaimed to new terms.

Lower Fares Approved For Senior Citizens

Yesterday city council voted that commencing the first of next year, senior citizens (65 years and over) be allowed to ride buses for the same 15 cent or eight for $1 rate as students.

Some weeks ago the transit commission asked city council's approval to increase adult fares to 25 cents. Members indicated approval would be given — provided some consideration was given to senior citizens.

In fact, Mayor J. Russell Scott urged that senior citizens be allowed free transportation at least possibly during off - peak hours.

But the fare reduction for senior citizens is not to be with the entire approval of transit commission members.

At a meeting Nov. 11, commission member's approved a motion indicating the matter of reduced fares for senior citizens was being considered but did not feel they could make a recommendation to council until more information was available from the provincial department of highways regarding proposed grants to transit operations.

However, council gave little recognition to the motion and directed the 15 cent fares for senior citizens.

Lewis McMullen, manager of the transit commission has suggested that the city clerk consider issuing identity cards to senior citizens residing in the city. The number of senior citizens is estimated at 3,000.

Dump Site Confirmed

The city's prolonged "garbage disposal site discussion has finally ended.

Council yesterday was told that the contract between the city and Commercial Refuse Services for dumping of garbage at a site in Sidney township had now been signed.

And the contract provides for special permits to be issued in city retail merchants operating their own leased pickup trucks at a cost of $50 per annum.

The date of commencement for use of the Sidney township site has been extended to April 30, 1975 from January 1 next.

The extended date will allow the city more time to complete its present sanitary land fill site at Zwick's Island which is planned for development as a park.

However "clean" fill, such as material from excavations and rubble from demolished buildings, will continue to be dumped at the island site until the necessary grade level is achieved.

The First Ennis director for Four Seasons Hotels Limited, who are building a new motel adjacent to the future East Zwick's Island, asked council that dumping at the site be discontinued as early in the new year as possible.

Mr. Ennis said the new motel was scheduled for completion in late February or early March. He was concerned that dumping of garbage might continue after the motel was opened.

He was satisfied, however, when council pointed out that dumping would not continue past April 30.

Parade Costumes At Police Station

The Quinte Santa Claus Parade Committee last night announced that costumes for the Dec. 5 parade can be picked up at the police station on Dec. 4 starting at 3 p.m.

Float entries close Nov. 25.

Quiet Election Shaping For Rural Board Seats

Three incumbent trustees and one newcomer was seats on the Hastings - Prince Edward separate school board by acclamation last night.

Election contests are assured Dec. 7 in only three of the nine wards of the two - county board — in Belleville, Trenton, and the area comprised of Marmora village, Marmora and Lake township, Deloro, Frankford and Sidney township.

In the last ward, incumbent Mrs. Lillian O'Connor of Marmora will battle for election with Ernest F. Allore of Sidney, brother of suspended separate school superintendent F. B. Allore.

In Trenton the three incumbent trustees, Austin Scott, William Mennies and Ben Kreese will contest the two - Trenton seats on the board. The number of Trenmeetings since.

Gerald Walsh was returned to the board by acclamation for Richmond, Tyendinaga and Thurlow townships.

Two of the boards three priest - trustees were returned by acclamation.

They are Rev. Louis Casatelli of Maynooth, who represents the northern townships of Hastings and part of Nipissing district, and Rev. Walter Hamilton, who represents most of the townships of Prince Edward county and Murray township in Northumberland - Durham county.

In Belleville 11 candidates are seeking the five board seats.

Board Says Anti-drug Policy Doesn't Require Official Act

Hastings county board of education has no intention at this time of writing an anti-drug campaign statement into its official policy.

"Alcohol is more of a problem than drugs, is a ratio of four to one", said board chairman James Clarke this morning.

He was commenting upon the action of Lennox county board of education which required its Smiths Falls, which last week unanimously approved five measures intended to cut down on drug usage.

They are: awarding all school property, including teachers' desks and students' lockers; immediate suspension of students caught using or suspected of using drugs, a doctor's certificate of health or school board's approval before reinstatement of any suspended student; provision of funds to send teachers to a special course concerning drug use at Ottawa's Algonquin College; and asking county police and solicitor's help in a longer line on drug pushers.

"We look upon drug use as a symptom, rather than a problem," said Mr. Clarke this morning. "We don't believe we are better off dealing with drugs quietly and methodically rather than by scare tactics. The question is: why do kids do this?"

He added that the policy of the Hastings county system is to deal with drug use through education and an exploration of the reasons behind the problem.

"It is a symptom of rebellion, F. John Pullo of Bancroft, Mrs. Audrey Sanderson, Mrs. Kenneth Ind and Lawrence Rawdon.

Madoc's Reeve Likely to Repeat

Veteran municipal government head Tom Burnside seemed certain of another term as reeve of this village last night.

Mr. Burnside, first elected to municipal council 16 years ago, was nominated along with local businessman Kel Kincaid and councillor Mel Caverly.

Mr. Kincaid later qualified for a council nomination.

Councillor Caverly also was nominated for another term and indications were he would qualify for council.

Tom Rupert and Clarence Farrow were acclaimed public utilities commissioners.

Nominations for council (four to be elected): Robert Kirkwood, Arnold Ross, Clayton Smith, Kel Kincaid, Bruce White, Cecil Hagerman, Mel Caverly, Harry Roscoe.

Bruins Threaten Scoring Record

MONTREAL (CP)—As the National Hockey League moves into the second quarter of its 1970-71 schedule this week, Boston Bruins threaten to surpass many existing scoring records.

The Bruins' offence, led by centre Phil Esposito, has scored 80 goals in 18 games. If that pace were maintained through the remainder of the season, it would produce a record 344 goals.

Boston set the current record in 1943-44 with 303 goals and after 18 games that season had scored 68 goals.

Esposito, who holds the individual scoring record of 126 points for a season, a mark he set in 1968-69, leads the current individual scoring race with 34 points on 14 goals and 20 assists. His goals and assists are the most by any player so far this season.

Projecting Esposito's pace over the remainder of this season, he could finish with 61 goals—a record; 86 assists—one short of the record; and 147 points—also a record.

Esposito and his linemates, right winger Ken Hodge and left winger Wayne Cashman, are also on a record-setting course for points and goals by a line.

If the trio continues its current trend, it will finish the 78-game schedule with 125 goals and 327 points.

Esposito, Hodge and now-retired Ron Murphy hold the record for points by a line—383 in the 1968-69 season. The Detroit Red Wings' line of Gordie Howe, Frank Mahovlich and Alex Delvecchio set the season mark of 114 goals by a line during the same schedule.

Despite all the power generated by the Bruins, they can not seem to pull away from the East Division's other top teams, Boston and New York Rangers remain tied for first place with 36 points each, three more than third-place Montreal Canadiens. A similar three-point lead is held by Chicago Black Hawks in the West Division over runner-up St. Louis Blues. The Blues have managed to stay right behind the Hawks because of strong defensive play.

St. Louis has the second-lowest goal output of the 14 NHL teams, but the Blues' 32 goals against in 18 games is the best defensive record in the league.

Chicago's Bobby Hull became the fourth player this season to score three goals in a game when he turned in his 29th such performance last Sunday against California Golden Seals. It was the first three-goal game for Hull since Feb. 20, 1969 but it moved him to within one of the record 30 three-or-more-goal games by Maurice (Rocket) Richard, former Montreal great.

The goals helped lift Hull into a third-place tie with Delvecchio and Boston's Bobby Orr in the scoring race, each with 34 points, two fewer than Boston's Hodge and 10 fewer than Esposito.

Tony Esposito of Chicago leads in shutouts with three, but Ernie Wakely and Glenn Hall of the Blues still have the best goaltending record with a combined goals-against average of 1.77.

Rookie Breaks Giant Win String

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — Billy Walk's whose performance was singled out by both coaches as a major factor in Philadelphia Eagles 23-20 National Football League upset over New York Giants, compared his job with that of a sprinter in track.

Walk, a 180-pound rookie, returns kicks for the Eagles. He carried four for 146 yards Monday night. He raced 37 yards with a second-period New York kickoff to set up a subsequent field goal, and 45 yards with a third-quarter return that started the Eagles toward their winning fourth-period touchdown.

Walk said: "In track you walt around a lot until it's time to run and then you let fly for 50 or 60 yards and hope you timed it right. In returning kickoffs, you look for the hole and try to hit it before it closes."

Walk's flying feet signalled the end of New York's six-game winning streak and it helped drop the Giants into a second-place tie with Dallas Cowboys in the NFL's National Conference Eastern Division, 1½ games behind the leading St. Louis Cardinals.

New York coach Alex Webster said: "What hurt us most was Walk's kickoff returns which gave them great field position."

Coach Jerry Williams, with Calgary Stampeders of the Western Football Conference before jumping to the Eagles last year, said Walk's returns and the ability of the Eagles' defense to contain Giants halfback Ron Johnson were the key factors for his team.

The Eagles recorded a four-down-and-1-pass from centre at the New York one, and scored on Snead's keeper run in the second quarter to lead 6-3.

New York took advantage of a fumble recovery to go back in front on a two-yard burst by Johnson and a 29-yard Gogolak field goal made it 13-6 with 42 seconds left in the half.

Walk then returned the kickoff 57 yards leading to Mark Moseley's 29-yard field goal on the last play of the half.

The Eagles drove to a third-period score, Snead passing a yard to tight end Fred Hill for a 16-13 advantage, only to have the Giants score on Fran Tarkenton's one-yard keeper, regaining the lead at 20-16.

Then came Walk's 45-yard caper and the Eagles final major score by Snead on a push from the half-yard line.

Pretty Puck Stopper

Behind the baseball mask it pretty Laura Watson, 13-year-old goalie for Universal Installations Intermediate Hockey Association girl's house league. She considers herself a standup goalie but when an opponent skates over the blue line she quickly drops to her knees. A rolling puck in her direction is covered by tossing her goal-stick aside and flopping on all fours. Laura doesn't wear hockey pants because "they're stupid" but looks very good in blue jeans. Sports On All Fronts

NEW YORK (AP) — Johnny Bench and Boog Powell, most valuable players in their respective leagues, are the two nominees for Player of the Year, the Major League Baseball Promotion Corp. announced Monday. Bench, of Cincinnati Reds, was the Most Valuable Player in the National League; Powell, of the world champion Baltimore Orioles, the Most Valuable Player in the American League.

The two CY Young award winners, Bob Gibson of St. Louis in the national and Jim Perry of Minnesota in the American, are the nominees for Pitcher for the Year.

An award also will be given for the Defensive Player of the Year, along with awards for Manager of the Year, Minor League Player of the Year, Major League Executive of the Year and the player who best typifies the game on and off the field.

A committee of writers and broadcasters representing the teams in both leagues will select the player, pitcher and defensive player.

CARTAGENA, Colombia (CP) — Canada lost its third consecutive game in the world amateur baseball championships, bowing 3-1 Monday night to the entry from The Netherlands Antilles.

The Canadian senior team looked much better than in its one-sided losses to Cuba and Nicaragua, and scored its first run of the tournament to hold a brief lead.

Canada today plays the strong United States team, which leads the standings of the single round-robin tournament with a 4-0 record. The U.S. downed Venezuela 7-1 Monday while Guatemala defeated Holland 5-4.

DETROIT (AP) — Gordie Howe, Detroit Red Wings' 42-year-old super star, will be out of National Hockey League action for two weeks with torn rib cartilage and a sprained rib cage.

Howe was injured in the Wings' Sunday night 4-2 victory over the Philadelphia Flyers. He fell on Flyer defenceman Joe Watson's skate after scoring his second goal of the game and had to be helped from the ice.

He and his linemates, centre Alex Delvecchio and left winger Frank Mahovlich have been the bright spots in Detroit's dim performance so far this year. They accounted for all four goals in Sunday's game, and have put in 34 of the team's 43 season goals.

The record-setting NHL star has a history of fast healing, missing only two games in the last six seasons. Team physicians said that the rib damage is difficult to mend, and added that it may linger long after the two-week time limit they set. Howe missed six games in 1960-61 with a knee injury and brain concussion suffered after an Eddie Shack body check to mark his longest absence from play.

Howe is being kept in a Detroit hospital.

NEW YORK (AP) — New York Rangers of the National Hockey League announced Monday the recall of forward Jim Krulicki from Omaha of the Central League. Krulicki replaces rookie Jack Egers, who suffered a concussion in Sunday night's game against Minnesota. Egers will be out of action for about 10 days.

NEW YORK (AP) — New York Mets signed their first team member for the 1971 season Monday when they got outfielder Cleon Jones to agree to a contract estimated at $55,000. The salary is the same the long-hitting, 28-year-old veteran received during the world championship season of 1969 and set a pattern for the team's signing plans.

Excellence Axed

TORONTO (CP) — There will be no "excellent" skiing conditions in Ontario this winter.

The Ontario department of tourism and information and the Ontario Ski Resorts Association, which put out the daily ski reports during the winter months, "excellent" will not be used this year.

They said skiing conditions will be described as good, fair or poor.

Good will indicate no bare spots in the snow. Fair will mean snow with more than 10 per cent icy spots but less than 10 per cent bare spots.

The two organizations said in a news release the new rating system, which begins Wednesday, is more in line with European style and should result in a more harmonious relationship between resort operators and skiers.

Beban in Blue ?

TORONTO (CP) — Toronto Argonauts, who suggested following their Eastern Football Conference semi-final loss to Montreal Alouettes Nov. 7 that they were in the market for a quarterback, have been talking to a former Heisman Trophy winner.

The candidate, Gary Beban, Heisman winner at UCLA in 1967 and second-round draft choice of Los Angeles Rams of the National Football League, now is with Washington Redskins.

Argo coach Leo Cahill, who said Monday he didn't want to make a big deal of it, confirmed the Argos have talked with Beban.

Larks Healthy for Grey Cup Test

MONTREAL (CP) — Montreal Alouettes appear to be in good physical condition for next Saturday's Grey Cup game against Calgary Stampeders at Toronto.

Coach Sam Etcheverry sent his Eastern Football Conference club back to work Monday afternoon following its tough 11-4 win in Hamilton last Saturday against the Tiger-Cats. The victory gave the Alouettes a 43-36 edge in the two-game, total point EFC final.

Lineman Barry Randall, who suffered an elbow injury Saturday appeared the only doubtful starter against the Western Football Conference Stampeders.

Etcheverry said Monday he thinks Randall may have a repurcoce of an old injury and he hopes the player can appear in the Grey Cup. Montreal's first in 14 years.

The Montreal coach said running back Moses Denson, hampered by a back injury in Hamilton, should be back in top form.

Etcheverry was still warmed Monday about the reception his club received at Montreal International Airport on its return from Hamilton Saturday night.

A crowd of close to 2,500 armed supporters turned out to welcome the team, which earlier this season lost 11-4 to Calgary.

"It seems enthusiasm has been building up here since we beat the Argonauts in that last game in Toronto," Etcheverry said. Montreal eliminated the Argos 16-7 in the sudden-death EFC semi-final.

"We felt we could go all the way this year," Sam said. "But I think the fans only started to get the idea after the Toronto game."

Etcheverry said that when his club failed to generate an offence against the Ticats in the opening quarter Saturday, he began to wonder whether a pair of separate incidents had upset them.

Quarterback Sonny Wade had his sweater stolen "somewhere" between Montreal and Hamilton's Civic Stadium, and was forced to switch to No. 24 from his customary No. 14 for the game.

Then the team was forced to forego its pre-game meal when reports reached Montreal club officials that the food may have been doctored.

Etcheverry admitted the latter was an outside chance, but the club decided to skip the meal.

Calgary Holds Statistical Edge

TORONTO (CP) — Calgary Stampeders, Western Football Conference representatives in Saturday's Grey Cup game, defeated Montreal Alouettes 11-4 the only time they met this year.

Montreal, coming third in the Eastern Football Conference, won seven, lost six and tied one of the 14 games they played. Calgary, third in the West, were 9-5 on their 16-game season.

Here is a statistical comparison of the two teams, based on official statistics of regular season play. Game averages are bracketed.

Quinte Goals Scarce

Goals were at a premium in the Quinte Hockey as Central Tait and Belvedere Hotel won low scoring games.

Grant Hagerman scored the only goal for the game as Central blanked the Stars 1-0 in a game that saw the winners take six of the eight penalties.

Gerry Jones and Larry Stewart scored for the winners with Barry Titterson replying for Stinsons.

Mustangs Blank Merchants

Salmon and McAdam counted goals for the winning Mustangs.

In the other game play, Marysville came up with a 4-2 win over Mulroneys.

Mousetrap Nearing Long-run Theatre Record

LONDON (CP) — Actors taking on a year's contract in Ira hall it "taking my national service." For overseas visitors on package tours, it has become as much a London landmark as The Tower and Westminster Abbey.

More than 2,759,000 persons have seen it since it opened in the bleak, still-rationed winter of 1952. It has been calculated that if they all stood in line, it would stretch from the Ambassador's to Aberdeen, a distance of 524 miles.

In author, who recently celebrated her 80th birthday, appears just as baffled as everyone else by its self-perpetuating success. Although she calls it "The Dear Mousetrap," she never has considered it one of her best stage plays.

She wrote it originally as a radio play at the request of the late Queen Mary, who had asked the BBC to put on a new Christie mystery for her 80th birthday.

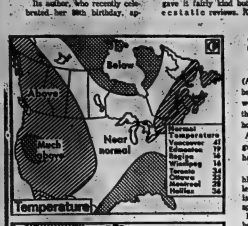
When the author expanded it into a stage play, she said it it made any money it would go into a trust for her grandson. Mousetrap has been put more than £200,000 ($550,000) in his bank account. . . .

When the stage version opened Nov. 25, 1952, the critics gave it fairly kind but hardly ecstatic reviews. Either the play's 1,998th performance, the critic of the star—a now-vanished London evening newspaper—wrote curtly:

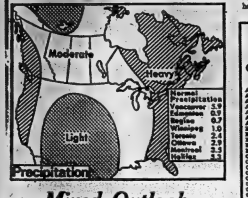
"The biggest mystery of the evening is that this play has run for so long." That was more than 6,458 performances ago.

The original stars were Richard Attenborough and Sheila Sim, playing a detective and the owner of a country hotel that shut off from the outside world by snow. Their parts were now played by Dan Cashfield and Ann Kennedy, and the play so far has gone through 726 actors and actresses, who sign up for one year with the option of leaving after six months if they find it too exhausting.

Critics and theatre buffs have tried many times to analyze The Mousetrap's grip on the public. The formula of "Cozy crime and comedy in an English country house," as The Times puts it, is a foolproof one, but the sheer magnitude of its run is by now undoubtedly the major attraction.



Each year producer Peter Saunders proudly unveils ever more astounding statistics. The curtain has been raised and lowered 86,688 times; the wardrobe mistress has ironed 33 miles of shirts. Christie fans return at intervals of a few years, when they have forgotten who the murderer was, bringing their children or even their grandchildren.



Critic Maurice Richardson of The Sunday Times said although the play now seems dated to him, and slow to gain pace at the beginning, the first-act curtain, when the stage goes black and the victim is murdered, remains "infallibly compulsive."

The Ambassador's box-office is still taking £300 at each performance and there seems a reasonable chance it will be doing so when The Mousetrap celebrates its silver jubilee. It still has seven years to go to catch up with the world record-holder, the 26-year run of The Drunkard in Los Angeles.

Producer Saunders says:

"One year I suppose it will stop, for no logical reason. I would like to be there for the last night."

Mixed Outlook

Central Canada can expect near normal temperatures and moderate precipitation according to the 30-day outlook of the United States weather bureau. Above normal rainfall and temperatures are expected for both east and west coasts.

89 Years at Job in Irish Hotel

GLENDALOUGH, Ireland (AP) — Andy McDonnell celebrated his 100th birthday this week and thinks he must be the world's oldest working hotel porter.

After 89 years of paging, grooming and portering, he has no plans to quit.

"A man must work to keep his mind occupied and his legs going" says Andy, who is still what his youngers call spry.

He is a porter in the same hotel where he was born in 1870, the Royal at Glendalough, a picturesque village where Dubliners like to weekend. He only left Glendalough after the death of his wife, when he went to live with his daughter in Dublin, 30 miles away.

Now she drives him back to the Royal every Sunday and he reluctantly says that he can don his hotel uniform and take his accustomed place in the front hall.

Andy's mother was a housemaid and his father a porter in the hotel. When he was 11, he joined the staff as a page boy at two shillings sixpence —now 21 cents—a week. He was promoted to groom and finally became hall porter.

The Royal threw a party for his 100th birthday. Said Manager John Casey: "We started very early so that Andy wouldn't get too tired. But he was the last to leave—in the early hours of the morning!"

The hotel presented him with a cheque for £100 to mark the occasion.

Andy gave up drinking and smoking at 75 "because it was getting bad for me."

But it was only 18 years ago that he gave up working a seven-day week, 8:30 a.m. to 11:30 p.m., all through the season, and with never a day off in 79 years.

Vorster to Seek to Recover Popularity by Improving Trade

JOHANNESBURG (Reuter) — Shaken by election losses which have reduced his ruling Nationalist party to its lowest point in 22 years of power, South Africa's Prime Minister John Vorster appears ready for a drive to win popularity.

Vorster, 65, must consolidate his position as party leader, which is less secure since the Nationalists lost nine seats in an April general election and six in October provincial elections.

One way to regain support for his party is by speeding up the implementation of self-government — homelands — banntustans — for various tribes of South Africa's non-white population. That's the ultimate goal of apartheid, separation of the races.

Vorster also will want to make fresh efforts to establish diplomatic or trade ties with more black African states. This task seems easier to achieve than the domestic one.

Vorster said in a radio broadcast: "Better relations with other countries enjoy high priority and it can therefore be expected that diplomatic relations will be entered into with new states."

He did not specify which states, but the government makes no secret of its ambition to establish ties with black African states.

On Nov. 4 President Felix Houphouet-Boigny of the Ivory Coast said he favors a policy of negotiation and dialogue with South Africa, while Foreign Minister Arsene Usher Assouan said that the human problem posed by apartheid in South Africa should be solved by peaceful means.

The Ivory Coast president, speaking to foreign journalists in Abidjan, also proposed a meeting of the 41-nation Organization of African Unity to discuss apartheid in South Africa.

He said what his country recommends is a policy of negotiation and dialogue with South Africa "which does not necessarily lead to political recognition of the South African regime."

His words were immediately applauded by President Philibert Tsiranana of the Malagasy Republic, who also advocates a policy of discussion and persuasion with South Africa. Malagasy already has close trade and commercial links with South Africa, but has not established formal diplomatic ties.

On Nov. 5, South African Foreign Minister Hilgard Muller said recent statements by African leaders about his country showed an increasing realism and the emergence of a new spirit in the continent.

In the past, Vorster has been under fire, especially from extreme right-wingers, for his "outward-looking" policy of winning friends in black Africa.

Now this policy seems to be paying increasing dividends.

South Africa has diplomatic relations with Malawi, and other ties with Lesotho, Swaziland and Botswana, as well as Malagasy.

The task of speeding up the development of the African "homelands" within the country remains South Africa's most daunting problem.

STOP KILLING YOURSELF

By Peter J. Steincrohn, M.D., F.A.C.P.
Author of "The Doctor Looks At Life"

Bedwetter Cured By Staying Awake

Dear Dr. Steincrohn: This may be helpful to parents who have a bedwetting problem in the family. Our own son wet the bed up until the age of 12. He wanted more than anything else to join the Boy Scouts but could not because of camping trips and the embarrassment.

We had never told anyone about it outside our immediate family and never punished him, but rather felt very sorry for him as we knew it distressed him so much.

As the family doctor did not help, we just hoped and prayed he would grow out of it in time. Then the Scout master of the troop he wanted to join came to visit and find out what was wrong. With our son's permission, we told him.

The Scout master confessed he had had the same trouble until he was 14. Finally his parents took him to a urologist and he lived a dry life.

So we took our son to the urology clinic of a big medical center here in Philadelphia. They kept him there three days, examined his Pasteur tract and X rayed his kidneys. They discovered an opening in the tract had to be enlarged. Inside of two weeks he had stopped bedwetting completely. He is now 25 years old and has never had any more trouble.

My advice to parents is that they be sure that their child be examined by a urologist as well as by the family doctor. Last night I read about that unhappy little fellow of 11 whose parents, were unfeeling as he ran away. I hope they read my letter. — Mrs. D.

Comment: This is an example which indicates that sometimes bedwetting may be due to a fault in the structure of the urinary tract. All bedwetters should have the benefit of a complete urological examination. Sometimes the bladder is too small. However, it is also true that often we cannot find the cause. It may be psychological. The following letter is an example:

* * *

Dear Dr. Steincrohn: For what it may be worth, here is the story of my bout with bedwetting experience. At the age of 12, she was still wetting the bed, even though her mother woke her periodically.

Later on she went to work for the telephone company, and while an apprentice stayed with her supervisor. She was so afraid of wetting the bed that first night that she kept herself awake all night. From then on she was dry! One of my sons — in - law told me he was 18 years old when he got into the National Guard. He was a bedwetter. One night during a flood the Guard was called out. He was so afraid that his buddies would know of his trouble he kept awake all night. He was perfectly free of the habit after that.

* * *

Dear Dr. Steincrohn: Please give us your opinion about sleeping with the head of the bed toward the north pole. It is thought that the magnetic pull affects the person, producing better health and sounder relaxed sleep. Do you believe it is true? — Mrs. C.

Comment: This is an oldie, and one of hundreds of suggested remedies to fight insomnia. It might work for you, but I know of no scientific reason why it should.

* * *

For Mr. S.: The name for "fish-skin," which is rouh and dry and flaky, is ichthyiosis." I don't know of any specific treatment. Perhaps a skin specialist can make some suggestions for comfort.

"They're not much of an asset to the neighborhood. They've been living next door for a year and he's never even washed their car!"

Jeane Dixon's Horoscope

Your birthday today: The initiative passes into your hands in the coming months. You are promised a chance to reorganize your life on a more productive basis. Material improvements are indicated, both in earnings and in converting possessions into cash. Today's natives are devoted to precision, seek work where perfection counts most; many of the men prefer athletic or other physical action.

ARIES (Mar. 21 — Apr. 19): Clear up whatever confusion remains from yesterday; get people back together. Avoid relationships while attending routines. Relax only.

TAURUS (Apr. 20 — May 20): This is a day of picking up pieces, new methods. Work requiring close attention to detail advances very well. Take advantage of any chance to meditate.

GEMINI (May 21 — June 20): Put in a full day's work on neglected chores, unfinished projects. Give careful consideration to your health care, begin constructive new habits.

CANCER (June 21 — July 22): During this relatively peaceful day you can smooth out family controversies. Old worries can more readily to completion now. Meditate this evening.

LEO (July 23 — Aug. 22): Clear up incidental trifles that get in the way. Important projects are not ready yet, but a much lesser work can be done which eventually aids more distant goals.

VIRGO (Aug. 23 — Sept. 22): Finish what you have started; double-check to see that your preliminary details are correct. Take only limited social breaks until set schedules are met.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 — Oct. 22): Slow down a bit, review what you've been doing, correct errors. Avoid expressing critical feeling about others. On health matters, seek diagnosis, advice from experts.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23—Nov. 21): Organize your program firmly and line up matters while you have the chance. The evening is best spent planning further changes, in rest and meditation.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 — Dec. 21): Continue to take life seriously, but this is not a day of crisis. Use it to improve your relationships; make amends for recent failures, disagreements.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 — Jan. 19): Your competency doesn't permit you to loaf and enjoy it. Instead, put together all the odds and ends constructively; they add up to a great deal accomplished.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20 — Feb. 18): Work on the critical details of your current projects. Let your thoughts range forward, putting things into context. By evening you hit on a sound new idea.

PISCES (Feb. 19 — Mar. 20): Now is the time to look back over the recent past, straighten things out. Just seeing matters in perspective brings forgiveness. Your serenity improves by evening.

GM Raises Prices

DETROIT (AP) — General Motors Corp., getting back into operation after a 16-week strike, announced Monday it is raising the suggested retail prices of its 1971 models an average of $34, effective immediately.

The increase, which amounts to seven-tenths of one per cent of the current suggested retail price of a vehicle, came on top of a price increase of $139. or more per cent, announced in September.

Philippines Awaits Pope

MANILA (AP) — Pope Paul's visit to the Philippines will put him in the midst of millions of adoring Filipinos and a church in ferment.

His Friday-to-Sunday stay in Asia's only Christian nation, where about 85 per cent of the 36 million Filipinos are Roman Catholics, may be among the most turbulent of his nine overseas tours.

An emotional and exuberantly warm welcome is certain. Filipino Catholics will jam Manila for this greatest event in the history of their Church since it was established by Spain in 1565. Planners say the Pope's stadium outdoor mass may attract up to three million people.

Accompanying the jubilation, however, is a hard measure of discontent with the local church hierarchy.

This unhappiness is rooted among groups of students, farmers laborers and priests. Some seem likely to demonstrate with marches, banners and calls for reforms.

Most insist that their dissent is not timed at the Pope, but at the powerful diocese of Manila and its archbishop, Rufino Cardinal Santos. But Chito Santa Romana, spokesman for the radical Movement for a Democratic Philippines ,sees the Pope's visit as an effort to reaffirm the status quo. He contends it will be an attempt to "consolidate the feudal values and beliefs the church propagates," and is being made because of a strong threat of revolutionary change.

The Manila diocese and Cardinal Santos are targets because of their reputed riches and conservatism.

Several knowledgeable churchmen and lay leaders estimate the interests of the diocese in banking, businesses and land give it 50 to 70 per cent of the church's total wealth in the islands.

Diocese officials deny it has excessive wealth.

Sydney J. Harris Says

Few Know About Geography

It is strange and saddening how little most people know about our own world, even on the simplest geographical basis. We are so thrilled about landing on the moon, that we hardly know the sizes, distances, or relative positions of places on our own planet.

Not only on our own planet, but our own country as well. I recall how surprised many readers were when I once devoted part of a column to pointing out some obvious geographical facts about the U.S. that contradict most popular impressions.

Such as the fact that Reno, Nevada, is west of Los Angeles; that the southern tip of Illinois is farther south than Richmond, Virginia; that Jacksonville, Florida, on the Atlantic, is actually west of Pittsburgh; and a few others of a similar nature.

I remember hearing years ago, what purported to be a true story about a salesman with headquarters in Chicago, who was travelling the Texas territory for his company. He happened to be in Laredo, and the sales manager wired him: "Since you're in Texas, how ever to Texarkana to see a customer there." The salesman wired back: "Send another man out from Chicago; it's shorter that way."

(When I made a memo of this story, my own secretary refused to believe it; she called the Chicago Motor Club and learned that, indeed, the mileage from Chicago to Texarkana is 795; from Texarkana to El Paso is 808.)

When Hawaii and Alaska were added as states, there sprang up a riddle that kids were asking: "Name the northernmost, southernmost, easternmost and western most states of the U.S." I don't bear a single adult (myself included) answer all four parts correctly the first time. Look it up on your world map, and you'll be surprised at the answers.

The massive size of our nation is still hardly comprehended in England, for instance, is smaller than the state of Alabama, and only one-third the size of California. Indeed, all the British Isles, (England, Scotland, Wales and Northern Ireland) are only one-thirds the size of California. And Alaska alone is far larger than all France, Germany (both East and West), and Italy put together.

We think of "Indonesia," when we do at all, as a little string of islands tacked somewhere along the Equator between Asia and Australia. Yet, when Indonesia was put together as a nation some 20 years ago, it became the fifth largest country in the world, almost half again size of Alaska. As facts, none of these is particularly important; but as an index to our ignorance, they should induce a little moon-modesty.

EXPLANATORY NOTE
TO BYLAW NUMBER 6685

This bylaw 6685 applies to the whole of the area now comprising the City of Belleville and requires water and sewer as minimum municipal services for every building used for any industrial, commercial, residential or institutional use in the City and permit smaller lot areas in some cases because such minimum services are required.

These provisions are enacted under authority of Section 30 of the Planning Act of Ontario and to the extent that such services were not required previously the bylaw is subject to Section 30, subsection (7) of the Planning Act which provides as follows :

"(7) No bylaw passed under this section applies,

(a) to prevent the use of any land, building or structure for any purpose prohibited by the bylaw if such land, building or structure was lawfully used for such purpose on the day of the passing of the bylaw, so long as it continues to be used for that purpose; or

(b) to prevent the erection or use for a purpose prohibited by the bylaw of any building or structure the plans for which have, prior to the day of the passing of the bylaw, been approved by the municipal architect or building inspector, so long as the building or structure when erected is used and continues to be used for the purpose for which it was erected and provided the erection of such building or structure is commenced within two years after the day of the passing of the bylaw and such building or structure is completed within a reasonable time after the erection thereof is commenced."

Harvey McFarland Retires as Mayor

By HARRY MULHALL
Staff Reporter

PICTON — Harvey McFarland wasn't available for comment today — which is not exactly like the mayor of Picton.

But then, it's not exactly like Picton not to have Harvey McFarland available for mayor.

At least that's the first impression today — after two decades in which the burly, successful construction tycoon has been chief spokesman for this town and its community neighbors in all Prince Edward County.

Now, suddenly, that record has only 35 days to run.

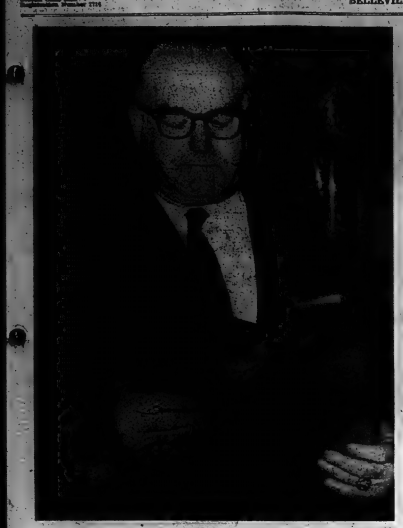
With stunning swiftness, Harvey McFarland himself voluntarily interrupted what has become an era of personalized public service by simply failing to qualify for a local election contest.

His successor by acclamation is Margaret Ackerman, a 48-year-old town councillor who won her first bid for office two years ago, and now becomes this town's first woman mayor.

Mrs. Ackerman was only the third challenger to Mayor McFarland since he first took office in 1951.

First intimation that the ebullient, 63 - year - old mayor wouldn't seek a renewal of service came with stark suddenness Tuesday night at the town's nomination meeting.

It was a meeting that ended a day of trying personal circumstance for the mayor.



Earlier Tuesday he had acted as honorary pall bearer at the funeral of Reginald E. Nourse, a leading Quinte advocate, who had been town solicitor during the mayor's long administration, a director of McFarland Construction Company — and an intimate friend of Mayor McFarland.

He answered complaints of high - handed industrial promotion with a reminder that industry worth $45 million had located locally in the last 15 years.

"My heart is with each and everyone of the loyal ones, but

Guinea Raided Again

"It's Mr. Khrushchev's shoe!"

DAKAR, Senegal (CP) — Radio Conakry announced today that Guinea was invaded again Tuesday night.

The broadcast referred to new "enemy incursions" but gave no further details.

President Sekou Toure of Guinea has said the invading troops are mercenaries hired by Portugal and attacking from Portuguese ships. Portugal has denied any connection.

Guinea's ambassador to Nigeria, Ousmane Soware, said Tuesday the invaders planned to overthrow Toure's Marxist government and install a new regime. He said Nigeria was sending its troops at Guinea's request because: "Imperialists are very cunning. One never knows where or when they may show up again."

A United Nations Security Council mission arrived in Dakar today from New York on its way to Conakry, the Guinean capital.

The mission, consisting of the UN ambassadors of Nepal, Colombia, Finland, Poland and Zambia, is expected to spend a week in on-the-spot investigations before reporting back to the Security Council.

Guinea says hundreds of soldiers, mostly white approached its shores in Portuguese ships early Sunday and invaded the capital, Conakry. Radio Conakry claimed Guinean troops repulsed the invasion and drove off another invading force Monday night then announced the Tuesday night invasion.

Margaret Ackerman Acclaimed at Picton

One Memento

Harvey McFarland didn't qualify for election as mayor of Picton last night — and abruptly a 20-year-old record of public service has been interrupted. It's been a record marked by much recognition of Mayor McFarland's energetic community role — among them a man-of-the-year award (above) in 1968.

Two Face Sentences For Refusal to Talk

MONTREAL (CP) — Judge Jacques Trahan, presiding over a coroner's inquest into the death of Pierre Laporte, Quebec's former labor minister, has set next Tuesday for continuing the inquest and sentencing two persons found in contempt for refusing to testify.

After trying for at least 20 minutes to get Clermont Roy, an unemployed 22-year-old, to testify, Judge Trahan had to handle some wild histrionics from Lise Rose. Both were found in contempt.

Judge Trahan tried unsuccessfully to persuade Roy that his testimony might prove the innocence of another person or persons.

But Roy, calm throughout his brief appearance, replied that anything he said — even under court protection — could result in charges being laid against others.

"I have nothing to say," he repeated several times.

Lise Rose, sister of two brothers wanted in the kidnapping Oct. 10 of Mr. Laporte screamed before being dragged out that she had been stripped "stark naked" and beaten during interrogation by police.

THE WEATHER

Synopsis: Cloud and snow ahead of a complex weather system over the Dakotas, Manitoba and Montana spread rapidly into Northern Ontario during the night and into the Great Lakes region this morning. Warmer weather accompanied this system and temperatures are expected to reach into the upper 30s over southern Ontario today. The warming trend will continue through Thursday over most of the province. The lower takes region will likely get some sunny periods Thursday.

Farmer May Be Told Amount He May Grow

OTTAWA (CP) — The time may be fast approaching when the government will tell Canadian farmers how much they can produce and how much they can sell, Agriculture Minister H. A. Olson said today.

Mr. Olson, speaking at the opening of the agriculture congress, said the emerging aggressive approach by government, aided by all segments of the industry, indicates a genuine need to tailor production to market demand."

"There must be careful planning and forecasting to enable the farmer to decide on an appropriate level of production," he said.

Mr. Olson also said a legislative framework is necessary to provide the means to market products in an orderly fashion.

"Legislation can also be enacted to effect production control by telling farmers how much they can produce and sell.

"I am convinced that we must keep our prices and products competitive."

If prices are not competitive Canada will not be able to export "and if we cannot export we cannot prosper," he said.

The agriculture minister said there has been a tendency in Canada to "downgrade" agriculture's importance to the national economy.

"Fewer people live on farms and in rural areas and, in a sense, because they are out of sight, our farmers are out of mind."

Also few Canadians have experienced real hunger and this abundance has fostered complacency.

But while the industry is taken for granted, roughly every third Canadian household is supported by money earned either directly or indirectly from our food industry. In addition the output of each farm worker now feeds 40 people compared with 11 prior to the Second World War.

Mr. Olson said the farmer's returns for his labor, capital and management invested is not comparable to that enjoyed by those in many other sectors of the economy.

War Critics Refuse To Back Raid Tactics

WASHINGTON (CP) — Anti-war critics refused Tuesday to soften their condemnation of the abortive weekend attempt to rescue American prisoners-of-war in North Vietnam and expressed alarm over Defence Secretary Melvin Laird's statements indicating possibly more rescue bids might take place.

Laird told the Senate foreign relations committee "we are considering other action" to save prisoners from what he termed inhumane treatment and possible death through neglect.

He also warned he would urge President Nixon to take "strong countermeasures" if Hanoi decided on reprisals against American captives because of the raid.

Although he did not say whether he had military or diplomatic action in mind, his remark prompted Senator J. William Fulbright, chairman of the committee and a persistent opponent of the Vietnam war, to say that Laird seemed to be threatening to invade North Vietnam.

Author Commits Hara-kiri

TOKYO (Reuter) — Yukio Mishima, the controversial famous author, today disemboweled himself and was then beheaded in a samurai warrior-style protest against the disappearance of Japan's former military might.

The 45-year-old novelist playwright and one of his followers in his right-wing patriotic organization both died by the sword in the ritualistic hara-kiri suicide after attacking an army headquarters here.

Hussein's Men and Guerrillas Reported to Be Fighting Again

BEIRUT, Lebanon (AP) — Heavy fighting broke out between King Hussein's army and Palestinian Arab guerrillas in Jordan today, the Palestinian resistance movement reported.

A statement said the fighting broke out at 7:30 a.m. and was still raging at noon. Telephone lines to Amman were cut.

The statement claimed Jordanian troops "opened up on guerrilla positions in Thahrat Ashour with mortars and heavy machine-guns." It did not give Thahrat Asour's location.

The outbreak of fighting followed the disclosure that King Hussein and President Anwar Sadat of Egypt will confer in Cairo next week before Hussein begins a four-nation Western tour that starts with discussions in Washington with President Nixon.

Al Ahram, the semi-official Cairo newspaper, said today that Hussein's Egyptian visit will begin next Wednesday and that from there he will fly to Washington, London, Paris and Bonn. The newspaper said he will leave Washington before Dec. 11 because Israeli Defence Minister Moshe Dayan is arriving in the United States that day.

Hussein will spend Christmas in London with his wife Princess Muna, who is British. She has been in Britain since fighting began between Hussein's army and Palestinian guerrillas in Jordan several months ago.

Al Ahram did not say what Hussein and Sadat would discuss, but the king said in an interview Tuesday that he is pushing for a summit meeting of Arab leaders to discuss the Palestinian situation. He said he is sending letters to them but not to Yasser Arafat, leader of the Al Fatah guerrillas and acknowledged head of the Palestinian movement.

Liquifuels Wins Appeal on Sewer

Liquifuels Limited, local oil dealer has won out in its appeal against a special assessment by the city for local improvement costs covering the installation of 339 feet of sewer on Church Street.

The local improvement charge of $1,861.15 assessed by the city was based on Liquifuels Church Street Frontage.

Hastings County Judge J. C. Anderson, in giving decision on the appeal, pointed out that part of the sewer cost could be assessed against Liquifuels as the sewer, while constructed down the centre of Church Street, was really intended to serve only the east side of the street.

The Liquifuels office building is already served by sewer from Pinnacle Street and Judge Anderson in his decision said there was little likelihood that the Church Street sewer would be used to service the applicant land.

The Ontario Municipal Board approved the city's local improvement bylaw assessing Liquifuels for part of the sewer construction cost.

Liquifuels appealed to the court of revision which cut the assessment in half. The city then appealed the ruling with the case being heard by Judge Anderson early in September. The decision was handed down early in November.

First Storm Snarls Traffic

The Bridge Street East hill looked like a ski hill after a heavy wind for 45 minutes this morning as cars, pointed in every direction, skidded and slithered, following the start of the season's first heavy snowfall.

The Bridge St. West hill was blocked off by police with cars making almost no headway up the steep incline.

Drivers of cars not equipped with snow tires were hard put to manoeuvre the hills, those with foresight pulling over to curbs to await the arrival of the 10 hard-pressed city workmen spreading their salt-sand mixture.

A spokesman for the city works department declared that the snowfall "hit quickly" but workmen began spreading mixtures of sand and salt on all major downtown hills shortly after snow began to fall close to 10 a.m.

A spokesman for the weather office at CFB Trenton forecasted a fall of between two and three inches on the shore, four to five on the lake.

This first heavy fall of the season is expected to change to a mixture of rain and snow by the afternoon, ending near midnight.

Temperature forecasts for tomorrow are between 34 and 38.

The weather bureau advised The Intelligencer that, although the fall would accumulate to some depth, nothing close to the fall experienced in the London and Georgian Bay area would occur.

Two feet of snow in the London area paralyzed traffic along the Macdonald - Cartier Freeway yesterday with an estimate of more than 1,000 stalled cars reported by police.

Provincial police reported banked snow as high as four and five feet and snow plows working continuously between Barrie and Collingwood.

City police and Belleville reported no accidents by 11 a.m. this morning.

City police chief Douglas T. Crosbie, urged motorists to drive carefully adding drivers that the first fall is quite often the most dangerous.

"No accidents yet, but we're keeping our fingers crossed."

Signatures and Satisfaction

It's smiles — and signatures — all round as Avon Jewellery Co. Ltd., and Amalgamated Silver, Jewellery and Allied Workers representatives reach agreement on new work contract. Wrapping up negotiations are (from left) union officials Reg Louder and Rosemary Hamilton, Avon president Joel Mazer and plant superintendent Leonard Rumleskie.

Candidates to Contest Ten Seats on Board

Six of the 17 trustees on Hastings county board of education are sure of their seats for the next two years.

Elected by acclamation were F. John Follis of Bancroft, Millard Waller of Thurlow, Mrs. Jean Hutchison and Ralph Weaver of Trenton and the two separate school representatives on the public board, Robertson Collins of Belleville and John Forbes for the county at large.

In Belleville, seven candidates are running for five seats. Two newcomers are competing with the five incumbents.

They are Ron Lee, Canada Cement Company safety supervisor who is now an appointed member of the Vocational Advisory Committee of the county board, and L. A. Kells who retired four months ago as superintendent with the county board.

The five incumbents seeking re - election are board chairman James Clarke, Everett Fairman, Miriam Graham, Nelson McKibbon and Macdonald Smith.

Board of education elections will take place this year in five centres — Maynooth area, Marmora - Rawdon, Sidney - Frankford - Sidney, Tweed - Rungerford - Tyendinaga and Belleville.

Those standing for election are:

Maynooth area: Emerson Robinson (incumbent), Mrs. Sybil Saylor — (one to be elected).

Marmora, Madoc, Rawdon area: James Spry (incumbent), Gordon Bennett — (one to be elected).

Tweed, Rungerford, Tyendinaga, area: S. C. Genaja, Laurisen Gunning (incumbent), Bruce Parti — (two to be elected).

Sidney, Stirling, Frankford: Frank Falvell, Raymond Rowe (incumbent), Donald Williams (incumbent), (two to be elected).

Separate Board Race In Belleville Crowded

Elections for Hastings-Prince Edward separate school board will be held in three wards Dec. 7.

In the remaining four wards trustees were elected by acclamation.

In Belleville, where interest in school board business peaked during pre - election public meetings on the suspension of the board's superintendent and the calling of a hearing on the issue by the department of education, 11 candidates are contesting five board seats.

Contests are also slated for Trenton and the Sidney-Marmora, Deloro, Frankford area.

Wards and candidates are: Belleville: Mrs. Jean Wilson (incumbent), Paul Wall (incumbent), E. J. Buckley (incumbent), John F. Granville, Zdenek Kvarda, Robert Lucy (incumbent), James H. Wiseman, Magr. James Sullivan (incumbent), John Joseph Chapelle, Paul Edwin Fleming, Gerard F. Brennan — (five to be elected).

Trenton: Ben Keene (incumbent). William Menzies (incumbent), Austin Scott (incumbent) — (two to be elected).

Sidney - Marmora: Ernest F. Albree, Mrs. Lillian O'Connor (incumbent— (one to be elected).

These elected by acclamation are: Rev. Walter Hamilton for Picton and Prince Edward townships; Gerald Wake for the Thurlow Tyendinaga area; Edward J. Courtyon for the Tweed - Rungerford area and Rev. Louis Casartelli for the northern townships and Nipissing district.

Councillor Outlines Post Office Plan

TRENTON (Staff) — Trenton's Municipal Offices "are not adequate for present needs" councillor Ted Parker said here yesterday.

Councillor Parker was speaking at a press conference called by clerk, O. W. Larry to reveal details of the post office development scheme, the future of which will be decided by a public referendum December 7.

Mr. Parker said that the present building on Dundas East has no committee rooms and "is not conducive to good business practice". Mr. Parker mentioned that the arrangement of offices at poor — the clerk is upstairs, the deputy downstairs.

Participation of the town in the proposed condominium is the answer he suggested. "By the time it (the post office project) would be completed, we would need new town offices anyway" he said.

Contender for a council seat, George Brown, states that the present town office building is "good for another 25 years."

Councillor Parker feels the renewal scheme is a "forward step" and declared that "unless we build on current facility" the more taxes can only come from a higher tax base".

Not only would the post office site be utilized in the scheme but also the property on which the Bailley Building, the egg grading station and the Canadian Imperial Bank of Commerce now stand, he said, adding that owners of these buildings "have shown interest" in moving the develop ment related.

Under the proposal to be decided December 7, the Town of Trenton would own one floor of the 4-storey mall, the clock tower and adjacent park area. "We can lease it, sell it or use it" councillor Parker said.

Total cost of the project is estimated to be $1.1 million, the town's share would be $251,150. The town portion would be paid for by 10-year debentures.

Councillor Parker explained that the architects, David K. Linden Associates, would act as the developing company and they would find the additional sum of money on the "open market" to complete financing of the mall.

Valentine's Day Off

Contract Is Signed At Avon Jewellery

An industrial plant may not be the ideal setting for romance.

But there's one city manufacturer that recognizes Valentine's Day as something special.

As a result, employees at Avon Jewellery Company Ltd., receive the day off work each Feb. 14.

Valentine's Day is acknowledged as a holiday by Avon's management — and the day set aside for romantic greetings was once again included as one of nine statutory holidays when the plant's new union contract was signed yesterday.

The new contract, effective Dec. 1, was reached with Local 44, Amalgamated Silver, Jewelry and Allied Workers Union, representing 36 Avon workers.

Key clause of the new agreement is a 30 per cent wage increase over three years.

Under the new agreement, starting hourly rates for unskilled help will be $2.01 cents beginning Dec. 1, rising to $2.15 in 1971 and $2.30 in 1972.

Other benefits include five days' paid sick leave each year; two weeks' vacation after one year, rising to three weeks after nine years and a month after 20 years.

Three days' bereavement is allowed on the death of a family member or inlaw.

The company also will pay the difference in average wages and court stipends for employees called to jury duty. Complete cost of a weekly dependent and drug welfare plan and 65 per cent of a life insurance plan is also covered.

Terms of the contract were announced jointly by union international vice - president Reginald Louder and Avon president Joel H. Mazer.

Mr. Louder said the bargaining sessions had lasted only a month and had been "most amicable."

Proving this, he said, was the fact the new agreement had been reached well before the current work contract expired.

It was the fourth agreement reached by both parties in six years without the need of seeking conciliation, said Mr. Mazer.

UCS Campaign Short of Goal

Projections by executive members indicate that the Belleville and district United Community Services will fail to meet its projected goal from the United Appeal campaign.

This announcement was made last night by Andrew Robb, 1970 campaign chairman for the UCS to representatives of 10 of the UCS agencies.

This year's goal, "10 per cent more" of $138,000 is about $8,000 beyond donations, although the appeal has not yet officially ended.

"The amount raised this year will fall short of total agency needs," he said.

"Agencies will have to be cut back ... I hope it won't be too significant."

"We certainly hope to be fair and treat each agency equitably," said UCS president Robert Ord.

Representatives of the Navy League, YWCA, Red Cross, Belleville Family YMCA, Civic Action Committee, Central Volunteer Bureau, Boy Scouts, Minor Sports Association, Canadian National Institute for the Blind and the Association for Retarded Children met to discuss the newly released 1970 Budget Manual.

Announcement of budget splits will be released by Dec. 11 to each agency.

The budget manual makes clear the positions of the agencies within the UCS and outlines related responsibilities.

Chamber's Drive

For some time now the Chamber of Commerce in Belleville has been working toward an expansion of its services. It has enjoyed some success but now finds itself in the position of requiring additional membership if it is to both maintain and extend such enterprises.

To appreciate the value to a community of the Chamber of Commerce, consider that here we have such services as a consumer protection bureau to protect the individual against unfair merchandising practices; promotion of tourism and a visitor carnival; and meetings on such vital contemporary topics as pollution with expert speakers.

Those are just some of the initiatives sponsored by the Chamber in Belleville. Others include an administrative service for the Quinte Construction Association, the Belleville Booster Committee, which keeps coming events posted in hotels and motels, and establishment of a convention bureau.

The latter project is of prime significance in view of the city's growing importance as an industrial centre and the near completion of additional accommodation like the Four Seasons Hotel. The Chamber itself is in the forefront of efforts to bring new industry and business to the city.

On the recreational side, the winter carnival is a colorful and exciting time in the early part of the year, marking the height of the winter season and on that occasion, in February, involving more than a dozen events.

A less tangible but nevertheless important aspect of the Chamber of Commerce philosophy has to do with our democratic way of life. It exists in maintaining individual freedoms and the free enterprise system. Chamber president Frank Murray has put it this way: "We are convinced that with the continuing encouragement of all forms of government into our personal and business life, that we need more than ever organizations like our chamber, that are going to ensure that our present system of society will not be turned into a dull, unexciting, initiative-destroying, socialistic system."

By increasing its membership the Chamber stands to strengthen not only its financial base, enabling Belleville to boost its image and economic life still further, but to broaden the range of ideas from which will come still greater prosperity and sense of community. Business men can adopt these concepts into practice by joining the Chamber. Under way now in this regard is the Membership Week sponsored by the local body.

Negative Attitude

Tom Gould, executive producer of news for the Canadian Television Network, by his condemnation of the War Measures Act (in Trenton last week) allies himself with those sections of the media (they include some spokesmen of the CBC and the Conservative opposition parties in Ottawa) who have been indulging in negative criticism without offering any effective alternative.

The Government, at the height of the crisis still facing the country, had before the public Gould seriously, had vacillated as they sought seeking an end to established order desired, then, these might not have been any government as we know it today.

Ottawa has the initiative, but only because it took action commensurate with the threat to the nation's security. Anything less would have been to ignore finally and disastrously the warnings of internal subversion that have been issued for some time past.

Recognition

For the first time, as far as we recall in a major beauty contest, the winner is a non-white. We refer to Jennifer Josephine Hosten's crowning as Miss World. Miss Hosten hails from Grenada in the Caribbean and as if her victory were not triumph enough for her people, second place also went to a non-white in the person of Pearl Gladys Jansen, Miss Africa South, a mulatto (mixed Negro and Caucasian ancestry) or "colored" citizen from Cape Town. South Africa had a white entrant, Jillian Jessup, as well and she finished fifth. Whatever may be thought of beauty contests, by women's lib and the public at large, this one gave the non-white people of the world their due and at the same time struck a blow for racial tolerance.

Identity Cards—A Look at the System Overseas

By DON DALLAS

LONDON (Reuter) — How much official paper should a government require its citizens to carry, and should it insist that all its citizens be fingerprinted?

A round-the-world survey by Reuter on the subject of identity cards was introduced after Quebec Justice Minister Jerome Choquette said Nov. 4 his department was considering legislation to require all citizens of the province to carry such cards.

The announcement came in the wake of the kidnappings by the Front de Libération du Québec of British trade official James R. Cross and Quebec Labor Minister Pierre Laporte, who later was slain.

In most countries, a man driving to business and intending to visit bank needs a current driving license for identification and an insurance certificate and other documents for his car.

Does he also need a document which officially establishes his identity?

Many countries say yes, and seven have listed on having the citizen's thumbprint on the document.

Other countries find no need for an official identity card. They include Britain, the United States, Japan and Canada.

In Quebec, Choquette said his department's proposal didn't mean institution of a police state, but that all "persons are not sufficiently informed on the presence of certain individuals in various quarters."

The sort of law he was considering, he said, is "a minimum equipment for a modern state to face up to various criminal elements by they terrorists or organized criminals."

From various parts of the world, Reuter correspondents report:

In Russia, a citizen over 16 or a foreigner can be stopped by the police if he fails to produce, on demand, his document", an internal passport.

The olive green Soviet internal passport contains a photograph, data, place of residence, details of marital state, names of wife and children and nationality: Russian, Ukrainian, Jew or Georgian.

Foreign prisoners' passports contain a note on their pest.

The passport has to be presented when a Soviet citizen applies for a job, books a hotel room or receives a money order at a post office.

Police demand to see the passport in the case of violation of traffic rules or any other offence, real or suspected.

A similar system exists in Czechoslovakia, where the identity booklets are red and register information on birth, education, family status and employment.

The Polish identity document, comprising several pages, must be presented when changing money from a bank, cashing cheques, purchasing an airline ticket or entering into hotel-apartment accommodation of one's choice.

France has a system of simple identity cards carrying name, address and photograph. Police are empowered to demand compulsory identity cards during the Second World War.

In Switzerland, passports neither an identity card nor money can be taken to a police station and held for a check. The card is valid for 10 years and must then be replaced by a new card, with a new photograph.

French and Belgian identity cards can be used in place of passports in other countries. Marxist countries.

Singapore operates a system of identity cards, mainly as a safeguard against illegal immigration from neighboring Malaysia and Indonesia.

Although it is theoretically illegal here to refuse an identity card or a foreign resident's pass, prosecutions are almost unknown and there are no surprise checks.

Sweden and Norway issue identity cards but banks and police are equally prepared to accept passports or driving licenses which contain photographs of the holder as means of identification.

In Switzerland and Austria, official identity cards are issued upon application, but the system is not compulsory. Identity cards are used little in Austria, but Swiss citizens find them useful in travelling to other West European countries where they are accepted in place of the more bulky passports.

In the United States, resident aliens have to carry a card issued by the justice department and bearing a passport picture of the cardholder, but this is normally sealed only twice on each visit: on entering and leaving the country.

For Americans, the nearest equivalent to an identity card is their social security card, which was given only name and social security number.

International Relief Body Is Urgent

Political Implications of Disaster in Pakistan

By CY FOX
Canadian Press Staff Writer

The cyclone catastrophe in East Pakistan, which may have killed as many as two million persons, has strengthened "the conviction in many quarters that the world urgently needs an international organization specializing in fast and co-ordinated relief action when such disasters occur.

Offers of help from China and numerous other countries repeatedly reached Pakistani authorities after the cyclone, followed by floods, smashed into the area of the Ganges delta.

But lack of transportation, notably helicopters, soon became painfully obvious and the blistering unaltered survivors loudly vented their anger over what they considered to be the neglect they were suffering at the hands of officials in Karachi and elsewhere.

These protests are likely to have far-ranging consequences with Pakistan, a geographically divided country less than 25 years old in its modern form and the scene of much pent-up political tension.

Pakistan was carved out of the teeming Indian sub-continent as an answer to the conflicts inherent between Hindus and Moslems during the age of British colonialism.

One consequence of the latest natural disaster was the wrangling over India's aid.

Thus, over and above the enormous cost of the current disaster in terms of human life, the possibility is that future political trouble will result from it as well.

And the speed with which a variety of countries, in the West and Asia, Communist and Free, now are announcing relief plans may have implications centred on political gain, in addition to the altruistic desire to help desperately needy people.

The initial transportation problems and the confusion over the Pakistani request for help resulted required in East Pakistan were developments cited by the commercial world as a major hindrance of a high-powered international body devoting itself exclusively to the work of relief after disasters of this kind.

In the 19th century and earlier, immense tragedies like the Ganges catastrophe probably remained unknown except by the outside world for lack of the globe-spanning communications we have today.

The tendency among some Westerners was to conclude that such events were among the terrible methods employed by nature—"red in tooth and claw"—to maintain the balance between population and resources on earth.

No complacent rationalizations of this kind seem widely acceptable in the 20th-century world.

Pressure on University Space

Brockville Recorder and Times

The idea of a campus as such for universities may lessen in importance if the present discussions on the separation of classing from degree-getting catch on. There is certainly every reason to believe that it will because it opens the door to higher education to many who would not otherwise have the opportunity.

In the United States and Canada alternative ways of getting a college education are very much on the minds of educators and governments. One proposal under discussion is the "open university". This would have a faculty and curriculum, tutors at various outposts and tests but the idea of a campus as such would be done away with. External degrees would be given students capable of passing comprehensive exams in a given field of study for which they did their preparation at home or in the city library.

Supporting the idea the Christian Science Monitor recently cited Boston as an example of a need for alternatives to campus life. The city and area has a tremendous student population, and suffers from a kind of social malaise unique to university cities. Housing is short, Rents are outrageous and a kind of student slum impact is felt. The actual number of hours many students spend in classes is few. Many might find it easier to keep their bearings during what are tumultuous college years if their home were to stay their base of operations.

But the Monitor opposes a shift that would result in mere correspondence courses. These, often, are intellectually and otherwise inadequate. Also the major effort should stay in the classgoing mode; where an instructor's presence remains an asset.

"This is somewhat similar to a development that has taken place in Cornwall, Ontario, in the past few years. There a branch of Ottawa University offers courses and grants degrees.

Does Education Need A Fresh Approach, New Faces?

Editor,
The Intelligencer.

Last Tuesday I attended the public hearing the school board held. I attended not because I had a personal interest in any individual. I attended because I am interested in education.

For some reasons a school boards think they are above reproach. Today with the spiralling cost of education it is high time new faces and new ideas were instituted on all boards in Ontario. I believe the concept, "Power corrupts", and in this day and age we need people with new ideas. I also believe school boards should limit terms to four years and there new faces be added because as I said before the whole concept of education must be rethought.

I do admire the superintendent for standing up to what seemed to be a long-standing board. After all he is a professional educator whereas school boards are part time educators.

All in all it was a most informative evening.

UK Government and Rhodesia

Heath Says He Is Not Bound by Wilson's Pledge

By HAROLD MORRISON
Canadian Press Staff Writer

Are Britain's pledges going up in smoke?

A number of Commonwealth countries are reported to be asking that question following the latest clash over Britain's new approaches to Rhodesia.

Back in 1966, at the height of the great struggle between Britain's Prime Minister Harold Wilson and the Ian Smith Rhodesian regime, the Commonwealth extracted a promise from Wilson that there would be no independence for Rhodesia without majority rule.

The pledge was included in the communique of the 1966 Commonwealth prime ministers' conference. The British government firmly pledged that it "will not consent to independence before majority rule unless the people of Rhodesia as a whole are shown to be in favor of it."

Since the blacks outnumber the whites in Rhodesia by along 14 to one, the Afro-Asian Commonwealth members were well satisfied that Ian Smith could not get legal recognition without yielding to the concept of one man, one vote, or something similar to it.

But Britain's new prime minister, Conservative Edward Heath maintains that his government is not committed to that concept. The British foreign office argues further that if the previous Labor leader made such a pledge, it subsequently lapsed away from it. In any case the new government does not feel it is bound by what the previous administration "may have said."

Thus when the Afro-Asian countries attempted to get the United Nations Security Council to back the majority-rule concept, the British member found himself in the embarrassing position of having to exercise a British veto.

This decision, indicating that the Heath government doesn't want his hands tied in new attempts to reach a settlement with Smith, has widened difference between Britain and Afro-Asian countries.

A clash had already developed over Heath's proposed sale of certain arms to South Africa. Afro-Asian resentment may have been reflected by the speed in which Zambian President Kenneth Kaunda decided to nationalize the international banks in his country. A number of the banks are British-owned.

By two o'clock this afternoon close to the Ontario Intelligencer's deadline, only five more people for the Belleville municipal field had qualified three proposed for school trustees and installed, and Mayor H. Jack Allin was the only nominee for mayor to do so. The Bell telephone business office boasted in the new exchange building at the corner of Bridge and Dundas Sts. and be opened to the public November 27, announced W. A. Proctor, company manager. The new modern business office will replace the present cramped quarters at 121 Front St.

Relocation of CPR Tracks May Be Economically Feasible

Possible removal of the Canadian Pacific Railway tracks from the city's south end may not be the way-out pipe dream that it was once considered.

This was intimated Monday by Mayor J. Russell Scott when at city council he said high level talks by officials of the CP and CN were planned for discussion of just such a possibility.

Alderman Arthur Keegan for many years has urged removal of the CP tracks from the city, claiming that this would make sense from an economic viewpoint.

The railway running through Foster Ward has over the years hampered development in that area, he claims. If the tracks were moved both the city and Sidney township could stand to gain millions of dollars in assessment.

But hitherto the cost of track removal and relocation (estimated at anywhere up to $25 million) has put the idea out of reach.

"Who would pay the cost?" has always been the skeptics' stock answer.

But all that was yesterday, so to speak.

Now, with the tremendous cost of constructing railway grade separations, the idea of moving railway tracks suddenly doesn't seem too far fetched.

Mayor Scott Monday told council that highways departments and railways are now taking a closer look at trade removal possibilities in some areas as an alternative to spending millions on grade separations.

The thought behind it all apparently is that it could be economically feasible for highway departments to contribute toward track removal instead of paying toward the cost of expensive construction of grade separations.

In any event, Mayor Scott said a CP official is to meet with his CN counterparts to discuss what the possibilities might be at Belleville.

One of the possibilities, he said, could be to move the CP tracks from the city and run them along Canadian National steel through Sidney township and the city.

He said the railways were holding these discussions voluntarily.

"Apparently they feel it would be better to hold the discussions on their own time be fore they are forced to do so by the Canadian Transport Commission."

Alderman Keegan feels moving the CP tracks from the city would result in tremendous development possibilities for the Foster Ward area and for Sidney.

He said development had been stifled for years by the tracks.

"It's never too late to start" the alderman commented at a recent city traffic committee meeting.

If track removal is at all feasible, the alderman asserts that now is the time to take action before million - dollar grade separations on No. 2 Highway at the cemetery west of the city and at Haig Road in the city's east end are constructed.

One councillor Monday night asked what would happen to the recently built CPR-13 a y Bridge Road overpass should the CP tracks be moved from the city.

"It would be the city's $750,000 bridge to Zwicki's Island," returned the mayor.

McFarland

there are a lot I wouldn't wipe my feet on. I've given all I have and done all that's in my power.

He then quickly left the meeting, taking surprised townsfolk he had decided not to seek re-election.

There was a 34 - hour interval before the unexpected decision was irrevocably sealed by law.

At 9 p.m. last night — the deadline for municipal candidates to qualify for election — the town clerk's office announced Mrs. Ackerman was mayor by acclamation. Harvey McFarland had not formally qualified.

Personal reactions were immediate.

"This is the end of an era," said one McFarland supporter.

"It was his life — and he loved every minute of it," added a second.

Exuberance was invisible, for the relationship between the man and his community had been long and intimate.

Only 13 months ago, Mayor McFarland personally recalled its beginnings as more than 600 of his fellow townsfolk surprised him with a public tribute at Prince Edward Collegiate auditorium.

It was a contact that went back to depression years, when Harvey McFarland, a struggling road builder, was granted his first contract in Prince Edward County — at Glenora.

He didn't even have enough money to unload his equipment from the ferry.

Local residents pitched in to help — over his protests that he couldn't afford them on his payroll.

"They didn't even think about being paid for it," he recalled. "And I just thought: Any people who are as fine as these — this is the kind of people I want to be with."

So he stayed, to reciprocate the generous attitude of that initial contact.

McFarland Construction Company became a major Canadian contractor, its founder vigorously joining the activities of his adopted community.

He first became mayor by acclamation. In 1961 and again in 1968, he was opposed. Both challengers were handily defeated as the Harvey McFarland longhaired his mayoralty into one of the longest in Canadian municipal history.

Public service was only one side of the McFarland profile. Rounding out the record into a local legend is a legion of personal gestures to his adopted community, its people and organizations.

It's estimated, for instance, that some 30,000 youngsters learned to swim because he made his private pool available to a community program.

As a community spokesman, he has been a dedicated booster of Picton on a grand scale.

His determination brought the glamorous International Harnessmith trophy back twice to Picton Reach in the late 1930s.

As for the future, only Mayor McFarland can be the spokesman for Mayor McFarland.

Anyone for Walking?

Snow on Bridge Street East quickly built up a hotlinesck of traffic as cars ended up in a variety of positions. Elsewhere in the city, the Bridge Street West hill was cordoned off by two police cars to prevent a further tie-up; city workmen quickly went to work with four sand-salt spreading trucks. Snow, began falling shortly after 10 a.m. with a forecast of between two and three inches expected. Police were everywhere, directing traffic and taking down information concerning the several minor collisions.

Budget Confrontation

Representatives of the Belleville Minor Sports Association expressed misgivings over receiving a fair shake from the Belleville United Community Services in budget allotments at a meeting with agencies of the UCS. Isidore Cooperman, executive director of the UCS, unsuccessfully attempted to explain to Cliff Belch, MSA treasurer, that the sports association was receiving a fair deal. Each year the association has had to approach city council for grants to clear up budget deficits.

Minor Sports Unhappy With UCS Affiliation

A representative from the Minor Sports Association last night declared its affiliation with United Community Services to be "inadequate".

Speaking at a joint meeting of UCS agencies, Cliff Belch, treasurer of the MSA, brought a message from the sports association to the effect that "we can't operate successfully under the (UCS) budget."

In the past, Minor Sports has been able to approach the city to make up the deficit difference not supplied from their membership in the UCS.

This expression of disgruntlement came last night when the UCS announced that the expected goal of $130,000 would again not be met, with estimates indicating a fund close to $120,000.

UCS officials announced that budget cuts will be reclased by Dec. 11.

"If we have to approach other sources, the budgets will have to be submitted by Jan. 1," declared Mr. Belch.

"That's cutting it a little fine."

Following the meeting Mr. Belch stated that his main belief was "not receiving funds from one source."

He said that approaching two different sources for the annual deficit caused, among other things "bookkeepe's headache".

Mr. Belch felt that the UCS was not giving Minor Sports "a fair shake" in the distribution of funds.

He explained that the UCS allots funds to the MSA after first deducting the expected grant from the city.

"I think we're the only association treated in this manner; two other agencies received city funds . . . but they didn't have that amount deducted from their UCS budget."

"If we're a member of the agency, I think we should be treated just as any of the others are."

The Minor Sports Association faces an approximate $30,000 deficit for the 1971 season.

Hastings Slates Now Known

Qualification deadlines last night formed up the coming local council election scene in several Hastings County municipalities.

In at least one township there will be no council election.

Only three of four nominees qualified for three seats on Rawdon township council, ruling out the need for a contest in which the reeve and deputy already had been acclaimed.

The 1971 Rawdon council will be: Reeve, Ray Short; deputy reeve, Murray Heath; council, Wesley Finch, James Pollock, John Spencer.

This was the lineup in other municipalities:

Madoc — Reeve, Tom Burnside (acct), Council (four to be elected), Robert Kirkwood, Arnold Rost, Clayton Smith, Mel Kincaid, Bruce White, Mel Caverly, Harry Rascoe, Sam McCrae, (incumbent), Clarence Graham; Council (four to be elected), Fred Preston, Marcellus Laberge, Gary Hust, Anthony Alphen, Ray Phillips, Vincent Lynch.

Tudor — Reeve, Jack Brown (acct); deputy - reeve, Earl Hawley (incumbent), Mrs. Audrey Sexsmith; Council (three to be elected), Thomas O'Malley, Mrs. Rae Carswell, J. S. Hastin, R. M. Hawley; PUC, Donald Easton, William Laundry (acct).

Marmora Lake — Reeve, John Wilkes (incumbent), Graham Bell; Council (four to be elected), Tom Devolin, Gordon Jones, Frank Bird, William Jones, Robert Drummon, Douglas Bilsdf, Charles Clemens, John Cook, Mrs. Marilyn Maloney, Pat Bertram.

Bangor - Wicklow - McClure — Reeve, Delmont Card (acct); Council (four to be elected) Tom Buckley, Walter Watson, H. A. Fentie, F. Brebner, J. Donaldson.

U.C.W. Meeting

COLLEGE HILL UCW

The program for the recent meeting of College Hill UCW was in the form of a "book party".

Program convener, Mrs. Emma Armstrong introduced Mrs. Dennison of the Fish and Dove Book Store on Bridge St. East, to explain the great display that she had arranged on the tables. She explained the significance of its name in relationship to this being a Christian Book Store. Mrs. Dennison had brought along a wide selection of women's books written by such authors as Dale Evans, Catherine Marshall, Eugenia Price, Elisabeth Elliot, Anita Bryant and Kathryn Kuhlman and gave her audience a brief review of the books.

She also showed and told about books dealing with the drug problem, black and white problem, teenagers, children, sex education and morality as it is written from the Christian viewpoint. There were various translations of the Bible, Bible story books, children's Bible books, records and music books. Other items on display from her store were: Scriptured notepaper, letter pads, and Christmas cards; serviettes and place mats; cook-books and baby books; children's puzzles, cut-out and story books and colorful calendars.

Mrs. Dennison was most informative in her presentation of these Christian books and displayed a fine choice of articles.

Mrs. Fraym McDonald, program co-convener, expressed appreciation to Mrs. Dennison.

Previous to the book display, Mrs. Pat King and Mrs. Carolyn Emerson conducted an impressive devotional service.

The business period was conducted by president, Mrs. Marilyn McIntosh, while refreshments were served by Mrs. Key Dowling and Mrs. Helen McLaren. The financial report showed net proceeds from the recent tea and bazaar to be nearly $450. Members were reminded to place their Christmas gifts to Mental Health Association in the kitchen soon. Mrs. Leona Bailey announced that a bale of good, used clothing would be packed during January.

A potluck supper prior to the UCW meeting on the regular date, Dec. 16 is planned.

University Women Hear History of OSD

Guest speaker Dr. J. G. Dennison, outlined the development and growth of the Ontario School for the Deaf from 1870 to 1970 at the November meeting of the Canadian Federation of University Women of Belleville held in the Trenton Education Centre. A series of slides were shown by Mr. Vader and comments on the Trenton Education Centre were given by Dr. J. Boyd.

Mr. Dennison said that an Irishman Mr. J. B. McCann started a small school for deaf children in Toronto in 1858 with four pupils. He tried to impress on government and civic officials the need for a school of this type. After eight moves in twelve years the fruits of Mr. McCann's efforts were realized and a permanent school was established in Belleville in 1870. The school was called "The Deaf and Dumb Institute."

The new school had many problems — irregular heating, boiler trouble and poorly designed classrooms. Because of these many inadequacies the school was rebuilt in 1922.

In 1974, the school was host to the first convention of teachers. Part of the program was a trip to the landmarks in the steamer "Rochester". The main speaker was Alexander G. Bell, who spoke on "visible speech", a method used by the school up until the year 1906.

The main food supply for the institute came from the farm which was developed and operated to help cover expenses. They kept registered Ayrshires and chickens. The farm continued until 1952, when the land was turned down. The farm and the last of the cows were then sold. Sir John A. Macdonald School and Centennial Secondary School now occupy the land. Now the only agricultural activities are horticulture and maintenance of the grounds.

Early group hearing aids had large amplifiers. They serviced groups of students, were very elaborate and were fitted to the floor. Now, individual speakers and modern group hearing aids are used. Such trades as shoemaking and metal - working were taught to the boys in the early days. The girls learned Home Economics and sewing. Later cabinet making, drafting, printing, commercial and beauty culture were added. Sports and physical training have always played an important role in the school.

Today, many of the hard of hearing students are separated from the totally deaf for different training. The maximum level of achievement is equivalent to about Grade 10. Students may go on to Gallaudet College for the Deaf in Washington, D.C. and obtain a B.A. degree after a one year refresher course and then two years at the school. There are 13 day students out of a total of 432. A residence has been set up where four girls at a time live for a short period with a residence councillor. They make the menus, buy their own food and keep the house.

Other services which have been added recently are the development of audiological and psychological departments in the school. Some children who have a language and speech disorder (aphasia) are taught here also.

One other feature of the school which is unique is the "in service training" of the teachers. A new teacher Education Centre has been opened for their training. This media centre is equipped with overhead projectors, a T.V. 16 mm., movies and slides. They have their own T.V. studio and can produce programs from live action. A character generator is being developed where words are printed across the screen. The tapes are also available to south western Ontario.

In 1963, a school was set up at Milton and by 1968 had facilities for both junior and senior classes. Prior to this The Ontario School for the Deaf in Belleville serviced the whole province. A third school is in the planning stages for south western Ontario.

Dr. Demeza was introduced by Mrs. R. L. Graham and thanked by Mrs. H. Mc. Gillan. A short business meeting preceded the speaker.

Margaret (Vandewater) Ghent received her Bachelor of Arts degree at the fall convocation of the University of Western Ontario, London, on October 30, 1970. Mrs. Ghent a primary specialist, is a curriculum consultant with The Hastings Board of Education.

Mom Keeps Refrigerator Full, But Balks at Mess

By DORIS CLARK

My neighbor Marie works. So does her husband. There are two teen - age boys, both at school. One of them plays hockey.

There is plenty of coming and going in that household. It is a busy and a happy one. When mother isn't around she has left plenty of food in the refrigerator for snacking, and you may be sure the boys take full advantage of this. (All teen-agers have a hollow leg, of course.)

That's all right with Marie. She's glad to keep the food on hand. The one thing that jars her is to come home from work to find a mess in the kitchen.

So Marie has laid down a dictum. She says, "Look boys. You can have whatever you like to eat, whenever you like. Help yourself. But just don't leave work for me to do when I come home."

They're learning!

Dear Doris: I met this guy named Bruce this summer. He is 18 years older than I am (I am 19) and is a friend of the family. He doesn't act all that much older or look it.

We have discussed marriage and have been seeing each other regularly.

I know he would never hurt me, because he told me so many times. At noon hours he picks me up at school and we simply drive around and listen to the radio. All my school friends know and it will get around by the grape-vine.

We just don't care about the age difference and we love each other very much — at least we are very, very fond of each other. If this letter sounds mixed up it probably is because I'm sure as heck am. — Sally-Anne.

Dear Sally-Anne: There's nothing like the glamour of an old smoothy to turn a girl's head. But has it occurred to you that the boys your age will soon grow up and develop the manners and know-how which are dazzling you now?

He should be acting his age. That family friendship will suffer a severe blow when your parents find out. Love, the marrying kind, is far removed from a romantic ride around the block with a man old enough to be your father.

Better branch out before someone else — a parent, for instance — takes a hand.

* * *

Dear Doris: I made myself a white dress. However, since I had a child before I was married, some people feel I should not dress in white, particularly to go to church. This happened 25 years ago.

May I add that since I have been married I haven't had anything to do with anybody else. — Frightened.

Dear Frightened: What nonsense! Wear whatever color you like including white. What do they want you to do — go in mourning for your lost virginity, 25 years later?

The ban on a white dress only applies to the formal wedding dress usually reserved for the bride who is a virgin. If these women are right, I guess I must say they are making a great business of "casting the first stone". I wonder if there is one among them who is without sin?

The kitchen is the danger spot in the home for small children — especially just before dinner when mothers are busy and distracted and children are hungry and restless.

Put a gate across the kitchen door to keep toddlers out when you are cooking or handling hot food. Or strap the child in her high chair where she can play and watch you as you cook.

Grey Cup fever is epidemic in Canada. On Saturday hostesses will have to be ready for the influx of victorious (or disappointed) football fans. Mary Moore comes to their rescue with an easy Chocolate Layer Cake made in the beater bowl and a Dilly Buttered French Stick.

An Interesting Menu for Grey Cup Day

By MARY MOORE

If the epidemic Grey Cup fever does not infect your home you can make and eat today's Grey Cup specials quietly in your dining room with no rising blood pressure.

I am featuring an Eggless Devil's Food with Fudge Custard Frosting and Dilly Buttered Garlic Bread. Serve them with a huge platter of variety cold meats and cheeses and individual salads.

EGGLESS DEVIL'S FOOD WITH FUDGE CUSTARD FROSTING (a beater cake)

Batter:
1 cup sugar
¼ cup cocoa
5 tbsps. melted butter
¾ cup sweet milk soured with 2 tbsps. vinegar (or 1 cup buttermilk)
1 tsp. baking soda
1 tsp. vanilla
1½ cups sifted but not sifted cake and pastry flour

FROSTING:
2 tbsps. corn starch
¼ cup cocoa
¾ cup sugar
¼ tsp. salt
1 cup boiling water
2 tbsps. butter
½ tsp. vanilla

To make Cake put all batter ingredients into beater bowl, stir two or three times with spoon, then lower beaters and beat on medium speed 3 min., stopping beaters to scrape down sides once. Turn into two greased 8" layer cake pans lined on bottoms with buttered wax paper. Bake at 350 deg. Fahr. 30-35 min. Let rest in pans 5 min. Turn out on racks, peel off paper and cool.

Frost between layers and on sides and top with Fudge Custard Frosting made by combining in top of double boiler the first four Frosting ingredients then stirring in boiling water. Stir over boiling water until thick. Cover and cook 15 min., stirring once or twice. Add butter and vanilla and cool. A quick and popular double purpose filling and frosting you should like.

DILLY BUTTERED GARLIC FRENCH STICK

1 med. French stick (14" x 4½" diameter at centre)
¼ lb. butter melted
½ tsp. garlic salt
1½ tsps. dill seeds (for oval-way or poppy seeds)

Cut loaf into ¾" slices nearly through to bottom. Place on large double sheet of foil. Add garlic salt and seeds to melted butter and brush liberally between slices. Wrap up in foil and heat in 300 deg. Fahr. oven 30 min. This was eaten to the last crumb.

Homosexual Considers Party A Rat-race

DEAR ANN LANDERS: Soon the seasonal rat-race called the office Christmas party will be upon us. It's a hideous ritual which I have always deplored. Although I've been reading your column for years, this is the first time I've had the courage to write for advice.

I happen to be a homosexual who is making it in the straight world. I live in a rather small town where people view homosexuals as freaks who should be read out of the human race. The man I live with does not come to the office. We've been seen dining out together but I'm sure no one figures we're a couple. I've dated several girls (strictly a cover) but I've given up that sort of thing because I don't think it's fair to the girls. When they hint at a marriage I feel like a heel.

ANN LANDERS

I'm tired of living a lie and want to tell the chairman of this year's Christmas party that I'd like to bring my "wife" who happens to be a male. If the chairman doesn't like it, I won't go. Do you recommend the move? — ZERO HOUR.

DEAR ZERO: If you want to lose your cover — go ahead, but figure in advance what you're going to do for an encore. Also have another job lined up — just in case.

* * *

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I'm a high school junior with a grown-up problem.

This might sound ridiculous but I think my boyfriend is an alcoholic. Is it possible for a kid who isn't even old enough to buy a drink legally? Every night he gets bombed out of his mind. He will drink anything he can get his hands on. If we are just driving around town it's beer with vodka chasers. If we are at somebody's house he drinks whatever is in the liquor cabinet. I don't know how he gets his head off the pillow in the morning, but he rarely misses school.

I love this boy and we have talked about getting married after graduation. He has promised me things will be different after we marry, — that he won't drink like this. But something inside me says things will be the same. Will they? Please advise. — TROUBLED IN SAULT ST. MARIE.

DEAR TROUBLED: No. Things will not be the same if you marry this boy. They will be worse. A kid who refuses to put the cork in the bottle for his sweetheart will not do so for his wife. Your guy needs professional help. He must learn why he has this compelling need to escape from reality. What in his life is so painful that he must anesthetize himself against it? I hope he realizes the seriousness of his problem and gets some help soon.

Early Shoppers Are More Selective

People are spending less than disappointing Christmas year for Christmas gifts.

Although it's too early to be sure, this seems to be the trend in downtown Belleville this year as countdown for the holiday season begins.

Shoppers are becoming more selective, according to operators of boutique - like businesses on Front St.

"They are looking for small unique things this year," says one. "We are doing a terrific business in small items."

Small items inched everything from funny animals for decorating teenager's rooms to chokers, bead and arm bands, belts, beads, and pendent and ring watches.

If the item is made of leather, so much the better. Leather and suede is riding the crest of the popularity wave this Christmas and everything wearable is being manufactured in it.

Leather suits and coats are big sellers, with one store carrying suits as low as $45.

Tradition in gift purchasing is being thrown out, says one merchandiser. Lingerie, nightgowns and pyjamas still sell well for Christmas, but mod accessories and trendy garments are out ahead this year.

Culotte pyjamas and jump suits are examples of the more expensive gifts that women of all ages will find under the Christmas tree this year.

And pant suits are away out in front as the best sellers among the more expensive clothing gifts. Longer tunics show the mild influence that is expected to be general by spring. Pant suits in luxury fabrics with glittering trim is the newest thing for party and evening wear.

Ski wear has zoomed to the forefront in the winter sports division.

"Being a winter sport, we catch the Christmas trade," says a ski equipment retailer.

Young people buy the expensive equipment — skis and boots — with the proceeds of summer jobs. Their parents usually provide the clothing and accessories as Christmas gifts. Thermal underwear, toques, fur hats, mitts, gloves, sweaters make stocking stuffers for the ski enthusiast.

The latest style in ski wear this year is the flared ski pant with a regular pant to tuck the boot and a flared part to go over the boot.

One downtown boutique offers a touch of fun early for holiday giving. From leather suits and coats in all sizes, they have dropped.

Mr. Fox did not find any increase in sales to a greater degree, explaining that buyers were more price - conscious now and were demanding more quality and more educational toys.

He said that parents were buying educational toys now and that puzzles and the like were getting popularity.

"Parents look at what the children can learn from the toys," he said.

"People are more cautious this year and are buying more family gifts. They're not going to spend the money this year like they have in the past."

Hot wheels and sizzlers are cornering the market at Walkers as well when it comes to toys for the boys. Girls at Walkers are forsaking barbie dolls for Cristy dolls which have the ability to grow hair.

The younger girls want fully washable dolls.

Toy Tastes Are Changeable

Christmas to the older generation is several things — a special religious expression and a special time of celebration: but to children Christmas, among other things, is toys and games and fun.

And toys are where it's at for the manufacturers and retailers as well. In addition, 1970 could be one of the big years for toy sales.

Toy trends are like those of fashion, they vary from year to year and each year a certain toy obtains or maintains a superiority in popularity.

The Intelligencer talked with Donald Fleger, supervisor of the Toy Department at Towers, and Ronald Fox, in charge of the Toy Department at Walkers Hardware Store in downtown Belleville.

Mr. Fleger said that the big toy series for girls this year so far was The Wonderful World of Barbie which features Barbie and other assorted dolls and accessories.

In addition little girls this year are going to get homemaker sets for Christmas and other assortments of dolls that walk and talk and do all manner of things.

Motorized vehicles are the big item with boys such as car racing sets and self-propelled cars such as hot wheels and sizzlers.

Last year hot wheels didn't go as well, but this year they're the big thing for boys," he said.

Mr. Fleger said that toys were doing well this year and that more toys were being sold than last. Towers' toy department, set up Oct. 15, has been selling consistently since its inception.

He said that people are buying earlier this year which could be one of the reasons for the increase. He added that the individual personal was buying 15 to 25 per cent more.

Prices are more attractive this year than last. Compared with last year they are basically the same and, in cases of change, they have dropped.

Rescue Work in Full Swing

ABOARD INTREPID. (Reuter) — An international rescue and relief mission spearheaded by Britain's Operation Burlap was in full swing today in an effort to help the survivors of the tidal wave which ravaged much of East Pakistan's coast 13 days ago.

The British mercy force, headed by the assault ship Intrepid, arrived in the Bay of Bengal from Singapore Tuesday and the complex task of unloading supplies began immediately.

Within hours four big landing craft had reached Patuakhali, site of the land base of the joint force. The landing craft carried supplies for the hungry and homeless of Patuakhali, one of the worst-hit areas in the devastated zone. At least 170,000 persons are officially reported dead in the disaster.

Later in the afternoon the first naval helicopter took off with a half-ton load of rice for the village of Rangabali, which will be the major operation base for the British force.

With the Intrepid, anchored 30 miles offshore, are the converted aircraft carrier Triumph, the landing support ship Sir Galahad and the 2,930 ton survey ship Hydra.

A Pakistani army officer in charge at the village of Rangabali said the crops had been ruined and the people would need relief until they could harvest a new one—which would mean several months.

There are now nine American helicopters in the disaster zone, operating out of the U.S. forward relief base at Noakhali, 85 miles south of Dacca.

Sports Equipment Big Yule Favorite

Golf is about the last sport that comes to mind this time of year.

Unless, maybe, it's tennis.

Yet golf clubs and tennis rackets are among items being purchased by Bellevillians right now.

And sports stores expect to move more as the search for Christmas gifts widens into an all-out shopping spree in coming weeks.

The weather is no hard-and-fast criterion when it comes to sports gifts. Fishing tackle, rifles, shotguns are also high on the shopping list, report city merchants.

However, the white-Christmas traditions still are hard to ignore.

As in the past, winter sports still provide most of the inspiration for yuletide shoppers.

The snowmobile continues to grip the imagination of Canadians again this year and Quinte sports dealers are getting their share of the national market.

Its direct appeal as a family recreation extends the buying boom into its accessories — notably clothing.

Many Bellevillians who bought the machines without the standard leggery — insulated suits, helmets, goggles, boots, are back this year adding to the demand for clothing, says one sports supplier.

"A lot of people just took a chance last year on what clothes they had themselves," he adds. "They found out they couldn't weather the storm — as it were — and now they're back."

Another piece of outdoor equipment also appears to be making a comeback via the snowmobile — the snowshoe.

There's sound reasoning in a snowmobiler being equipped with a pair of snowshoes, says George Cooper, of Kelly's Sport Shoe.

They act as a "kind of spare tire." If a machine breaks down in deep snow in the bush, the sportsman isn't totally crestfallen. He just goes on walking until he meets help.

But it's another kind of sporting footgear that's still the biggest seller of them all.

This Christmas, as with every other Christmas past — and likely every Christmas to come — skates are the most popular goods on the rack.

Skates for beginners of all ages are available in price ranges just as broad. Each year there are more and more hockey - playing moppets to equip and replacements for for feet that've grown larger between seasons.

"Skating is a constant need to outfit growing feet," defines one sports equipment salesman.

Skiing also continues popular with Christmas shoppers this year, reports a spokesman at the Stephen Licence Shop.

Tobogganing, however, may have taken a bit of a dip with the spread of family snowmobiling. It is now mostly a sport for youngsters.

"Ice-fishing will be big this year again," predicts sports store owner Bob Blaiod, who notes good sales in fishing equipment.

A brisk business in hunting paraphernalia — even though the shooting season are done for another year — also seems evident. Rifles, shotguns, knives, decoys, field glasses, are being purchased, or laid away by customer request for Christmas giving.

"Once upon a time, the demand was only about twice a year — in spring and deer season," says a veteran sportsman.

There may be something more to the sports purchases than the fact more Canadians are getting into the outdoors.

Despite a year of tight money, most sporting goods merchants seemed optimistic about business.

Sports equipment doesn't come cheaply — despite the customary range that links quality to price.

Snowmobiles start in the hundreds of dollars. Skates can range down to $11. A good rifle will cost $200, a quality shotgun $150.

Yet, claims Bob Blaiod, people are putting their gift money on the higher-priced items.

"People have more money to spend — and they're buying quality rather than price," he says.

"I'm finding that cheaper goods are a thing of the past. Our customers have good quality."

The Compleat Hunter

Hunting equipment is high on the list of gift purchasers in Belleville area this Christmas. And for the hunter who has everything there are still novelties — like this six-foot replica flintlock held by six-year-old Pat Kelly, assisted by George Moore. It's for decoration only.

Many Stranded 12 Hours on 401

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Hundreds of weary people, many stranded for 12 hours when their cars and trucks ran out of gas or stuck in snow banks, started heading for home late Tuesday afternoon when department of highway crews unclogged Highway 401 between London, Ont. and Woodstock.

The London area was hit by 30 inches of snow and provincial police said that by noon Tuesday, more than 1,000 cars, most of them bumper-to-bumper were caught in a giant snarl which backed up more than 10 miles.

Air and road services had been restored to near normal by Tuesday night.

All highways were open again, although Highway 401 had been blocked east of London for most of the day. Traffic moved slowly over the snow-covered surface and slippery section between London and Woodstock, after the highway was cleared.

The department of highways said Highway 401 "westward from London was mainly bare and dry, with the occasional snow covered section. There had been no snow in the Chatham area.

A Gray Coach Lines Ltd. bus which left for London from Toronto at 1 a.m., on a normal 2½-hour run, did not arrive until near noon.

Police said the tie-up on the 401 started about 12:30 a.m. and motorists were warned to use alternate routes.

Schools were closed in rural areas where county roads were plugged and in the city of London attendance dropped at most schools when school buses stopped operating.

Identify Card Report To Be Tabled Shortly

QUEBEC (CP) — Justice Minister Jerome Choquette Tuesday rejected a request that his proposal for obligatory identity cards be discussed in the legislature's justice committee.

But he said a partial discussion of the proposal will appear in a white paper to be tabled in the national assembly during the next session.

Discussion by the justice committee could follow this, he suggested.

Mr. Choquette was replying to Remi Paul, justice minister in the previous Union Nationale government, who said the justice committee should discuss the question of compulsory identification cards in depth.

Court Upholds Oil Sale Controls

OTTAWA (CP) — Calcil Ltd. of Montreal Tuesday lost its bid to market imported oil west of the Ottawa Valley.

Regulations of the national energy board restricting the sale of imported oil to the Atlantic and Quebec regions and part of eastern Ontario were upheld in an unanimous decision by the Supreme Court of Canada.

The energy board regulations, issued in August, were aimed at carrying out the government's national oil policy. Under that policy, all Canada west of the Ottawa Valley is reserved as a market for Canadian petroleum products.

The August regulations replaced earlier ones found to be unconstitutional by a judge of the Exchequer Court. He said they tended to regulate trade within a province and thus were not within the federal power to proclaim.

To get around these objections, the revised energy board regulations impose conditions on the oil before it came into Canada. They also are concerned with the use of the oil rather than its transport.

Agreement Will Let Canada Export More Oil

OTTAWA (CP) — The hazy outlines of a broad oil-export agreement emerged Tuesday at the close of a joint United States-Canada ministerial conference.

The agreement has the immediate effect of clearing the way for all the crude oil Canada can export to the U.S. in 1971. This would likely mean a 100,000-barrel-a-day increase in piped oil exports from the present daily rate of about 720,000 barrels.

The additional oil exported would be worth about $100 million in a full year.

Officials of both countries then would try to work out an arrangement for future years that would provide "full and unimpeded" access of Canadian crude oil to U.S. markets.

As part of longer-term agreement, Canada would have to maintain in reserve of excess oil to meet any emergency disruption in oil imports from outside North America.

The U.S. would meet any shortage in eastern Canada but those supplies would have to be replaced in the United States by oil from Western Canada.

A future agreement also depends on whether Canada is successful in overcoming U.S. reluctance to lift quotas against Canadian oil imports as long as Eastern Canada is dependent on what some consider uncertain overseas suppliers.

The U.S. has avoided heavy dependence on Canadian imports as long as there was a chance such supplies might be diverted to meet emergencies in Quebec or the Atlantic region.

External Affairs Minister Mitchell Sharp, head of the Canadian delegation, and Secretary of State William Rogers, head of the U.S. delegation, both expressed confidence that the meeting had been a success.

However, there was no indication of agreement on the issues of pollution. Canadian uranium exports or the U.S.-Canada automotive agreement.

Mr. Sharp told a news conference the Americans had argued Canada should be prepared to give up safeguards contained in the auto pact because of substantial benefits already achieved.

Mr. Sharp said Canada replied that a current payments surplus now enjoyed by Canada was temporary. He said, all safeguards could not be abandoned at once.

Mr. Sharp flies to Britain and Europe later this week to continue discussions begun here of the possible effects of an enlargement of the European Economic Community.

U.S. Interior Secretary Walter Hickel told reporters after the conference he strongly disagrees with statements by Canadian Energy Minister J. J. Greene, criticizing U.S. inaction on pollution in the Great Lakes.

Mr. Sharp said he, too, felt the Americans were not doing enough to curb pollution.

Mr. Hickel said the Americans have a great many more pollution problems and difficulties in fighting them than Canadians.

The Library Corner

By O. D.

Can you tell me what I should feed an alligator? Do you have a copy of Benson's White Paper on taxation? What is the origin of Bach? I need some information about J. D. Salinger the author, can you help? What are the current Customs regulations in Canada? I need to find the name and address of both a doctor and a lawyer in Saskatoon. Can you find me some information about aircraft design, transducers, and okra-seeds?

These are only a few of the questions for which Bellevillians have found their answers in the reference department of Belleville Public Library.

Among the new books added to the reference collection recently are:

ACRONYMS AND INITIALISMS DICTIONARY, 2nd ed., Gale. A guide to alphabetic designs and initialisms in science, business transportation and many other fields.

FUNK and WAGNALL'S DICTIONARY OF DATA PROCESSING TERMS. A guide for programmer, technician, student and businessman.

THE CANADIAN LAW LIST A listing of lawyers in Canada

CANADIAN MEDICAL DIRECTORY. A listing of doctors, alphabetically and by province and a directory of other medical information.

THE MERCK INDEX. An encyclopedia of chemicals and drugs containing descriptions of about 42,000 names of chemicals and drugs and nearly 10,000 descriptions of individual substances.

THE ENCYCLOPAEDIA OF CHESS, which aims to provide a reference book on the organization of chess in different countries of the world — lists of champions, results of tournaments and information about different kinds of chess.

THE TRAIL OF THE STANLEY CUP. A two-volume history of Stanley Cup hockey from 1893 to the present.

Handbook — lists outstanding GEOGRAPHY - A reference works and outstanding scholars in progeraphy.

Not all information is stored in books and the reference library maintains pamphlet and clipping files for current materials and information not found in other sources. The next stage of immediacy is the magazine. Back files of magazines are made useful by indexes to the articles in them. THE READER'S GUIDE to periodical literature which indexes general American magazines and the CANADIAN INDEX for material in Canadian magazines are both on reference library shelves.

Next time you have a question or need help with your research, remember your public library. It's your library, why not use it?

Tax Cut Urged

TORONTO (CP) — The president of Canada Trust Co. called Tuesday for a "hefty cut in taxes to help reactivate the economic system "lest collapse occur."

J. Allyn Taylor, chairman and president of Huron and Erie Mortgage Corp., and Canada Trust, both based in London, Ont., also called for long-range planning by government and business to prevent future unemployment and economic decline.

THE BETTER HALF. By Bob Barnes

"He should live to a ripe old age — there are no moving parts to wear out."

Russia Supplies Heavy Water

OTTAWA (CP) — Canada eased the heavy water drought Tuesday with purchase of 55 tons from the Soviet Union.

The purchase by Atomic Energy of Canada Ltd., is the second such deal with an overseas country this year as the domestic nuclear power program nears a crucial point of heavy water requirements.

By 1972 or 1973, the shortage may amount to between 300 and 400 tons unless further supplies become available.

Sweden sold Atomic Energy of Canada 170 tons last summer. A lot depends on progress with production at the Canadian General Electric plant at Port Hawkesbury, N.S. It began producing reactor-grade heavy water a few weeks ago.

Heavy water is a costly and essential ingredient of Canadian nuclear reactors.

Canada is paying cash—about $3.3 million at the going market rate of roughly $28 a pound. Deliveries begin in the spring and probably will be made directly to the Pickering, Ont., site of Ontario Hydro's biggest nuclear power plant.

White Paper Will Assess Forces Role in Peacetime

OTTAWA (CP) — A reassessment of the role of the Canadian forces in peacetime will be contained in the government's policy paper on the armed forces, Defence Minister Donald Macdonald told the Commons Tuesday.

Taken into consideration will be the role of the troops posted in Quebec to meet the urgent situation there, Mr. Macdonald said in reply to questions by Eldon Woolliams (PC—Calgary North).

Robert K. McKinley (PC—Huron) was ruled out of order when he asked Mr. Macdonald to reconsider a decision to move a radar school from Clinton, Ont., to Kingston.

Mr. McKinley said reports are that it would cost $1,200,000 to make the move and suggested the idea be dropped.

In an adjournment debate, Mr. Macdonald said his department will save $2.9 million annually by consolidating radar and communications training at the Kingston base.

Mr. McKinley said the department would have to spend $1.2 million on construction to set up the radar school at Kingston.

Mr. Macdonald replied the department would save more than twice the amount it spent at Kingston with the consolidation.

Edward Broadbent (NDP—Oshawa-Whitby) asked whether the government will follow a resolution passed during the weekend at the Liberal policy conference in Ottawa that called for the declaration of Canada as a nuclear-free zone.

Mr. Trudeau said that this and many other questions will be considered as part of the defence white paper.

THE LITTLE WOMAN

"Are you all right? You haven't said a word for almost ten seconds."

Senate Rejects Motion For Ryerson Sale Probe

OTTAWA (CP) — A proposal that a standing Senate committee investigate the sale of Ryerson Press to an American-controlled company got little support in debate in the upper chamber Tuesday.

The proposal by Senators Hazen Argue (L—Saskatchewan) and Harper Prowse (L—Alberta) was made following an announcement recently by the United Church of Canada that it planned to sell the major school textbook publishing firm to McGraw-Hill of Montreal, a U.S.-controlled firm.

Senator Allister Grosart (PC—Ontario) said there are serious constitutional and legal difficulties barring immediate intervention in the sale by either the federal or Ontario governments.

He suggested the Senate might contribute in a more appropriate way to the question—which really involved the whole matter of foreign control of Canadian companies as well as the status of the Canadian printing and publishing industry—than by sending it to a standing committee which had other work to do.

Senator A. H. McDonald (L—Saskatchewan) said he is not convinced the sale should be prohibited.

Senator McDonald said he is concerned, however, that Canadian children have access to Canadian authors and that these authors get the chance to penetrate not only the Canadian market but other markets as well.

RENT-A-COW

CALGARY (CP) — A new concept in the cattle business—limited partnerships—has been started in Canada by two Calgary ranchers. Prevalent in the United States, it lets individuals participate in establishment of breeding herds and is referred to by a Calgary agricultural columnist as rent-a-cow.

Farmers Doubt Value Of Outlook Parley

OTTAWA (CP) — Agriculture Minister H. A. Olson said Tuesday accurate outlook and forecast information is important to farmers, but farmer delegates questioned the value of the annual outlook conference as it came to a close.

The conference was held to discuss the agriculture department's annual outlook forecast for the industry.

The forecast information should be passed on to farmers in an "understandable form."

He said the information gleaned from the conference would be used as the basis of discussion at a three-day agricultural congress opening here today.

Statistics were in abundance, but while the economists had a field day the producers felt the exercise had been generally futile.

As the two-day conference ended, George Ross, a Marysberries, Alta. rancher, said: "I've been here two days and haven't learned how to make a dollar."

A. M. Runciman, United Grain Growers President, set the tone Monday, saying it is impossible to establish a precise figure for future grain exports.

Mr. Runciman said government forecasts of how much wheat should be sown next year are "of little value" to individual farmers. It is more important to advise farmers how much grain they can deliver from each seeded acre during the coming year—in advance of seeding. Charles Gracey of Toronto, Canadian Cattlemen's Association manager, said: statistics are useful that:

"My reaction to the projected demand for beef in 1980 is simply that any such projections should be looked on as sterile academic exercises."

Questions And Answers

By The Ontario Motor League

The Ontario Motor League reports that safety officials are joining the world's girl-watchers in opposition to the new trend in fashion toward the maxi dresses and coats. And not alone from aesthetic reasons.

In Britain, the Royal Automobile Club has come up with sound evidence that maxis worn in a car interfere with the changing of the gears, and entangle with foot controls.

American officials, on the other hand, point out that the long look is simply not practical on today's crowded streets where a pedestrian must often run for his (or her) life to escape being run down. They say a girl must be fast to survive.

Girl-watchers, however, dispute this latter view. They say that wearing a maxi is sufficient to insure that the lady will seldom if ever have to run from anything. They also add that, in a car-pedestrian situation, girls wearing maxis are almost always mistaken for very elderly ladies and therefore receive more consideration from drivers than other elements of the population.

* * *

Here's a reminder from the Ontario Motor League: On slippery road surfaces, make all manoeuvres gradually. Avoid sudden starts, stops and turns which may result in skidding.

Maintain safe following distances in traffic. Be ready for sudden stops of vehicles ahead. Don't be a "bumper hugger."

Be sure to give full time and attention to your driving. Continually size up traffic around you by checking mirrors, and observing cars ahead of, and beside, you.

The purpose of signalling is to let drivers know your plans. Remember this as you drive, and signal well in advance of any turn or change of lane.

Now is the time to treat your car to a safety check. After a full summer of steady driving your car may need minor repairs, It's best to make sure your car is in top mechanical condition.

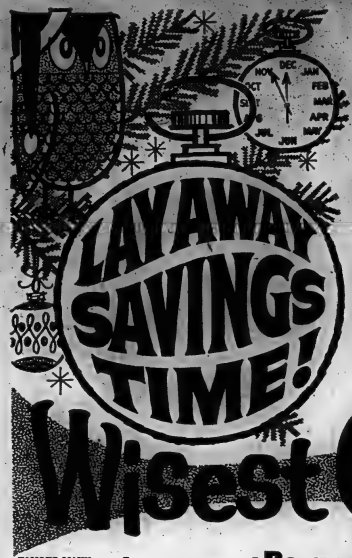
Skidding on curves can be avoided by braking and slowing down before, not after, you enter the curve. With the foot on the accelerator maintain constant speed when round the curve. Above all, do not speed.

Proper use of headlights can help your own driving visibility as well as that of other drivers. Use your bright lights discriminately. Don't forget to dim them when approaching another vehicle coming from the other direction, or when coming up behind a car travelling in the same direction.

When fog or snow squalls close in, good drivers are extra alert. Normal driving speeds are out of the question when visibility is lacking. This type of weather calls for the most careful kind of driving.

6th Sidney

6TH SIDNEY —A group of neighbors met at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Edison Sine on Friday evening to honor their daughter and her husband Morden and John Hosier before the couple left for their new home in Sarnia. The community presented them with a bridge set.



Mr. and Mrs. Cameron Sine are preparing for their holiday trip to points in Portugal, Spain and North Africa.

Mrs. Edison Sine, federated Board member of the Trent valley area Women's Institute will be attending the meeting of the Federated Women's Institute at the King Edward Sheraton Hotel, Toronto from November 23 to 27. On Tuesday the 24th she will attend the dinner given there by the Hon. William A. Stewart, minister of agriculture and food, in honor of the provincial board members of Ontario.

A Hit with Children

Live Gifts Are Christmas Favorites

This Christmas there'll be a number of Quinte families with additions to the household.

Christmas, after all is a time for children — and their pets.

While toymakers annually invest much ingenuity in animating youngsters' Christmas gifts, the real thing still maintains its grip on the imagination. A real, live puppy, guinea pig or budgie is impossible to duplicate synthetically.

Hence the fact that pet shops become a special rendezvous for Christmas gift hunters.

Gerbils and hamsters still are among the most popular youngsters, says Mrs. Renaty Allmendinger, of the Plaza Pet Shop in Belleville.

A big seller for adults are stocked aquariums — for several reasons.

Fish are pets which don't require much attention while aquariums can enhance interior decor.

Acquisition of pets opens a new, exotic range to the gift-givers. Latest arrivals at the store are two woolly monkeys from Peru, ideal for pets because of their mild nature says Mrs. Allmendinger.

Not that the animals themselves are overlooked come Christmas. In fact, some pets have grown to expect gifts, she says.

New coats, toys, treats, even their own Christmas stockings are available for family pets. This year there's a pup tent which means exactly that.

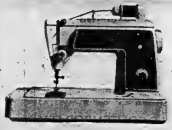
Mrs. Allmendinger says she has been told by owners that their dogs will hunt through packages under the Christmas tree until they've given their gifts.

A Real-live Gift

Pets make real-life gifts come Christmas, and gift-givers have a wide variety of choice. Among pets on sale in Belleville is this mild-mannered wooly monkey from Peru, secure in the arms of three-year-old Rhonda Allmendinger.

A Good Buy

THUNDER BAY, Ont. (CP) —Turkey should be a good buy for housewives this fall. The Canada department of agriculture says marketing will be up by about eight per cent over last year. The biggest bargains will likely be in broilers because marketing will be up 15 per cent.



SURPRISE

You'll be surprised at Singer® Christmas values.

Organize your Christmas surprise. "Stylist" Special Zigzag

199.95

Tell him you deserve a modern, advanced sewing machine. Special Zigzag Touch and Sew®.

So you've been sewing things the hard way on a sewing machine that was fine in its day. And now it's time to move on to one that sews accurately, easily, quickly. Show him the model 648. There's a two-step buttonholer that guarantees perfect buttonholes, a push-button bobbin that winds in the machine right from the needle, a self-threading take-up lever that simplifies threading and interchangeable Fashion® discs that make a variety of stitch patterns for decorative sewing.

289.95

Includes $58 carrying case.

Singer's world-beating sewing machines don't cost the earth. Singer Zigzag.

If your man thinks your new Singer sewing machine will cost him an arm and a leg, tell him about the model 237. The price won't put him out on a limb, and the 237 will sew both straight and zigzag stitching on any fabric. Three-needle position means extra versatility, important for easy button-holing. Adjustable forward and reverse speed and graduated tension dial are other Singer features you'll appreciate, (but he'll probably go for the low price.)

119.95

Includes $20/30 carrying case.

Singer sewing machines are made right here in Canada. Use the Singer credit plan. Singer makes it easy.

Gifts for the Home Being Laid Away

Families throughout the Quinte district will have to widen their chimneys in time for Christmas this year.

At least old Santa will have to bring along a moving van to deliver the color TV sets, the clothes dryers, reclining chairs, stereo sets and components and tape recording machines.

These are just some of the items making the hit parade in family Christmas shopping this year, according to five local merchants.

Gene Hitchon stated that Hitchon Radio and Television has a few items laid away, no rush as yet," although he did explain that there are quite a number of record players and tape players in the "under $99" range being picked up for gifts.

George Booth of Booth Radio and Television Ltd., predicted that "business is booming", with the largest items so far being color TV sets, portables, stereos, dryers for moon, reclining chairs, and oddly enough, table, pole and bookie lamps.

Other items being laid away in time for Dec. 25 included vacuum cleaners, rugs, gift certificates for broadloom, furniture, stereo components for dad, and to some small extent washing machines.

Jack Ireland Jr. of Ireland's Furniture and Appliances Ltd., indicated that big soft chairs, especially the recliners, were being put away, followed by selections of portable TV sets.

Dishwashers, color TVs and dryers are big Christmas items, according to Bud Gill of Bud Gill Color TV sales. He explained that heavy buying for Christmas lay-away occurs between Nov. 15 and Dec. 10.

Circle TV has several color TVs laid away with cassette tape players and recorders and tape tape players providing music of Gerry Dicconi's pre-Christmas sales.

Although the expensive color sets are not providing a boom for the Yuletide season, sales indicate that stereovcorn are finding a ready market for these items.

Sydney J. Harris Says

Due Process of Law Is Essential

The most dangerous and widespread fallacy of our time has been successfully promoted by the advocates of "police power." They have persuaded the public that the "effectiveness" of law enforcement increases as "due process of law" is diminished.

It is not true. It has never been true. And it can never be true. The real "effectiveness" of law enforcement depends upon two factors, and two factors only: the degree to which the public respects the law, and the degree to which law enforcement officers perform their duties fairly and honestly.

If you take the time and trouble to study the comparative crime picture around the world, you will find that crime rates are everywhere the lowest where there are conditions of calm, and highest where they do not. Giving the police wider powers is always a symptom of some breakdown in the social and moral functioning of the society.

Crime is lowest in those countries where the public knows that the police are not corrupt or the agents of political forces; where the administration of justice is swift, certain, and equitable; where police and prosecutors are not permitted to conspire in the withholding of evidence favorable to their cases; where the poor defendant has as much pre-trial protection as the rich one.

And crime is highest — as in the U.S. — where the opposite conditions are rife; where the police are regarded with suspicion and distrust; where the administration of justice is slow, capricious, and weighted heavily against the poor and the ignorant; where prosecutors are more concerned with "making a record" than respecting the people; and where defendants who cannot make excessive bail are kept locked up for months.

Passing stiffer laws, and giving the police broader powers, can do nothing but further jeopardize the human and legal rights of all citizens. It is like treating a case of measles by giving the authorities the right to rub coarse sandpaper over the spots, taking off the skin along with the symptoms of illness.

The charge that the courts "coddle criminals" has no basis in fact. The courts protect individual rights from the power of the state. The defendants who benefit from such decisions as "Miranda" are not the Syndicate chiefs, the gangsters and profiteers, who already had expensive lawyers ready to use every legal loophole to get them off; the ones who benefit are the small fry, the pathetic victims of their own ignorance and ineptitude, who take the rap for the criminal with "clout."

North Has Top Priority

Ronald K. Banister, 52, the Edmonton business who controls a large U.S. based industrial concern, says development of Canada's North is one of the company's top priorities. MacNaughton's Views On Benson Printed

TORONTO (CP) — The Progressive Conservative Association of Ontario stirred speculation Tuesday that Treasurer Charles MacNaughton might seek the premiership if John Roberts announces his resignation some time before Christmas.

The association office issued a well-printed pamphlet, its front cover a head-and-shoulders profile of Mr. MacNaughton, entitled "Why Charles S. MacNaughton thinks Edgar J. Benson is a danger to all Canadians."

A party official said 18,000 copies of the pamphlet had been produced and made available to every riding in Ontario.

Issue of the pamphlet comes just two days before "an evening for Charlie and Addie MacNaughton" in his riding of Huron. The evening, at a cost of $10 and a $5 bus ride from Toronto to Centralia, already has attracted a large number of Conservatives. They include Premier Robarts and many of the cabinet ministers likely to be competitors for his office should he resign.

Mr. MacNaughton's only comment was that he wouldn't have used the title if he had prepared the pamphlet.

STOP KILLING YOURSELF

By Peter J. Ruhrschin, M.D., F.A.C.P.
Author of "The Doctor Looks At Life"

Vanity and Anxiety Send People to Doctor

Question: What brings people to a doctor? Vanity? Or anxiety about illness? Most often it is a combination of motivations. There are times, however, when vanity itself is the prime reason for consultation with a doctor.

Mind you, I do not decide vanity. Thankfully, all of us have it. At times it even acts as a form of self-preservation.

Lately, I have had several letters from women who complain of spider veins. They are not painful, yet quite troublesome to the psyche. And, understandably so. Here is an example:

* * *

Dear Dr. Ruhrschin: Quite often I read letters in your column from readers who have a problem similar to mine. I refer to the small varicose veins of the legs sometimes called "spider veins." These veins began appearing in my early 30s and have been increasingly plaguing around my ankles and in my thighs.

I am now 37. My ankles, back of knees and thighs are covered with them. They make me look old. I find myself very self-conscious in a bathing suit. Is water bad for them? Will exercise help? How about a sunlamp? Do you recommend surgery? — Mrs. L.

Comment: As you know, each case is a problem unto itself. But I doubt that surgery will help. Even injections of special solutions with a fine needle are not always the answer. Exercises and sunlamp? I see no reason why they should make the veins disappear. Water is not harmful.

Frankly, spider veins continue to be a disconcerting problem. Sometimes the only solution is "hiding" them from view. For example, consider this letter received today:

* * *

had spider veins for about 30 years. My only salvation is a makeup which was recommended a few years ago. My doctor advised against needles to dissolve the veins.

The makeup is a very well known "coverup" which comes in a variety of various shades to match one's skin. I use the light shade. After applying it I then add powder over the makeup to help it set.

With or without stockings you cannot detect the veins or the makeup. I have even gone swimming with this on and it's great — stays on for hours.

You have no idea how many years this coverup has added to my life psychologically. When I look at my legs without the makeup, I feel about 80.

* * *

All druggists do not carry it. Sometimes they have to order it. But it's certainly worth all the trouble getting it. I hope my letter helps other women with a similar problem. — Mrs. W.

* * *

Dear Dr. Steincrohn: I suffer from arthritis. I've been told by friends that wearing a copper bracelet will help. Shall I try? — Mrs. U.

Comment: I suppose some readers will think I'm somber for continuing to answer: I know of no scientific reason why it should be useful.

* * *

Dear Dr. Steincrohn: I have gout. I am 23 years old and have suffered from it for the past three years. My doctor, a fine man and a gentleman, has me on a low protein diet that is rather difficult to follow sometimes. He says that at my age diet is more important and tells me to stay away from the gout medications on the market.

I hurt all over. Some days I barely finish a day's work. People I know who have gout take medicines and say they help. They say that these days treating gout by diet alone is old-fashioned. I need to know. What shall I do? — Mr. R.

Comment: As your doctor is a fine man and a gentleman, I'm sure he will not refuse a request for consultation. If gout is unquestionably the diagnosis, most doctors will agree that we have medicines that are helpful and essential in managing gout.

Union Leaders Want New Prices Study

TORONTO (CP) — The Globe and Mail says Canada's key union leaders regard the Prices and Incomes Commission as a body that has outlived its usefulness but are prepared to work with a new body on studies of inflation.

It quotes William Dodge, treasurer of the Canadian Labor Congress, as urging the scrapping of the commission "while retaining the apparatus and staff as the nucleus for a new agency."

Dennis McDermott, Canadian head of the United Auto Workers, is quoted as saying he was excited about the concept of the commission until its chairman, Dr. John Young, began his "incredible performance."

"Before the PIC had even reached the point of hiring researchers (Dr. Young) was bellowing that wages were to blame for costs."

William Mahoney, director of the Canadian section of United Steelworkers of America, is quoted as saying the commission could have done research and investigation to show "who was taking what out of the economy."

Inquiry Will Hear Record of Last Moments of Doomed Jet

TORONTO (CP) — Clues concerning the fate of a doomed airliner from the victims themselves, through tape recordings of the crew's last radio conversations, were expected today as a federal inquiry entered its third day.

Witnesses are also expected to give some indication of how ground spoilers were activated on an Air Canada jet which crashed here July 5, killing all 109 persons aboard.

The plane was flying from Montreal to Los Angeles with a brief stop at Toronto.

In an opening statement Monday, inquiry counsel R. J. MacKinnon said that apparent "inadvertent deployment" of the spoilers caused the crash.

The spoilers, a braking device composed of steel panels along the wings, destroy a plane's lift and keep it on the ground after touchdown. It is my apparently were deployed when the plane dropped 68 feet in a Toronto International Airport runway.

The impact tore loose the outer right engine, the plane lurched back into the air, lost its inner right engine and crashed north of the airport.

On Tuesday, government investigators said:

—If the DC-8-43 jetliner had been built to specifications now proposed b y the United States Federal Aviation Administration it might not have crashed at all.

—The first engine that tore loose should have sheared off cleanly and safely. Instead, it ruptured a fuel tank and knocked out electrical wiring which, apparently sparked, causing an explosion.

—If both right engines had been loose cleanly the plane could still have flown without them.

—Air Canada altered its operations manual after the crash to warn its pilots the ground spoilers must not be deployed manually while a plane is in the air.

Manual deployment of the spoilers is an extremely difficult procedure requiring a great amount of strength. They are usually activated automatically when the wheels touch the ground.

The inquiry was also told that an examination of the wreckage showed no malfunction of the spoiler mechanism.

Arthur LeChenlmant, a structural specialist, said the FAA now proposes that passenger planes be built to withstand runway impact at 24 feet a second.

He said the crashed airliner hit the runway while dropping at between 17 and 19 feet a second. The aircraft had, built by Douglas Aircraft of California, was built to withstand runway impact of up to 17 feet a second.

He said current FAA regulations of 10 feet a second are "not sufficient" — guarantees against crashes occurring under similar circumstances in future. The regulations now proposed would greatly reduce the chances of fire or structural failure when a jetliner comes down too hard.

Mr. LeChenlmant said the new FAA regulations "should be approved or modified at the end of this year." All American-built aircraft being flown by Canadian carriers are built to meet FAA specifications.

T. W. Heasley, a transport department metallurgy engineer, said the force of impact on the runway should have sheared off tension bolts attaching the engine mounting to the wing, a "failsafe" design.

Some of the bolts held. Instead of dropping smoothly away from the wing, the mounting ripped metal plates and ruptured a fuel tank. Ignition of spraying fuel by sparking, trailing wires, caused a blast that doomed the plane.

Both investigators agreed with Douglas Laidlaw, counsel for Douglas Aircraft, that the FAA regulations did not require an aircraft to have the failsafe design.

They also agreed that the bolts met the manufacturer's specifications. However, Mr. LeChenlmant said that because the bolts met specifications did not mean that the specifications were correct.

Bolts said they believed the aircraft might have been able to fly even with the loss of its two starboard engines—if there had been no rupture of a fuel tank and no serious damage to the wing plates.

They said their analysis of the wreckage failed to determine the causes of second and third explosions which ripped off 19½ feet of the right wing and sent the plane crashing to the ground in flames.

Mr. Heasley said there was no indication of fire along the wing until the third explosion.

The inquiry is expected to last 10 days.

Lewis Charges Trudeau Deliberately Created State of Panic

OTTAWA (CP) — MPs hurled verbal acid in the Commons Tuesday as the House began debate on the second New Democrat motion to set the government's public order bill back to the committee stage in an effort to inject opposition-sponsored changes into the bill.

The volley began as David Lewis (NDP—York South) said the government refused to accept the opposition amendment to the Public Order (Temporary measures) Act, 1970 because it would be admitting that the regulations under the War Measures Act represented "panic-stricken legislation."

"I say you're a phoney," shot back Prime Minister Trudeau.

The prime minister was "an expert to learn from" Mr. Lewis recalled.

Mr. Trudeau had discarded every progressive idea he ever had. The government had "set out deliberately to create a state of panic" in Canada.

Debate continues today on the NDP motion, which seeks to send the bill back to committee-of-the-whole stage from the present debate on third and final reading. The bill moved out of committee stage — clause-by-clause study—Monday.

The motion would have the House reconsider a clause of the bill that allows evidence of support of the Front de Liberation du Quebec prior to the bill taking effect to form presumption of guilt of present support of the FLQ.

The bill would replace regulations under the War Measures Act invoked Oct. 16. It would make membership or support of the aims of the FLQ a crime—as did the regulations—punishable by five years in prison.

Earlier Tuesday the Commons defeated 113 to 78 an NDP motion to have the committee-of-the-whole reconsider the issue of a review board to oversee the administration of the legislation by Quebec authorities.

In that vote Conservatives, New Democrats and Creditistes lined up against the Liberal majority.

The watchdog clause was defeated 113 to 78.

Standings in the House now are 153 Liberals, 73 Conservatives, 22 New Democrats, 13 Creditistes, one independent and one vacant for a total of 264.

Opposition amendments to the retroactive clause and on the watchdog issue had already been defeated in committee stage.

Mr. Lewis accused Mr. Trudeau of painting the prospect of a massive insurrection when actually only 58 to 101 criminals were involved in terrorist activities—and only because police had been unable to catch them.

Mr. Trudeau then left the chamber and Colin Gibson (L—Hamilton-Wentworth) entered the fray, charging the NDP deputy leader with a "sardonic and ill-concealed partisan attack" on the prime minister.

Mr. Gibson said the NDP would have "waved the phoney flag of justice against the barrels of machine guns" in the midst of bombings and rioting.

New Democrat Lesser Y. C. Douglas, shouted the Ontario Liberal was a "damn poor defender of the Canadian nation."

The Public Order (Temporary Measures) Act, 1970, extends the general powers under the War Measures Act until next April 30, including extraordinary police authority to arrest and detain persons and search and seize property.

In the debate to have reconsideration of the review board question, Mr. Douglas said the prime minister had made it clear he would not accept a watchdog formula because "the government of Quebec, and particularly its justice Minister Jerome Choquette, want these emergency powers without safeguard."

Under the bill Quebec would administer the law just as it administers the federally-legislated Criminal Code.

Adrien Lambert (Credistes—Bellechasse) blamed "certain trusts and economic dictatorships" for creating the social causes of revolution.

David MacDonald (PC—Egmont) supported the call for review machinery, saying abuses already committed under the War Measures Act confirmed the need for a "guarantee in law" against administrative injustices.

But Douglas Hogarth (L—New Westminster) called it "absurd" to give responsibility for administration of the law to a non-elected tribunal rather than the elected legislatures of Quebec.

In the Senate meanwhile, Senator Grattan O'Leary (PC—Ontario) said Canada could not afford to lose Quebec from Confederation.

All the history shared by French- and English-speaking Canadians "thunder against separation."

Science Council Reports

Canada Needs Experts on Marine World

OTTAWA (CP) — To harvest the fabulous mineral and other riches of the sea, Canada must become a major source of knowledge and expertise about marine environment.

The Science Council of Canada concludes this in a report today to the government, which is urged to take speedy action on some matters and begin long-term planning as well.

For immediate action, the council wants the government to initiate a major marine science and technology program aimed at systematically acquiring knowledge and at balanced development of marine resources.

Substantial benefit could be reaped from mineral resources, especially offshore oil and gas which could make a major socio-economic impact on Canada in the next few years.

Oil exploitation alone promises future economic activity probably amounting to several billions a year.

Two other major projects suggested for urgent attention are:

—Control of ice cover on the St. Lawrence Gulf as the world's first serious test of the possibilities of deliberate climate control.

—Balanced management of the resources of the Strait of Georgia, preceded by urgent study of the impact of oil exploration and exploitation on the area.

The chief agent of this conscious effort to become a world leader in marine science and technology would be a proposed Crown corporation, Canadian Ocean Development Corp.

Such an agency could organize marine development and innovation projects and actively promote marketing of products and services.

The Science Council warns at several points that, if Canada and the Canadian government fail to do this job, other countries will.

A variety of structures for formulating, implementing and reviewing policies are proposed. The report is based on soon-to-be-published studies by Dr. R. W. Stewart of University of British Columbia and Dr. L. M. Dickie of the federal fisheries research board.

Among the proposals:

—A marine science research institute on the Pacific coast as a counterpart of the Bedford Institute of Oceanography at Dartmouth, N.S.

—A national board on marine activity with government, industry and university representatives to advise of national policy.

—A standing advisory committee on marine science and technology to advise on marine environment matters at the national and international levels.

The council says federal spending in marine science and technology should grow from $51.2 million last year to $300 million by 1980.

BOARS COMMON

There are about 1,300 wild boars living in America's Appalachian section.

The Pint Will Stay

Very slowly, Britain is being nudged into adopting the metric system and away from its ancient and complicated systems of weights and measures. But in one area, Britons are assured, the change will be resisted. Pub patrons will still be able to request their "pint of mild and bitter." (CP Photo)

Jeane Dixon's Horoscope

For November 26

Your birthday today: The visible features of your life now must be smoothed out into the simplest appearances. You can, and should, withdraw much of your affairs from general public notice. Possessions and habits which have lost their meaning should be disposed of or converted to serve your best interests. Romantic interests assume greater importance in your daily life. Today's natives are affectionate, home - loving people with imagination and the need to do things differently.

ARIES (Mar. 21 — Apr. 19): Unpleasant expense today is normal; try to be sure you're getting your money's worth. Gather friends for an evening of fun and sociability.

TAURUS (Apr. 20 — May 20): Concentrate on working alone or where you don't need much close collaboration. Your pride is open to attack but it. The evening is for serious study.

GEMINI (May 21 — June 20): Meet others at least halfway now. Your tact is tested, and you make it somehow. Your work includes some interesting, critical moments. Attend the needs of older people.

CANCER (June 21 — July 22): Start early and get a prosperous and active day in, skipping no opportunity. Taper off fairly early and rest, meditate, retire early.

LEO (July 23 — Aug. 22): Find ways of converting your possessions to better uses. Put out of your mind for the moment concern over old matters you can do nothing about.

VIRGO (Aug. 23 — Sept. 22): This is not the day to present a legal or formal application; it's the time for understanding others and their feelings. Ask and answer pertinent questions.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 — Oct. 22): Normal progress is indicated; nothing holds you back but your own habits. Add something to your savings account. Explain plans realistically to your family this evening.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23—Nov. 21): Somebody upsets your schedule. Have personal means ready to help out and perhaps reduce the hindrance to your own welfare. Emotional ties now show their depth.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 — Dec. 21): You may attempt more than your strength and resources warrant. Think before you make promises or volunteer. Sentimental experiences will be long remembered.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 — Jan. 19): It all depends on your moods today. Life can be socially active, rewarding, if you are projecting your deeper nature fluently. Young people cause some concern.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20 — Feb. 18): Pleasure calls more strongly than work. If you can't take the day off, get your work lined up in proportion. Tact yth relatives and in-laws is needed.

PISCES (Feb. 19 — Mar. 20): Self-improvement is your project for today. Reorient your attitudes, your unconscious expectations. Realize you've been demanding a great deal of yourself and others.

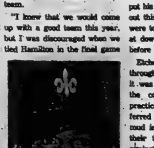
Desjardins Happy

Alouettes of This Year Different from Past

MONTREAL (CP)—Pierre Desjardins suffered through five losing years with Montreal Alouettes and although he doesn't discourage easily, he came quite close to quitting the Eastern Football Conference club last fall.

But now the patience seems to have paid off as Desjardins and his team-mates prepare for their Grey Cup meeting with Calgary Stampeders Saturday.

Desjardins had taken a job as a sales manager with a tobacco company and found it was taking quite a bit of his time.



"Football was starting to lose its appeal," said Desjardins. "The only thing that kept me in the game was Sam (head coach Etcheverry). When he got the job, I wanted to play again."

Desjardins feels that the new management, headed by owner Sam Berger, has given the Alouettes the impetus to bring them to the top.

"We always had pretty good ball players, but there was something missing. I remember before the game, we would get together and tell ourselves that we were going to play for ourselves. . . ."

"Those teams were filled with cliques. Goldie (former defensive coach Ralph Goldston) had his boys, the defence fought with the offence, guys were always complaining. Now we're together. We've got a great team.

"I knew that we would come up with a good team this year, but I was discouraged when we tied Hamilton in the final game of the season. That meant we had to go to Toronto. But the team was sure of one thing—if we beat Toronto, there was no way we could lose to Hamilton in the final."

So the Alouettes, because they beat Hamilton, are making another trip to Toronto—this time for the national championship.

Etcheverry was scheduled to put his charges through a workout this morning and then they were to be feted at a pep rally at downtown Place Ville Marie before heading for Toronto.

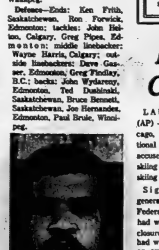
Etcheverry ran his charges through a workout Tuesday but it was distinguished mainly by the cold weather. After the practice the coach said he preferred the wet conditions and said in which his team played their two EFC playoff games against Hamilton.

"That field was getting pretty hard out there this afternoon," said Etcheverry. "I hear it's supposed to be about 25 down in Toronto.

"We are having some broken ball shoes sent along just in case we come up with a wet field this weekend. But I'm really hoping for warmer weather. We don't dig around that much in the mud."

The forecast for the Grey Cup weekend in Toronto calls for Friday continuing into the early part of Saturday with afternoon temperatures Saturday a little above freezing.

McKinnis Solid Choice



Hugh McKinnis, Calgary Stampeders' left-handed halfback from Arizona State, capped a sensational rookie season Tuesday when he was unanimous selection to the Western Football Conference all-star team.

The 24-man team-made up of 12 offensive and 12 defensive players—was chosen by the football Reporters of Canada and announced by FRC president Laverie Artiss of Regina.

The teams:

Offence—Quarterback: Lancaster; running backs: McKinnis, Evanson, McKinzie; flanker: Mike Eben, Edmonton; centre: Urness; guards: Sugarman, Almendinger; tackles: Frank, Lanoy Bolcski, Calgary; split end: Rick Shaw, Winnipeg.

Defence—Ends: Ken Frith, Saskatchewan, Ron Forwick, Edmonton; tackles: John Helton, Calgary, Greg Pipes, Edmonton; middle linebacker: Wayne Harris, Calgary; outside linebackers: Dave Gasser, Edmonton, Greg Findlay, B.C.; backs: John Wydarsny, Edmonton, Ted Dushinski, Saskatchewan, Bruce Bennett, Saskatchewan, Joe Hernandez, Edmonton, Paul Brule, Winnipeg.

Proof Positive

Keeling Always Had It Former Coach Claimed

CALGARY (CP) — When Jerry Williams was coach of Calgary Stampeders, he said second-string quarterback Jerry Keeling had "all you need to be number one."

Williams left two years ago for the National Football League, but Keeling now is number one with the Stampeders as they head for Saturday's Grey Cup game against Montreal Alouettes.

Critics admitted Keeling was one of the greatest defensive halfbacks ever to knock down a pass in the Canadian Football League and he was thought to be an ideal backup man if Peter Liske, the Stampeders quarterback in those days, should be ill or injured. But they openly doubted Keeling's ability to be a first-stringer.

Last Sunday at Regina, when the Stampeders eliminated Saskatchewan Roughriders from the western playoffs with a 13-14 squeaker, it was Keeling at the helm.

Four days earlier, in the second game of the best-of-three playoffs, he had fumbled the ball and Saskatchewan's Ed McQuarters recovered and scored a touchdown. Keeling was miserable.

Sunday, it was a swing pass to Hugh McKinnis from Keeling that put Calgary within field goal distance for the three points that gave them the western championship in the closing seconds of play.

"I thought about it and thought about it," said Keeling in an interview Tuesday. "I felt that if we didn't win on Sunday it was my fault that we didn't get into the Grey Cup, that I'd let the whole team down.

"The biggest problem I had was to get myself to stop worrying about what had happened."

JERRY KEELING

He said he had doubts about the swing pass play "right after it happened."

"Maybe I should have run it and gone for the field goal from there. Even if we'd only gotten a single out of it we would have gone into overtime and I think we could have beaten them.

"I didn't think they would blitz, and they didn't. But I did feel they would be playing far back enough to stop the pass."

The play broke for 18 yards and Larry Robinson dropped the ball between the uprights despite a brisk cross-wind.

The Stampeders were to leave by air today for Toronto to begin practice for the Grey Cup.

Even getting in shape for the game Saturday will not be easy. The Stampeders, as well as being plagued by the after-effects of frostbite from the Regina game where temperatures were near zero, have a few injuries.

Trainer Larry Chace said defensive end Craig Kolman has a bruised shoulder and a hip injury and a number of other players have assorted bruises and bumps. Wide receiver Uriel Johnson has a knee problem and flanker Gerry Shaw is bothered by a pulled leg muscle.

There also is the spectre of inflamatus, something that all but flattened the Stampeders just before they met Ottawa Rough Riders and lost the 1968 Grey Cup.

"Just about everybody on the club had something frozen," said Chace, commenting on the Regina game. "After having played under those adverse conditions we have to guard against the flu bug.

"It could become a problem. A lot of the guys now have colds."

Football Stadium Time Clocks May Become Official Timers

TORONTO (CP) — A meeting of Canadian Football League general managers Tuesday decided to recommend to the league executive that stadium time clocks be made the official timers for all games.

Ralph Sazio, Hamilton Tiger-Cats' general manager and chairman of the meeting, said the managers agreed that timekeepers be moved up into the stands from field level and that they operate the field clock which is visible to the fans.

These facilities now exist at Hamilton, Calgary and Vancouver football fields but the general managers would like to see the practice made uniform throughout the league.

The general managers' decision is not final. It goes in the form of a recommendation to the league executive committee which meets Thursday.

League Commissioner Jake Gaudaur said in an interview Tuesday that the league tried two weeks ago to get the field clock at the Canadian National Exhibition stadium connected to the official timers' bench for the Grey Cup game Saturday.

"But CNE officials told us that it would take about six months to get all the cable in and the electronic device set up," he said.

Gary Lane Scored TD Say Viewers

TORONTO (CP) — Jake Gaudaur, Canadian Football League commissioner, said Tuesday there was nothing unusual about game films showing a ball carrier stepping over the goal line, even though officials had ruled there was no touchdown.

The commissioner was commenting on a report from Regina that films had shown Gary Lane, Saskatchewan Roughriders' quarterback, scored a third-quarter touchdown Sunday in the Western Conference final against Calgary Stampeders.

Officials ruled Lane had not crossed the goal line until Saskatchewan later lost the game at Regina 15-14 and the three games playoff series 2-1.

He said that even if films did indicate a player had scored but was not credited with the points, there was no way a game result could be altered.

Brundage Persecuting Skiing Claim Alpine Officials

LAUSANNE, Switzerland (AP) — Avery Brundage of Chicago, president of the International Olympic Committee, was accused today of persecuting skiing in general and Alpine skiing in particular.

Sigge Bergman, secretary-general of the International Ski Federation, (FIS) made the had written the FIS demanding closure Tuesday that Brundage had written the FIS demanding an explanation of reports that nine Alpine ski stars were paid $39 a day plus living and travel expenses at a training camp in Mammouth Mountain, Calif.

An IOC spokesman said if the reports are confirmed the nine will be banned from the 1972 Winter Olympic Games at Sapporo, Japan.

This is a new disgiriting chapter in his (Brundage's) prestige struggle in which he does everything to preserve Olympic rules which have been out of date for long," Bergman said in Stockholm.

"I am asking myself the question whether there will be any Winter Games in 1972. Not even the Japanese are sure about it."

The nine were identified as France's world slalom champion Jean-Noel Augert and his fellow Frenchmen, Georges Mauduit and Jean-Luc Pirel; Jean Daetwyler and Dumeng Giovanoli of Switzerland, West German downhill star Fran Vogler Terje Overland of Norway and two Canadians, Rod Hebert and Peter Duncan.

In Paris, Maurice Martel, president of the French Ski Federation, said the FIS should withdraw from the Olympic movement.

Martel said that an agreement was signed in 1951 between the FIS and the IOC permitting competitive skiers to give instruction for pay if they withdrew from such activity six months before the start of the racing season.

"Mr. Brundage hates Alpine skiing," Martel said. "Personally I think the joke has gone far enough and that the International Ski Federation should now withdraw from the International Olympic Committee. I am going to write to this effect to Mr. Hodler."

He referred to Marc Hodler, president of the FIS, to whom Brundage addressed his letter.

Hodler was not available for comment. Neither was Brundage.

Flood Tells Newsmen Trade Brought Suit

WASHINGTON (AP) — Controversial Curt Flood said Tuesday he does not know whether he would have filed suit against baseball's reserve clause if he had not been traded from St. Louis to Philadelphia in 1969.

"It never really affected me until I was traded," said Flood, who sat out the last baseball season.

"You don't feel the impact of it until you've been traded.

"There is a possibility that I wouldn't have filed the suit had I not been traded."

Flood made his comments at a news conference called by Washington Senators to introduce their recently-acquired outfielder.

The team acquired Flood, 32, from Philadelphia last month.

Flood refused to report to Philadelphia after the trade with St. Louis and filed a $4.5-million suit against baseball and its reserve clause which binds a player to a team for life or until the club chooses to trade or release him.

His suit was turned down in U.S. District Court Aug. 17 and is now under appeal.

Durelle the Winner?

Well, It Was Billed as A Fight, Anyway

HULL, Que. (CP) — Joey Durelle, former Canadian welterweight boxing champion, won his first fight as a middleweight Tuesday night. But it wasn't a popular decision.

After being mauled, gouged, kidney punched, Gene (Killer) Roberts refused to continue after 2:18 of the fourth round even though he had Durelle bleeding from around both eyes.

"I'm no rough-houser," said Roberts, of Portland, Me., after the fight.

"He's not a fighter, he's an animal. I get paid for boxing, not wrestling.

"If we were out in the street fighting that way, I'd kill him. "He even kicked me on the way to the dressing room."

Durelle, originally from Baie Ste. Anne, N.B., and the promoters were as unenthusiastic about the results as Roberts and the 800 fans, but from different points of view.

"What kind of a fighter is he anyway?" asked Durelle. "If he wants to fight, let him stand in there and fight. This is not a ballet dance.

"Besides, he bit me with his head and opened the cut above my right eye in the fourth round.

"I got mad and really came at him."

Regional Sports Registered, which promoted the fight, issued a statement after it was over apologizing to the fans and announcing they were withholding Roberts' purse. They also turned down the opportunity to stage the Durelle-Gary Braudis, ton middleweight championship, fight because "Durelle's actions also were detrimental to boxing in this area."

Referee Don Brown said he twice warned Durelle about kidney punches and asked Roberts if he wanted the fight stopped.

"He (Roberts) just kept backing away and saying 'I've had enough of this rough stuff.'

"I didn't catch Durelle thumb-jabbing enough to disqualify him."

There's a gap on the National Hockey League Hall of Fame players' list between "Joseph Henry Hall" and "George Ray", right where Doug Harvey's name should be.

There are currently 177 players listed on the Hall of Fame's honor roll, but few more deserving of a niche than Harvey, the guy who played defence "as a rocking chair" for 1,258 NHL games.

Unfortunately for Harvey, time doesn't fly quickly enough. Hall of Fame traditions dictate that players' candidates normally must have completed their careers five years before coming up for consideration. (Ten of the five exceptions, the selection committee made was Maurice "Rocket" Richard. Another will be Gordie Howe, if he ever retires).

But Harvey was playing as recently as two seasons ago for the St. Louis Blues. 39 years after breaking in as a promising young defenceman for the Montreal Canadiens.

And his all-ice behavior since may need Harvey the hesitated way of Toronto Maple Leafs' Harvey "Busher" Jackson.

"Doug's really hit the skids. It looks like we've got another Jackson on our hands," the informant told a local listener.

No Fame?

Jackson, left-winger on the memorable Maple Leaf "Kid Line" of the thirties, died a couple of years ago with the stigma of a Conn Smythe Hall of Fame vote hanging over his head.

Fellow Kid-Liners Charlie Conacher and Joe Primeau are enshrined but Smythe, for whom Jackson scored most of his 256 goals, sticks by his decision that Busher failed to live up to the eligibility requirement that requires "integrity and character," in addition to exceptional playing ability.

The Major, who has occasionally come out with such stalwart opinions of hockey "character" as: "If you can't beat 'em in the alley, you can't beat 'em on the ice," reminded the fact Jackson had an off-ice reputation as a drinker.

However deserved that reputation, Jackson was not paid for off-ice behavior. He drew salary for helping to bring the first Stanley Cup to Maple Leaf Gardens in 1932 when Toronto defeated New York Rangers in the final. Rangers had fired Smythe as manager several winters previously, so you might even say Jackson helped Smythe retain some self-respect.

Now Douglas Normas Harvey, 11 times an NHL all-star, appears to be treading the same dangerously thin ice. A month ago he was arrested for possession of a concealed weapon. He also reportedly haunts some of the same watering-holes as Dennis Duncan, late of the Montreal Alouettes.

Harvey's credentials to have his portrait hung in the CNE grounds NHL shrine are above reproach. He won the James Norris Memorial Trophy as the outstanding league defenceman seven of the first nine years the trophy was up for competition, the last time in 1961-62 with New York Rangers when he was supposed to be approaching the washed-up stage.

Canadiens had sold him after Harvey played 11 seasons in their unit, during which time, not coincidentally, the Habs won six Stanley Cups.

Tom Johnson, who was often paired with Harvey on the blueline with the Montreal powerhouse of that era, was elected to the NHL Hall of Fame in last year's nominations, and even the novice Boston Bruin coach would admit he couldn't face Harvey's shades.

After a three-year stint with the Rangers, Harvey was bested about from pillar to hockey post, seeing action with Quebec's AHL Aces, the Central Pro loop's St. Paul entry, Quebec again, Baltimore and Pittsburgh of the American League, a two-game shot with Detroit Red Wings in 1964-65, Kansas City of the Central League, and, finally, the St. Louis Blues of the expanded NHL.

Acting as an assistant coach to Scotty Bowman, Harvey joined the Blues in the first expansion playoffs and picked up four assists in eight games. At 44, he could still contribute 22 scoring points to the Blues in '70 games of the 1968-69 regular schedule before he left hockey.

If Harvey is not deemed a suitable Hall of Fame contender because of a raucous private life since, we would propose a new selection format.

Perhaps Harvey, and other off-ice boxwrighties could be chosen on an astericked basis, "for playing shitty only."

Crawford Paces Mulroney Novices

Mulroney's Sanoco Novice Miners skated to an 8-3 win over Cobourg last night as Mark Crawford counted two goals for the winners.

Other scorers for Mulroney's, who outshot Cobourg 39-3 were Wayne Deighton (2); Bruce McBrien (2) and John Henry.

Cobourg drew both of the game's penalties.

Fairways Get Mileage From Tweed Drives

By ERIC THERRON
Staff Sportswriter

The Belleville Fairways are getting good mileage from the 32-mile drives made by two of its commuters, and the number of Centre Hastings players doing further than Belleville's 64 miles for hockey practices, but they showed some good moves.

Another newcomer on hand for the two-week was defenceman Bevin Clark who saw action with Stratford's midget all - Ontario champions last year. If the six-foot, two-inch, 198-pounder can match the skating pace of junior hockey, his size would be a welcome addition to the small Belleville team.

The addition of Clark means that the Fairways, now have a total of seven defencemen available for duty, a far cry from two weeks ago when John Mulvihill, Peter Ackerman and Dave Ferguson were forced to shoulder the whole load.

While the number of new faces are a welcome addition, a number of old ones were notably absent. Among those were standout goalie Ron Jury and last year's scoring leader Terry Meagher.

Jury, whose work in the Belleville nets this year has pulled them through a number of lethargic first and second period performances, is currently in Toronto attending a tryout for the Toronto Marlboros of the OHA Junior A loop.

Last year's Most Valuable Player has allowed 21 goals in the six Junior B contests to date for a highly respectable 4.66 goals - against average for the fifth-place Fairways.

"It's going to be a big blow if we lose Ron," admitted Crawford, "but you can't blame someone for trying to improve themselves. I hope both he and Terry make it."

Meagher, who signed with the Fairways but only played part of one game for them, may report to Niagara Falls Flyers of the OHA Junior A league this weekend. The 57-goal scorer attended the Flyers training camp in Toronto, but returned to see action as a member of the Quinte Salads senior football squad.

Brother Rick, a standout centre with the 1968-70 Blake Kerr midgets, hasn't made a hockey appearance so far this season, and may decide to play high school basketball instead.

Centre would appear to be one of the club's strong points now that Phil Kirby and Joe Clarke appear to have hit their stride. Both picked up their first goals of the season in Sunday's 8-1 win over Trenton.

First line pivot Dan Lapointe is currently leading the Fairway scorers with 11 points in six games.

The Junior B's next contest is slated for Friday night in Oshawa, while the Cobourg Cougars will be in town for an 8 p.m. Sunday evening bout.

League Leaders

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Bobby Orr, scoring champion last year in the National Hockey League, picked up two assists Tuesday night to move into third place in NHL scoring.

The Boston Bruin defenceman earned the points in his team's 5-5 tie with St. Louis Blues. He now has six goals and 20 assists for 26 points.

The top two scorers, also Boston players, added to their totals. Leader Phil Esposito got a pair on assists—his 21st—and his 14 goals give him a total of 35 points. Ken Hodge scored two goals—his 10th and 11th—and the points increased his total to 28.

Fourth Spot in East

Vancouver Wins Again in Fight for Respectability

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

When the 1970-71 National Hockey League season opened this year the prediction was that Vancouver and Buffalo would finish at the bottom of the East division.

The reasoning was that the two expansion clubs—without a modicum of big-name players—would find the going tough against the more established clubs.

But as the NHL moves into its second quarter, the Vancouver team is giving every indication it does not intend to fold. Tuesday night the Canucks held on to defeat Minnesota North Stars 3-2 in an NHL game, strengthening their hold on fourth place in the division.

The win—the third in a row for Vancouver—gave the Canucks 12 points, or more than fifth-place Detroit Red Wings, who were idle. The Canucks now have nine wins against 10 losses and three ties. However, their 32 games are the most played so far this season, three more than fifth-place Detroit, third-place Montreal Canadiens and first-place Boston Bruins. The other teams in the division each have played 35 games.

In other games Tuesday night, Boston and St. Louis Blues played to a 5-5 tie, and Toronto Maple Leafs and Pittsburgh Penguins also tied, 4-4.

Possibly the secret to Vancouver's success is the leadership the team is receiving from such NHL castoffs as their captain Orland Kurtenbach and Wayne Maki and the occasional outstanding refereeing from Charlie Hodge.

Hodge was again sharp Tuesday night as he kicked out 30 shots, many of them at point-blank range, to frustrate the North Stars, who hold third place in the West Division.

Vancouver pulled into a 2-0 lead on first-period goals by Ray Cullen and Andre Boudrias but Tom Williams scored late in the period to narrow the lead to 2-1.

Rosaire Paiment increased the lead for Vancouver to 3-1 early in the period and Hodge's solid netminding protected that lead until 18:31 of the second period when Murray Oliver scored. He held the North Stars scoreless in the third period.

Boston moved into sole possession of first place with its tie against St. Louis. The Bruins with 27 points, now sit's a point ahead of the idle New York Rangers.

Tim Ecclestone's goal with 43 seconds left in the second period St. Louis the tie after the Bruins pulled goalie Ernie Wakely with 1:39 remaining.

The Blues, led by Bill Sutherland's two goals, had to battle from 2-0 and 4-2 deficits to earn the tie. Ken Hodge also scored two goals for the Bruins, Hodge's second goal at 7:19 of the third period had given Boston a 5-4 lead.

The Leafs also had to overcome an early deficit to earn the tie against the Penguins. Wally Boyer, with a goal in the first period, and Keith Magnuson, Ken Schinkel and Mike Schock with second-period goals, had given the Penguins a 4-2 lead but goals by Guy Trabichi and Billy MacMillan in the third period earned the tie for the Leafs.

Although Les Binkley faced 37 shots in the Pittsburgh nets, he was never under much pressure from the Toronto forwards as most of their shots came from near the blueline.

The schedule continues tonight with four games—Montreal visits the Black Hawks at Chicago, New York plays the Flyers at Philadelphia, Buffalo Sabres meet the Penguins at Pittsburgh and Los Angeles Kings play the Golden Seals in California.

Few Details Given of U.S. Raid on Vietnam Prison

The following look into the U.S. attempt to rescue American prisoners-of-war was written by John Lengel, who spent 354 years as Associated Press correspondent in South Vietnam.

By JOHN LENGEL

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Pentagon Tuesday added only tantalizing shreds of detail to the picture of the raid at Son Tay, in North Vietnam leaving the chief questions unanswered.

For instance, leaders of the U.S. commando force, an air force brigadier-general and an army colonel, were both stationed at Eglin Air Force Base in Florida.

Was, then, the force raised and rehearsed in the U.S., or, say, in the Panama Canal Zone, and taken at a unit to a staging area at the last moment for security purposes?

"It was a rather elaborate operation," said Pentagon spokesman Jerry Friedheim. "There was meticulous training and the training occurred at several places."

Why isn't further detail provided? The assault on the prison camp early Saturday Hanoi time was disclosed Monday by Defence Secretary Melvin Laird. While surprise is important isn't there room for detail on such things as the size of the camp and eyewitness accounts from some of the men who took part in a raid that is now history?

There are some pretty severe security problems involving the men who went in and the prisoners," Laird answered. "It would compromise intelligence sources and the safety of those involved."

This much of the picture has been supplied by official accounts and questioning in the last two days:

Army and air force volunteers —one report suggests a force of 45—sped in helicopters across the North Vietnamese delta to the compound at the Red River bank town of Son Tay, 20 miles west of Hanoi.

The Americans say the raid was a complete surprise. It took place at 2 a.m., with only a quarter moon. A helicopter was purposely crash-landed in the compound to make sure the force got inside.

At least 30 missiles were fired at the helicopters. There was some ground fire, too. Somehow a guard tower was destroyed.

The volunteers left their weapons when they had to, perhaps killing some of the commando defenders. One volunteer was nicked by a North Vietnamese rifle round.

The force was inside for less than an hour, ripping open cells with chain saws, cutting torches and lock snips, finding crude conditions but no Americans.

Probably the force met at a point outside the compound for helicopter pickup. Since a "large percentage" of the 450 official prisoners of Hanoi were hoped to be rescued a much larger attack force probably was ready.

Delicate co-ordination would have been needed so as to not bunch up helicopters in the danger zone. Evidently it can be supposed the helicopters kept close to the ground to avoid radar detection as long as possible and making anti-aircraft fire less effective.

It is more likely the choppers came from over the mountains perhaps from bases in Thailand. This would provide more radar security. Navy carriers would provide more initial security but the helicopters would be more detectable once they were airborne.

These suppositions are supported by the fact an air force officer, Brig-Gen. LeRoy Manor, was in over-all command.

The ground leader, Army Col. Arthur Simons, 52, known as "The Bull," has a dossier full of elite assignments starting with the Rangers in the Second World War and including the Special Forces' SOG—Studies and Observation Group—in Vietnam.

Sources insist Green Beret attempts have been made before to free U.S. prisoners in North Vietnam. Laird denied it. None of these others were successful.

Pentagon spokesmen have left it to Hanoi to explain away in captivity in South Vietnam.

They will not even answer these questions:

In what way were conditions "crude?" Why were locks on cells installed if the cells were empty? Why were empty cells locked in the first place? Why was a supply prison camp guarded? Could it be that the prisoners had been moved only several hundred miles away?

"A key factor in the final decision to launch the search and rescue mission was the new information that we received this month that some of our men were dying in prison camp," Laird said.

The Pentagon said Tuesday it has learned medically that 22 men have died in the North. There is no official Pentagon figure on those dead.

The only official Pentagon list is of American men living in captivity in South Vietnam.

TORONTO STOCKS

TORONTO (CP) — Western oil issues led a sharp rally in active mid-morning trading today at the Toronto stock market.

On index, industrials gained .81 to 165.55, base metals .32 to 89.67 and western oils 6.98 to 180.08. Golds were down .09 to 101.05.

Volume by 11 a.m. was 853,000 shares, up from 382,000 at the same time Tuesday.

Gains outnumbered losses 161 to 71 with 140 issues unchanged.

Analysts said the strength in oil issues was due to news that the United States has agreed in principle to allow Canada an unimpeded access to U.S. markets

Trading was halted in Home A for about 30 minutes and Aquitaine for about 35 minutes, due to an influx of orders, according to a notice released by the Toronto Stock Exchange.

Home A rose 1½ to 23¾ and Aquitaine 1¼ to 13¾.

Among other big gains Hudson's Bay Oil and Gas was up 1¼ to 23¾, Pacific Pete 1¼ to 9¾, Texaco 1 to 21¾, Inter Provincial Pipe Line ⅝ to 23⅝, Shell Canada ⅝ to 24¼ and Canadian Superior ½ to 33¾.

Great Plains was up 2 to 23½, Scurry-Rainbow 1¼ to 23⅝, Banff ¼ to 6¾ and Central-Del Rio ⅛ to 2.10¼.

On index, industrials were up 1.35 to 164.74, golds 1.08 to 101.73, base metals .38 to 89.35 and western oils 1.88 to 179.78.

The advance in industrials was the greatest since Oct. 7.

Volume was 2.24 million shares, up from 1.4 million Monday.

Gains outnumbered losses 249 to 186 with 334 issues unchanged.

Rollers rose ¼ to 12. The company reported nine-month net earnings of 36 cents a share, up from 23 cents in the corresponding period last year.

International Utilities was up 1 to 23⅞ and Union Carbide and Frick Corp., subsidiary of International Utilities, have combined investments to produce a fast food freezing system. The system will be built by Frick and marketed by Lindt.

Among other gainers, General Motors was up ⅛ to 77¾, Chrysler 1¼ to 22¾, Falconbridge 1 to 13¾, Denison 1 to 22¾, Consolidated Rainbow 13 cents to 11.60, Eskdale ¼ to 13¾, Westcoast Trans 1¼ to 28.00, Chieftain 40 cents to 27.50 and Ranger ¼ to 13¾.

Ashland Oil was down 1⅛ cents to 46. The company said it would increase its price for 115,000 barrels of crude oil daily by 25 cents a barrel.

New Imperial lost 36 cents to 23.25, Mattagami ¼ to 23½, Northgate 15 cents to 11.50, International Nogal ¼ to 23¾, Canadian Petrofina 25 cents to 47.75 and Oakwood Pete seven cents to 13.10.

He's Broke, But It's Nice He Now Knows People Care

MIAMI, Fla. (AP) — Having just lost everything he owned, Howard Taylor leaned back, grinned and said: "Hell, I'm the happiest guy I know."

Nine days ago, Taylor said he thought he was about to die and cursed himself for exposing his wife Jane and their four-year-old daughter Debbie to the same fate.

Their 45-foot motor sailer hung impaled on a Bahamian reef six miles from shore and Taylor thought it was only a matter of time before it slid into the depths of the Atlantic.

"That was before the establishment saved our necks," Taylor said in his interview Tuesday. "You talk about celebrating Thanksgiving Thursday. Well, I've got a real Thanksgiving story to tell."

The story began two years ago in California.

"We had everything," Taylor said, "a good home, two cars. I had a great job as a chief electrical technician in a hospital. My wife had a fine job in another one as a microbiologist.

"But I got fed up. The war, taxes politics, suburban living, materialism. You name it. I had it. So, I decided to take my family and drop out. I'm no hippie. I never was. I'd just had it."

The Taylors sold everything, bought the 22-ton motor sailer and began a two-year cruise that ended up on a jagged reef off the island of Mayaguana.

About three hours after the boat became stuck on the coral, Taylor got an answer to his radio distress call from the tourist cruise ship Song of Norway out of Miami.

Eight hours later the Taylors perched on the cabin of their now overturned boat and watched as a crew from the Song of Norway battled to bring a lifeboat through the seas churning over the reef.

The crew plucked them off the wreck and the lifeboat was hauled up the side of the cruise ship past hundreds of cheering tourists.

"It hit me," Taylor said. "These people cared. Not 99 per cent of them but 100 per cent. They were happy for us. These were people I was fed up with two years ago—nine-to-five people just like I used to be people who I thought never cared."

The passengers put together an emergency fund for the family. Clothing appeared. Suddenly Rebecca was walking in toys.

A group of appliance salesmen, on holiday aboard the ship, provided a station wagon. Another passenger offered use of an apartment in Miami.

"I've have no idea what it's like," Taylor said. "A little over a week ago, I thought we were dead. Now we're starting over. . . .

"And those 600 nine-to-five ers and the establishment did it. It's really a great world, you know. It really is."

Fights are Few and Far Between in Gunsmoke

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — Matt Dillon hustles a burly drunk out of the Long Branch saloon. The drunk takes a swing at Matt, who cools the unfortunate with two swift blows, then orders him out of town.

"Cut! That's fine," says the director, and Matt-James Arness—assembles over for a chat. Two things are unusual: Arness giving an interview; a fight on Gunsmoke.

"That's the first fight we've had in a long time," says the television star, "and I suspect that the network will cut it out of the finished show."

Like all action series, Gunsmoke underwent a clampdown on violence in the wake of the Kennedy-King assassinations two years ago. Said Arness: "We have a little more freedom now, but not much. I can understand the reasons for cutting down on violence, but I must say it makes it damned hard to film a western when you can't use fists or guns."

Despite the restrictions, Gunsmoke continues to flourish. On the day we met, the CBS series was No. 1 show in the Nielsen ratings.

That was one reason Jim Arness seemed happy. Another was that he was nearing the end of his 16th season as the marshal of Dodge City. He would soon be departing for other climes, as is his custom when not filming.

A shy and retiring man despite his fame and wealth—Gunsmoke has made him a millionaire's two or three times over—Arness rarely gives interviews.

How does he keep up his enthusiasm after 16 years in the same role?

"That's not hard to do. Sure, a lot of the work is routine, like walking in the saloon and saying 'Hello, how are you,' and that sort of thing. But every now and then I get scripts that really make me stretch as an actor. That's where the fun is, that's how I keep alive."

Does the filming routine get him down?

"Not really. I spend a lot of time here, but the shows are planned so that only one out of every four are heavy with my scenes. The rest of the time, I'm in and out, and the others in the cast carry the load. So I get a couple of days off here and there. Then we get right to 19 weeks off in the winter and eight to 10 weeks off in the summer."

Why has Gunsmoke managed to hang on so many years—coming back stronger than ever after a brief cancellation in 1967?

"I've never really analyzed it. Except that maybe the characters wear well. I think it's good that the stars are spread out on the shows; that leaves people wanting more, which is the best approach in show business."

How long can Gunsmoke continue?

"Gosh, I don't know. CBS hasn't told us yet that we're renewed for next year. You never can tell until you get the word. Sure, the ratings have been good, but that isn't the whole story any more. They have this thing about the nature of the audience—demographics, it's called. What's our demographics? I haven't the slightest idea."

What would he do if the series folded?

"I suppose I'd look for another job. Not right away. I wouldn't have to go right to work, because CBS has my payments spread over a period of time. I suppose I'd drop out for about six months and then look around. Maybe features. Or feature for television—that's getting to be a big field. And cassettes are going to be a big field, too. I imagine I could find something I could do."

More Students Using Drugs

TORONTO (CP) — A survey released today shows fewer students in Metropolitan Toronto schools are smoking cigarettes but more are using alcohol and drugs than they did two years ago.

The study, by the Ontario Alcoholic and Drug Addiction Research Foundation, shows that the number of students in Grades 7 through 13 taking drugs has tripled since 1968.

It shows that the percentage of students using marijuana in 1970 has increased by 170 per cent compared with 1968 figures and that the percentage taking hallucinogens such as LSD has doubled.

The percentage of students smoking cigarettes, however, has dropped to 35.5 from 37.6.

Almost one-quarter of the 8,865 students interviewed in 94 Metro schools indicated they used at least one drug other than tobacco or alcohol.

The study showed that about 60 per cent of the students had consumed alcohol in the last six months compared with 46.3 by a similar survey two years ago.

More than 18 per cent said they had used marijuana this year, compared with 6.7 per cent in 1968. The percentage using LSD increased to 2.5 from 2.6 and for opiates to four from 1.3.

"At the present rate of increase it would take only four years until students in used by more students than is alcohol and less than six years until everyone is using marijuana," the report says.

The survey urges new methods of drug education, calling those used during the last two years a failure.

The study found there was not only "a dramatic increase in the proportion of drug users but a substantial increase in the frequency with which the students used the drugs."

The 1968 study did not ask about the use of amphetamines such as speed, but this year's survey found 4.5 per cent of the students had used such drugs once or more.

Use of drugs has increased more among girls than boys the study found, and said this may be the reason for the over-all increase of drug use.

The survey said Jewish students and those declaring no religion were most likely to use marijuana and alcohol. Students most likely to use LSD were those whose parents held no religious affiliation.

It also shows that fewer students who live with both parents use drugs than do students living with just one parent or someone else.

The type of job held by the father seems to be a factor in drug use, the study shows.

"The children of professionals are more likely to use drugs than those whose parents hold proprietor, s k l l l e d or semi-skilled or clerical jobs," it says.

The survey also shows that students tended to be drug users when their parents or brothers and sisters were drug users.

NOTICE

THE EXPROPRIATIONS ACT, 1968-69
NOTICE OF APPLICATION FOR APPROVAL TO EXPROPRIATE LAND

IN THE MATTER of an application by the Corporation of the City of Belleville for approval to expropriate lands in the City of Belleville.

FOR THE PURPOSE OF reconstructing sections of Sidney Street and Moira Street West and the construction of a new section of Moira Street West

NOTICE IS HEREBY GIVEN that application has been made for approval to expropriate the lands described in the schedule hereto.

Any owner of lands in respect of which notice is given who desires an inquiry into whether the taking of such land is fair, sound and reasonably necessary in the achievement of the objectives of the expropriating authority shall so notify the approving authority in writing.

(a) In the case of a registered owner, served personally or by registered mail within thirty days after he is served with the notice, or, where he is served by publication, within thirty days after the first publication of the notice;

(b) in the case of an owner who is not a registered owner, within thirty days after the first publication of the notice.

THE APPROVING AUTHORITY IS
The Council of the Corporation of the City of Belleville,
City Hall,
Belleville,
Ontario.

THE CORPORATION OF THE CITY OF BELLEVILLE
ADAM S. STALKER, Clerk.

NOTES:

1. The Expropriations Act, 1968-69 provides that,
   (a) where an inquiry is requested, it shall be conducted by an inquiry officer appointed by the Minister of Justice and Attorney General;
   (b) the inquiry officer,
      (i) shall give every party to the inquiry an opportunity to present evidence and argument and to examine and cross-examine witnesses, either personally or by his counsel or agent, and
      (ii) may recommend to the approving authority that a party to the inquiry be paid a fixed amount for his costs of the inquiry not to exceed $200, and the approving authority may in its discretion order the expropriating authority to pay such costs forthwith.
2. "owner" and "registered owner" are defined in the Act as follows:
   "owner" includes a mortgagee, tenant, execution creditor, a person entitled to a limited estate or interest in land, a committee of the estate of a mentally incompetent person or of a person incapable of managing his affairs, and a guardian, executor, administrator or trustee in whom land is vested;
   "registered owner" means an owner of land whose interest in the land is defined and whose name is recorded in an instrument in the proper registry, land titles or sheriff's office, and includes a person who as a tenant of land or the last revised assessment roll.
3. The expropriating authority, each owner who notifies the approving authority that he desires a hearing in respect of the lands intended to be expropriated and any owner added as a party by the inquiry officer are parties to the inquiry.

SCHEDULE

1. In the City of Belleville, County of Hastings and Province of Ontario, being composed of part of Lot 11, Registrar's Compiled Plan No. 1816, in the said City of Belleville, and being designated as Part 1, on a plan of survey deposited in the Registry Office for the County of Hastings as H.S.R. Plan No. 250.
2. In the City of Belleville, County of Hastings, and Province of Ontario, being composed of part of Lot 1, South side of West Moira Street, Registrar's Plan No. 1816, in the said City of Belleville, and being designated as Part 21, on a plan of survey deposited in the Registry Office for the County of Hastings as H.S.R. Plan No. 250.
3. In the City of Belleville, County of Hastings, and Province of Ontario, being composed of part of Lot 1, South side of West Moira Street, Registrar's Plan No. 1816, in the City of Belleville, and being designated as Parts 1 and 2, on a plan of survey deposited in the Registry Office for the County of Hastings as H.S.R. Plan No. 333.
4. In the Township of Sidney, now in the City of Belleville, County of Hastings, and Province of Ontario, being composed of part of Lot 28, Concession 2, in the said City of Belleville, and being designated as Part 1, on a plan of survey deposited in the Registry Office for the County of Hastings as H.S.R. Plan No. 349.
5. In the City of Belleville, County of Hastings and Province of Ontario, being composed of part of Lots 17 and 18, Union Street and Railroad Street, Registrar's Plan No. 32, in the said City of Belleville, and being designated as Parts 3 and 4, on a plan of survey deposited in the Registry Office for the County of Hastings as H.S.R. (a) In the case of a registered owner, served personally or by registered mail within thirty days after he is served with the notice, or, where he is served by publication, within thirty days after the first publication of the notice;

(b) in the case of an owner who is not a registered owner, within thirty days after the first publication of the notice.

THE APPROVING AUTHORITY IS
The Council of the Corporation of the City of Belleville,
City Hall,
Belleville,
Ontario.

THE CORPORATION OF THE CITY OF BELLEVILLE
ADAM S. STALKER, Clerk.

NOTES:

1. The Expropriations Act, 1968-69 provides that,
   (a) where an inquiry is requested, it shall be conducted by an inquiry officer appointed by the Minister of Justice and Attorney General;
   (b) the inquiry officer,
      (i) shall give every party to the inquiry an opportunity to present evidence and argument and to examine and cross-examine witnesses, either personally or by his counsel or agent, and
      (ii) may recommend to the approving authority that a party to the inquiry be paid a fixed amount for his costs of the inquiry not to exceed $200, and the approving authority may in its discretion order the expropriating authority to pay such costs forthwith.
2. "owner" and "registered owner" are defined in the Act as follows:
   "owner" includes a mortgagee, tenant, execution creditor, a person entitled to a limited estate or interest in land, a committee of the estate of a mentally incompetent person or of a person incapable of managing his affairs, and a guardian, executor, administrator or trustee in whom land is vested;
   "registered owner" means an owner of land whose interest in the land is defined and whose name is recorded in an instrument in the proper registry, land titles or sheriff's office, and includes a person who as a tenant of land or the last revised assessment roll.
3. The expropriating authority, each owner who notifies the approving authority that he desires a hearing in respect of the lands intended to be expropriated and any owner added as a party by the inquiry officer are parties to the inquiry.

Eleven Flee Prison

PRINCE ALBERT, Sask. (CP) — Eleven prisoners escaped from Prince Albert penitentiary Wednesday night and six described as dangerous were still at large today.

It was the second mass escape from the penitentiary in three months. Seven men escaped Aug. 24 but all were recaptured.

Three men involved in the August escape were among those who fled Wednesday night—Robert Desjarlais, 28, Douglas Letendre, 26, and Wilfred Zatlic, 32. Desjarlais remained at large, while the other two were recaptured along with Stanley Whitstaker, 25, Harry Lewis, 34, and Peter Harrison, 31.

The five were arrested at an RCMP roadblock 20 miles south of the city.

They had allegedly stolen a station wagon from Jim Dix of Prince Albert, who said they had a knife.

The six still at large all have long criminal records filled with violence, Warden John Norfield said.

It is believed the men escaped after cutting holes in a wire fence during a recreation period.

Desjarlais, of Lac La Biche, Alta., was serving a life sentence for non-capital murder and two years for escaping lawful custody in the Aug. 24 break.

Mickey Ilieboff, 25, Kamsack, Sask.; Ralph Cochrane, 43, Vancouver; George Leclerc, 29, Montreal; Hubert Bellmann 37, Edmonton, and Ronald Twerydoch, 23, Regina were also still at large.

Walter J. Hickel

Hickel's Ousting Horrifies Ex-foes

WASHINGTON (AP) — Conservationists who were horrified at the appointment of Walter J. Hickel as interior secretary two years ago were even more horrified Wednesday when President Nixon abruptly fired him —after Hickel refused to resign.

The official White House explanation, after a half-hour meeting between the president and Hickel, was a lack of "mutual confidence."

Environment-minded observers in Congress and conservation groups put a more specific interpretation on it: Hickel took his job seriously, was too independent, and so became a maverick in the Nixon administration.

Hickel, in a brief statement, said in effect he found it impossible to play the White House kind of game.

Hickel, then governor of Alaska, was viewed with suspicion by conservationists when he arrived in Washington as Nixon's nominee to the interior post in December, 1968.

Widely viewed as a "resource-exploiter and a pawn of oil interests," Hickel was questioned for days by the Senate interior committee and was the last cabinet member confirmed.

But former opponents have changed their minds and now express admiration for Hickel's efforts to protect the environment.

Form of Cuts Is Kept Secret

By DAVE McINTOSH

OTTAWA (CP) — Opposition Leader Robert Stanfield says Finance Minister Edgar Benson should "be required to sing or get away from the piano."

Mr. Benson is expected to sing a Santa Claus tune for Canadian tax payers next week or soon after.

Informants said Wednesday the government will announce soon, probably this week, its decision whether to present a late fall budget or a less lengthy statement on means to stimulate the economy and employment.

The budget or statement will be presented in the Commons next week or early in the following week and, sources indicate, it will include tax cuts.

The form of any such tax cuts is secret. Works Minister Arthur Laing told the Commons Nov. 13 when he was acting prime minister that the government's measures "will have the effect of stimulating employment in the field which is the total responsibility of the government and encouraging it in the private sector."

It is Mr. Laing's reference to the private sector that is leading to speculation about tax cuts.

Mr. Stanfield has advocated elimination of the 11-per-cent sales tax on building materials to provide some incentive in the construction industry.

Mr. Stanfield said it would not be good enough for the government simply to eliminate the three-per-cent surcharge on personal and corporation income taxes which is scheduled to expire—but can be renewed—at the end of next month.

He has suggested that on top of letting the surtax expire the government allow an income tax reduction of at least six per cent, especially for lower-income groups, as a means to help the economy expand.

If there are tax cuts, the government is likely to make them small enough to avoid a new wave of inflation. Prime Minister Trudeau says inflation now is at a rate of about five per cent a year but that it is still a critical issue.

Long GM Strike Predicted

TORONTO (CP) — The barbed situation of full parity with United States auto workers, including the U.S. cost-of-living escalation clauses, threw high barriers today between 22,000 striking Canadian auto men and General Motors of Canada Ltd.

The strike now is in its 11th week, the United Auto Workers' strike fund is due to run out at the end of the month, and Canadian strikers are critical of the UAW for settling in the U.S. before settlement in Canada. A lengthy prolongation of the strike here seemed possible.

And the answer from GM's chief negotiator in Canada to the demand for full parity is: "Hell, no!"

A. G. Sapsford, the negotiator, said Canadian auto workers are being unrealistic in seeking parity with U.S. workers on cost-of-living allowances.

"In a very real sense the union wants more than wage parity," he said Wednesday in a statement.

"What the union is demanding is that the wage increases be granted to Canadian workers based upon the much greater rise in the consumer prices and cost of living in the United States."

But Dennis McDermott, Canadian UAW director and international vice-president, said that in 1967 when the Canadian cost of living allowance was higher than the U.S., GM insisted the union forgo an eight-cent-higher allowance as a price for the wage parity agreement.

"What was good enough for GM in 1967 is good for the UAW in 1970," said Mr. McDermott.

The parity demand was underscored unanimously Wednesday at a mass meeting of auto workers in nearby Oshawa. The fight is over approximately 21 cents an hour.

Beggars Steal Aid For Flood Victims

BHOLA (Reuter) — The official casualty toll in the cyclone and tidal wave disaster which struck East Pakistan two weeks ago rose to 200,000 as relief workers raced today with a new problem — armies of ragged beggars stealing supplies destined for survivors.

The beggars are descending on the coastal strip ravaged by the wind and swell of water which hit it Nov. 13, grabbing food and blankets being delivered for the starving survivors.

Badly needed flat-bottomed British and American boats began ferrying the supplies to the stricken area Wednesday.

The official fatality toll of 200,000 included more than 175,000 confirmed dead and nearly 25,000 missing and presumed dead. On the shattered island of Bhola, President Kahya Khan spent the night after a day-long tour of the worst hit areas, himself handing out food and blankets to sobbing men, women and children.

The gigantic international aid operation got into full stride with transportation problems at last being overcome.

A major problem up until now has been the lack of flat-bottomed vessels to deliver supplies into stricken areas where waters from the tidal wave still have not receded.

But Wednesday British vessels began operating in northern sections of the affected area while American boats fitted with outboard motors handled deliveries in the south and east.

At least 30 helicopters — American, British, French, West German and Saudi Arabian — now are at work dropping supplies.

Judge Rules Tape to Tell All — Almost

BULLETIN

TORONTO (CP) — The first officer of a downed Air Canada jet liner apologized three times to the pilot apparently for prematurely displaying the aircraft's speed system mistakes before the jet smashed into a farm field July 5, killing all 109 persons aboard.

A transcript of what was said in the cockpit in the final minutes of California Cohasis Flight 621 was read into the record of a federal inquiry today by commission counsel B. J. MacKinnon.

The transcript was made from the DC-8-63 liner's flight recorder. It included the voice of Capt. Peter Hamilton, first officer Donald Rowland, second officer Harry Hill and ground control at Toronto International Airport.

TORONTO (CP) — Mr. Justice Hugh Gibson of the Exchequer Court of Canada ruled today that the final conversations of the flight crew of an Air Canada airliner that crashed last July will be made public.

Mr. Justice Gibson said the transcript of the plane's cockpit voice recorder tape will be admitted as evidence at the inquiry into the crash of the DC-8 jet.

He said the transcript is "both relevant and important" to the inquiry, but added without elaboration that "certain minor deletions" of an unimportant nature would be made.

Opposing counsels argued vigorously Tuesday about whether the transcript should be allowed as evidence.

One group, representing the crew that rode the crippled jetliner to a fiery death July 5, fought strongly Wednesday against admission of the transcripts into a federal inquiry into the crash.

On the other side, inquiry counsel B. J. MacKinnon said the recorder, which taped the final 33 minutes of Flight 621 from Montreal to Los Angeles, contained information vital to the investigation and must be made public.

The plane was due to stop briefly at Toronto. It bounced off a runway and crashed a few minutes later in a field north of Toronto International Airport, killing all 109 persons aboard.

The flight recorder, recovered later from the wreckage, picked up everything said by Captain Peter Hamilton, the jet's pilot, First Officer Donald Rowland and Second Officer Harry Hill.

Lawyers for the relatives and estates of the three men argued after listening for 1½ hours to the tape in a closed session that the tape was irrelevant and would bring needless grief to the families of the crew and the passengers.

"Everything must be on the table," Mr. MacKinnon told Mr. Justice Gibson. "And it is my position that subject to your ruling, everything is going to be on the table."

The 13 lawyers participating in the inquiry and the commissioner listened to the tape at the closed session.

Mr. MacKinnon has proposed to read a transcript into the record but not play the tape for the public. He said it included a great deal of background noise.

"You need a transcript in front of you to understand it," he said.

He said there were some minor omissions in the transcript because of garbled words during playback. But even the tape at the instant the aircraft bounced off the runway after dropping from a height of 69 feet.

The recorder was only slightly damaged, said Bernard Caiger, an aerodynamics specialist with the NRC who recovered it from the wreckage.

He told the inquiry the mechanism is hooked up to three microphones, one on the flight deck and one each in the headphones of the captain and first officer. There are two taping machines, including in addition to voice recordings, a complete electronic record of the aircraft's 73 separate systems.

Sidney Contests Open

Two-year veteran Reeve Jack Bush, serving a total of 11 years on council, faces former reeve Ernest J. Kells who brought a total of 19 years of experience on council to last night's nomination meeting.

Township farmer, deputy reeve Gordon P. Wilman will seek a second two-year term, with a total of five years as a councillor, six-year veteran of the Sidney Township School Board and six years on the Foxboro Co-op to offer voters. Married, he and his wife Hazel have five children. Mr. Wilman stands upon his past record as an indication of his service to the township.

Contending the position for deputy reeve is four-year vet. eran councillor Arthur J. Carleton, a stationary engineer at the Belleville General Hospital. Representative in the Highlands of Hastings Tourist Association, veteran of World War II, seeing active service in the artillery, Mr. Carleton "believes in giving everybody the same opportunity to approach council and seek a solution to their problems . . . a fair shake for everybody."

Incumbent two-year veteran councillors F. Gleig Meyers, township farmer and Reginald A. McCurdy, Loyalist College architectural instructor are being challenged by Hadley J. Richardson, electrical contractor, former farmer and three-year veteran of the Sidney Township School Board and Frank D. Meyers. Mr. Meyers was unavailable for comment on past community service.

Nominated as the Ghent Drive Subdivision nominee, Maurice A. Ducarme was forced to resign due to a service regulation prohibiting acceptance to public office of all Armed Forces personnel.

$10,000 Damage

TRENTON (Staff) — Fire gutted the rear portion of Quinte Cleaners yesterday causing an estimated $10,000 damage.

The blaze erupted in a storage area above the furnace room shortly after 1 p.m.

Howard Axtt, operator of the plant, said yesterday that clothing in the building for cleaning would be taken to other firms so that service to clients is not disrupted.

Reeve Elected In Deseronto

There's no election for reeve this year, but residents of the town of Deseronto will still be called upon to choose members for seats on school board, council and public utilities.

Nomination for public school board was held Monday night with three candidates in the field, and tonight there will be nomination for three seats on council and for one public utilities member.

If a municipal election is required, balloting will be on December 7 when polls open will also vote for one school board member.

Frankford Council Only Race Open

William F. Rose, incumbent reeve of the Village of Frankford, was re-elected to another term by acclamation during a nomination meeting last night in Frankford.

Two other people were nominated for reeve as well as Mr. Rose but both of them, Mrs. Muriel Isabel and Harry Wickson, declined their nominations.

Seven individuals were nominated for the four council positions in Frankford — incumbent Mrs. Muriel Isabel, incumbent Carman Mikel, incumbent Kenneth Lawrence, incumbent Marvin Parks, Herbert, J. Carter, Harry Wickson and Ronald G. Baker.

The incumbent members of council qualified for election last night. The other three nominees have yet to qualify and have until 4pm p.m. today.

The two incumbent public utilities commissioners, H. Willmot Rose and George Montgomery, were acclaimed to another term on the commission.

Trenton VON Approves Merger

Amalgamation of the Trenton and Belleville Branches of the Victorian Order of Nurses will probably be a reality by January 1.

The Trenton Branch last night voted to approve an agreement that would see the two branches join. Belleville voted its approval Monday night at a general meeting.

Grand Harison, Belleville VON director, said this morning that the next steps to be taken probably will be to seek permission of the provincial government because of the corporate status of the VON and the formation of committees for officers, policy and budget. Ottawa has already approved the amalgamation in keeping with VON trends in the country.

The new branch of the VON will be called the Quinte Branch and will have its headquarters in Belleville.

The new organization is expected to be more efficient and provide better services in travelling and administration in a more economical manner.

Signing In

Incumbent Sidney Township Reeve Jack M. Bush and contender ex-reeve Ernest J. Kells, last night signed nomination papers qualifying for re-election under the watchful eye of J. Byron Harder, township clerk and returning officer.

Minor Sought

Three Found Guilty In Trenton Disturbance

TRENTON (Staff) — Provincial court judge J. J. Jackson yesterday handed down judgments on three persons facing charges against them laid following a College St. disturbance complaint that preceded the death of town police constable Mark Houlden July 28.

Constable Houlden died three hours after going to the Welsh residence, 15 College St., to investigate a family quarrel in the company of another officer, Robert Palmer.

Defence counsel Robert Temple received confirmation from both Judge Jackson and Constable Palmer in court yesterday that the death did not result from the disturbance. The judge said that he was not there to hear a manslaughter case.

Gordon Leslie Welsh, 19, Carl Anderson, 23, and Helen Kerr, 22, were charged in connection with the incident. Several of these charges were withdrawn at the request of the crown.

Mr. Welsh was found guilty of drinking under age and fined $30. Charges of assaulting Constables Robert Palmer and Mark Houlden, obstructing a police officer and assisting an accused escape custody were withdrawn. Basis for retracting the charges was a confusion with a minor of similar name who was allegedly at the scene and is now being sought by police.

Carl Anderson, now in jail for other offences, was described as a "pacifier" in the July altercation. However, he was charged with creating a disturbance and received a one month jail sentence.

Helen Kerr, who Judge Jackson said had "fought like a wildcat", was found guilty on two counts of assaulting a police officer — effectively slapping Houlden and kicking Palmer in the groin — and one charge of creating a disturbance.

The judge determined that she was not guilty of escaping lawful custody because there was no "getaway" and no "intent" involved in the alleged flight.

After the disturbance, Mrs. Welsh had climbed into a police cruiser to visit Carl Anderson who had been placed there by police. Minutes later she left the car without authorization, although she had not been instructed to get in the vehicle.

Her sentence was deferred by Judge Jackson until December 23 pending receipt of a pre-sentence report. Arrangements must be made for the welfare of Mrs. Kerr's infant, the judge indicated.

During the trial, Constable Palmer recounted the happenings of July 28. He said that Lena Welsh, 40, mother of Gordon had telephoned the police, alerting them to the disturbance. Mrs. Welsh will face a common assault charge here January 8 for an incident following the disturbance involving former Intelligencer reporter Malcolm Johnson.

Arriving at the scene with Constable Houlden, he said, "we were met at the door by Sharon (Mrs. Gordon Welsh) and soon after Gordon started to fight with her — "swearing, kicking and clawing".

The two constables tried "to restrain Helen", Palmer explained, adding that they "got her under control and we sat her on a chair".

In a subsequent backyard squabble seven or eight minutes later, he said, "Helen was in the yard cursing and swearing. Carl was trying to defend himself".

"She dared us to arrest her . . . Carl pulled her back to the picnic table area to calm her down", Palmer asserted, mentioning that it was in this incident outside the College St. home that she struck himself and Houlden.

Carl was arrested, handcuffed and put in the cruiser. Helen was told she was under arrest and moved to the police car herself, the judge was told. In the meantime Houlden had collapsed.

An inquest will be held into the late constable's death after all charges connected with the disturbance have been disposed of. No date has been set.

The autopsy report filed by coroner Dr. David Listers of Brighton, states that Constable Houlden died of natural causes — pressure on an ulcer.

DEATHS

Future of Ontario Cheese Uncertain

By HARRY MULHALL
Staff Reporter

Once, Ontario — and the Quinte district — fashioned a thriving business from a seemingly insatiable British appetite for Canadian cheddar cheese.

Now, Ontario may not produce enough of its famed, flavorful cheddar in future to supply the British market.

This is only one of the many changes facing one of the province's oldest manufacturing industries, the 101st annual convention of the Central Ontario Cheese Makers' Association was told yesterday.

Definite changes in traditional manufacturing facilities will "alter the whole cheese industry," warned J. A. Johnston, cheese division director of the Ontario Milk Marketing Board.

As a result, "everyone in the business will have to take a new look at their position," he told the cheesemakers.

On the home front, such change is being marked by a compression of the industry — once augmented into small cheese factories. Many have closed — in the past three years alone, 20 per cent of business — sold to bigger dairy operations. The trend may continue, since the Ontario government is offering subsidies to cheese factories to shut down.

"It may be too early to assess this program, but it would seem more factories may take advantage of it," said Mr. Johnston.

Also speeding up the shutdowns may be new waste control requirements.

Large plants that can afford installation of whey-disposal equipment could eventually be the only ones remaining in business, Mr. Johnston conjectured.

In the marketplace, meanwhile there are parallel changes.

Federal import restrictions on dairy products are proving effective; domestic consumption has increased substantially; the big British cheese market, until recently depressed, now has picked up — all this at a time when domestic cheese production is down.

Given all these factors, Mr. Johnston wondered "if Ontario would produce enough cheese next year for domestic requirements and for exports to the United Kingdom . . ."

Stronger demand for Ontario cheddar in Britain comes at a time when Milk Marketing Board cheese sales are down more than 30 per cent this year.

"Everything possible has been done to improve the situation. But there simply is not enough cheese for the domestic and export markets," said Mr. Johnston.

"If enough Canadian cheddar can be produced in future, backed by a federal export subsidy, Mr. Johnston believed Britain was a potential market for 25 million pounds of cheese a year.

But, he cautioned, if the British market — a mainstay of the Canadian cheese industry for more than a century — is to be retained, United Kingdom importers and distributors must "very soon" be given an outline of Canada's future export plans.

British consumers have now switched from small, specializing stores, to supermarkets, said Mr. Johnston.

Unless the new - style retailers are assured a continuity of supply they may lose interest and quit selling Canadian cheese.

Meanwhile, Britain is seeking European Common Market membership — a move which could affect Canadian cheddar exports — and "it's anybody's guess what may happen."

One British food industrialist already has warned that Common Market membership would end the traditional market for Canadian cheese producers.

But Canadian cheddar is "a unique product, and cannot be purchased from any other source," said Mr. Johnston.

"The British market has been an important one for Ontario cheese for more than a century," he said. "There have been ups and downs . . . but the export market has been a safety valve for the industry."

"The long - term future of the (British) market is difficult to forecast because of present changes in the industry," he said.

However, "at the present time, it would appear there may not be enough cheese manufactured in this province to supply the British market in the future," added Mr. Johnston.

As a result, in years to come Britain may purchase its Canadian cheddar in Quebec.

Yet, the key to export market lies with federal decisions on subsidies and government pricing of dairy products.

The condition in which some cheddar may reach the British market also was raised by B. H. Jardine, Milk Products Division director of the Department of Agriculture and Food.

Mr. Jardine, recounting the despatch of Ontario cheese in championship shows in Britain said on two occasions, the exhibits were withdrawn because they had been damaged in transit.

"One of the things that bothers me," said Mr. Jardine, "is that if this can happen to shoe shipments, what happens to our regular shipments that go through railcar channels.

"I think it's something we should have someone look into. It's not very encouraging."

Cheese Mystery Unsolved

Science has been able to definitely prove the moon isn't really a piece of cheese.

Back home, though, science isn't doing so well with the real thing.

Just exactly what goes on inside a Canadian cheddar cheese to give it its unique international reputation, hasn't been clearly defined by science, J. M. Dahlen, Guelph University professor, told the Central Ontario Cheesemakers' Association yesterday.

In fact, after at least 2,000 years of cheesemaking, it's still difficult to describe just what complicated chemical reactions give cheese its wide variety of flavors and texture.

"We know the moon is no longer considered to be a piece of green cheese," said Dr. Dehlan. "But still cheese — in a scientific way — cannot be properly described."

One thing is certain, though, he told the cheesemakers. Despite its antiquity, cheese still is increasing in popularity.

House Moving Roadblock

Traffic on West Moira Street near Sidney Inn was disrupted for much of yesterday afternoon when this Insulbrick house was moved to its roadway when the tailend trailer mechanism gave way. House split in two in the mishap. The house was being moved from Benjamin Street to a new location at the city limits when the mishap occurred.

Building Permit Issued For Mall's First Stage

A first stage permit for one block of the new $7-million Cambridge Leaseholds Quinte Mall on North Front Street has been issued at city hall.

The permit, taken out by Eastern Construction Ltd., is for the foundation of the Simpsons - Sears store, largest single business block in the shopping mall. The permit calls for construction of foundation for more than 90,000 feet of floor space.

Total proposed floor space for the enclosed mall shopping centre is more than 200,000 square feet. Included will be 36,000 square feet for Steinberg's Miracle Food Mart.

Parking for more than 1,400 automobiles will be provided.

A Shell service station is planned for the southeast corner of the plaza at the corner of North Front Street and Bell Blvd.

City council this week gave approval to a traffic and light committee recommendation allowing the plaza owners, Cambridge Leaseholders Ltd., an entrance off North Front Street with the provision that outgoing traffic be permitted right turns only.

Southbound traffic on North Front Street will be permitted right turns directly into the mall, but northbound traffic will turn left onto Bell Blvd. for mall entrance.

Also this week council approved a report from City Manager J. R. Reynolds outlining recommended procedure for construction of Bell Blvd. east from North Front Street through to Sidney Street to link up with Hannah Street.

Right of way for the new roadway will be purchased from Cambridge Leaseholds Ltd. and North Belleville Realty at the rate of $2.50 per acre for a total cost of approximately $12,500.

The road, when constructed would be built as a local improvement with costs, including the cost of road allowance to be assessed in accordance with city policy.

A 16-inch watermain will be laid from Sidney Street to North Front Street along the new right of way and this also will be constructed as a local improvement. Cost of the main is provided for in the city's 1979 capital works budget.

Hydro lines will also be constructed along the new street allowance.

Mayor Russell Scott told council Monday that Cambridge Leaseholds was anxious to take out their building permit and get construction under way.

Local Painters Win Their Point

Belleville area painters today said they won agreement from a Toronto subcontractor that only local painters would be employed at the Four Seasons hotel project.

The agreement came after members of Local 114, of the Painters, Decorators and Paperhangers Union had picketed the site for nearly three hours.

George Grant, Kingston, vice - president of Local 114, said the protest ended when work stoppage as tradesmen refused to cross the picketline.

He said the local painters were protesting hiring of nonlocal painters by Marino Decorators, Toronto.

The Toronto subcontractor had employed its own Toronto painters and although these also were unionized, it meant the loss of jobs to local labor, said Mr. Grant.

This meant that Belleville painters had to "travel all over to get work, when they could be working in their own home town," said Mr. Grant.

Local 114 represents a wide work area — ranging as far east as Gananoque.

The protest was called off when, Mr. Grant said, Marino representatives signed an agreement to hire only local tradesmen.

Reeve, Council Up for Grabs In Tyendinaga

A Dec. 7 election for reeve and township council is indicated for Tyendinaga as result of nominations held yesterday.

But the office of deputy reeve goes to incumbent Leonard Walsh without a contest as he received acclamation for the post.

Nominated and already qualified to run for the reeve's chair is incumbent Carman Gibson and former councillor Bernard O'Sullivan.

All three of this year's councillors — George Blatherwick, Charles Long and William Cooney, were nominated along with four newcomers Kenneth Juby, Raymond Hunt, Harold Enright and Raymond Callaghan. Incumbent councillors and Mr. Juby have already qualified.

Yesterday's nomination was well attended and healthy discussion on municipal business were heard. All three aspirants for the township seat on the county school board — incumbent Laurisen Gunning, Stephen Geneja and Bruce Ford spoke briefly in support of their candidacy.

The Changing Times

Speaking of change, it is all around us these days: in new industry in Belleville; and there is more in the wind, for it will come with new faces in area municipal governments and on school boards once the votes are in.

What can the individual do to effect orderly change? A great deal; he can do it with propagation of ideas and, as many are doing nowadays, by writing to his member of parliament.

What about change on the local scene? At the annual warden's banquet for Hastings County Warden John Wilkes and Mrs. Wilkes in Marmora the other day, county administrator Carl Bateman noted that with the trend toward regional governments events such as the warden's banquet might be no more. But this, he went on, would not occur overnight, for the people of the county were proud of their institutions and government. Tradition died hard and to those who advocated major change he could say only that they faced a rocky road.

Beyond this, Mr. Bateman was not specific about what changes might be contemplated. With regional government, would we see a loosening of ties manifested by occasions like this one in Marmora? We do not think so; the social aspect of government would still be perpetuated in some form or another. Certainly, as long as people come together seeking the betterment of their fellow man, it is likely that retains its democratic traditions and rejects anarchy and any tendency toward dictatorship, there will be opportunities of this nature.

* * *

Change takes many forms. We see how this country has changed from the pioneer times with its emphasis on self-reliance and family stability to a scientifically-oriented, permissive and even hedonistic age. Campus dissent, the rise of the hippie cult, an "anything goes" attitude to life are among the principal symptoms.

Consider how this province, for example, has evolved? One reads the obituary columns and notices that many of our senior citizens came from England. In cities like Toronto, Canadianism means a still wider leavening of ethnic origins. And it may come as a surprise to learn from Liberalism interviews that the answer to that now celebrated advertisement about Ontario, is "No, there is nowhere else I would rather be." This may be all very well, but its does not really finish for the love of adventurousness of our citizenry. True the trend of immigration is more to affluent countries such as Canada, but then affluence can breed boredom in suburbia and it can kill the sort of motivation that sparks interest in the world outside. Unemployment this winter is higher than it has been for some time; and this might spur some of our unemployed to find work overseas. Yes, there is still a Commonwealth and developing lands which require skilled men.

* * *

Look at agriculture. Here too there have been many changes, as Prince Edward County agriculturist Jack Bell has been telling Rotarian Picton when friends and county associates gathered to mark his severance of a ten-year link with the area, and change in the form of a move to Ontario agriculture.

Significant were the statistics Mr. Bell presented. Forty per cent of Canada's working force is in agriculture or related industries, but only one per cent of Prince Edward's farmers are under 25 years of age, and only one per cent between 25 and 34. Twenty five per cent are over 60 while 13 per cent are in the 55-59 bracket.

"This is a real challenge and opportunity for young people," he said. Yes, indeed, but it looks as if it is going to take some persuasion, not to mention government support to bolster the ranks in the younger categories. Unquestionably, they will be needed if the agricultural industry is not to suffer a serious loss of manpower, just the skills they bring to the land and the produce upon which Canada and even the world at large increasingly must rely.

Where else is change taking place? Well, we see that the Belleville and Trenton branches of the Victorian Order of Nurses are moving toward amalgamation and there should be many advantages in this. Yet in one sphere we see the past is not forgotten: The British Empire Dairy Show is still doing its annual thing — this time at 165 Front Street — and where else does one hear the "Empire" of old still perpetuated in name and tradition?

Opposition Flounders on FLQ Issue

Government Has 'People Power' Behind Its Measures

By RICHARD JACKSON

OTTAWA — There is nothing in the world like people-power. Just nothing.

Political power, in the organized party or even parliamentary sense, is power-puff stuff — even less substantial, and not even being a wisp of mist when the winds of people-power blow strong.

And blown they have, with hurricane force in these recent crises when they blow strong and hard and long enough to clear some pretty thick political heads from the cobwebs of Ottawa.

The terrorist FLQ talks about people-power, but in all its talk there is no clear understanding of what it means.

The emptiness of the FLQ talk comes clearly through in those arrogant "communiques" in it chose to term them in their pathetic attempts to "negotiate" with elected and constitutionally - established governments.

And the FLQ confirmed its mockery of people-power in its infantile propaganda churned out in barrenness almost reeking public support through inflaming immature minds.

The Conservatives know about people-power and fully appreciate its stunning strength — having rebuilded it once, as it never had until then been harnessed, in John Diefenbaker's Conservative sweep of 208 of the then 265 House of Commons seats in the 1958 election.

But they seem since then to have lost the magic touch for turning it on, and are still grouping for the right one.

The New Democrats preach a dogma of people-power, but have no talent for it beyond talk.

At the moment, only the Liberals know the secret, the secret to the powerhouse of the people.

That it should appear to be so difficult for the others to find it defies reason.

For it is there — as it always has been — in plain sight for all politicians and all parties to see.

It is the voice of the people.

Not just the sound of it — but its written word.

It pours in, in a sort of intangible but easily accountable way, over the local and long distance phone lines.

And in times of crisis as were those weeks of October the telephone system, from one end of the nation to the other, became one hotly humming "Hot Line" to Ottawa.

To the Liberals, the Conservatives, the NDP and the Creditistes.

And this voice thunders in, in a more tangible way, through the mails, thousands of letters piling up on the desks of Prime Minister Pierre Trudeau, Conservative leader Robert Stanfield, New Democratic Chief T. C. Douglas, and Real Caouette of the Creditistes, and stacking up in hundreds in the offices of every MP in every party.

There are the telegrams, too, flooding in all day, every day, week after crisis week.

This time, with the stakes so high, the Liberals, the Government with so much to win — or everything to lose — listened, read, counted and weighed people-power as never before.

It was this "participatory democracy" — until now, little more than a slick slogan — that Pierre Trudeau has talked about so airily as he skipped in the last election from hug to kiss in supermarket to shopping centre.

For some strange reason, utterly beyond any real hope of understanding, the Conservatives, while listening and reading and counting, failed to pay full attention to what the hurricane voice of people-power so clearly was saying, over and over and over again.

So they fledged, rationalized, qualified and went chasing for precious — and to them politically costly — days after a will-of-the-wisp called Trudeau Liberalism.

And one of them, David MacDonald, a Prince Edward Island Conservative, voiced it — only against his own party's delayed decision, but against all of Parliament's delay, the lone orphan, deeply resented by his own Conservatives, lambasted savagely by the NDP and openly and triumphantly ridiculed by the Liberals.

Four of them heard the wind of people-power blowing across all the miles between their constituencies and the brick and sandstone stuff old stone walls of Parliament Hill, and understood.

What brought every last MP but that incredible loner, David MacDonald, down to it was the sudden cold realization, of sure and fearful conviction, that the leader — as — a — rock Prime Minister was determined to crush the FLQ — and the Opposition — even if it meant a snap election, called on the issue of the War Measures Act, which the Conservatives and New Democrats alike rallied was both unnecessary and excessive.

Imagine what could have happened to the Opposition.

Dief all but liquidated the NDP in the '58 election, and cut Liberal strength to a skeleton.

This time, in what, with the laughs off the suggestion, could have been the election of '70, it could have been an opposition wipe-out if the Prime Minister had felt compelled to go for broke.

But believe Parliament Hill now. There is indeed almost all parties know it from the top of their skulls to the soles of their feet, nothing like people-power.

And it is so easy to exert.

It does not even take a stamp to make your voice heard — and counted. Mail to Parliament Hill travels free.

You owe it to yourself to do more than merely vote once every three or four years in the court on every issue. Rock up your vote with a phone call, a wire or a letter to the Prime Minister, the Opposition leaders and your MP.

Thousands of your fellow citizens just did, and the message that finally got through to the Conservatives was to think straight, and to the NDP to wonder if they initially were in their right minds.

"You sure, you added his bill correctly? He's still smiling?"

Airlines Feel Pinch As Domestic Travel Declines

Montreal Gazette

Domestic air travel fares may very well be headed for another increase before mid-1971. Both Air Canada and CP Air are reporting rising operating costs, declines in domestic travel income and continuing high capital expenditures as the reasons why profits have fallen to dangerous levels.

This is the kind of news that Canadians do not want to hear about, especially travelling Canadians. Yet like so many other businesses in North America today this country's major airlines are keenly aware of it. Simple business prudence dictates that they should take the necessary steps to avoid the kind of losses that some leading U.S. carriers are now experiencing.

Domestic air fares were raised earlier this year. But this increase plus an anticipated rise in international fares, already recommended by the International Air Transport Association, will fall short of providing the extra revenues that are urgently required. Unless business improves rapidly Canadian air travellers can expect further jump in domestic fares.

Rising costs and declining revenues form a deadly combination that cannot be long sustained by any business operation. The Canadian airlines declines in domestic travel income and continuing high capital expenditures as the reasons why profits have fallen to dangerous levels.

Oxfam Appeal For Victims of Cyclone

Editor,
The Intelligencer,

The sheer horror of the tragedy which has overwhelmed East Pakistan in the recent cyclone is almost beyond belief. Winds of 150 mph and a tidal wave 20 feet high swept across islands in the Ganges Delta where more than 1 million people live. The devastation is almost total and estimates of the dead are at least 500,000 — equivalent to wiping out Ottawa or Winnipeg. It is already clear that this is the worst catastrophe the region has ever known.

Oxfam acted swiftly contributing more than $100,000 for the victims. Three helicopters and a bovercraft are being sent to Pakistan to bring urgently needed relief to survivors in isolated areas. Above all the people need help and the Brothers of the Holy Cross, a group of Canadian missionaries working in the area. Brother Flavian Lapointe of St. Aime, Quebec, has worked among the fishing community there for 20 years organizing co-operatives and general development. Brother Lapointe acted as Chairman of the Emergency Relief Committee set up by the Government after the 1969 cyclone. He will organize relief measures for all inhabitants of the area without distinction.

Oxfam will also be assisting in other ways. Our field representative, Richard Carver, is in Chittagong now to investigate the most useful help we can give. The hundreds of thousands who are homeless and in danger of starvation urgently need immediate relief in the form of food, drugs, clothing and tents. Money will also be required for reconstruction programs to restore the shattered pattern of life. There will be a tremendous job to be done in housing, the restoration of agriculture and replacement of fishing boats on which this population depends so heavily — to name obvious needs.

May I appeal to your readers for donations which are so vital work. Any gift, however large or small, will be most welcome and tax receipts will be given. Donations may be sent to: Oxfam of Canada, 97 Leiton Ave., E., Willowdale, Ont., Ontario, or handed in at any bank.

T. H. G. FLETCHER
Executive Director.

Cadets Have Full Program

The Intelligencer,
Our Cadet Corps would like to take this opportunity of thanking your newspaper for extremely high consideration that you paid us for being present on the Nov. 11 Veterans' Parade. You called us "Smart".

We should like to point out that there are three Cadet Corps in Belleville and District Area. We happen to be the Land group and although we are sponsored by the Militia and are the Militia ward Regiment our title is No. 2818 Royal Canadian Army Cadet Corps. We wear the khaki uniform of the Army, the Red Beret of the infantry, and completing the dress is the Sam Browne and shoulder flashes of the Hastings and Prince Edward Regiment.

On Thursday evenings between 6:30 and 8:30 at the Belleville Armouries we will find approximately 65-70 Cadets enjoying rifle shooting on the miniature drill, first-aid, signals and other military subjects from their instructors.

This Cadet Corps has assisted in its own way in community work — such as the firemen on three or four occasions at the motorcycle races, providing a walking personnel during it the Santa Claus parade as a safety measure, assisting the Legion and with the sale of poppies, selling Santa Claus parade tags, and contributing $375 to St. John Ambulance following the spring walkathon. We were also the only Cadet Corps to contribute and issued a challenge to other Corps in the recent Jerry Lewis Tele-thon for Muscular Dystrophy.

We would welcome any young man between the ages of 12-17 to visit us at the Belleville Armouries any Thursday evening.

Our members have travelled throughout the country, some on courses to British Columbia, Alberta, Ontario, Petawawa and Camp Borden in Ontario and one to Jamaica, British West Indies Carribean. Forty-five Cadets were on course during the summer and an additional 20 were engaged in two four-day campouts at Bon Echo.

Please recognize this group of young men who meet on Thursday evenings to learn some of the things that are important to the defence of our country, the knowledge of some subjects required to make them good citizens and the importance of having good friends.

A. W. CUNNINGHAM, Major,
Commanding Officer,
No. 2818 Cadet Corps (Hast. and PEI)

Degree Not Always Key To A Job

Peterborough Examiner

Many a newspaper headline tells that . . . PhDs cannot get jobs. But few stories tell the reader about the fields of those PhDs.

Closer examination would reveal that the vast majority of PhD degrees are the results of studies which, on the everyday economic market, have no value. Universities these days offer courses in so many subjects that it is bewildering and confusing. Thousands of students get degrees for degrees', sake without regard for the future or without investigating whether these degrees will be a need for such knowledge.

High-level Bay Bridge Not Likely for 10 to 15 Years

By ROY PEACOCK
Staff Reporter

Construction of a new high-level bridge over the Bay of Quinte between Belleville and Roseneath is a matter of provincial priorities.

And latest vehicular counts for the Highway 14 route south out of the city show that traffic volumes do not warrant the immediate construction of a new bay bridge.

That is the position taken by the Ontario Department of Highways and, although, generally in favor of a new bridge, Quinte area MPPs agree that over-all provincial priorities must be considered.

These were the somewhat unpopular facts learned by more than 30 Quinte area municipal officials at a Lake Ontario Regional Development Council meeting last night, when the possibility of a new bay bridge was the principal topic of discussion.

Attending the meeting were city council members, city engineering and planning officials with a big representation of municipal and tourist association officials from Prince Edward county.

Roy Burnfield, functional planning engineer for the Central Region of DHO at Toronto, told the meeting that the highways department raised the Highway 14 route south from Belleville in a third category class.

This, he said, was based on the latest traffic count (1969) and the level of service being provided.

He said the roadway was designed for an hourly volume of 540 vehicles, but could handle up to 800 vehicles per hour before improved facilities would be required.

Traffic projections indicated that by 1990 the vehicle count over the bridge would amount to 1,015 vehicles per hour.

These counts were not peak volumes, Mr. Burnfield emphasized, but were average hourly volumes. He said it was not economically feasible to build highways for peak volumes.

The latest city counts taken in September and October of this year, showed an hourly count of 889 vehicles on the Bay Bridge Road.

However, in view of the concern shown in the Quinte area, Mr. Brunfield said the department was prepared to do another traffic count during peak periods next summer.

But questions regarding the inconvenience to motorists caused by bridge openings and the 20-ton load limit for the present bridge were raised.

To these Mr. Burnfield said the delays as result of bridge openings, when considered on an hourly basis, would be less than that created at signalized intersections.

He said the present bridge structure could be strengthened by new girders and flooring to accommodate heavier loads at a fraction of the cost of interest charges on the cost of a new high-level bridge costing anywhere up to $18 million.

Mr. Burnfield was one of a four-member discussion panel headed by Read Rudge of Port Hope, president of the regional development council.

Other members were Hastings riding member Clarke T. Rollins and Norris Whitney, member for Prince Edward-Lennox. Quinte riding member Richard T. Potter was also scheduled to take part in the panel discussions, but was unable to attend.

Pieter Reeve Barrett Hepburn was critical of the 20-ton load limit on the present bay bridge, claiming that the low limit could discourage large industry from locating in the county.

Referring to the need for a new high-level bridge at Belleville, Reeve Hepburn said he "didn't give a damn about traffic counts," which he said didn't matter that much.

The Picton reeve referred to construction of the Quinte Skyway at Deseronto and said the highways department must have used some other criteria to project the need for this bridge.

Prince Edward - Lennox member Norris Whitney defended construction of the Deseronto bridge, claiming that it provided a link between the two counties where previously there had been no access.

He said the Skyway surveyed a big need for heavy truck transport direct to Highway 401.

Mr. Whitney said he would be happy to see a new high-level bridge at Belleville and also across the Murray Canal but stressed the highways department had to keep a close eye on expenditures.

He did not feel that summer bridge openings at the present bay bridge caused too much inconvenience for local residents, most of whom could time trips.

"We want a new bridge, but we have to be fair," he said

Stirling Reeve Donald Rodgers raised the question of traffic bottlenecks on the Highway 14 route through the city and asked if the present bridge was in the right place.

To this Mr. Whitney replied that, in the thinking of many Prince Edward residents, the bridge should cross the west end of Zwick's Island to link up with Sidney Street, thus providing a direct link with 401 without going through Belleville.

"And Sidney Street should be extended right out to Foxboro," interjected Alderman Arthur Keegan, chairman of the city traffic committee.

Belleville Mayor J. Russell Scott asked what the highways department thinking was with respect to a possible bypass. He said the city was doing planning studies with regard to roads, but could take little action until it knew where provincial roads were going.

Hastings riding member Clarke Rollins pointed to the province's costly road program in Hastings county.

He said there was a big highway bridge problem at the village of Frankford while the widening of Highway 2 between Belleville and Trenton to four lanes was also scheduled for the near future.

Both Hastings and Prince Edward counties had also received much pro-rial money through road development programs in which the provinces paid all construction costs.

Highways Minister George Gomme was being strongly criticized for road expenditures.

He said construction of a new high-level bridge would have to be considered in the light of other province-wide priorities.

Belleville Alderman Donald Sonier quoted from a letter received from Highways Minister Gomme by Quinte riding member Richard T. Potter.

Mr. Gomme's letter stated that the present inconvenience caused to road and waterborne traffic as result of the swing bridge, did not constitute an urgent warrant for a multi-million dollar bridge project under present fiscal conditions.

If multi-mile traffic bottlenecks were a common occurrence at the bridge, Mr. Gomme said he was sure the department would have received many vociferous complaints from individual frustrated drivers as distinct from organized submissions (from municipal councils and private groups).

The highways minister said the department's planning study forecast that the level of service on the approach road to the bridge would enter an "unstable flow" zone by 1982 after which additional lanes would have to be considered.

Accordingly, the department considered the road would have adequate capacity for 10 to 15 years.

Relatively inexpensive repairs to the present bridge deck would keep the structure good for another 10 to 15 years and the highways minister said it made sound economic sense to consider four-laning the road and replacing the bridge structure as one problem.

Alderman Soutter said that everyone wanted a new bridge and that as a result of the recent request of city council Mr. Gomme now appreciated the local concern.

The alderman noted, however, that Mr. Gomme indicated the department would take a serious look at the bridge problem again next summer.

If traffic counts indicated a greatly increased problem and the regional development study now under way in this area indicated a growth area, Ald. Soutter suggested that the whole priority for acrossthe-bay traffic could change.

Prince Edward county warden Gordon Lloyd said all municipalities in his area supported a new high - level bridge at Belleville with direct access to Highway 401.

"The Murray Canal is also a problem and needs a new bridge — we need both," he said.

YMCA Board Critical Of Smaller UCS Share

The YMCA last night became the second member agency in as many days to level criticism at the United Community Services, Belleville's co - operative fund raising agency.

Adverse comment was generated at a YMCA executive meeting when members were told the YMCA budget amount would not be met by UCS this year. Because the united appeal has fallen short of its goal, the Y's allocation of $31,000 has been reduced to $27,000. The reduction in budget comes shortly after action by UCS directors last Spring that no agency could receive more than 25 per cent of the total funds raised.

The Y's precarious financial position was outlined by treasurer Frank Heinz who said that a $4,000 bank loan was overdue and the 1970 school taxes of more than $2,300 have not been paid yet. He explained that the city grant in May of this year had gone to pay 1969 taxes. He said that efforts to reduce expenditures this year included a board decision not to pay the Y's annual contribution to the YMCA national council.

Board member Louis Marsakas, a Belleville lawyer, suggested the board to "seriously consider leaving the United Community Services." The budget manager of the UCS, released Tuesday night to member agencies, was attacked for dictatorial policies.

"All they're saying is that they can dictate what we'll get . . . $4,000 less," said Mr. Marsakas.

"Obviously the agencies are going to (be forced) to go out in search of dough if they can't get it from the UCS."

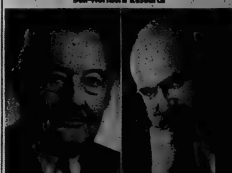
Contract Let

Mortlock Construction Ltd. of Peterborough has been awarded the contract for construction of an addition to the Department of Highways District office at Bancroft.

Hastings riding member Clarke T. Rollins said the contract for the addition was for the amount of $62,635.

One member stated that receiving 39 per cent of the total United Appeal revenue was "better than" being a member and receiving 39 per cent of nothing.

Mr. Marsakas declared that part of the agreement of inclusion in the UCS was failure to solicit funds door-to-door.



He again suggested that the Y consider discontinuing relations if yearly budgets were not being supplied from membership in the UCS.

YMCA chairman John Hayman and treasurer Frank Heinz together with a majority of the board, agreed that this matter would have to be decided by January 1971.

One of the stipulations in the UCS was the agreement to announce dissociation of an agency by February 1971.

Tuesday night the Belleville Minor Sports Association contended that the UCS treated its budget request differently than those of other agencies.

Atomic Energy May Bail Out Glace Bay Heavy Water Plant

PORT HOPE, Ont., (CP) — The federal government's Atomic Energy of Canada Ltd., may be used to bail out Nova Scotia's troubled heavy water plant at Glace Bay.

Energy Minister J. J. Greene said Wednesday this could be done if Nova Scotia's slowly-elected Liberal government can produce a plan that will start to move to bring the plant into production under federal aegis than to build a new installation.

Mr. Greene gave this news to Premier Gerald Regan at a conference earlier in the day attended by Lorne Gray, president of Atomic Energy of Canada; R. B. Cameron, chairman of the Cape Breton Development Corp.; Jack Austin, federal deputy energy minister, and Mr. Regan.

He said Mr. Regan, who earlier discussed the plant's troubles with Prime Minister Trudeau, now will "present a plan whereby Atomic Energy could bring the plant into production."

Mr. Greene came here shortly after the meeting to open Eldorado Canada Ltd. uranium hexafluoride and zirconium facilities which are producing key elements for the Canadian and United States nuclear power programs.

The Glace Bay plant was to have been a major factor in Canada's nuclear power program, producing heavy water for the atomic furnaces of Ontario Hydro, Hydro Quebec and overseas customers of the Canadian system of electric production from nuclear energy.

But that was in 1963 when it was the brainchild of New York financier Jerome Spevack who, as the first president of Deuterium of Canada Ltd., negotiated a deal to build the plant on a guarantee that the federal government would buy the heavy water.

The Nova Scotia government then headed by Robert Stanfield, now federal Conservative leader, committed $23 million in the project in return for 51 per cent of the company. The money was advanced through Industrial Estates Ltd., Nova Scotia's industrial promotion agency.

The plant was to have produced 400 tons of the costly substance yearly. It has yet to turn out a single drop of heavy water, nearly four years behind schedule. It was taken over completely by the province in 1968, on payment of another $3,000,000.

Mr. Spevack was replaced as Deuterium president by Mr. Cameron in October, 1968, after a rift with the company's directors.

The plant was beset by labor troubles over a crucial two-year period of construction.

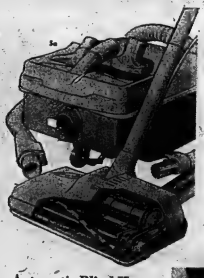
Atomic Energy of Canada at about the time of the takeover double-d its commitments to buy Glace Bay heavy water—to 400 tons a year at an average price of $18.50 a pound. This price was later raised to $20.50 a pound and Mr. Greene has indicated that it may go up again to around $25.

Heavy water now sells on the open market for about $30 a pound.

The plant was opened by Mr. Stanfield in May, 1977. By then, costs had risen to $75 million. So far the Nova Scotia government has stuffed the estimated $200 million into the project.

Failure of the plant to get into production has been blamed on sea-water corroding the piping and equipment and failure of the final process in the production system being used.

Engineering studies a year ago indicated it would take another $30 million to get the plant into shape to produce. The figure now is considered to be nearer to 60 million.



Mr. Greene said in an interview that if the plant could be made to produce for $40 million the federal government would be prepared to pay up to another $30 million to acquire it. He said it is estimated that it now would take $70 million to build a new heavy water plant.

Meanwhile, Canada's only major heavy water production is from the Canadian General Electric plant at Point Tupper, N.S., which turned out the first reactor-grade product last month and is scheduled to go 400 tons a year.

Compensation for Detainees Raised in House

OTTAWA (CP) — Justice Minister John Turner told the Commons Wednesday that there have been discussions with Quebec officials on the protection of persons released without charge under the War Measures Act regulations, but that any announcement must come from the attorney-general of Quebec.

He was replying in the Commons to requests from Opposition Leader Robert Stanfield who said an investigation is necessary into the whole matter of administration of justice in Quebec because of conflicting reports out of Ottawa since the crisis began.

This was especially needed, he said, because of recent reports of police brutality in that province.

Mr. Stanfield asked specifically whether any discussions had been held on methods of clearing the names of those persons arrested under War Measures Act regulations and then released without charge.

Mr. Turner said there had been discussions with Quebec Attorney-General Jerome Choquette on that subject and that the attorney-general will be making an announcement.

On the charges of police brutality, Mr. Turner reiterated his stand that any announcement would have to come from the premier of Quebec or the attorney-general of that province.

Lise Rose Complaint Received

MONTREAL (CP) — Ombudsman Lois Marceau said Wednesday he received a written complaint Nov. 6 from Lise Rose, who told a coroner's inquest into the death of Pierre Laporte, Quebec's former labor minister, that she was beaten by police during interrogation.

While not elaborating on the complaint, Mr. Marceau said in an interview the gist of it was similar to statements made by the woman Tuesday.

Miss Rose, 25-year-old sister of two brothers wanted in the Laporte kidnapping, said she was stripped and beaten by police.

She also complained about "inhuman conditions" at provincial police headquarters, where she was held until Tuesday night, when she was transferred to a Montreal women's prison.

Also sent there was Lise Balcer, a girlfriend of Paul Rose, wanted with his brother Jacques in the Laporte kidnapping.

Lise Rose said Tuesday that both women were in the seventh day of a hunger strike to protest alleged discrimination against them.

Both Miss Rose and Clement Roy are to be sentenced next Tuesday for contempt for refusing to testify at the coroner's inquest.

St. Andrew's Presbyterian Church Holds Yule Tea and Bazaar

By ALLISON STICKLE
Women's Editor

St. Andrew's Presbyterian Church hall and Sunday School rooms were a hive of activity on Wednesday afternoon for the annual tea and bazaar, and even though St. Andrew's day is kept in mind, the Christmas theme was much in evidence.

The event convened by Mrs. H. McKay with co - convener Mrs. T. Burnett assisted by Mrs. J. Morris, was officially opened by the minister of the church, Rev. A. L. Sutherland. Receiving guests at the door was president of the Women's Guild Mrs. R. Jones assisted by Mrs. A. L. Sutherland, Mrs. W. H.-V. Walker and Miss Luella Burnside, president of the Women's Missionary Society.

In the various Sunday School rooms where the sales tables were located and the main auditorium, an air of Yuletide prevailed with Christmas decor at every strategic point. The eye - catching decor was done by the Sunshine Group with Mrs. K. Davidson in charge.

Each booth had its own particular decor and especially so was the cotton and crafts table with a grand array of Christmas novelties and centrepieces displayed by the Welcome Group with conveners Mrs. A. McCreary and Mrs. R. Gray. Another was the children's wear bearing numerous mitten, baby sets and many other gift items with an adjoining booth laden with an assortment of fancy pot holders by the Harmony Group with Mrs. J Robertson in charge.

Always a drawing card at any bazaar is the homecooking and delicatessen table which was laden with pies, cakes, tarts and other delicacies, convened by the Loyal Group with Mrs. H. Yorke and Mrs. P. Twomey kept busy with sales. The candy table was also popular with its assortment of sweet goods and convened by Mrs. W. Mantle. The white elephant table had numerous embellished items and was convened by Mrs. F. Freebors and Mrs. R. Babbit. The apron booth had a long table of half, bib type and overall aprons in every material and color with one unique style of mauve and ivory crochet drawing much attention.

Not to be outdone several gallant men of the church contributed their efforts at the plant table with various foliages and house plants along with an interesting display of wooden wares. These were sold by Messrs. H. McKay, H. Gooding and M. Barlow.

Hostesses in the tea room which was set off with white picket fence and sentinelled with white arbor entwined with garlands of holly were: Miss Frieda Matthews, Mrs. D. Kane, Mrs. R. Michaud Sr., and Mrs. R. Kempster. The tea table was most attractive covered with lace cloth over red underlay and centred with an artistic arrangement of poinsettias and Scotch pine boughs. Scarlet red candles in tri - branch candelabra and the gleaming silver tea services with prettily adorned serviettes added to the setting. Pouring tea were Mrs. B. Hackett of St. Columba Presbyterian Church, Mrs. T. Burnett, Mrs. V. Weir, Mrs. S. Fraser, Mrs. George Bennett and Mrs. R. Strachan.

Colorful Christmas decor enhanced the plane, fireplace and other points in the hall with silvery trees bearing sparkling globes, at either end. Each of the quartet tables was adorned with red, green or golden cloth with styrofoam centrepiece bearing a golden angel and tiny Christmas tree.

Taking care of necessary duties in the kitchen were Mrs F. Brooks and Mrs. D. Kane, while making up boxes for the sick was Mrs. E. Pigden.

A nursery was available for the children to enable the mothers to enjoy a cup of tea and was convened by Mrs. R. Mott, Mrs. G. Boyes and Mrs. V. Card.

Publicity for the most successful event was by Mrs. E. Sine who along with Mrs. P. Rowse, Mrs. M. Barker and Mrs. H. Brown convened the ladies' parlor.

Treasurers were Mrs. N. McConnell, Mrs. Chester Adams, Mrs. H. Elvidge, Mrs. G. O'Neill, Mrs. J. Webb, Mrs. H. Gooding, Mrs. G. A. Freeman and Mrs. E. A. Hall, while other members contributed their services.

Engagement Notice

Miss Olivia Long — Mr. David Preston

Mr. and Mrs. Harold Long of Shannonville announce the engagement of their daughter Olivia Alma to David John Preston, son of Mr. and Mrs. J. A. Preston of Belleville. The wedding will take place on December 19, at 4 p.m. in Christ Church, Belleville.

WEDDING

NOBES — MOORE

MARMORA — Rev. John Peters officiated at the recent wedding ceremony when Judith Almina Moore, daughter of Mrs. George Moore of Bonarlaw, and the late Mr. Moore was united in marriage to Garry Ronald Nobes, son of Mrs. Ethel Nobes of Marmora and the late Mr. J. Nobes.

Given in marriage by her mother, the bride wore a white chiffon overlay street length dress featuring a scoop neckline, empire waistline with a long sleeved silver lace coat. Her headdress consisted of Irish bells and roses and she carried a Bible crested with two pink orchids.

Attending the bride as matron of honor was Mrs. William Nobes who wore an A - line crimpaki plum shade dress with bell sleeves. She carried a bouquet of dried star flowers and wheat enhanced with purple ribbon.

John Hewit attended the bridegroom.

A reception was held at the bride's home where her mother received the guests wearing an avocado green wool knit dress with black accessories and a corsage of white carnations. The bridegroom's mother assisted wearing an aqua lace dress with black accessories and a white carnation corsage.

Leaving on a wedding trip to points west, the bride wore an off - white crimplene dress with black accessories and Persian lamb jacket with orchid corsage.

On return Mr. and Mrs. Nobes will reside in Marmora.

An Honorary Task

St. Andrew's Presbyterian Church held its annual tea and bazaar on Wednesday afternoon and one of the focal points of interest was the attractive tea table where co-convener of the event, Mrs. T. Burnett, pours tea while Mrs. H. McKay (centre) awaits with cup in hand. Mrs. Bob Michaud Jr. stands by in preparation to serving the many guests in attendance.

Truck Driver Enjoys Tatting

DEEP RIVER, Ont. CP — A truck driver who lats in his spare time brings hackers out of the woodwork, but Charlie Crooks doesn't let it bother him.

Mr. Crooks, 62, looks like everybody's impression of a burly truck driver, but tatting as a hobby just doesn't seem to fit.

Tatting was popular in the Victorian era, used to make tablecloths and decorate the edges of pillow slips and antimacassars.

Mr. Crooks learned to tat during a 2½-month stay in hospital for a damaged spine, suffered on naval duty.

He continued it as a hobby after his return to duty and subsequent discharge.

He now drives a truck and even tats during coffee breaks at the office, bringing jokes from fellow workers.

One of Mr. Crook's tablecloths, measuring six by eight feet, took him 10 years, or about 7,000 hours, to complete. A bikini-takes about 35 hours, and he makes them to order for $25.

Giving lessons in this craft offers Mr. Crooks another source of income, and he has already received inquiries from several area high schools which might add tatting to their curriculum.

Successful Living

Marriage Now Planned After Hurdling Many Obstacles

By DORIS CLARK

Dear Doris: Due to religious conflicts, my fiance and I decided to be married by a justice of the peace. Previous to this we have been living together for approximately one year and have one tiny baby. Upon my fiance's divorce being finalized (at last!) we wish to be married.

Although it is to be a very small and informal wedding (as the wedding party will only include the parents and witnesses) I wish to make the most of it because I have waited so long for this wedding. We love each other very much and I know it will last.

We would really appreciate your opinion on what the dress should be and if I could carry flowers, etc. — Josie.

Dear Josie: In spite of what many people are doubting thinking about you. I read into your letter a respect for what is right and a strong resolve to have a marriage that will work. You must have taken some bumps together!

A small informal wedding can have a delightful intimacy. Autumn gives you a grand choice of colors — beige or golden tones or aqua, or other pastel shade. Wear a small hat and gloves and carry a small handbag.

Pin on the handbag a single orchid or, gardenia or wear a corsage. Or dispense with the purse and carry a nosegay.

Here's one person who is wishing you a happy day and a happily - ever - after storybook ending.

Dear Doris: I have an idea for a small town newspaper column. My problem is that I have no idea how to sell it.

1. Is it best to submit sample columns to one paper at a time — or can you go to several papers simultaneously?

2. Is it possible to sell one column to several small papers without the services of a syndicate?

3. I have read that it is in the interest of a would - be writer to offer to work for very little in order to become established. Do all papers pay like sauce, rate for the same column? — Ima Dreamer.

Dear Ima:

1. As long as the papers are serving different areas, there's no reason why several should not be approached about the same time.

2. Yes, if you are a super salesman and the subject is interesting. If there are competitive papers on the market, you may have to go out and peddle it yourself. That's the way I got started.

3. Rates are established according to circulation of paper. Make your initial price small.

I'd suggest you discuss a sample of your column with the editor of your own daily. Editors are grand people to talk to — honest! I've never been bitten by one yet.

Ann Landers

A Splendid Tribute To A Wonderful Dad

DEAR ANN LANDERS: A great man died today. He wasn't a world leader or a famous doctor or a war hero or a sports figure or a business tycoon. But he was a great man. He was my father.

He didn't get his picture in the paper for heading up things. I guess you might say he was a person who never cared for credit or honors. He did corny things, like paying his bills on time, go to church on Sunday and hold an office in the PTA. He helped his kids with their homework and drove his wife to the shopping centre to do the grocery buying on Thursday night. He got his kicks hauling his teen-agers and their friends to and from football games. He enjoyed simple things like a picnic in the park, country music, mowing the grass and running with the dog.

Tonight is the first night of my life without him. I don't know what to do with myself so I am writing to you. I am sorry now for the times I didn't show him the proper respect. But I am thankful for many things. I'm thankful because God let me have him for 15 years. And I'm thankful that I was able to let him know how much I loved him. He died with a smile on his face. He knew he was a success as a husband and a father, a brother, a son, and a friend. I wonder how many millionaires can say that? Thanks for listening, Ann. You've been a great help. — HIS DAUGHTER.

ANN LANDERS

DEAR DAUGHTER: I am printing your beautiful letter on Thanksgiving. Thank you for providing my readers with food for thought on a most appropriate day.

* * *

DEAR ANN: A boy I'll call Dan is a nice guy but dull, dull, dull. I had three dates with him and I had to work so hard keeping the conversation going I felt as if I had done a double shift in a hand laundry. What can a girl do with a guy who answers in one-word sentences? — TIRED.

DEAR TIRED: Gary Cooper's conversation consisted of "Yup," and women adored him. Apparently Dan isn't your groove so fix him up with a non-stop talker. The woods are full of 'em.

* * *

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I enjoy playin gcards and am considered a very good player. I usually win. The last few months I haven't been invited to many card games. Several of the girls who used to invite me regularly have excluded me for reasons I can't figure out. I mentioned this to my husband last night and he said it's because I won too often. He suggested I lose now and then. I would feel dishonest if I didn't play my best. Furthermore it wouldn't be any fun. He says I'm wrong, that there's nothing wrong with letting others win once in a while. Is he right? — HORSESHOE HELEN.

DEAR HELEN: He's wrong. I don't believe you are being excluded because you win constantly. People enjoy playing with experts. It improves their game and it's more exciting. Perhaps you are an ungracious winner. No one should play less than his best. It would be dishonest — also boring.

Frosty the Snowman?

Little Hazel Hoelke offers a candy cane to the cotton wool snowman on the Christmas decorations' table at the Christmas bazaar and tea held on Wednesday by the Order of the Royal Purple, Belleville Lodge No. 164 at Elk's Hall.

First Christmas Bazaar Held by Lodge

By SUSAN KORAH
Women's Reporter

A "fish pond" as a special attraction for children under 13 was a feature of the Christmas bazaar and tea held by the Order of the Royal Purple, Belleville Lodge No. 164 at Elk's Hall on Wednesday. Many children enjoyed themselves "fishing" for gifts with fishing rods. The event itself was a landmark in the history of the lodge because it was the first Christmas bazaar they ever held.

Evergreen branches framed the doorway which led into the hall while a Christmas tree decorated with colored balls and topped by the figure of an angel stood on the stage. Each pillar was adorned with a cardboard Santa Claus and tinsel streamers further emphasized the Christmas theme.

A big cotton wool snowman dominated the Christmas decorations table which also held several small snowmen made of styrofoam, fir cones and rings with Christmas motifs, corsages, door wreaths, table centrepieces resembling Yule logs and decorator candles in glass holders were also eye-catching. This table was covered by Mrs. B. Travers and Brenda Sine. The items on the sewing table which was convened by Barbara Haines and Grace Murray included some novel pot holders and a variety of aprons.

Several piggy banks ingeniously created out of bleach bottles were outstanding on the crafts and hobbies table convened also by Mrs. Travers and Mrs. Christine Walt. The convener of the candy table was Elsie Gilbert. The white elephant table and the pickles and preserves table were organized by all the members of the lodge.

The centrepiece on the main tea table consisted of holly leaves and poinsettia in a brass bowl which was flanked by lighted red candles, with rings of poinsettia round each one's base. Two shocking pink roses sprinkled with glitter dust stood in glass holders on each of the smaller tables. The fancy sandwiches and cookies were convened by Mrs. Nina Dolmage.

Tea was poured by Ruth Gordon and Rika Francis, both past honored Royal Ladies of the lodge. Hostesses, honored Royal Lady received guests at the door. The convener of the event was Lynda McLuskie while the tel-convener was Marion Redcliffe. The draw for a hamper of food was won by Ted Stewart of Point Anne.

Another unique feature of the bazaar was the fact that it was held again in the evening from 7 to 9 p.m. for those who were not able to attend it in the afternoon between 2 and 4.

Club Activities

GAMMA MU CHAPTER

The Pledge Ritual was conducted for Mrs. Tony ter Haar, Mrs. Don Perdhean, Mrs. Allan Mott, Mrs. William Luck, Mrs. Robert D'Aoust, Mrs. Jeff Conway and Mrs. Floyd Clapp at the regular meeting of the Gamma Mu Chapter held on Nov. 17, at the home of Mrs. A. Fuller.

Members were reminded to bring a gift for their secret sisters to the next meeting as well as cookies for the Christmas sale. It was announced that the Bake Sale held on October 9 brought in $45.00 which was put toward the purchase of a wheel aid for the child sponsored by the group at O.S.D.

Members voted to support the United Community Services this Christmas instead of only one family, and also to donate $5.00 prize money to the Rotary Music Festival.

Mrs. A. Gray gave a talk on hallucinatory drugs during the coffee hour. She was introduced by co-hostess Mrs. E. Deacon and thanked by hostess Mrs. A. Fulton. Refreshments were served by the hostess and co-hostess.

Panel Discusses Secretary's Proficiency

At the general meeting of the Bay of Quinte Chapter of NSA (Int) held at the Hotel Quinte on November 17, a panel of three members from the chapter presented "The Secretary and Her Future".

The moderator, Miss Linda Whitehead of Mead Johnson Limited presented the theme "CPS — Certified Professional Secretary" outlining the six areas of proficiency tested for "CPS" rating as follows: environmental relationships, business and public policy, the economics of management, financial analysis and the mathematics of business, communication and decision making and office procedures.

The panel, consisting of Mrs. Verona Meades of Centennial Secondary School; Mrs. Cathy Ellis, court reporter and secretary to Judge Anderson; and Mrs. Helen Worrell of the Belleville Chamber of Commerce outlined their duties in their respective positions and pointed out the necessity of secretaries to upgrade and further their education to meet the demands made by the executive employer for a more professional performance.

A discussion period followed and the general consensus was reached that a person who has achieved CPS rating is a known quantity, instead of a risk factor, to a prospective employer, as they have proven themselves by passing comprehensive examinations in analyzing judgment, knowledge and administrative ability in the six key areas of secretarial skill as set out previously.

Gabrielle Watkins conducted the business session and welcomed a number of guests including: Mrs. Eileen Gilbert, of Miron - Wiggers Construction; Mrs. Betty Jeffery of Morton Parker Limited; Mrs. Evelyn McSquham of the Board of Education; Mrs. Cathy Green of Mead - Johnson Limited, Mrs. Marion Hunter and Mrs. Belle Milley of Arthur A. Sills and Son, Miss Donna Walker of Belleville General Hospital, Mrs. Elaine Brooks of Mutual Life Assurance Company and Miss Annis Culleden of Dept. of National Revenue and Elizabeth Jones of Dr. Taylor's office.

Mrs. Iris Downing of the education committee presented a brief outline of plans being made to hold a seminar in April, 1977. Mrs. Downing also won the door prize.

Points for Parents

By MARY BRYSON

Father: "Don't tell Mother, but you stay up late. She'll pretty fussy about bedtime, you know."

Son: "It's fun when Mother goes to her club meeting and I get to stay up and play with you."

Son: "Can't I stay up later tonight?"

Father: "No, you'll be too tired for school tomorrow if you don't get your sleep. We've had a nice playtime and we'll have another tomorrow night."

It underlines a child's regard for authority if one parent countermands or makes light of the rules of the other parent. Agree beforehand about a routine and don't permit the child to play one parent against the other.

A Different Kind of Apple Pie

By MARY MOORE

In a recent paragraph Mrs. C. L. wrote: "I am sending you a recipe for a pie called Sour Cream Apple Pie. I thought your readers would like it because the apples are in season now."

After I made the pie and tasted it warm, I dutifully thought "The readers will love this," but, selfishly, all alone, ate a generous wedge.

Without a picture and without a taste it is uphill work to persuade some of you to try new recipes. But take my word for it, rabbit fans, here is one that you should clip now and serve. Slip the recipe into your Apple Pie File.

SOUR CREAM-APPLE PIE
(Courtesy Mrs. C. L.)

PASTRY:
1 cup unsifted cake and pastry flour
1/3 cup shortening
1 tbsp. water, cold
½ tsp. salt

Combine all filling ingredients and pour into unbaked shell. Bake at 400 deg. Fahr. 12 min., then reduce heat to 350 deg. Fahr. for 15 - 17 min. Meanwhile, with pastry blender cut butter into other Topping ingredients until size of large peas. When pie has baked the 15-17 min. period at 350 deg. Fahr., remove from oven and sprinkle topping ingredients evenly over. Return to oven and bake 10 min. longer at 350 deg. Fahr.

This is super. If possible, serve it slightly warm, although it is wonderful cold too.

FILLING:
2 tbsps. flour
¼ tsp. salt
½ cup sugar
1 egg
1 cup dairy sour cream
1 tsp. vanilla
¼ tsp. nutmeg
2 cups sliced apples

TOPPING:
1-3 cup sugar
1-3 cup flour
1 tsp. cinnamon
¼ cup hard butter

To make Pastry cut butter and shortening into flour and salt with pastry blender until size of peas. Drizzle in water, tossing with fork. Press into ball, roll out on well floured

EASY JOB

Use a cheese slicer to slice refrigerator cookie dough for baking.

Church Union Talks Are Entering Critical Stage This Week

TORONTO (CP) — Twenty-seven years of uneasy negotiations on organic union of Canada's two largest non-Roman Catholic churches—a prospective communion of more than six million persons—enter a decisive stage this week.

Before the eighth meeting of the general commission on church union, opening here Friday, comes the preliminary draft of a proposed Plan of Union of the Anglican Church of Canada and the United Church of Canada. A third denomination and recent participant in the talks is the Christian Church (Disciples of Christ), a minute group in relation to the giants.

The draft plan and accompanying recommendations by four special commissions are termed by leaders of the involved churches the first important step towards union since the Principles of Union were adopted in 1965.

The goal, a new church that would be second in Canada only to the Roman Catholic Church, cannot be reached before 1974. The ultimate sought by many participants, one Christian church, is a mirage on the far horizon, unlikely to be achieved in this century.

Three years in the making, the draft f the proposed plan—participants emphasize "preliminary" and "proposed" for the path of the ecumenical movement is prickly—is the major topic of discussion and study for churchmen, Protestant and no-Protestant, at the six-day meeting which extends to Wednesday, Dec. 2. Reprts by special commissions cover the church in the world, a constitution, doctrine and liturgy.

The draft Plan of Union is the first detailed outline of what union could mean to be put before the memberships of participating churches since conversations began in 1943.

If approved after possible revision by the general commission, the preliminary draft will be published in church publications next February or March for study by church memberships. Based on reaction, a revised draft may be published for further study and comment in the fall of 1971.

The final Plan of Union is expected to be published in April, 1972, for study by all courts of the churches and submitted to the general council of the United Church, the general synod of the Anglican Church and the all-Canada convention of the Disciples.

Figures based on the 1961 census show the United Church with 3,664,000 members and adherents and the Anglican Church with 2,409,000. The Christian Church has about 9,000 members with 53 ministers. Its congregations are concentrated in the Maritimes and in Ontario.

The general commission is composed of 20 clergymen and laymen from each of the major churches and four from the Disciples. Also on hand will be official observers from the Roman Catholic Church, the Orthodox church, the Presbyterian Church in Canada, the Baptists and other Protestant denominations.

There are two executive commissioners, Canon Ralph R. Le-

...tioner of the Anglican Church and Rev. Robert B. Craig of the United Church.

Conversations on union began in 1943 when the general synod of the Anglican Church invited other communions to join with it in exploring the subject of church unity. The United Church responded favorably.

In 1946, a plan for what was termed a mutually-acceptable ministry failed to win general acceptance. Later, a plan for limiting the negtiations to the two communions was rejected and full organic union was accepted as the goal.

In 1958, the general council of the United Church bluntly asked the Anglican Church whether the discussions ought not to be discontinued. A year later, conversations were renewed and these resulted in a League of Prayer for Unity.

In 1965, the Committees of Ten produced the Principles of Union which concerned basic principles but not final expression of doctrine or details of organization and liturgy. This resulted in formation of the general commission on union to prepare concrete and detailed plans for eventual union.

Five major obstacles had to be overcome in producing the preliminary draft of the Plan of Union:

—Mutual acceptance of one another as two churches and of each other's ministries and members as being truly ministers and members f the Christian church.

—Differing concepts of the ministry—the Anglican with its recognition of three orders (bishop, presbyter and deacon) and the United and Disciples with one, that of a minister or presbyter.

—Different concepts of the place of the laity.

—Different concepts of apostolic succession and the validity r regularity of ministries.

—The relation of authority of Scripture and of tradition.

Abstainers' Children Shun Drugs

TORONTO (CP) — If parents cut down on their drinking and use of tranquillizers there would be less drug abuse among their children. Dr. Reginald Smart, research director of the Addiction Research Foundation, told a news conference Wednesday.

He said results of a foundation study show a 50-per-cent reduction in drug use by teen-agers whose parents do not regularly use alcohol, tranquillizers or tobacco.

The study made no specific recommendations but Robert Robinson, education director of the foundation, said there was a need for greater co-operation among school boards, administrators, teachers and parents to discuss drug use with children and to make them aware of the dangers of drug abuse.

Deutsch Gives Opinions

Governments Can't Solve Problems by Economic Manipulations

TORONTO (CP) — John J. Deutsch, former chairman of the Economic Council of Canada, says governments must discard theories that they can solve problems with more, or less, spending and other manipulations of economic levers.

During the last 25 years "the timing and degree of governmental interventions in fiscal and monetary matters have often been wrong or poorly gauged to the circumstances," he said Wednesday.

Dr. Deutsch now is principal of Queen's University and has been associated with governments as an economist in several positions, including a current assignment as special adviser to a study on Maritime union.

He told the Toronto chapter of the Institute of Chartered Life Underwriters that governments have continued to use economic principles developed during the 1930s.

"It was thought that by short-term adjustments in fiscal and monetary policies, that is adjustments in government deficits and surpluses, in rates of taxation, and in interest rates and credit conditions, the economy could be made to operate fully and smoothly.

"It is obvious that the accomplishments have fallen far short of these hopes."

A system must be devised to gather economic information quickly, make calculations, and modern communication techniques—to provide governments with current economic information.

Accord Welcomed By Oil Companies

TORONTO (CP) — Major Canadian oil companies expressed enthusiasm Wednesday at the United States' agreement to seek a long-term common oil policy with Canada that would result in unimpeded exports to the U.S. in the future.

The U.S. has already agreed to accept all crude oil exports Canada can supply in 1971.

The agreement, worked out in Washington talks two weeks ago, was announced at the close of a U.S.-Canada ministerial conference in Ottawa Tuesday.

"For the Canadian oil industry, this is optimistic news both for the coming year and in terms of U.S. intentions over a longer period," said a statement from Imperial Oil Ltd., of Toronto, Canada's largest oil company.

Derek F. Mitchell, president of BP Oil Ltd., Montreal, said the agreement is "a completely logical and realistic step in view of the growing shortages of oil in the United States."

"This is great news for Canada and should remove much of the uncertainty which has troubled the Canadian oil industry over recent years," he added.

"It won't make any differences to us because we won't be exporting products to the United States," said a spokesman for Superior Petroleum Corp. Ltd., of London, Ont.

"But it certainly protects the Canadian market as it's a good move in that way," he added.

A spokesman for Shell Canada Ltd., of Toronto, also expressed enthusiasm.

Consumer Protection Parley Will Be Held

TORONTO (CP) — Methods of controlling the operation of charter aircraft flights and the possible use of compensation funds instead of bonding will be among major items discussed when provincial ministers responsible for consumer protection meet here today.

Bert Lawrence, Ontario's minister of financial and commercial affairs, told a news conference Wednesday that Ontario also will offer other ministers specific proposals for co-ordinated action on cut-off and disclaimer clauses in sales contracts, legislation affecting warranties and guarantees and credit reporting.

He said there is need for co-ordinated action on legislation to protect the public against charter-flight operators who sell seats on a plane and then abscond with the receipts.

Mr. Lawrence said he will be interested in other ministers' comments on the continuing viability of bonding of many types of businesses as a protection for the public.

He indicated that he favors compensation funds established within a segment of the business community, as already has been done by the legal and financial profession.

Mr. Lawrence said the need for co-ordinated consumer-protection laws at all government levels is urgent because "fads in frauds travel quickly throughout North America without regard to political jurisdictions."

Pay Increased

CHATHAM (CP) — Kent County's 488 secondary school teachers will get an average 8.3-per-cent increase in salary and fringe benefits under a contract announced jointly Wednesday by School board trustees and teacher representatives.

The new contract will require the board to contribute 86 2-3 per cent to teachers' dental and medical plans compared to only 53 per cent under the old agreement.

WIN SCHOLARSHIPS

REGINA (CP) — A total of 365 Saskatchewan students who completed Grade 12 this year have been awarded provincial government scholarships, says Education Minister J. G. Messer. Value of the scholarships is $220,000.

Order Bill Draws Fire

OTTAWA (CP) — The government's public order bill was the gauntlet of opposition attacks again Wednesday as New Democrats and Creditistes tried to turn the bill back to committee of the whole for more detailed study.

The Liberals won 115 to 89 against an NDP motion for reconsideration of a clause making retroactive membership in the Front de Libération du Québec a crime.

A Creditiste motion to reconsider the bill's definition of "unlawful association" was turned down 199 to 20, with Liberals and Conservatives combining against the NDP and Creditistes. David MacDonald (PC—Egmont) and Roch LaSalle (PC—Joliette) supported the amendment.

The bill, introduced Nov. 2, scored into third and final reading stage Monday after about two weeks of clause-by-clause study.

Debate goes on today with Creditiste promises of more attempts to send the bill back to committee. Wednesday, urging reconsideration of the bill's definition of "unlawful association," Charles-Arthur Gauthier (Creditiste-Roberval) said the definition was unclear.

The definition, as amended in committee, declares illegal the Front de Libération du Québec or any group that advocates force or crime to win "governmental changes within Canada with respect to the province of Québec or its relationship to Canada. . . ."

The bill should apply to all provinces, Mr. Gauthier said.

Justice Minister John Turner said the definition clearly applies to FLQ members or supporters anywhere in Canada. But it did apply to the province only of the Québec government or Québec's relation to Canada, not to the governments of other provinces.

NDP Leader T. C. Douglas said the party regrets the motion for reconsideration of the term "advocate" violent overthrow.

A more specific term, such as "incite," would be preferable.

David MacDonald said the vagueness of the definition was "clearly reprehensible."

Attacking the NDP motion for review of the retroactive clause, Ron Whicher (L—Bruce) scolded the opposition for "this nonsense of bringing in amendments at every opportunity."

"Members of the FLQ aren't a bunch of finishing-school kids, you know," Mr. Whicher said.

Stanfield Finds Mail Confusing

OTTAWA (CP) — What is a poor politician to do?

Opposition Leader Robert Stanfield has said the public clobbered him by mail for even his slightest reservation about the government's Oct. 16 proclamation of the War Measures Act.

But now, he says, he is getting some letters condemning him for supporting the principle of the public order bill, successor to war measures, and for allegedly not standing up for civil liberties.

His recent mail and that of many other MPs indicates a questioning of the use of the War Measures Act that was completely absent in the immediate wake of the assassination of Quebec Labor Minister Pierre Laporte by the Front de Libération du Québec.

This questioning does not appear widespread, but it is growing.

Government officials say some of it is being prompted by testimony at the Montreal coroner's inquest into Mr. Laporte's death, which tends to portray a catch-as-catch-can FLQ operation compounded by police mistakes.

They add that this has made it much more difficult for the government to maintain public credibility in its declaration that there was a state of "apprehended insurrection" in Quebec.

Calgary Thinks Eastern Weather Bordering on Tropical Climate

TORONTO (CP) — Calgary Stampeders, who adjourned a workout at Calgary's McMahon Stadium earlier in the day, arrived here Wednesday afternoon and continued their preparation for Saturday's Grey Cup football classic with Montreal Alouettes.

The Stamps were snowed out of their own park after only 20 minutes.

"That's why we have to go through more than a honking drill here now," said Stampeder coach Jim Duncan. "This has to be a full practice . . . we don't have much time."

The Stampeders and Alouettes arrived at Toronto's International Airport just minutes apart, but Montreal was able to hold a full-scale session at the Autostade before leaving home.

The Calgary club was still hurting from its deep-freeze with over Saskatchewan Roughriders Sunday in the deciding game of the Western Football Conference final in Regina.

"Several of the fellows were chilled Sunday and they aren't 100 per cent," said Calgary trainer Larry Chace. "We just have to hope that none of them get the flu while they're in a weakened condition.

"The only two fellows still seriously bothered because of the frost are Larry Robinson and John Helton." It was Robinson's last-second field goal that gave the Stampeders a 15-14 clifthanger over the Riders.

The Stampeders worked out at Varsity Stadium near their mid-town hotel in near-freezing temperatures, but the weather was practically tropical compared with what they had left in Calgary.

"When I woke up at home this morning I looked out the window and figured there was no way we could fly out," said head coach Jim Duncan. "The temperature was a shade or two above and there was a real blizzard going on."

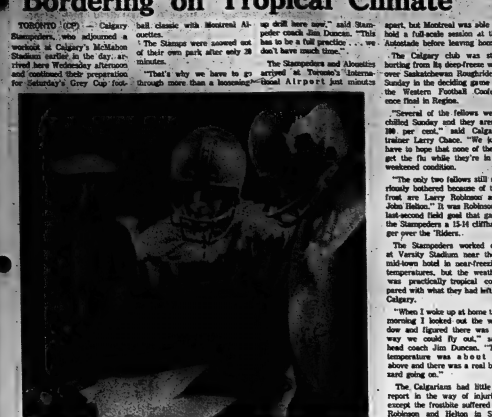
The Calgarians had little to report in the way of injuries, except the frostbite suffered by Robinson and Helton in Sunday's game. Halfback Dave Cranmer said the Stampeders are in much better shape than they were two years ago when they dropped a 24-21 game to Ottawa Rough Riders in the national final.

"I know I am," said the Sarnia, Ont., native. "I didn't get into that game in 1966. This time I have no ailments and I can't wait for the game to start."

Cranmer missed the latter part of the 1968 season with a leg injury and the last half of last season with a lung injury, but has come back this year to become an important cog in the Calgary offence.

Rookie coach Sam Etcheverry, meanwhile, checked his Montreal club into a motel near the airport. The motel hung out a sign proclaiming: Bonne Chance Alouettes.

Etcheverry is hoping to turn the tables against the West for depriving him of the Grey Cup in three successive years when he quarterbacked the Als. Edmonton-Eskimos were the winners in 1954-55-56.



But Etcheverry feels crowd support at CNE Stadium Saturday afternoon will be a deciding factor in the outcome of the game.

"How will the fans be?" he asked. "I remember in 1954 and 1956 the fans were for Edmonton.

"It would be nice to have Montreal fans on hand, but fan support means a lot to a team."

The Als came through their two-game, total-point Eastern Conference final with Hamilton Tiger-Cats nursing only the usual minor ailments that they normally faced through the year, with the exception of offensive guard Barry Randall, ut with a leg injury.

Etcheverry admits the Als have been fortunate this season as far as injuries are concerned although they'll be without the services of Steve Booms, all-star defensive end.

Study Game Plan

Edmonton's Sport Visions Fade as Omniplex Vetoed

EDMONTON (CP) — Visions of huge conventions, the National Hockey League and the Grey Cup coming to the city went down the drain Wednesday night as taxpayers rejected a $25.5 million bylaw for construction of a covered sport, trade and convention centre.

Turnout out in large numbers in the wake of a snowstorm and in temperatures below zero, ratepayers turned thumbs down on the centre, said by its boosters to be without equal in the world.

The final count Wednesday night was 36,069 or 53.97 per cent against the bylaw and 22,463 or 46.03 per cent in favor.

A simple majority was needed to pass the bylaw as more than half of the approximately 132,000 eligible voters turned out.

The centre, called Omniplex, had its opponents who said that the money could be better spent on housing, libraries or other projects which rated a higher priority.

The building would have boasted a covered football field, a hockey rink, track and field facilities, a convention floor, exhibition space and offices.

Interim project manager A. P. Mirror said the only existing and somewhat similar concept is the Astrodome in Houston, which does not trade shows or conventions, hockey or ice shows.

The covered football stadium would have held more than 40,000 spectators while the hockey rink's capacity would have been more than 19,000.

The rejection was expected to kill Edmonton's chances of obtaining an NHL franchise. William Hunter, owner of Edmonton Oil Kings of the Western Canada Hockey League, submitted an application for an NHL franchise last week.

Six Ways, Then Flip To Break Football Tie

TORONTO (CP) — The chances of it happening are extremely remote, but the possibility of deciding how multiple ties in the Eastern Football Conference are broken in the future could be established with the toss of a coin.

The flip of a coin was the seventh alternative in a plan accepted by the EFC executive at its annual pre-Grey Cup meeting Wednesday.

The seven-part formula, devised by Greg Fulton, secretary-treasurer of the Canadian Football League, calls for:

—The team with the greatest number of wins in their mutual meetings will be placed first. If they are still tied .....

—The team with the best net aggregate of points against the other teams among the ties. If they are still tied .....

—The team that has won the most games against all their EFC clubs. If they are still tied .....

—The team with the best aggregate points against all EFC clubs. If they are still tied .....

—The team with the most wins against all clubs, including interlocking games against the Western Conference teams. If they are still tied .....

—The team with the best aggregate points total against all CFL teams. If they are still tied .....

—Toss a coin.

The formula to break multiple ties took up most of the executive meeting.

The discussion was sparked by the likelihood of a multiple tie for first place that existed in the EFC late in the schedule when Montreal Alouettes, Hamilton Tiger-Cats and Toronto Argonauts were locked in first place with just two games to play.

The meeting also discussed applications for franchises in the EFC from London, Oct., and Halifax. There was nothing to report on this phase of the meeting, according to Ralph Sazio, Teats' general manager and president of the EFC.

Playoff Entry

Second Place Important in NFL

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Realignment has made second place an important spot for National Football League teams this year and three clubs which would like to finish second and one that wouldn't were playing important games today.

Under the realignment plan adopted by the NFL this season, champions in each of six pro divisions—three in the National Conference and three in the American Conference—qualify for the playoffs along with the second-place team with the best record from each conference.

Even though Green Bay Packers and Dallas Cowboys trail in their respective NFC Eastern and Central Division races, second place could be worth a playoff spot and that's what both teams have in mind right now.

The Packers and Cowboys will clash in the Cotton Bowl at Dallas as part of a United States Thanksgiving Day pro doubleheader. In the other half, Detroit Lions, one game ahead of Green Bay in the race for second place in the Central Division, play host to Oakland Raiders. The Raiders, leaders in the AFC Western Division, shun any talk of second place. They want to finish on top.

The Cowboys, Packers and Lions would like that too, but the numbers don't favor them.

Dallas is tied with New York Giants at 6-4 in the NFC's Eastern Division, 1½ games back of first-place St. Louis Cardinals with only four to play.

Green Bay is 5-5 a full game back of second-place Detroit in the Central Division. The Lions at 6-4, are three behind Minnesota Vikings, which has all but clinched that title.

Oakland holds a one-game edge over Kansas City Chiefs in the AFC West and that, of course, is how they'd like to keep it.

The Raiders will have to cope with a hot band against Detroit. The Lions are expected to start Greg Landry at quarterback after his three-touchdown performance a week ago.

And the Lions will be facing the healthy and kicking toe in pro football in 43-year-old George Blanda, the kicker-quarterback, whose last-minute heroics are becoming routine.

Dallas gets a chance to shake "Ice Green Bay jinx. The Cowboys have never beaten Green Bay in championship play, losing four regular-season and two NFL title contests to the Packers.

Ready For Todays Opener

BCI senior basketball players Raimo Heyduck and John Wilson battle for a jump ball in the Collegians' last practice session before their Bay of Quinte opener today. The "AA" division has added Nicholson and Albert College to make up a ten team league, operating in two divisions. The Bay of Quinte champions will be chosen in a tournament to be held after the regular 13-game season.

High School Basketball Under Way

The two - division format that worked so successfully last season will be carried on again when high school basketball gets under way tonight.

The league has been expanded from eight to ten teams with the addition of Nicholson and Albert College, who formerly competed in the "A" division. Points scored against the two new teams will count in the league standings, but they will not be eligible for the championship tournament.

Returning to the eastern division are teams from Picton, Napanee, Moira and BCI. In the western section will be Quinte, Centre Hastings, Trenton and Centennial.

Each team will play a 13 game schedule including two games against each of its divisional opponents.

In the senior division defending champion BCI has lost all of their first string players from last year and should face a strong challenge from the Moira Trojans.

In the other section Quinte's Bay of Quinte COSSA junior team has graduated six players to the senior squad and should form the nucleus of the club that will in all likelihood battle Centennial and Picton for top spot.

Junior powerhouses in the respective division will probably be BCI and Centennial, both of whom had outstanding midget squads last season. Last year's midget Collegians were the only district team to win a COSSA championship.

COSSA representatives will be determined by a weekend tournament at the close of the regular season, with the first place team in one section meeting the runners - up from the other. The two winners then meet for the Bay of Quinte title.

Habs Defeated 5-3

Dennis' Turn to Spark Black Hawks

By NICK FERRIS
Canadian Press Staff Writer

When Dennis Hull jumped directly to Chicago Black Hawks in 1964 from junior ranks, there was some talk around the National Hockey League that the only reason was big brother Bobby.

The Golden Jet had just racked up 43 goals and 44 assists in the 1963-64 season, the fifth consecutive year in which he had scored more than 30 goals for the Hawks.

Some people suspected Dennis of finding a ride on the tail of his brother's sweater.

But since leaving St. Catharines Black Hawks of the Ontario Hockey Association Junior A series, Dennis has thrown water on the theory by becoming one of the Hawks' stanchest performers.

Last season, the 26-year-old left winger scored 17 goals and assisted on 25 others for 42 points, 12 less than his best year ever.

He fired his seventh goal of this campaign Wednesday night and sparked the Hawks to a 5-3 win over Montreal Canadiens.

In other games Wednesday, Los Angeles Kings dumped California Golden Seals 3-1, Buffalo Sabres and Pittsburgh Penguins p'layed to a 4-4 tie and Philadelphia Flyers upset New York Rangers 3-1.

At Chicago, the Point Anne, Ont., brothers accounted for five points as the Hawks moved four points ahead of the idle St. Louis Blues in the West Division standings.

Dennis added one assist to his goal while Bobby tallied his 12th goal and two assists, moving up to third in NHL scoring with 27 points, eight back of Bobby Orr of Boston Bruins who leads with 35 points.

The Hawks took the lead on the younger Hull's first-period goal and never looked back despite being outshot 32-28 by the Habs, who remained in third spot on the East Division standings with 23 points, three less than the Rangers and four behind Boston.

At Pittsburgh, left winger Don Marshall, sparked a three-goal Buffalo second period, scoring two goals as the Sabres pitched up their third tie of their maiden NHL year. The ties plus four wins moved the Sabres into a last-place deadlock with Toronto Maple Leafs in the East Division, each with 11 points.

Rookie Bob Kelly celebrated his 20th birthday at Philadelphia by scoring the winning goal early in the second period against the Rangers. The win snapped a string of seven ties between the two clubs and New York's four-game winning streak.

At Oakland, Mike Byers whipped in two goals as the Kings broke a string of five successive losses. The loss was the Seals' fifth in a row.

Clear the Track Shack Is Back

EDDIE SHACK

BUFFALO (AP) — Buffalo Sabres of the National Hockey League acquired veteran wingers Dick Duff and Eddie Shack from Los Angeles Kings Wednesday.

Both Duff, 34, and Shack, 33, played for Buffalo general manager-coach Punch Imlach when Imlach held the same jobs with Toronto Maple Leafs.

Imlach said he obtained the two from the Kings in exchange for a player to be named later and "future considerations."

Asked what the considerations might be, Imlach declined comment.

"We won't give them a dirt' choice or one of our youngest players," he said of the trade portion of the deal.

"Duff should be at our practice in Buffalo Friday . . . and he's happy over the prospect of joining us," Imlach said.

As for Shack, with whom the coach had a few disputes in Toronto, Imlach commented:

"I haven't been able to contact him. . . . I'll know he's here when I see him, and knowing him as I do, he could be my Christmas present."

Shack played on all four Stanley Cup teams Imlach coached in Toronto and Duff was on two of them.

This season, Shack has had two goals and two assists in 11 games. Duff has had one goal in seven outings.

The Big A and Big O Streaking to Record

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

The Big A and Big O are earning their letters with billwaukee . . . and spelling success for the young Bucks.

Lew Alcindor and Oscar Robertson, a perfect parlay of scoring power and precision ballhandling, helped Milwaukee win its 16th game in a row Wednesday night with a 113-87 National Basketball Association conquest of Detroit Pistons.

The Bucks' streak puts them two games shy of the NBA record held by the New York Knicks whom they meet in a home-and-home series Friday and Saturday.

Philadelphia 76ers beat Buffalo Braves 90-81 in the first game of a double-header in Boston and Boston Celtics took the nightcap, beating Portland Trail Blazers 122-115 Wednesday night.

Elsewhere in the NBA, New York turned back Atlanta Hawks 114-111; San Diego Rockets crushed Cincinnati Royals 138-120 and San Francisco Warriors bounced Cleveland Cavaliers 108-96.

Alcindor, the NBA's Super Soph, scored 31 points and veteran smoothie Robertson, in his first year with Milwaukee, scored 18 and propelled the Bucks with his backcourt play.

Otto Moore scored 17 points for Detroit, which lost its eighth game in the last 10 after a spectacular 12-1 start.

Billy Cunningham scored 27 points and Hal Greer fired in 26 as Philadelphia wasted a 17-point lead, then pulled away in the final minutes of their opener at Boston Garden.

JoJo White scored 14 of his 23 points in the fourth period to break open the nightcap for Boston.

League Leaders

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Bobby Hull took advantage of Chicago Black Hawks 5-3 romp over Montreal Canadiens Wednesday night to move into third place in the National Hockey League individual scoring race.

Hull had three points on one goal and two assists to bring his points total to 27. He trails Boston Bruins' Ken Hodge by one and Phil Esposito of Boston by eight.

Politicians in Sport

Trudeau Has Easier Job Than George Springate

TORONTO (CP) — For a politician hoping to set a record on Grey Cup day, it helps to start at the top.

All Prime Minister Trudeau has to achieve Saturday is a modest 29 yards on his ceremonial kickoff. That would bribak his own record of 28 set in Montreal last year.

For George Springate, lifesaval member of the Quebec national assembly for Montreal Ste. Anne, it will be a little tougher.

To set his name into the record book, Montreal Alouettes' 32-year-old rookie place-kicker will have to:

—Kick four field goals.

—Convert eight touchdowns.

—Boot nine singles.

—Kick for a total of 12 points.

While parliamentarians have accumulated quite a of playing political football for years, their sporting record has not been impressive. Even Mr. Trudeau's claim to fame is based on somewhat narrow grounds.

The all-comers mark for ceremonial Grey Cup kicks is 42 yards, set by the late Viscount Alexander in a nonpolitical role as Canada's Governor-General.

John Diefenbaker put the kibosh into politics with a 15-yarder in 1962 and Lester Pearson, some 40 years past his prime as a college footballer, improved on the performance only marginally in the following five years.

The first Trudeau effort in 1968 was a vicious line drive that was blocked by a restraining line of photographers some 10 yards downfield. The cameramen withdrew to a discreet distance the following year to permit the prime minister's 28-yard effort.

Since Springate is the first legislator to get into a Grey Cup final on a full-time basis, he will have to compete for his records in the open division.

If he can kick four field goals against Calgary Stampeders he will wipe out the previous mark of three set by George Fraser of Ottawa Rough Riders in the 1941 finals against Winnipeg Blue Bombers. The resulting 12 points would exceed the record 11 kicked by Fraser in the same game.

The Grey Cup convert record of seven was set by Pep Leadlay of Queen's University away back in 1873 and University of Toronto punter Hughi Gall set the mark for singles even earlier, kicking eight in 1909.

Expos Seek Restrictive Signing

MONTREAL (CP) — Montreal Expos intend to propose an amendment to a professional baseball rule that will have the effect of restricting the signing of Canadian high school players to professional contracts, the National League team announced Wednesday.

The amendment will be proposed next week at baseball meetings in Los Angeles.

It states that no student in a Canadian high school shall be signed by a major league team to a club in the National Association until:

He has completed Grade 11 of his senior high school curriculum; or has reached his 17th birthday; or has dropped out of school and continued to remain out for at least one full year.

The amendment adds that any signing under the first two conditions will not obligate a player to report for training until termination of a school year.

John McHale, Expos' president, said:

"We have found it difficult to write a Canadian high school rule that will correspond to the U.S. rule because of the different high school programs in the various provinces of Canada.

Bruins Call Up Ivan Boldirev

BOSTON (AP)—Boston Bruins called up centre Ivan Boldirev from their Oklahoma City farm club Wednesday night in case the injured Fred Stanfield is unable to play in tonight's National Hockey League game here against Chicago Black Hawks. Stanfield suffered a muscle spasm in his back late in the second period of Tuesday night's 5-1 tie at St. Louis.

Bonavena Talks Tough

NEW YORK (AP) — "I'm going to punish him for 15 rounds and hold him up so that I can punish him some more."

That was the warning sounded by Argentina's Oscar Bonavena upon arrival in New York Wednesday for his Dec. 7 bout at Madison Square Garden against Muhammad Ali.

Speaking through an interpreter, the Argentina heavyweight, who floored champion Joe Frazier twice in a fight, told a press conference that he was gunning for Ali, also known as Cassius Clay.

Suicidal But Fast

CP reporter Iain MacLeod says bicycling to work through London traffic is slightly suicidical, but it's fast if you can ignore the rude comments of the taxi drivers and blaring horns as you zip between the lines of cars stalled in traffic jams. (CP Photo)

Ottawa Works on Plan to Make Easy Retirement of Farmers on Poor Land

OTTAWA (CP) — The federal government is working on a program that will allow some farmers on marginal or submarginal land to retire easily, Agriculture Minister H. A. Olson said Wednesday.

Mr. Olson, in an interview during the second Canadian agricultural congress, said the program is at an "advanced stage" and would produce "a different kind of arrangement than the usual factors that go into selling and retirement."

That he said because the program involves large, long-term financial commitments, "I am sure my cabinet colleagues are concerned about the totality of the long-term commitment."

He said when any program arrives at that point, "it takes a great deal of time," but declined to elaborate.

The congress was called by Mr. Olson to discuss proposals presented by the federal committee on the development of agriculture during the next 10 years.

The interests of more than 500 delegates are focused on the committee's report released in May.

In discussing changes for older farmers, the report said there are many for whom mobility to other locations and occupations is undesirable. It may be quite inefficient to provide retraining and moving expenses and incur all the social and personal problems involved for a few years of higher wage employment.

In his opening address, Mr. Olson said governments are moving toward control and production regulations for agricultural products.

He said such controls are being imposed at provincial levels in an uncoordinated way and federal controls may have to be imposed to tell farmers what they can grow and what they can sell.

He said the three-day congress, which ends Friday, and the two-day outlook conference which preceded it were valuable.

"If an outlook conference has no value then the farmers must be wrong in asking the government to attempt to bring together all of the experts to at least take an objective look at what production prospects and market patterns might be."

He appeared to be answering criticism of the results of the outlook conference and of the aims of the congress.

Congress delegates took part in commodity discussions Wednesday afternoon.

Major farm organizations generally agreed on the aims of the report's grains proposals but there was considerable discussion about the specific proposals and details of the program outlined in the report.

But even as the congress started, Roy Atkinson of Saskatoon, National Farmers Union president, said the exercise was useless because the federal government had already decided what the future of the industry would be.

He said the policy discussions would produce "little more than rhetoric" because the government had already made up its mind.

In a wide-ranging attack on the committee's goals, he said the NFU could only regard the report as a "hostile document."

The policy report was criticized by several groups for its apparent cold economic approach taks to the future of Canadian farmers.

Mr. Olson said he felt the committee had considered both economic factors and the social aspect.

"... I guess it is a matter of opinion, but I disagree that it is cold, economic document."

On national controls to restrict production and sales, views ranged from outright approval to unequivocal rejection.

And, the Canadian Council on Rural Development said in a brief the policy proposals have had little consideration by the people they will affect—the farmers.

The import of the recommendations in the report—there are 122 of them, has filtered through to only a minority of Canada's farmers and less than 20 per cent had heard of it, the council said.

Attempted Escape Charged

WALKERTON, Ont. (CP) — Three young men were charged Wednesday following a disturbance in Bruce County jail Monday night and will appear in provincial court here Nov. 30.

Theo. nen, Mario Deliciano, 18, of Leamington; Samuel Edward Smith, 18, and James Arthur Dawson, 18, both of Toronto, were charged with wilful damage, assaulting a peace officer and attempting to escape prison.

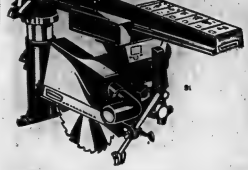
In the disturbance, jail guard Robert Small was struck on the back of the head with a putty knife. Police said three prisoners seeking to escape the jail were trapped in a basement work area.

Few Prisoners Abuse Leave

TORONTO (CP) — Fewer than two per cent of 1,393 men and women permitted to leave provincial reforms institutions under a temporary absence program have had the privilege revoked because of bad conduct.

Allan Grossman, minister of correctional services, said in a statement Wednesday that services in the community to help both those out on temporary absence and on parole are to be expanded.

He also announced that volunteer work in reform institutions, similar to a program now operating at the Vanier Centre for Women, will be permitted.



The temporary absence program, started 14 months ago, allows absences from correctional institutions of one to 15 days for humanitarian or rehabilitative reasons, and absences during the day for training or work in the community.

In 14 months 119 persons have worked by day and returned to an institution at night, 60 took vocational training, and 59 attended classes in high schools, community colleges or universities.

China Using Mysterious Chemical to Increase Rice Yields

HONG KONG (Reuter) — China is using a mysterious new chemical named 702 to increase food harvests and fill the rice-bowls of its 700 million citizens.

It may turn out to be China's answer to a miracle rice strain developed in the Philippines and increasingly being used in Asia to bridge the gap between food output and population growth, but Peking has submitted too little information on the 702 to enable foreign experts to analyse it.

Canton radio reports that a large-scale campaign has been under way since early this year in Kwang Tung province to popularize the "new agricultural chemical 702," which was developed in Chinese research laboratories during the 1966-69 Cultural Revolution.

Describing the chemical, the radio said that according to investigation carried out in 1,000 early-rice experimental districts, 702 when applied to rice

Canada Advised to Keep Gulf of St. Lawrence Free of Ice.

OTTAWA (CP) — Canada should consider keeping the Gulf of St. Lawrence free of ice year-round, with all the resulting effects on agriculture, fisheries and undersea mineral exploration and exploitation.

This is among many suggestions put forward by the Science Council of Canada in a report Wednesday that calls for a major Canadian effort, strongly backed by government, to achieve world leadership in knowledge and expertise about the marine environment.

The ice-free gulf is proposed as the world's first serious test of the possibilities of deliberate climate control.

The council says the preparatory studies alone would contribute new knowledge that would contribute greatly to understanding ice formation, ice flow, weather and climate. Shipping and offshore oil exploration would benefit.

ground nuts, cotton, flowers, fruits and vegetables could also be increased with 702, the radio said.

Observers believe 702 is some sort of fertilizer derived from a chemical first developed in the West. This view is based on reference in the Canton radio broadcast to "experiences of "bourgeois" experiments with 702.

Farmers in one commune used 702 on rice and increased the yield by 23 per cent, the radio said.

Chinese efforts to produce chemical fertilizers are coupled with research into new high-yield rice strains.

Supplies of the miracle rice strain IR-8 are believed to have been imported by China. It was developed at the International Rice Research Institute in the Philippines which was set up in 1960 by the Rockefeller and Ford Foundations of the United States.

Four Die In Blaze

TOTTENHAM, Ont. (CP) — Two adults and two children died early Wednesday when a farmhouse burned to the ground near this village about 25 miles south of Barrie.

Four others escaped from the second storey by making a rope of bedsheet.

Police said Lorna Hale, 30, her son Trevor Hale, 8, her four-year-old grandson Christopher Hale, and a boarder, Kenneth Taverner, 45, died in the fire.

Four members of the family —Valerie, 22, Sheila, 15, Ross, 14, and three-year-old Gerald Martinez, a nephew from Bolton —escaped the flames.

Valerie and Sheila Hale were treated for minor injuries at hospital and released.

Firemen said the house was heated by an oil-space heater and a wood and coal stove. The cause of the fire was not known.

Farm Groups Criticize Federal Policy Report

OTTAWA (CP) — The federal policy report on agriculture took it on the chin from a number of farm representatives and organizations Wednesday for the cold economic approach they say it lays down for the future of Canadian farmers.

Briefs and reports presented at the Canadian agriculture congress indicated widespread disenchantment with the lack of social alternatives considered in preparation of the report.

The report, commissioned in 1967 and presented last May, stresses less government involvement in agriculture and recommends several proposals to make the industry more self-sufficient.

The Canadian Federation of Agriculture led the assault.

"Productivity, efficiency and competitiveness are only desirable if they assist in the achievement of human and social objectives," the federation said in a brief.

Such goals are forced into a subsidiary position by the report's concentration on international competitive efficiency and the elimination of subsidization in agriculture.

The federation recommended farming remain an industry based on "family controlled and operated enterprises."

The wheat pools of Western Canada disagreed with the philosophy of the report which defines the role of government as simply to produce a "favorable economic climate for farmers and agri-business."

Such a philosophy puts individual farmers in direct competition with the treasuries of such countries as the United States, the United Kingdom and members of the European Economic Council who assist their agriculture industry more heavily.

The Consumers Association of Canada said the study group apparently considered that no viable alternatives existed to the present trend away from farms.

And the Canadian Council on Rural Development, a federal advisory group concerned with rural development, said:

"Economic criteria alone represent an inadequate judgemental base for policy making on such a socially sensitive area as rural readjustment."

The National Farmers Union bluntly said the policy report had "demoralized and depressed Canadian farmers" by a "deliberate breakdown of the traditional management role of the individual farmer."

The union flatly rejected the report's view that the social and economic problems facing farmers could be solved simply by shifting a large portion of the rural population to urban areas.

Probe Demanded

TORONTO (CP) — A Liberal member of the legislature has demanded a royal commission investigation of speculative profits allegedly made as the result of land purchases by the Ontario government in the last five years.

In an interview, Donald Deacon, member for York Centre, said Wednesday he had been told an investment company made a profit of $340,000 on 70 acres of land sold to the government Area 3.

Earlier, John Wilkes, director of [illegible] of highways' service branch, announced that the government had paid Gaza Investments Ltd. $1,228,500 for 70.3 acres of farmland along the proposed route of Highway 407, designed to bypass Toronto some miles north of the existing limits of Metropolitan Toronto. This was $340,500 more than Gaza Investments, had paid a farmer for the property seven months earlier.

Unconfirmed reports in real estate circles said Gaza had put up only $75,000 cash for the land and paid off a $900,000 mortgage the day it sold the land to the government.

A LOT OF FOLKS ARE KIDDING . . .

. . . when they tell their Realtor that they can only afford $120 a month for a home of their own.

We are quite aware of the fact that a few people really need help and welfare and we certainly support them who genuinely do.

But . . . we also know that most people who give us that story are paying $180 or more a month in time payment charges for things they shouldn't have bought in the first place.

If you can afford $120 a month for a home of your own plus $150 repayment of a loan for some luxury then you can really afford $220 a month on a home of your own and $50 a month for things that used to be affordable only after people owned their own home.

Let's face it. It has never been anyone's government-supported or God-given right to own a home of their own, whether that concerned igloos, wigwams, straw huts or bungalows. People everywhere have had to save and sacrifice for it, and there is absolutely nothing wrong with working for REAL things. It's just a matter of putting first things first, like building a REAL Estate . . . See Fraser & O'Neil today.

STOP KILLING YOURSELF

By Peter J. Steincrohn, M.D., F.A.C.P.
Author of "The Doctor Looks At Life"

Smoking May Not Be Bad for Babe

Dear Dr. Steincrohn: My husband is a smoke-stack. I deserve the same label. He puts away almost three packs of unfiltered cigarettes a day. I smoke at least two packs of the filtered variety. He is 28 and I am 23 — and pregnant. You must have guessed my question. Will smoking harm our baby? We're both willing to quit if you say so. Mrs. D.

Comment: I wish I could unequivocally give you a reason to stop smoking. No connection with your pregnancy. But the answer is that there is no specific evidence that smoking harms the infant. Studies have shown that there is a tendency for smoking mothers to have smaller babies. Also, there are indications that there is a greater likelihood of prematurity. But as I said, nothing definite.

As far as we know, the fact that the father smokes seems to have no deleterious effect on the fetus. Nevertheless, we do know that smoking doesn't improve health, either.

You say, Mrs. D., that both you and your husband are willing to quit if I say so. Well, I say so. Especially at your age, when you can prevent much complications as bronchitis, emphysema, lung cancer and many more minor discomfort's commonly associated with tobacco smoking.

After all, you have yourselves to think about. Consider forgetting about your children for a moment, you'll want to be around long enough to enjoy your grandchildren, and 30 or 35 more years of smoking will lower those odds.

You say you are willing to quit. Many are. The question is: have you the "will" in addition to the "willingness"?

• • •

Dear Dr. Steincrohn: My 16 - year - old son is extremely allergic to bee stings. A few months ago he would have died if we hadn't got ten bees to the hospital emergency room in time. He's been told to stay away from bees. Not so easy, isn't there more that can be done? — Mrs. F.

Comment: In your excitement at the time, chances are you did not hear your doctor's advice that your son has an allergist for further treatment. Most doctors realize that allergy to bee stings is a serious problem.

Better have him consult with an allergist. Some doctors advise patients this year not to carry an emergency kit for first aid treatment in the event of a bee sting. Meanwhile, they will probably suggest that he undergo a series of desensitization treatments to minimize the effects of a sting in the future.

People who have had an experience like your son's and do nothing about it gamble with every bee that comes around — just hoping they won't get stung. It's a big gamble.

• • •

For Mrs. J.: If your son is a mouthbreather, it's time for discovering the reason. In some cases, enlarged adenoids may be the culprit. Removal often helps. In older others, actual nasal obstruction is breather's root cause. For example, enlarged turbinates due to allergy, or deviated nasal septum may block the air from getting through.

• • •

For Mrs. V.: Dermographism is an exaggerated response to pressure on the skin. Scratch it and a long, raised areas form. Sometimes pressure from girdles or belts may be the cause. Avoid starchy foods which cause itching and dilation. Rub a nail across such a skin and you get "skin-writing."

The condition is probably allergic in nature. There is no treatment except medicine or application to relieve the itching. Although the condition is essentially harmless, occasionally it can be annoying.

Ill Pope Paul Leaves On Longest Pilgrimage

VATICAN CITY (AP) — Pope Paul left today on his longest overseas pilgrimage—a 10-day journey to Asia and the Pacific —amid criticism from many Roman Catholics and concern over whether he is well enough for such a trip.

The Pope was smiling as he waved goodbye from his open limousine to an audience of about 200 persons in St. Peter's Square. But he was wan, and some witnesses felt his smile looked forced. There were dark circles under his eyes. A senior member of the Sacred College of Cardinals had said earlier the Pope was ill.

A motorcade took him from Vatican City to the Rome airport, where a chartered airliner waited to carry him on his ninth trip abroad.

At the airport, he once again rejected criticism of his trip and called it "an order of the Lord."

Then, he walked unassisted up the steps to the green and white jetliner, turned unsmiling to wave at the applauding crowd, and walked inside.

On the eve of the trip, the 73-year-old pontiff was pronounced in "perfect health" and fit for his 25,000 mile journey to eight countries. He has covered 44,482 miles in the other eight tours during his seven-year reign.

The remark on the pontiff's health, issued by the Vatican late Wednesday night and signing his personal physician, was prompted by a statement from Eugene Cardinal Tisserant, 85-year-old Frenchman who heads the Sacred College.

Speaking on French television, Cardinal Tisserant said the Pope was in "visibly ill" and had to be supported when he left a public audience in St. Peter's a week ago Wednesday.

Asked if the Pope was thinking of retiring, the cardinal replied: "It had been said. It has been repeated several times. His state of health is such that it might well happen that he will have no need to make a decision on that subject."

The Pope's personal physician, Dr. Mario Fontana, who is accompanying him, said pep pills and tranquillizers are the only treatment he is expected to get to help him through his crowded program.

Bishop Paul C. Marcinkus, who has planned eight of the Pope's tours, said his prime concerns are the Pope's protocol for mixing with pressing crowds and sleeping less than a 73-year-old should.

But the month's trip is not devoid of other controversies.

Formosan bishops have criticized his decision to skip their island and stop in Hong Kong on the threshold of China," as the Vatican said.

Many Catholics and non-Catholics have attacked the Pope's trip as a waste of money, saying the funds could be used to aid the same nations he is visiting.

The Pope had barely announced his decision to squeeze a one-day stop in disaster-stricken East Pakistan into his agenda when the Italian press charged that this would simply interfere with relief work.

Some newspapers around the globe challenged the Pope's right to address overpopulated nations until he lifts his ban against birth control devices.

The Pope's first stop is in Istanbul, Turkey, where he will fly from there to Dacca, East Pakistan. From there he is expected to fly to Manila on a regularly commercial air route that will take him over embattled Cambodia and South Vietnam. His chartered Alitalia jetliner is scheduled to return over the two countries at a high altitude and without any special security precautions such as fighter-escort planes or air rescue alerts.

"There is absolutely no danger," a U.S. Air Force officer said.

The Pope, scheduled to reach Manila 16 hours after his takeoff from Rome, is to address a meeting of Asian bishops who have gathered in Asia's only predominantly Catholic nation to draft new policies for their churches, and is expected to make a passionate plea for the world's wealthy nations to help the poor and economic his church to do the same.

This is a sensitive subject in Manila, whose archbishop has been accused both at home and in Rome of clinging to privileges despite his country's poverty.

Sydney J. Harris Says

Middle-aged Buy Sex Book

Thoughts at Large:

Maturity begins when we're content to feel we're right about something, without feeling the necessity to prove someone else wrong.

• • •

We may actually go down in history as the first man to put a man on the moon before we had figured out a way to get pigeons off statues.

• • •

It seems rather wistful to find the biggest best-seller of 1970 was a book dealing with some quite elementary sex facts, which were purchased by far more middle-aged people than by youths or young married.

• • •

A jolting statistic to all parents, from a UNESCO bulletin, is that nations of the world spend on the average of $100 a year to teach a child how to read; and a few years later, $7,800 a child to teach him how to shoot.

• • •

The reason more people do not speak as well as incorrectly stated by Mark Twain almost a century ago: "Everybody's private motto — It's better to be popular than right."

• • •

We need models when we are young, because if our character is to be formed by them we admire, it is deformed by those we despise, and we go through life frozen in an attitude of hostility, even refusing to listen in later models we may find.

• • •

Several readers have asked what I meant in a recent paragraph by saying that most people worship the "God of Religion" not the "God of Creation"; I meant that whenever we admit that something is true, is right, is sound, is ethical — but it isn't practical, it won't work, it's not the way life really is — then we are splitting off Religion from Creation and worshipping just a Sunday God.

• • •

Children know how to be children far better than old people know how to be old; the former is an instinctive reaction; the latter must be a learned response, and too few of take the trouble to learn grace in age.

• • •

I wonder if a weak ruler has ever been called an "inspirtator."

• • •

Speaking of rulers, one of the shrewdest observations was made by Cardinal De Retz, in his Memoires: "Where rulers are concerned, a subject who is able to do good is as dangerous and almost as criminal as a man who intends to do evil."

• • •

The evil in technology is not that we can devise new ways to put men out of work, but that we cannot devise new machinery to provide jobs for men who desperately want to work.

• • •

People who will do anything for a friend except lend him money have either an idea what friendship is for or no idea what money is for.

Jeane Dixon's Horoscope

For November 27

Your birthday today: Your life is ready to be changed sometimes, and you now make fresh beginnings toward new goals. There is much to learn — and surprisingly great assistance from others who have shown your quality and intentions. Emotional growth is rich once you get into the rhythm of constant change. Today's natives strive for maximum expression and need a vocation enabling public attention, particularly in the coming year.

ARIES (Mar. 21 — Apr. 19): Be alert to increase your earnings and savings. You can have much assistance for the asking. Make the most of a pleasant, friendly mood.

TAURUS (Apr. 20 — May 20): Drive a shrewd bargain now, press for improvements in your work situation, ask for it when if you're earned one. Mate or partner should bear good news.

GEMINI (May 21 — June 20): Seek expert advice. Get a second opinion on anything significant. Exert yourself in your work; whatever you do at present deserves special notice.

CANCER (June 21 — July 22): Creative endeavors, idealistic causes, romantic ventures are all strongly favored. Ask and give co-operation; there's room for everybody.

LEO (July 23 — Aug. 22): You can bring some long-running negotiation to a satisfying close today. This is a propitious time for settlement of differences, sale of possessions. Act promptly.

VIRGO (Aug. 23 — Sept. 22): Participate in everything that's going on, even if you have no plans of your own yet. Even routine work is pleasant. Gather friends for a companionable evening.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 — Oct. 22): Optimism holds sway; you make a stronger effort to progress — and keep it prudent. Wind up the workweek on a pleasing left over. Put increases of income into savings.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23—Nov. 21): Your personal magnetism projects more dynamically; co-operation comes readily. After a good day's work, the later hours should be spent mixing, fresh activities.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 — Dec. 21): Attend to confidential matters, get technical advice. Investigate yourself. By evening you should have several pieces of ideas for planning your next venture.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 — Jan. 19): Friends open many doors for you — if you will let them. There may be momentary difficulty concealing which way to go. An evening's celebration! Salud for:

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20 — Feb. 18): Concentrate on building your public image. You attract new acquaintanceship along with the advantages. Plan a weekend of diverse activities interestingly.

PISCES (Feb. 19 — Mar. 20): Where your wishes can be formally expressed in petition, do so today. Press property transactions, legal matters, volunteer work for your community.

EXECUTIVE NAMED

CALGARY (CP) — Mrs. H. E. McClaughan has been named president of the Western Canada Theatre, Calgary. She will head an executive which will sell season's tickets and deal with other projects of interest to Theatre Calgary.

Police Beat Some

MONTREAL (CP) — A report Thursday from a three - man investigating committee indicates that some of the prisoners held under terms of the War Measures Act have apparently been beaten.

Roland Parenteau, a member of the Civil Liberties Union committee, said in an interview that about 10 of the 120 persons held under the terms of the Act said they "had been slapped on the face, had their hair pulled and that sort of thing. . . ." The committee interviewed only 130 of the more than 450 persons arrested. Many were almost immediately released.

"We received more complaints than just the 10," said Mr. Parenteau. "Whether we believed them or not, we told the prisoners to get in contact with the Quebec ombudsman."

All of the 130 prisoners were visited by the three-man committee consisting of Jacques Hebert, a Montreal publisher, Dominican priest Paul Tellier and Mr. Parenteau, an economist. The visits were made with the approval of Jerome Choquette, provincial justice minister.

Mr. Parenteau said that the committee could not find any evidence of permanent damage. He said, however, there was some "psychological intimidation."

"People were questioned for seven or eight hours at a time. They were told that their wives and families would be arrested even though this was not so."

The Civil Liberties committee member was careful to point out that he had not heard the police side of the story. The fact that the alleged incidents of violence led back to one police officer made the prisoner's stories more believable, he said.

The Civil Liberties Union made sure that every one of the alleged incidents of violence was reported in writing to the ombudsman.

Most of the people told the committee that they had been well treated.

Bishop Tackles Knife-wielder

From Reuter-AP

MANILA (CP) — A Bolivian artist disguised as a priest tried to kill Pope Paul with a 12-inch dagger a Manila airport today but was stopped by Philippine President Ferdinand Marcos and a British bishop.

Marcos deflected with a karate chop the double-edged Malayan dagger, which had several inscriptions on it including the Spanish word "mierda," meaning excrement.

The British bishop, Most Rev. Anthony D. Galvin, 51, grabbed the assailant and dragged him away from the Pope, and Filipino security men then seized him.

The attacker, identified as 35-year-old Benjamin Mendoza y Amor, a surrealist painter from La Paz, said after his abortive attempt: "I wanted to save mankind from superstition."

Mendoza said he had planned the attack alone five days ago to show "the hypocrisy of the Catholic Church."

The attacker also was quoted by Associated Press correspondent Patrick O'Keefe, a member of the press corps travelling with the Pope on the 10-day Pacific and Asian tour, that he had planned to kill the Pope for "many years." Mendoza said he wanted to "save humanity from the religious propaganda of the Pope."

Bishop Galvin, a six-foot, 200-pound son of an Irish policeman, said in a telephone interview that as Mendoza lunged at him the Pope stepped back and put his hands around his own waist.

The 73-year-old pontiff was momentarily stunned by the incident, which occurred moments after his plane touched down here after brief stopovers in Tehran, Iran, and Dacca, East Pakistan.

The Pope was unhurt, and earlier reports that Stephan Cardinal Sou Hwan Kim, 48-year-old archbishop of Seoul, was injured were denied by the South Korean cardinal.

Cardinal Kim was seen with bloodstains on his white robe, but he told reporters later that he had not been hurt.

The blood was believed from injuries the assailant suffered when he was taken into custody.

A Manila television station said the Pope had forgiven the attacker and blessed a crucifix Mendoza used to hide the dagger.

Cabinet Source States Robarts Plans to Quit

EXETER, Ont. (CP) — A cabinet source said Thursday Premier John Robarts will officially announce his retirement shortly after returning from a trip to Quebec Sunday, Dec. 6.

The source, who asked not to be identified, said the first candidate in the field to succeed Mr. Robarts would be Education Minister William Davis, 42.

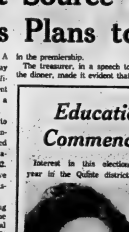
He said Mr. Davis will have the immediate support of Treasurer Charles MacNaughton.

Mr. MacNaughton, attending a dinner held in his honor at the nearby Centralia industrial centre, declined comment. He would say only that any remarks from him would be "unfortunate."

Mr. Robarts, 53, remained as non-committal as he has been since rumors of his retirement spread two weeks ago. He has been Conservative premier for nine years.

Almost 1,000 persons attended the dinner in honor of Mr. and Mrs. MacNaughton.

Mr. MacNaughton, 59, himself a potential successor to Mr. Robarts, is believed not interested in the premiership.



The treasurer, in a speech to the dinner, made it evident that he has reluctantly accepted the ruiners of Mr. Robert's pending resignation.

Education Series Commences Today

Interest in this election year in the Quinte district has swung strongly to the contests for seats for the Hastings County School Board and the Hastings-Prince Edward Separate School Board.

Intelligencer education reporter Lenny Williamson, whose coverage of the Quinte area school beat dates back to the days before the establishment of county boards, starts an eight-article series today backgrounding the issues in the world of education.

In her first article, Mrs. Williamson points out that the "fallout situation", has wide - ranging ramifications and could conceivably lead to changes in provincial educational legislation.

Deutsch Report Recommends Political Union in Maritimes

CHARLOTTETOWN (CP) — Full political union of the Maritime provinces is recommended in the report of the Maritime union study to the premiers of Nova Scotia, New Brunswick and Prince Edward Island.

The report, released today, represents two years of work by a study group headed by Dr. John J. Deutsch, principal of Queen's University, Kingston, Ont. The study was authorized by the three provincial governments to investigate possibilities for increased co-operation between them.

Without political union, the report says, the outlook for 1.3 million Maritimers is a "future like the past" with three separate provinces unable to overcome the region's long-standing economic disabilities.

The study group calls for new machinery for co-operation among the provinces leading to political union within 10 years. The machinery includes a council of Maritime premiers, a Maritime provinces commission of experts and a joint legislative assembly.

Premier Gerald Regan of Nova Scotia and Premier Hatfield joined Premier Alex Campbell of Prince Edward Island in Charlottetown to receive the 124-page report from Dr. Deutsch and his group. They also received 14 supplementary reports on related research projects. Four of these had been made public earlier.

As the study group put it, "the central question is, to put it very starkly, does a significant majority of the people of the Maritimes attach importance to achieving a more rapid rate of economic development . . . or is a higher priority assigned to the maintenance of local attachments, local diversities, local autonomies, small-scale relationships, and the existing structure and pace of life?"

Neither course was more vicious in itself. Many would want the best of both worlds, but that would become even less possible in the future because of new challenges facing the region.

Three "critical requirements" would have to be fulfilled to make political union possible:

1. Strong regional leaders favoring it in both political and private quarters;

2. Active co-operation and material support from the federal government;

3. Creation of machinery to devise and carry out common regional policies and negotiate the agreements needed for union.

The report envisages union within 10 years. An assessment of progress after five years would determine whether union is possible by that time. If not the whole program should be reconsidered.

The study group discussed possible courses of action open to Maritimers short of political union. All were considered less beneficial.

One was "informal co-operation" through interprovincial organizations, regional associations, premiers' conferences and the like. These have "severe limitations."

"Formal co-operation" on a permanent basis—through such agencies as the proposed council of premiers, interprovincial committees of government ministers, their secretarial and attending staff—would have "serious drawbacks."

This process would be slow and cumbersome with no executive power for common action.

An "administrative union" could save money through joint operation of many governmental services but it "would not make possible common action on matters of basic policy" like economic planning and development.

An "economic union" could go a long way toward realizing the "basic common interests" of the Maritime region. But this type of union, and the machinery for "formal co-operation" already mentioned, could create another heavy layer of bureaucracy on top of the three separate provincial governments already in existence.

'You for union?'

Highlights Of Report

CHARLOTTETOWN (CP) — Highlights of today's report on Maritime union include recommendations for:

—Increased co-operation leading to full political union.

—Formation of a council of Maritime premiers, a Maritime provinces commission of experts and a joint legislative assembly to carry out the project.

—Union within 10 years or reconsideration of entire program after five.

—Joint legislature to decide method of union ratification.

Economic Planning Needs Are Stressed

CHARLOTTETOWN (CP) — A review of economic planning for the Maritime union study says full political union of the three Maritime provinces may be needed "in the long run" to give the area the full benefits of common action.

The study was carried out by W. Y. Smith, chairman of the Atlantic Development Council, and Thomas Wilson, political economy professor at Glasgow University.

It says that "It will be of the utmost importance" to ensure that Nova Scotia, New Brunswick and Prince Edward Island are in a position to make the most of technical changes which might improve their national and international competitive position.

"It is against this background that the Maritime union study is being carried out," says the report on economic planning.

"Its first objective is to assess more fully the scope for common action in meeting common problems.

"Its second objective is to consider the institutional changes by which a more united effort could be best achieved and rendered effective.

"The most far-reaching institutional change would be the political union of the three provinces. In the long run, it is quite possible that nothing less will be adequate if the full benefits of common action are to be attained."

Because full political union of the three provinces could not be quickly achieved, the study says other possibilities must be considered. These could be on either a permanent or an interim basis and vary from functional arrangements to establishment of a commission broadly similar to that of the European Economic Commission.

"In considering these possibilities full account must . . . be taken of the growing importance of Ottawa's role in regional development," the study says. "It is a crucially important role without which the region's prospects would be very limited."

John G. Both

Former Mayor Is Dead at 68

Former mayor of Belleville and construction contractor in the Quinte area for nearly three decades, John G. Both, 294 Albert Street died in Kingston General Hospital on Thursday, following a lengthy illness. He was in his 68th year.

Born at Denbigh, Ont., he was the son of the late Mr. and Mrs. Charles Both and had lived in Toronto before coming to Belleville 38 years ago.

During World War II he served with the Department of National Defence in its works and buildings department. He had also worked for the Ontario Department of Highways for several years.

He was mayor of Belleville in 1954 and 1955 and was one of the few first magistrates of the city who was elected as mayor without previous experience on city council. He was a member of Bridge Street United Church.

He was a charter member of the Temple lodge, AF and AM; Quinte Friendship Chapter 227; King Baldwin Preceptory No. 6, Belleville; Ramses Temple, Toronto and the Belleville Shrine Club and ZABUD Council No. 15 of Belleville.

Besides his wife, the former Colombe Pourangeau, he is survived by a son Wallace of Toronto and a daughter Mrs. Jean Howie of Napanee.

A brother Albert lives in Kitchener. There are two sisters, Mrs. Marie Dawson of Barwick, Mrs. Rosa Clarke of Thunder Bay and Mrs. Eva Jackson of Northbrook.

The body will rest at the John R. Bush Funeral Home from noon Saturday. The funeral will be held Monday with service in the chapel conducted by Dr. H. M. Davis. Interment will be in Northbrook Cemetery.

Deseronto Will Vote

DESERONTO (Staff) — An election for town council and for public utilities commission is indicated here as a result of last night's nomination meeting.

Nominated for three seats on council were Jack Mitchell, Joseph Reynolds, Russell Goodacre, Dorothy McCullough, George Jackson, Delmar Wannamaker and James McVicker.

Two men were nominated for the one seat on PUC, Merton Cameron and Arthur Hunter.

Candidates have until nine this evening to qualify.

There is no election for mayor or reeve in Deseronto this year. Both Mayor James W. Sharpe and Reeve George Lyons still have another year of their two-year term of office to run.

Max Scott

His Quick Action Saved Tot's Life

By HARRY MULHALL
Staff Reporter

Since coming hopefully back to his Belleville hometown two months ago seeking a job, Max Scott usually takes his car to get downtown.

Yesterday morning — the weather being mild — he and his wife decided to walk.

This simple switch in routine saved the life of a 10-month-old baby.

The Scotts had just left their home at 86 Emily Street when a woman dashed from a neighbor's house frantically calling for help.

The woman — Mrs. Mildred Van Norman, had been left babysitting the children of Mr. and Mrs. Bernard Genereaux, 63½ Emily. Police said the children, Bernard 2½ years, old Reid said this morning, and his baby sister Barbara Anne were in the bathtub when Mrs. Genereaux left for work.

Shortly after, Mrs. Van Norman spotted the baby face down in the tub, say police.

She dashed upstairs, pulled the baby from the tub and began resuscitation.

Within moments, the child revived.

Police credited Mr. Scott with saving the child's life. "There's no question about it. Without his quick thinking and action, the child would be dead now," Deputy Chief Harold Wannamaker said.

Frankford Council Battle Shapes Up

FRANKFORD — The Village of Frankford will see a seven-man race for the four seats on council, it was announced this morning.

Seven nominations Wednesday night at the Frankford nomination meeting resulted in the qualifying of all seven contenders.

Frankford citizens will have to decide between incumbent Mrs. Muriel Rabel, incumbent Carman Mibel, incumbent Kenneth Lawrence, incumbent Mervin Dafoe, Herbert J. Carter, Harry Wickson and Ronald G. Baker.

William F. Rose, incumbent reeve of the village was re-elected by acclamation Wednesday night for another term on council as reeve.

The two incumbent public utilities commissioners, H. Willmott Rose and George Montgomery, were acclaimed to another term on the commission.

LENGTHY HANDLE

The Japanese name for Expo 70 was Banbokukahakurakai, which means "10,000-nation grand exposition meeting."

Tweed Reeve Back Again

TWEED (Staff) — The only woman voter in Hastings county, Tweed's Barbara Allen has been elected by acclamation for another term.

Mrs. Allen was unopposed as a result of last night's nomination meeting and won the reeve's chair without contest.

A couple of years ago Mrs. Allen headed the only all-woman municipal council in Ontario. She will commence her fifth year as reeve in January.

Neither will there be an election for public utilities as last night's two nominees — Cecil Cassidy and James Halpenny — were acclaimed.

But with 10 nominations for four seats on village council, it appears there will be an election for council seats.

Nominated last night were incumbents Amelia Bodley, Edwin Champagne, Dora Courtney and J. Harry Thompson, along with Jeannette Whitfield, Kenneth Little, Donald Hodgens, Charles W. Cassidy, Walter Harbone, and Elias Wright.

Two of this year's seven councillors — Amelia Bodley and Dora Courtney have indicated that they will not run for re-election.

Pope Saved From Knife

pound son of an Irish policeman, said in a telephone interview that a Mendoza lunged at him the Pope stepped back and put his hands around his own waist.

The 73-year-old pontiff was momentarily stunned by the incident, which occurred moments after his plane touched down here after brief stopovers in Colombo and Dacca, East Pakistan.

The Pope was unhurt, but the 48-year-old archbishop of Colombo Cardinal Sou Hwan Kim was slightly injured. One of the prelates standing nearby said the cardinal had blood on his robes.

Bishop Galvin, apostolic vicar of the diocese of Mirt in Saraguro, said Cardinal Kim was reaching out to shake the Pope's hand when he saw Mendoza rush by among a group of photographers.

"I saw the Holy Father step back with his hands around his middle. He definitely noticed what was happening, but immediately afterward he walked on as if nothing had happened," Galvin said.

"The next thing I saw was the bandit of a dagger, and then blood on the cassock of Cardinal Kim.

"The man was so close to the Holy Father I felt certain he had touched him.

"I grabbed him from behind very hard, and he went limp as if he had given up the struggle. The man fell to the ground. Then the security people jumped on him."

A crowd estimated between 3,000 and 5,000 was at the airport when the assailant rushed at the Pope with the curved dagger that he had hidden in a sleeve and concealed it with his golden crucifix.

The Pope had just been greeted by President Marcos and was walking a red carpet toward a dignitary who had raised his right arm when the attacker lunged.

IN MEMORIAM

WARSWICK — In loving memory of Ethel Warwick, who went suddenly home Nov. 27, 1969.
Sadly missed by husband Ted.
A light is from our household gone,
A voice we loved is stilled,
A place is vacant in our home
Which never can be filled.
God in His wisdom has recalled
The boon He gave to earth and we must
Meekly bow and kiss the rod
To pay the debt we owe to God.
Mabel Warwick.

NORWOOD — In loving memory of William George Norwood, who passed away November 27, 1969.
The world may change from year to year,
And people may be dear,
But never will the one we loved,
Be forgotten while we're here.
Nellie Jean, daughter-in-law.

WARSWORTH — In loving memory of Ethel Warsworth, who passed away Nov. 27, 1969.
She thought unkindness,
She felt pain,
But never spoke of it,
To ease her own.
For when on earth,
She was loved,
And missed by her sons and brother-in-law,
Harold and Ernest Warsworth.

Trenton Parade Saturday

TRENTON (Staff) — Santa Claus comes to town tomorrow as part of the annual Chamber of Commerce sponsored parade.

The parade, beginning at 1:30 p.m., will move from the Community Gardens, up Marmora Street, over the new bridge, down Front to Dundas West and along Dundas to wind up in front of St. Peter's Church.

A Chamber spokesman said today that the parade this year will be made up of 12 large floats, several antique cars, six marching bands and two majorette corps.

Second Firehall Opens Tomorrow

Thurlow Township will officially open the second half of its fire department this weekend.

Saturday afternoon at two, officials will gather at the Corbyville Fire Hall to open the second half of its volunteer Fire Department and to allow the public to see it.

Last Saturday the fire hall at Point Anne was officially opened by Reeve Horace Casey.

Belleville Majorettes In Parade

Gail Chapman's Jolly Buccaneer Majorettes and drummer will be taking part in the Grey Cup Parade in Toronto tomorrow.

Consisting of 32 members, dressed in buccaneer costume the group participated in the parade last year in Montreal and this year is part of 18 groups selected to participate.

The group and its float, a buccaneer ship will be seen coast - to - coast on television. The ship will be competing for a trophy.

New OHC Family Homes

Belleville Mayor J. Russell Scott, and Ontario Housing Corporation development manager Harry Pullen cut the ribbon to officially open 57 new geared-to-income family rental units on Pine Street. In the background are the first two tenants of the housing complex — with a total of 16 children.

Armed Forces Pay Increases Are Announced

OTTAWA (CP) — A pay increase for the armed forces averaging six per cent was announced today by Defence Minister Donald Macdonald.

The increase applies to both the regular and reserve forces and is retroactive to Oct. 1.

The percentage increases vary with rank and occupation. The higher percentage increases go to non - commissioned personnel, particularly corporals.

Mr. Macdonald said the increase will cost his department $20 million in the current fiscal year and $39 million in the full 1971-72 fiscal year.

A private who has just entered the armed forces now will receive $250 a month, an increase of $10.

A fully - trained private in the highest pay category will receive $463 a month, an increase of $30.

The highest - paid corporal now will receive $533 a month, an increase of $42.

A chief warrant officer who is also a flight engineer or observer will receive $1,005 a month, an increase of $48.

The new monthly basic pay for a lieutenant will be $525, an increase of $28.

A captain's pay, $41 increase to $630 a month basic; a major $53 to $1,005, and a colonel $78 to $1,557.

A number of revisions have been made in flight pay.

The submarine allowance will be increased to a range of $60 to $180 a month from $45 to $115. Sea duty allowance is increased by $15 a month to a maximum of $60 a month, depending on rank.

Candidates State Positions Before Trenton Labor Meeting

TRENTON (Staff) — Less than 20 people showed up for the Quinte District Labor Council's face-the - candidates night Thursday. Seven were candidates.

The meeting, open to the general public, had been designed to give those running in various elections across the Quinte district a chance to state their views and answer questions, Bob Andrus, QDLC president, explained.

Conducted in one corner of the Legion hall here, the session did have its surprises.

Members of Local 2095, International Brotherhood of Electrical Workers, asked the Labor Council last night to endorse Charles Hilton and Cliff Baker in their bids for election to the Public Utilities Commission.

The local representing PUC employees has already endorsed them. Third party in the commission race is ex-mayor D. James MacDonald — (two seats available).

In seeking endorsement of QDLC for Mr. Hilton, one commission employee said "I would not want people to think he is a softie" but added that he respected the workers and was fair. However, endorsement was not given last night.

Mr. Hilton, in a brief address, referred to the PUC as "a tail wagged by the dog". He also explained one of his grievances against the commission — that people "are a mechanical sense" should not have to pay the large rate resulting from such occurrences as constantly running toilet bowls.

The former electrical contractor favors a means tests for this. "Men in the low wage levels should not have to pay," he asserted.

Mr. Hilton also voiced his belief to the mini - assembly that "PUC employees should have the right to strike."

James Wiseman, an Ontario Hydro worker, running for the Prince Edward Hastings Separate School Board in Belleville received QDLC endorsement last night.

"Bungling of the Tweed School, prolonged negotiations with the teachers and now the Allore affair", Mr. Wiseman said, had brought him to the conclusion that there was something wrong with the separate school board.

"I will see if I can straighten it out," he said, adding that he believed "some pretty unchristian things have been said against Allore."

William Menzies, already endorsed by labor in his bid for re-election to the separate school board for Trenton said that the press should be allowed to cover committees of the whole proceedings in both school board and municipal council meetings.

Mr. Menzies also entered a dialogue on the relative merits of floridation. He said that personally he takes three fluoride tablets daily, contending that scientists have shown that "a man who lives to 60 would live to 75" if he took fluoride regularly.

George Greer, a postal employee, also endorsed by the labor council in his drive for re-election to Trenton town council, revealed his views last night by reading the speech he had drawn up for the traditional meet the candidates session slated for next Tuesday.

Floridation, he said, would be good for children's teeth and parents' pocketbooks. The veteran councillor said another of his concerns is "the lack of housing in the Town of Trenton."

Mr. Greer gave his firm support to the pool office development scheme, saying that "it is in the best interests of the town of Trenton."

Councillor Ted Parker attended last night's meeting with labor. He stressed the need for the post office mall, explaining that he did not want to see the town's downtown area deteriorate as Belleville's has.

"People are sick to death of hearing about the post office and wish it would go away but it is there," he said, contending that the scheme is the "sort of re-investment that will create revenue."

Pete Aziz, a contender for council, said that he "would not be running if satisfied with the way the Town was being run."

On the post office question, Mr. Aziz said "the present facilities are good for another four or five years." Another contender, George Brown, who was not in attendance last night, says the municipal offices are good for 10 years.

Mr. Aziz said that "other things are more important," particularly, the problem of what Trenton is going to do with its garbage now that the Ontario government has directed the corporation to close down its bayside dump because of a pollution threat.

Councillor Parker said that the present council is already looking into the matter of seeking a solution to this situation.

"Planners feel the town has half the number of parks it should have for its present population" councillor Paul Tripp told the group.

An effort to create more parks is certainly going to be part of my platform, he said.

Councillor Tripp added that now "the government has taken us off the bad boy list as far as industry is concerned," he expected to become involved again in industrial development. "It is time to get back in the driver's seat," he said, contending that the supply of money is loosening and the "town should get more of it (investment capital)".

Trenton, although not barred formally from access to industrial development grants and loans of the provincial government, had not had any applications for industrial assistance considered in the last five years.

Y Board Cracking

Under constant pressure, the YMCA board has reached the breaking point.

The situation has existed for some time and the board of directors last night voted to replace the pool facility as well as purchasing a safety observation chair.

Cost of a new diving board is in the neighborhood of $800, cost of the stainless steel observation post is approximately $400.

Money from the Sunday swims, $129 will be used for purchase of the chair.

Two Families Get Keys To OHC Apartments

A total of 137 children will be living in brand new homes within the next month before the completion of 57 "geared - to - income" family rental housing units located in Belleville yesterday by Ontario Housing Corporation.

Official ribbon cutting ceremonies were held at the Pine Street housing complex with keys handed over to the first two families to move in — with a total of 16 children between them.

Mayor J. Russell Scott cut the official ribbon strung across the Pine Street extension to the 10 or so separate apartment houses.

"This is a real pleasure for me to officially open these geared - to - income housing units," said Mayor Scott. "The need for this housing is very great in Belleville."

Assisting in the ribbon-cutting ceremonies was Harry Pullen, OHC development manager for East and North Ontario.

Keys were then handed over to the first two families — Mrs. Margaret Gennon, widow with seven children, and Mr. and Mrs. Herbert Moon, with nine children at home.

Both families are moving immediately into five bedroom apartments.

Mr. Pullen said the 57 geared - to - income housing units opened yesterday were the first phase of a 91 such units being completed in the city — three at Pine Street and another 34 on North Park Street.

In addition, Ontario Housing Corporation is completing 125 senior citizen housing units in the city, while a survey is currently underway to determine the need for still more family and senior citizen units.

All 91 units officially opened yesterday have already been allocated by William James, Quinte area, OHC supervisor.

Mr. Pullen said when Ontario Housing Corporation commenced operation in 1964 there were only 6,139 units.

Today, OHC has 25,000 housing units and by 1975 it is anticipated there will be 75,000.

And by 1980 there will be an anticipated need of one million units.

Mr. Pullen expressed appreciation to Maurice H. Rollins, local contractor who built the geared - to - income apartment units and also to Mayor Scott, for the city's cooperation.

The 91 family housing units on Pine Street and on North Park have from two to five bedrooms.

Streets at the Pine Street development area are paved with curbs and gutters and walks installed. There are also paved parking areas.

Lawns, front and rear yards are completely sodded and rear service roads are provided. Landscaping includes trees and shrubbery.

All housing complexes are built in privacy in height with from six to 10 apartments in each, depending on the size of the unit.

The five bedroom units have an L-shaped kitchen with plenty of cupboard space, downstairs living room, with ample closet space and a first floor washroom.

Upstairs are the five bedrooms and bath.

Cheese Industry Facing Changes

The cheese industry still is significant to the Hastings County economy, the Central Ontario Cheese Makers' Association was told yesterday.

Despite many changes, the county still is deeply involved in the dairy industry, said county agricultural representative Douglas Tipper.

Most dramatic of those changes has probably been in the cheese industry itself.

In 1920 there were 105 factories making Canadian cheddar cheese in the county. Today there are 15.

But the industry has not diminished the interest and involvement in the production of Canadian cheddar cheese," he said. "It's a very vital part of our county economy and has to be treated as such."

But the industry itself has changed — with business management emerging into a new and important role, different from that of the cheesemaker.

"No longer can one man be expected to do everything for the factory as a whole," said Mr. Tipper. "There's a real need for increased aggressive business management . . ."

Mr. Tipper also stressed the importance of promotion for the industry with such events like the British Empire Dairy Show — the annual cheese exhibit which is held in conjunction with the cheese-makers' convention in Belleville.

All cheese factories should support the show since it's a "golden chance" to gain publicity at little cost, said Mr. Tipper.

New Era in Picton

The Margaret Ackerman era of municipal politics now emerging in Picton will be very different in style from that of her remarkable predecessor, Harvey McFarland.

Mrs. Ackerman is not the first woman to head the affairs of an Ontario community and she will not be the last. Nevertheless the fresh direction she may be expected to give the town's affairs will be colored by the fact she is a woman, and mother of six, as well as a head nurse at Prince Edward Memorial Hospital.

As such, and with her experience of two years on council, Mrs. Ackerman is no stranger either to the people of Picton and the county or to the affairs of the community. No fence sitter, she showed early initiative in obtaining sanction for an attorney general's investigation into the police department. Mr. McFarland has taken issue with Mrs. Ackerman in this matter, charging that it was costly to the town and unnecessary, but Mrs. Ackerman counters by saying projected expenditures for the police department are less than $400 over the police budget.

The mayor elect in her statements since nomination shows herself to have a good grasp of the community's affairs and while her approach and attitudes will undoubtedly be different from her predecessor's, Picton in Mrs. Ackerman's own words, "cannot go anywhere but up."

Mr. McFarland in his comments at the nomination meeting referred to the fact he had never accepted a salary or expenses while in office. Be that as it may, Mrs. Ackerman makes sense also when she says that if only candidates who are wealthy can run for public office, "then many good candidates are eliminated."

In the final analysis she will be judged on her performance and on Picton's progress or otherwise in the years ahead.

Far Cry from Anti-Establishment Days

'Hot Seat' Role Erases PM's Early Radicalism

By GREG CONNOLLEY

OTTAWA — Pierre Elliott Trudeau is discovering there is a world of difference between being prime minister of Canada and being an intellectual critic of the establishment.

Not so many years ago Trudeau was a co-founder and contributor to a progressive Quebec publication called Cite Libre in which he sharply criticized political figures.

A particular target for Trudeau's invective was the then leader of the Liberal party and subsequent prime minister Lester B. Pearson. Trudeau also labelled the Liberal party "that spineless herd."

Today Trudeau finds himself subjected to venomous attacks from various quarters in the country but least particularly from his home province of Quebec. Indeed, friends and associates of free-swinging journalism days now accuse him of abject surrender to the establishment.

The issue which in 1963 prompted Trudeau to launch his bitter crusade against Pearson was the latter's decision that Canada should accept nuclear armament from the United States to fulfil its North American defence commitments.

In the election that year the nuclear dispute was a major factor. Canadians rejected the Conservative government of John Diefenbaker and placed Pearson in office.

Trudeau's acid comment was that power had beckoned to Pearson. "He had nothing to lose but honor and he lost it," Trudeau wrote.

Now, seven years after he accused the highly respected Pearson of betraying honor, finds himself head of the "Liberal herd," and the successor to Pearson, Trudeau is doing out-in full measure what it is like to have the responsibility of high office.

Ironically, the Liberal-minded Trudeau has found himself invoking the first of Pearson's Measures Act to crush the terrorist Front de Liberation du Quebec organization. While opposition parties protested he was trampling on civil liberties, Trudeau went ahead with this first - time use of war legislation in peacetime.

In matters of financial administration, the intellectual Trudeau has found it hard to be orthodox as a Bay Street banker in Toronto. His epic for balanced budgets, restraint in inflation and even tolerance of serious unemployment to fight rising costs.

The prime minister used to be flamboyant in Parliament, if not a foe of the continuing British monarchy connection in Canada. Now after being prime minister for 5½ years, he finds considerable good in the monarchy and has no thought of dumping the royal tie.

Trudeau, when he first came to Parliament as an ordinary MP in 1965 used to be a sloppy dresser, wearing an ascot and sandals and casual jackets. When he was sworn into the cabinet as justice minister in 1967, Prime Minister Pearson remarked to Mrs. Trudeau in wearing shoes."

But now Trudeau wears and more specific and conventional clothes. He goes to pomp social functions as the Government Leader, defends, to date, his work in a huge Cadillac limousine.

Those who don't like Trudeau say he has been captured by the establishment. Those who support him say he has mellowed. But it is quite one thing to be an off-stage critic and another to carry on his shoulders the tremendous burden of leadership for 21 million Canadians.

"It's been over an hour now — think we should go after them?"

Portugal Denies Charge

Toure Says Lisbon Behind Attacks on Guinea

By CT FOX
Canadian Press Staff Writer

Guinea's allegations that it has been attacked by a mercenary force enjoying Portuguese support are again placing the world spotlight on long-beleaguered President Sekou Toure, still known on the international stage as "the man who said 'no' to de Gaulle."

Toure, an ex-labor leader who presides over a rigid one-party state in Guinea, has for years been feuding with the Portuguese, masters of the West African region immediately to his north.

His contends that Lisbon has been using the activities of "anti-colonialist" guerrillas in Portuguese Guinea as a pretext for attacking independent Guinea's territory across the land frontier separating the two territories.

But from the Portuguese side come counter-charges that the "freedom-fighters" operate from bases in Guinea.

Moreover, Portugal denies responsibility for the latest attacks which Guinea says were launched against its capital city Conakry.

Any possible official backing by Lisbon for assaults against Conakry would seem, on the surface, to contradict suggestions that Premier Marcello Caetano, successor to the late Antonio Salazar, is trying to make Portuguese policy towards its African colonies less restrictive than previously.

However, there may be some influential circles in Lisbon which would oppose such a move by Caetano.

Meanwhile, Toure is claiming years of support from a variety of countries, ranging from Egypt to Nigeria.

Russia, too, has weighed in with a strong anti-Portuguese statement, while Sweden, the United Nations goes about mounting an on-the-spot inquiry into the situation.

The expressions of backing are something of a change from that of the period French Union which Toure has up to now been customed.

In 1958, when Guinea was offered the chance to join a Commonwealth-like organization of former French African colonies, he led his country in a rejection of France's overtures, which reflected the policies of the late Charles de Gaulle.

The Guinean leader insisted that the so-called French Union was merely the old colonialism in disguise.

In retaliation, de Gaulle's government severed relations and in addition terminated its aid programs in Guinea.

For help in his efforts to develop Guinea's economy on the basis of such resources as bauxite, iron and coffee, Toure turned to help from the Soviet Union and the United States.

Although greatly influenced by Marxist ideas, he accepted the Russian ambassador in 1986 after a clash over distribution of the Soviet bloc's aid, reopened with the Americans developed in the same year and Guinea also quarrelled with nearby French-speaking countries including Senegal and the Ivory Coast.

Recent months have brought signs of a reconciliation with the French Union but Toure also is having to deal with economic problems and political dissidence at home.

After 12 years in power, the 49-year-old president may be forced into seeking greater backing from abroad if he is to fend off opponents of his government within Guinea as well as those with headquarters in what he would term the traditional hatching centres of "neo-colonialism" plots.

The Great Slacks-Pant-Suit Hassle

Windsor Star

The 30 girls who were sent home from classes at Windsor's High School of Commerce deserve sympathy.

What heinous infringement up on the school's rules had the girls committed? They had worn slacks to class. Many did so with the approval and on the authority of their parents.

There is no dress code defined by the Windsor Board of Education, but the High School of Commerce has its own standards. In the words of the principal, "We are training them to be young business women and I think it is better for them to be dressed like young business women."

Since these girls are mostly 16 years old and younger, it is unlikely they will have to face the rigors of an employment interview with someone as arbitrary as their principal for a few years. And if their principal will observe with any acuity the many young ladies employed in Windsor and Detroit offices and even stores, he will probably discover many wearing slacks and pant suits.

It might be argued that there is more decorum in the slack outfit than in the miniskirt. But this is a female judgment, based on efficiency or comfort.

Males, with a view to art, look on the question more impartially and favor the miniskirt. On the question of slacks, and with no reference to the girls of the High School of Commerce, the advice of the philosopher Ogden Nash may offer some clue:

"Sure, deck your lower limbs in pants,
Yours is the choice, my sweeting.
You look divine as you advance,
Have you seen yourself retreating?"

* * *

The Trotsonian

We are against the idea of children trying to run schools or school boards.

But we are equally against the nonsense of trying to prescribe rules. The obvious limits must be decency. One cannot allow nakedness. But whether dresses or slacks are worn, or mini, midi, or maxi skirts, seems no part of any school official's duties to decide.

Several schools have had decorum problems with boys' hair styles and shoots, as somebody decided to tell the girls especially what to wear. The folly of trying to decide how boys should have their hair but been demonstrated. But anybody who thinks he can tell women what to wear is really asking for it.

It would be better to let nature take its course, and every girl will know sense (if there is any left) will take over.

Yippie Candidate

She is a candidate for the infamous Youth International (Yippie) party and as proof of the Yippies' infantile beliefs she advocates the abolition of the income tax and says she has no intention tearing up the downtown area to make way for parks. Another crazy plank in her platform is that she wants to repeal the law of gravity "so everyone can get high."

We wish that somehow members of the Yippie cult, their blood brothers and sisters the hippies, as well as other day eccentrics, misfits and dropouts, would come down to earth and face the realities of this world. Eccentricity may be harmless, but it is not practical. We cannot have people like Miss Andrew making chaos of the social order, as no doubt she would be encouraging, (hilarious as it may seem) she were elected.

And incidentally, if candidates require a deposit and she loses it, will she pay for it with the welfare money she is receiving? Or will the party pay the shot?

Easy Does It

In the Business Personal column of The Globe and Mail you can find an advertisement for "Canada's Originals' Do-It-Yourself Divorce Kit," all legal forms and instructions for $76, while in the next column, under Clubs and Amusements, you can have your pick of half-a-dozen or more ads for making the acquaintance of the opposite sex — introduction agencies, matrimonial institutes, Christmas dates and so on!

Role of the Police in Present Crisis

Ottawa Journal

"They" — which means nearly everyone—are talking about investigating the police work in the abating crisis of terrorism versus democracy. It may be argued that a "crisis" cannot endure more than five weeks, as this one has; but so long as the murderers of Mr. Laporte are free and so long as James Cross is cruelly detained there is indeed a crisis in our society. For these are not incidents but manifestations of a declared war on democracy and order.

So what are we to "do" about our police?

Certainly no Branch of it has given us comfort, not the RCMP, not the Quebec Provincial, not the Montreal.

Granted they were not "designed" for such anarchical defiances.

Granted that "society" had been warned by Gardiner and others at least a year back that we should take arms against evil in our midst but we scoffed or yawned or did nothing.

Granted an expensive bilateralising of police forces in the last four or five "permissive" years would have run full of heels reading cries of "dictatorship" or "police state" from certain articulate portions of our public.

Granted that the governments of Canada and of Quebec might have anticipated such a crisis in advance and presented legislation to strengthen our emergency forces without having suddenly to proclaim the whole length and depth of the War Measures Act.

But — it is clear that our existing police forces have not had the kind of counter-espionage or intelligence forces on the outside have always liked to think they had. We had believed that behind the green baize doors of high officers, some in very plain clothes, there were subtle and mysterious operations going on all the time which 007 might have thought at least moderately adequate.

We on the outside seem to have been wrong, or at least naive.

What to do now?

To investigate our forces now while the attack from darkness is still on could throw the whole co-operative team out of trim and spirit, setting each against the other and involving their respective political masters in matching rancour.

Yet, can we wait until the attack is over? Can we presume indeed that it will ever be over as distinct from dormant? We think not.

It seems the course most likely to be effective rather than damaging will be to assume that even now the police forces of the RCMP, of Quebec province and of the City of Montreal are being intensively sharpened and supervised by their own chiefs and by their political heads. There must be rigorous discipline of inefficiency in deed or in planning, and if there are suspicions of infidelity or indifference they must be relentlessly traced down regardless of sensitivity in high places.

What we must not have now is a kind of circus test inquiry with microphones and klieg lights. Until the murderers and kidnappers are in custody the forces of law and order have a massive job demanding all their time.

'Independence'—A Word Or Reality?

By LENNY WILLIAMSON
Staff Reporter

When county boards of education were set up two years ago, local autonomy, along with equality of educational opportunity, was one an ons of the chief reasons.

But after two years of operation, the extent of that autonomy is open to question.

The long term of Ontario's department of education appears to reach into every aspect of school administration.

The province through grants and ceilings, controls the amount of money each board may spend.

And the recent dispute between Hastings - Prince Edward boards of school trustees and its superintendent has revealed another provincial challenge to local autonomy.

The "Alice situation" disclosed that a board may not choose its superintendent (or director of education as the more executive is called on a public board), but the department must ratify his hiring.

Conversely, a board cannot fire a superintendent, it can only suspend him, and send department of education ratification of the decision before employment can be terminated.

To some, this appears to be a direct contravention of federal labor laws that give an employer the right to hire and fire at his discretion.

Hints have surfaced at public meetings that the "Alice situation" may have looped on future legislation.

A hearing by Judge A. R. Campbell into the suspension of superintendent F. B. Alice is pending and suggestions have been made that the judge's findings may include comment on the present legislation governing the status of a board's chief executive officer.

No one noticed, until the separate school board and its superintendent ran up on here differences, that legislation setting up county boards made no changes in the provisions of previous legislation under the Schools Administration Act.

A board's chief executive officer must hold an inspector's certificate, and on this hinge the long arm of the minister of education swings.

As Hastings county found, the now - famous section 13 of the Schools' Administration Act, reads:

"1. (1) (a) "A board may suspend a municipal inspector, appointed by the board, for neglect of duty, misconduct, inefficiency or physical infirmity, and the secretary of the board shall forthwith report the suspension to the minister and furnish him a statement of the reasons therefor, and the minister may confirm or revoke the suspension or may remove the person from office and the decision of the minister is final".

Section 13 continues, to state: "No person who has been removed from the office of inspector by the minister shall be appointed or act as an inspector."

The chairman of the separate school board has termed section 13 "a terrible piece of legislation".

The board who pays the piper demands the right to call the tune, some have implied.

But whether the "Alice situation" will result in a repeal of section 13 is open to question.

No, say its supporters, because only by retaining the right to final approval of a board's top executive can the government uphold educational standards across the province.

Without this control, they say, the standards of teaching could ultimately vary from board to board, to the detriment of Ontario education.

But others see no danger if the minister of education relinquishes his grip. He could continue to exercise control through licensing of inspectors, as he controls the qualifies of teachers through certification procedures.

But, continued the supporters, the government pays up to 80 per cent of the cost of education through its provincial grants. Therefore, it deserves the right to control the appointment of each county's chief executive.

In rebuttal, others point out that provincial tax money comes from the people, just as surely as does the property tax levy portion of a board's funds.

Therefore, since trustees are directly answerable to the local people they should be granted complete autonomy in the hiring and firing of their chief executive.

The strongest argument of all against repeal of section 82 lies in the structure of the department of education itself.

All its top administrators at the deputy and assistant deputy minister level are holders of inspector's certificates. They are unlikely to recommend repeal of a law that gives them a job security almost unequaled in other professions.

Every inspector in Ontario has his eye on the "Alice situation". The fines are not yet drawn but by the time the hearing date is set, confrontation may not be far off.

The local issues, of burning importance to the people involved, could be lost in the smoke of battle — local board versus the department of education, trustees against ministers.

As Mr. Alice himself has publically declared: "There are factors involved that have nothing to do with this board or with me."

Reporter Flying To Disaster Area

Intelligencer Trenton Bureau staff reporter Kenneth Smith departed CFB Trenton at 1 p.m. today for Dawson Road Pakistan.

Mr. Smith will accompany last phase of Yukon as they complete Canada's large air relief effort to the cyclone-battered nation.

By Tuesday morning 307,739 pounds of emergency supplies will have been moved to the disaster area by 12 flights from Trenton's 437 Squadron.

Accounts of Mr. Smith's trip will appear in The Intelligencer following his return late Monday.

Prince Edward County Welfare Administrator Resigns His Position

By MARGARET HAYLOCK
Staff Reporter

PICTON (Staff) — Prince Edward County welfare administrator W. G. Harvey has announced his resignation, effective December 31. Head of the county's welfare department since 1954, Mr. Harvey said Wednesday that there is nothing "controversial" in connection with his decision to leave his job.

In a letter of resignation addressed to the chairman of the Prince Edward County Home and Welfare Committee, Mr. Harvey noted local concern for increasing costs. "With greatly increasing caseload and expenditures, especially during 1970, I can readily understand that criticisms and complaints by taxpayers and elected officials are bound to increase and they have. Indeed, from as a taxpayer myself I share the concern of many people. I am not new and never have been fully in accord with all the features of the so - called welfare 'system.' The unreasonableness, however, has increased to the point that I simply do not choose to endure any more."

Mr. Harvey admitted in his letter that some problems in certain welfare cases might have been better solved, but did not feel his critics could offer solutions to his problem. His resignation stated, "Although I take considerable pride in the knowledge that my financial accounts and other administrative records have been free of error of any importance as evidenced by the many independent audit and inspection reports during the past seven years, I agree with your complaints or critic that there have been some problems concerning individual cases matters that might have been handled better. I apologize for any deficiencies in this regard."

The welfare administrator observed that "it is easy for someone not bound by conceptual legislation to suggest a different or better way of dealing with a particular situation, especially when viewed from a position of clear sight and freedom of action."

His resignation letter closed with reference to comments that welfare is too easily obtained in Prince Edward County. The fact that this county, although high in percentage of persons assisted, is low in dollar per person as seen in provincial comparative reports, offsets, I believe, inferences and suggestions that welfare in Prince Edward County is too easy to get."

Mr. Harvey thanked his past supporters and emphasized that he bears no ill will toward any of his critics.

Swim Plan Continues

"All children attending high school will have had the chance to learn to swim."

This YMCA theme is once again being used to describe the "community service" of offering both school boards the opportunity to give free lessons to their students.

YMCA chairman John Hayman explained that supervisors for this program would be provided by the Y and lessons would be "absolutely free."

"It is important to provide community services even with a difficult financial situation.

"No child should miss the chance to learn how to swim; we won't let finances stop them," he concluded.

Michaud Heads Pensioners

About 70 pensioners were entirely dissatisfied with Pub Canara yesterday which also named the following executive: R. E. Bonisteel, vice-president; Kenneth Mathews, secretary; Gordon Shaw, treasurer.

A Toast to Fashions

Commentator Lou Dale, models Gwen Stillwell, Gail Cooke and Jillian Roos and convener Fran Moon drink a toast at the "Fashions for Cocktail Hour" show sponsored by the Jaycettes at St. Joseph's School auditorium on Wednesday evening.

Jaycettes Sponsor 'Fashions for Cocktail Hour'

By SUSAN KORAH
Women's Reporter

"Fashions for the Cocktail Hour", a refreshingly informal fashion show sponsored by the Jaycettes and presented by Ida Burns and Associates at St. Joseph's School Auditorium on Wednesday evening was a unique theme not only on what to wear to a cocktail party but also how to be a gracious hostess. The audience was shown a wide variety of cocktail gowns, fun furs, wigs and jewellery and also given tips on how to set up a bar, mix and serve cocktails by the commentator Lou Dale.

The three attractive models, Gwen Stillwell, Gail Cooke and Jillian Roos captivated the audience with the aplomb and sophistication with which they carried off their ensembles as well as by their "swinging" style of modelling.

The "mariel," a flowing white pantdress with full, gathered, see-through sleeves and a sleeveless midi jacket featuring a charcoal grey diamond design was modelled by Gwen Stillwell. The "skirtel" a white jersey dress-and-pant ensemble modelled by Gail Cooke was a unique synthesis of the elegance of classical Greece, achieved by the draped effect of the skirt and a mad air lent by the wide-legged pants and the no-bra look. Another eye-catching pantsuit was "angel's kiss" shown off by Jillian Roos with its lacey A-line tunic top and see-through pants.

A midi dress in sophisticated midnight black was the "Grand Duke" with its long fitted torso, flowing maxi scarf and skirt clothed seductively up to the thighs. Black pantihose and shoes complete the "total" look of this costume. As romantic as its name was "Tia Rumba", a softly flowing dress of deep cocoa - brown georgette over crepe silk with its plunging V-neckline and full, gathered skirt. The band of rhinestones which accented the waistline and the silver Spanish lace earrings and streaked blonde swinger wig worn by the model added a touch of sparkle to this costume.

Among the coats, a dark brown double breasted suede pigskin coat trimmed with dyed raccoon caught the eye. The trimming could be zipped off to transform the coat from a midi to a mini. Gail Cooke's fun fur coat of bleached dyed-to-match cat horizontally featured inserts of black Spanish leather. A dramatic maxi coat of white rabbit with white leather inserts and a white trim collar and solid black yoke was shown by Jillian Roos. The bottom of this coat could be zipped off and converted into a stole.

The "pink lady" was a floor - length strawberry pink princess gown of bonded crepe provocatively slit in front. "Irish Mist" another floor - length gown of Peruvian silk was a blend of utter exuberance of its print which was a subburst of gold, oranges and russet browns. The sleeves of the jacket and the bottom of the flared pants were trimmed with burnt orange corded silk. A shimmering lilac and silver midi dress with a lean tight-fitting torso swinging out into a full, gathered skirt at the hips was also worn by Gwen Stillwell. "Black Pearl" a black and silver lamguette simplicity and sinuous grace with its narrow skirt being slit at the side from waist to hem, giving it a wrap-around effect. A band of lace applique on the bodice enhanced a delicate mauve taffeta pantdress which featured a train at the back and a detachable panel in front.

A soft velveteen pantsuit modelled by Gwen Stillwell was eye - catching for the dress modelled by Gail Cooke was accented at the waist with a black bow.

The stage decor consisted of a fully stocked bar, complete with some exquisite crystal glasses, an ice bucket and a cocktail shaker. At one point Lou Dale demonstrated the mixing of a "swinging sake" which consisted of two ounces of St. Raphael and one ounce of extra dry gin.

Glasses of Tia Maria and a variety of hors d'ouvres including brseded oysters and scallops were served after the show. Each guest was given a number of recipes for cocktail mixes.

The show was convened by Mrs. Fran Moon, president of the Jaycettes. Some of the participating business concerns were Corby Distillery, Sarah Coventry Jewellery, Princess Furs and some leading Canadian fashion houses.

Hinchcliffe — Duffy

St. Margaret's — in - the - Hill Anglican Church, Belleville was the scene of the wedding on Sat., Nov. 14, 1970, when Dianne Ellen Duffy, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. David Duffy of Belleville became the bride of Mark Allan Hinchcliffe, son of Mr. and Mrs. Harold L. Hinchcliffe, Toronto. Rev. J. A. Dunlop officiated at the ceremony. Wedding music was rendered by Mrs. R. vanOchten.

The bride, given in marriage by her father wore a full length gown of imported silk faille featuring a high Victorian neckline of re - embroidered Alencon lace. An A-line skirt was also accented with lace. A full chapel train enhanced with rows of lace extended from the back yoke. She wore a lace headdress with silk illusion veil and carried a nosegay of green orchids encircled with white mums and baby's breath.

Mrs. Gary Davis of Belleville as matron of honor wore a mint green silk chiffon gown with galpure lace overlay and featuring a stand - up lace collar; long lace sleeves with fitted cuffs. She wore a matching lace bow in her hair and carried a nosegay of yellow roses and shasta daisies.

The bridesmaids Mrs. Paul Pedon, of Kingston, Miss Lenore Gay of Toronto and Miss Valerie Watt, also of Toronto were dressed identically to the matron of honor.

Robert Brigden of Montreal attended the bridegroom while the ushers were Lawrence Adair, David Partridge and Victor Rowden, all of Toronto.

A reception was held in the Pinnacle Room, Hotel Quinte, where the bride's mother greeted the guests wearing an American Beauty imported silk worsted floor length dress matching pillbox hat and an orchid corsage. Assisting the bridegroom's mother were an bridesmaid deep blue and turquoise silk dress and a gardenia corsage.

For the wedding trip to New York State and Bermuda, the bride chose a burgundy wool pantsuit with orchid corsage. The couple will reside in Toronto.

Points for Parents

By MARY RETSON

Mother: "I'll put Janie to bed for her nap and go shopping while she's sleeping. She always makes such a fuss if she sees me leave. If she wakens before I get home, give her a cookie and some fruit juice."

Mother: "Mrs. Jones will stay with you while you take your nap. I have to go shopping, but I'll be home in time to take you for a walk before dinner. When you wake up, Mrs. Jones will give you a cookie."

Even though a child of 2 or 3 may fuss and cling, the mother should not resort to subterfuge when she has to leave the child in the care of a babysitter. Prepare the child for your absence and assure her you will return and it will lessen her feeling of insecurity.

Friends' Presence Relays Sympathy

DEAR ANN LANDERS: Our baby died this summer and I am just beginning to get over it. I was born and raised in another country and I cannot understand the ways of the people here although America has been my home for 11 years.

Many neighbors and friends came to our baby's funeral. After the funeral they came to our home to sit with us during the lonely hours of mourning. Nobody mentioned our baby's name. Not a single person said, "I am sorry your baby died." Our visitors talked about everything under the sun — except the reason they came.

Please tell people that at least say, "I am sorry for your loss." If it is an American custom not to say anything it is senseless and should be changed. — FOREIGN MOTHER.

DEAR MOTHER: In every country, actions speak louder than words. Your friends did not feel it was necessary to tell you why they were at your side. Their presence spoke for them.

* * *

DEAR ANN LANDERS: My daughter is expecting her second child in about eight weeks. She and her husband have told their little three-year-old girl that the new baby is growing in her mother's tummy. The child tells everyone who walks in the house that a baby is growing inside mommy and she invites them to put a hand on her mother's stomach and feel the baby kicking. To my way of thinking this is disgraceful. I think they should say the baby is coming from the hospital, which is enough to satisfy a three-year-old. There is time enough to get into sex and all that other stuff the kids learn about sooner or later.

I've expressed my feelings to my daughter and son-in-law and they say times have changed. I know times have changed — but have they changed that much? Please reply. I need your support. — OLD SCHOOL STUDENT.

DEAR OLD STU: Yes — times have changed that much, and it's all to the good. A friend of mine told her grandson that mommy and daddy were bringing a new baby home from the hospital and the boy asked, "Is the baby sick?"

Children should not be told more than they can understand but I don't believe in misleading them either. There is nothing wrong with telling a three-year-old that a baby grows inside the mother's tummy. In all probability he won't ask for another two or three years how the baby got in there.

Loud Rock Music Can Damage Hearing

By BORIS CLARK

Loud rock music played at levels common in discotheques can permanently damage the hearing of many listeners, says Dr. Frederick Dey of New London, Connecticut. This hearing loss may occur without the subject feeling any pain.

In laboratory tests, temporary hearing loss was found in some young volunteers after 30 minutes of exposure to tape-recorded dance-hall music.

If young people listen to the amplified sounds for as long as two hours, Doctor Dey figures, about 35 percent will experience severe changes in hearing. — Toody's Health, May, 1969.

I suspected as much. Why is it that otherwise quite brilliant youngsters equate thundering, deafening vibrations with lovely music? To me the resemblance is extremely remote.

Dear Doril: How timid we! build up confidence in a girl to 18? She's a grandmother. Grab a nice guy who likes her a great deal — but she can't really come to trust him.

You see, she's gone out with others and has been let down. So now she is afraid this is going to happen to her again. We've tried to help her, but I'm afraid we have not succeeded.

She has lots of friends but doesn't want to go out to any social functions in her town. My girl friend and I are worried and would like to help her get rid of this feeling.

So we decided to write to you for help. — Pals.

Dear Pals: Eighteen is too young to throw in the sponge — and unless she has been truly devastated, she won't.

It takes time to build confidence. She is at least letting him take her out; and he can convince her of his worth by being reliable, helpful, thoughtful.

Your job is to let her know you think she's great, and to be there when she wants to talk things out.

Dear Doris: My son is planning to be married and has already given his girl friend a diamond.

(1) Do I invite my future in-laws to my home to get acquainted?

(2) Do I put on a tea for my son's fiancee? If so, how soon before the wedding? — Wanting It Right

Dear Wanting: (1) Either invite them to your place or go to theirs. You are the one who makes the first move.

(2) Not necessarily, but it would be a friendly gesture — especially if she is not known to your relatives. Any time within three or four weeks of the wedding is O.K.

Confidential to Jerry's Girl: There just has to be more to it. Parents usually want their girls to get married, and if Jerry is so attractive and reliable as you say, perhaps there would be ways of pressing them.

Can you rule out (1) different religion; (2) alcoholism; (3) a jail sentence? Or do they just hate to lose a daughter?

You'd better give me more details about this dispute, if you want my ideas.

QUESTION: Would you send me information on Chicken Bouchees. — Mrs. J. R. D.

ANSWER: Because my answer to your Chicken Bouchees request will help other cocktail party hostesses during the Christmas season I decided to answer you through this column.

CHICKEN BOUCHEES

CREAM PUFF PASTE:
(Cheese Pastry)
½ cup butter (or ¼ cup butter and ¼ cup good-quality shortening)
1 cup hot water
1 cup unsifted all - purpose flour
¼ tsp. salt
4 large eggs

Add butter to water, bring to boil and when butter is melted, add flour all at once and stir hard until mixture is smooth and forms a mass that comes away from sides of pan. Remove from burner, add eggs one at a time, beating between additions until each egg is thoroughly blended in. Drop evenly but far apart on greased baking sheets in mounds size of walnuts, making about 24. Bake at 400 deg. Fahr. for 30 min., then at 375 deg. Fahr. for 25-30 min. longer. Do not underbake. Cool.

With sharp knife cut slice from top. At serving time fill with Chicken Salad:

FRIDAY

"THE INDIVIDUAL TOUCH"

When it comes to personal appearance naturally there are no two women exactly alike. Each one demands a distinctive combination of cosmetics to put them at their very best. The correct lipstick, the right make-up, the proper foundation, appealing eye make-up, effective treatments, creams and many others must all compliment one another to bring about the desired result.

The coordination of the basic beauty cosmetics requires two essential ingredients — a complete stock of available products to choose from and the expert advice of a trained beauty consultant to help you select them. It is these very features that have established the "Beauty Boutique" in Geen's Pharmacy as the authority on cosmetics in this area.

For, at Geen's "Beauty Boutique" we cater to the beauty conscious woman who wishes to always be at her very best — using carefully chosen perfumes, make-up, treatment and other cosmetic products.

Caouette Opens Fire

Levesque, Pelletier Assailed

OTTAWA (CP) — The government's Public Order (Temporary Measures) Act, 1970 remains perched on the verge of annulment today. Opposition MPs persisted Thursday in blocking a third and final vote on the bill.

The Creditistes dominated the debate Thursday and refused Justice Minister John Turner's request for unanimous consent to extend the debate beyond the usual 10 p.m. adjournment.

Today, the Commons takes up the CNR-Air Canada financing bill.

The House is expected to get back to the public order bill early next week.

Creditiste Leader Real Caouette launched his party's attack on the bill, accusing the government of hypocrisy in bringing in the emergency legislation after ignoring Quebec terrorism for 10 years.

Mr. Caouette then shifted his aim to Rene Levesque, leader of the separatist Parti Quebecois, charging he had solicited support from the terrorists he now denounces.

He held State Secretary Gerard Pelletier responsible for the rise of the terrorists. The minister had "never had the courage, never had the decency" to forbid the separatists to use the French-language network of the CBC.

While he had scorned the Creditiste call for the return of the death penalty, Mr. Pelletier now was protected by soldiers empowered to shoot anyone entering his house.

The same protection should be available to the public by putting leaders of the Front de Liberation du Quebec before firing squads.

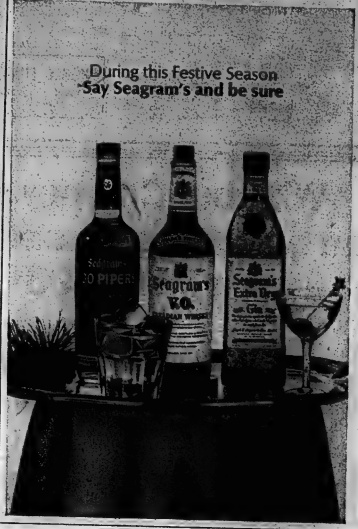
Yet when the Parti Quebecois was formed in 1968, avowed terrorists of the Rallement pour l'Independence Nationale were among its founders.

"And now he says he is against violence. It is a strange parades."



Mr. Caouette urged the government to introduce legislation to fight terrorism in all provinces, rather than just Quebec. The terrorists' goal was to "sabotage all of Canada."

Along with police powers to deal with a national threat, the government should produce social and economic measures to wipe out poverty, that breeds revolution.

Justice Minister Turner has said the bill would apply anywhere in Canada to those who advocate violence or crime to overthrow the Quebec government or Quebec's relation with Canada. But it would not apply to those pursuing the overthrow of other provincial governments.

Henri Letoilippe (Creditiste—Compton) said the country faced a world-wide Communist conspiracy which could only be met through national laws to increase police powers and cure economic disparities.

Andre Fortin (Creditiste—Lotbiniere) said the government had forsaken a promise made when it invoked the War Measures Act to propose permanent and national legislation to fight terrorism.

Is Mo-Hawk Answer 'Sweating It Out'?

by Maurice Switzer Sports Editor

You could think of a million reasons why blasted Bud Grant shouldn't be participating in tomorrow's Grand Cup.

He could Hamilton Tiger-Cats, Toronto Argonauts, and Ottawa Rough Riders, eastern pedists for the Saturday. All during the 1970 Canadian Football League schedule.

The Stampeders, loyal opposition members for Calgary West, have a few reasons of their own why Montreal will leave the CNE Stadium Saturday as lately for Grey Cup champions as they have been since 1949.

The best one is Wayne Harris, who has just won his third Eastern Conference outstanding player award. The 22-year-old Arkansas grad plays middle linebacker better than most Middlest. Harris made 17 unassisted tackles in the Western Conference final at Regina last Sunday and caused single-handedly contained the Roughriders' George Reed in Calgary's exciting 23-14 back-yay win.

Experts (who also predicted Argos all the way last season, remember?) say Calgary's defensive final will be a low-scoring defensive battle, and Harris has a more superb reputation than any other defensive captain in Canadian football.

The Stamps only gave up 220 points in their 16 regular-schedule games. From the Rockies to the Laurentians, only Saskatchewan and better. (286 against), but the Roughies were 4-14-2 against-wise — Calgary was 9-7 in third place out west.

Harris has a loving assignment, according to Calgary coach Jim Duncan. "His assignment is to go to the ball, no matter what, except on rare occasions when our defensive coach calls for a blitz."

Duncan claims a strong rush by Stamp front four Dick Suderman, John Helton, Fred James, and Craig Kalman usually accomplishes that. Tommy Ehrgo, besides scoring the win out of opposing quarterbacks.

WAYNE HARRIS
Too Stingy?

It permits Harris to play rover and allows the Stampeder defense to combine man pass coverage. "Other clubs, to apply the same pressure, have to blitz. Most clubs can't stand that kind of pass into man-to-man pass coverage," Duncan explains.

The blitz, as every hoopsville knows, occurs when one or more linebackers take it into their head that the opposing quarterback is the only thing standing between them and a cashier's cheque for $1,000,000.

When a blitz works, the quarterback is usually sorry he didn't accept that ping-pong relationship to Pavlov. But in the event he ended—up the defence with some sly gimmick like a screen pass the would-be members couldn't shovel the egg off their faces.

"Because we only rush our front four, we can stay in our regular zone coverages," says Stamp mastermind Duncan. "We think that will give Sonny Wade a lot of trouble Saturday — a strong rush combined with zone coverage."

Duncan's defenders practised what he preached in their interdivisional meeting with Montreal, an 11-4 win Oct. 7, with one exception.

Defensive halfback Frank Andrush stuck like glue to sticky-fingered Alouette split end Terry Evanshen. The strategy worked: all-star Andrush limited Evanshen to one completion for two yards until it was too late in the game to make any difference.

There's nothing Duncan would like less than to see Evanshen, a former Stampeder, burst the Grey Cup balloon that Calgary has been blowing up since 1962. So the creative coach-psycher will probably find himself given special shadow treatment Saturday.

Like blitzing, man-to-man coverage is a calculated risk. One slip by the defender and a guy like Evanshen is home-free. Many Montreal opponents this year were hurt by double-teaming Evanshen, leaving other receivers open.

But if anyone has experience in slippery situations it's the Stamps whose word completely after a rugged three-game western final with Saskatchewan was frostbite.

Tomorrow's Tyrsole climate will be like spring training for Calgary, a blistering 60 degrees without even a blizzard to make them feel at home.

Offensively, both teams have potentially explosive performers, with running-backs Hugh McElmain (1,125 ground yards for Calgary) and Moses Denson equally capable of breaking a game wide open.

Once again we have the three-worn task of determining the importance of experience. Most of the Stampeder starters played in the 1962 Grey Cup loss to Ottawa while 32 Als are newcomers to their club, and almost all rookies to Grey Cup action.

As far as incentive, the Als have the momentum of being year-long underdogs to make the playoffs, let alone the Grey Cup, the Stamps went runners for their narrow 1962 defeat, and neither club has won the Cup since the days of the five-point touchdown.

Under ideal conditions, the Stamps should have their Larks, by about 27-17. But if it snows, hails, or sleets, Calgary ball-carriers will go through Montreal like so many frosted pastimes trying to live up to their name.

Coach Dave Jones thinks the season is the current Mo-Hawk soccer dynasty might be just sweating it out."

The Belleville mentors, who dropped two more games to Owen Sound last weekend, are in real trouble carrying more than their share of the play, says Jones. Jones goal means to perspire tonight as they host the Oakville Oaks in a 8 p.m. Memorial Arena game.

The Oaks, who along with Owen Sound Crescents and Kingston Aces are the brushfires down Belleville's fourth-place tank in the eight-team OHA Senior A standings, have handled the Mo-Hawks easily in their last five games, including a 6-2 win this season and all four meetings last winter.

But Oakville has won only three games to date this season and Jones knows tonight's game is a "must" two points with the locals facing the prospect of a Sunday visit to league-leading Orillia.

The Oaks, who started out the season minus veteran defender "Smitty" Smith, goalkeeper Pete Bettles, both traded to Galt, are now without centre Jim "Obie" O'Brien. The defending league scoring champion, who was dealt to Orillia after refusing to play in Oakville, has done a lot of scoring damage to Belleville.

That gap in the Oakville lineup doesn't concern Jones as much as some of the filled spaces in his own.

"What's to change? The lines are playing well — in three games now we've had 45 shots and only scored two goals", Jones said. "Maybe we'll just have to sweat it out until the puck starts going in."

Jones admitted he had been player-hunting this week without much success, although he may have a chance after Christmas to fill the four playing cards the Mo-Hawks have left.

The club is now carrying 16 players including goaltenders Steve Ivor and Bob Moore. Jones said he was debating which of the two to start against the Oaks tonight.

Jury Stepping Up Junior Hockey Ladder

By ERIC EMERSON
Staff Sportswriter

Barrie sales in Toronto undoubtedly hit a peak yesterday as Belleville Fairway netminder Ron Jury shed his Afro hair style and prepared to spend some time in Marlboro country.

Toronto Marlboro manager Tim Smythe contacted the Fairways' Jim Matthews Thursday to inform him that his Junior 'A' team wished to sign the Belleville standout.

"I talked to talk to Ron, but he was out getting a hair cut. Right then I knew he must be pretty serious about playing Junior A", chuckled Matthews.

Jury, who played Junior B he key for the first time in 1969 won the Most Valuable Player award and helped put the Belleville juniors in the playoffs with his standout play in the Belleville nets. This year he has continued his work as a strong point of the Fairways' defence, allowing only 34 goals in six games for the 19th - place mark.

RON JURY
Makes Cut

Coach Floyd Crawford was resigned to the loss. "Sure we're going to miss him, but I always felt that Ron had the ability to play Junior A. I hope he makes it big up there", he added.

Jury could see action tonight when the Marlboros take on the Kitchener Rangers.

The signing of the Belleville netminder means that two of the ten teams in the league will be employing Quinte area puck stoppers. The other of course is Peterborough sensation John Garrett, who played his minor hockey in Trenton, and is currently leading the league with his goals - against average of just over two per game.

Already playing on the Marlies are Trenton products Bob Dalley and George Ferguson.

The loss of Jury will mean that back-up goalie Ernie Istead will be in the nets for tonight's Junior B. contest with the Oshawa Crushcan.

Istead's only appearance so far this year was a third-period exhibition stint in Kingston, where he gave an impressive showing blocking 28 of 29 shots.

Sunday, the Fairways are back in Belleville to take on the fourth - place Oshawa Cougars.

Lancaster Makes It

West Captures All Individual Awards

TORONTO (CP) — If Thursday's selection of Canada's outstanding football players is a guide, the West is a shoe-in to take the Grey Cup game Saturday.

Western Football Conference players swept the three individual spreads, it was announced.

Ron Lancaster, Saskatchewan Roughriders' quarterback, was named Canada's outstanding football player. Linebacker Wayne Harris of Calgary Stampeders was tabbed the country's outstanding lineman and British Columbia's Jim Young, a running back, took the award for top Canadian.

Earlier, Ray Jauch, coach of Edmonton Eskimos, was named coach of the year in the Canadian Football League.

And Calgary could maintain the Western Conference domination of the CFL awards in 1970 by winning Saturday's game here against the Eastern representatives, Montreal Alouettes. The only individual trophy still to be decided is the Labatt award, a 1971 model car which goes to the outstanding performer in the Grey Cup game as selected by reporters covering the national final.

It was Lancaster's first triumph in the national balloting although he had been named winner of the Jeff Nicklin Trophy as the WFC's outstanding player on four occasions—1966, 1968, 1969 and 1970.

Harris is the first in the 18-year history of the awards to take the outstanding lineman award three times, winning previously in 1965 and 1968.

Young, in his fourth year with the Lions, was the WFC representative in the top Canadian category last year but lost in the final to four-time winner Russ Jackson, Ottawa Rough Riders' quarterback. Jackson, now retired, also won the outstanding player award last year before closing out a brilliant 13-year career with Ottawa.

Lancaster, who won 22,089 through the election defeated ace receiver and kicker Tommy Joe Coffey of Hamilton Tiger-Cats, the CFL's all-time scoring leader with 947 points.

Coffey, who has also caught more passes than anyone in CFL history and is just a few yards shy of becoming the career leader in past yardage, said the tension of the past three days has been like nothing he's experienced.

"My hands were just like this," he said, extending trembling hands straight in front of him. "Walking all that time and knowing I had lost."

How did he know?

"You've got to be kidding. A pass receiver beat out a quarterback? What a chance."

Harris topped defensive tackle Angelo Mosca of Hamilton, whose only previous nomination was a first-ballot selection in 1963.

Coffey, whose pass-catching and place-kicking talents carried him to the EFC scoring title this year with 113 points, expressed disappointment in losing to Lancaster but said there was some solace in that "It's always nice to lose to somebody else who wears a crewcut."

While receiving the award, Young expressed thanks to three people: his coach, Jackie Parker; team-mate and quarterback Paul Brothers for throwing passes to him; and Jackson "for retiring so I could win it."

Harris felt an added thrill to this year's award in that it was the first time the lineman award has been won three times by the same person.

Outstanding Player

Ron Lancaster, quarterback of the Saskatchewan Roughriders, is winner of the 1970 Schenley Award as Canada's outstanding football player, it was announced at the Schenley Awards dinner in Toronto Thursday night. The award was worth $2,000 to Lancaster. (CP Wirephoto)

Liggins Plans to Outfinesse Collins

TORONTO (CP) — Offensive guard Granville Liggins of Calgary Stampeders, putting his faith in speed and agility, plans "an interesting day" for anybody bigger and heavier opposite him in the Grey Cup game Saturday.

"I can't stand up and fight somebody," said Liggins, converted this year by Calgary Stampeders from a defensive tackle. "Because of my size, I can't outmuscle my opponent. . . . I have to get low and block him around the waist."

He plans this treatment for Ted Collins of Montreal, a 265-pound tackle and Liggins' defensive opposition when the Stampeders and Alouettes clash in the Canadian Football League's championship game.

Liggins, at 220 pounds, will give away 45 pounds to Collins, formerly of Ottawa Rough Riders and Winnipeg Blue Bombers.

But the 26-year-old Calgary veteran figures he'll be "a little quicker" and outfinesse the slower Collins in the Grey Cup battle.

Relaxing after Calgary's 90-minute workout Thursday, considered a fight session by most observers, Liggins said he prefers his new position after two seasons as a defensive player.

". . . Running after those halfbacks used to strain me . . . I don't get a chance to stick anybody like I used to. Now they're sticking me, especially Ed McQuarters of Saskatchewan."

Liggins, who missed most of the season with a groin injury, held his own against McQuarters, Canada's lineman of the year in 1967, during the Western Football Conference playoff final.

Calgary won the best-of-three series 2-1 to advance to their second Grey Cup in three years against the Eastern Conference champions.

If one listens to teammates and centre Basil Bark, Liggins did a terrific job against McQuarters.

"He did the best job I've ever seen on McQuarters. . . . It's pretty hard to outmuscle him (McQuarters) but Granny almost held him to a standstill."

On adjusting to offence, Liggins said:

"It was a pretty big change for me . . . it helped my injury. Playing defence I had to exert myself more, but on offence all I have to do is get there and keep the opponents away from our men."

Detroit, Minus Stars, Wins 4-2

By IAN MacLAINE
Canadian Press Staff Writer

Names like Jerry Hart, Larry Brown, Serge Lajeunesse and Jim Niskanop don't ring many bells around the National Hockey League, but that doesn't alter the fact they played key roles in Detroit Thursday night.

The four Red Wing rookie defencemen provided a solid enough front for goaltender Roy Edwards as the injury-riddled Detroiters dumped Vancouver Canucks 4-2 to tighten their battle for fourth place in the East Division standings.

Hart's second goal of the season in the middle period proved to be the winner as Detroit moved to within four points of the Canucks and six of third-place Montreal Canadiens who were idle Thursday.

In other games, goaltender Ernie Wakely and St. Louis Blues continued to dominate East Division teams this year with a 1-0 victory over Toronto Maple Leafs, rookie Gil Perreault's 19th goal of the season aided Buffalo Sabres into a 2-2 tie with New York Rangers, and Boston Bruins nearly blew a three-goal lead before tripping Chicago Black Hawks 3-2.

At Detroit, the Red Wings played without injured superstar Gordie Howe and veteran defencemen Gary Bergman and Ron Harris.

But the rookie defenders and veteran Dale Rolfe were equal to the occasion. Niskanop, a native of Detroit, was making his first start with the Red Wings after being called up from Baltimore Clippers of the American League.

Edwards was particularly sharp on several Canuck shots early in the game. He turned aside 25 but lost his shutout bid at 4:49 of the third period when Andre Boudrias notched his 11th of the season with the Wings holding a 3-0 lead.

Defenceman Bob Plager scored on a 35-footer in the second period for the only scoring in the game at St. Louis, moving the Blues to within two points of West Division-leading Chicago and giving them a 6-1-3 won-lost-tied mark against East Division teams this season.

Toronto goaltender Jacques Plante, long a favorite in St. Louis before going to Toronto last summer, was given a standing ovation by the 18,419 St. Louis Arena patrons when he stepped on the ice for Toronto's first visit of the schedule.

He matched Wakely in the first period, turning aside 15 shots, but couldn't handle Perreault's long shot at 18:59 of the second period after the St. Louis rookie intercepted a Toronto pass.

Perreault's goal late in the second period at Buffalo climaxed a Buffalo comeback which moved the Sabres into sixth place in the East, one point ahead of Toronto.

Veterans Bob Nevin and Jean Ratelle had moved the Rangers into a 2-0 lead in the first period, but Sabres goalie Roger Crozier stopped them cold in the final 40 minutes as he turned aside 39 shots, 18 in the last period.

Bobby Orr, John McKenzie and Johnny Bucyk sent the Bruins winging on home ice, but they were forced to hold on before snapping Chicago's unbeaten string at 19 games.

Montreal received unwelcome news Thursday when it was disclosed Jean Beliveau had been sent to hospital with circulatory trouble in his right leg. A club spokesman said the veteran centre and team captain would miss Monday's weekend games against Pittsburgh Penguins and Detroit.

In Halifax, Montreal general manager Sam Pollock said "five or six" teams were negotiating for the services of Ralph Backstrom who retired before the season started after 10 years in the Canadiens' organization.

All Star in Rookie Year

'Superman' Denson Eager to Test Stampeders

TORONTO (CP) — Moses Denson, Montreal Alouettes' powerful running back, wasn't happy with his first three Canadian Football League games.

Denson, an Eastern Football Conference all-star in his rookie year, was allowed only 'round two carries a game for the first three games."

"I wasn't happy about it, but the team was winning so what can you say," Denson said Thursday, after the Alouettes finished a rugged 75-minute workout at suburban Stadium Centennial Stadium.

It's a cinch Denson won't suffer from an inferiority complex because he is overlooked Saturday when the Als, representing the East, meet Calgary Stampeders in the annual Grey Cup contest.

And of his performance of late, Denson may come in for some special attention from the Western Conference Stampeders.

"No it wouldn't surprise me at all," Denson said. "But I doesn't bother me either."

Head coach Sam Etcheverry said Denson's upswing came after the Maryland State dropout was used sparingly in the early part of the season "playing some and not some in the backfield and after he carried the ball eight times in our first three games."

"We finally placed him back in the backfield and this has finally given Moses an opportunity to show what he can do," Etcheverry said.

And Denson, who never played high school football but learned the game while doing a four-year stint in the United States Marine Corps, perked right up at the opportunity.

He carried the ball 118 times in the regular season for 626 yards, fourth-best in the EFC, had a 7.3-yard average per carry, but scored only one touchdown along the ground. He also caught 25 passes for 327 yards and another six-pointer.

He is described by Etcheverry as "one hell of a blocker," and a fine athlete.

After his discharge from the marines, Denson attended Maryland State for three years.

He said that with the exception of his first season with the Alouettes, when he had been a fullback, he always had fallen into the rough category of a halfback.

"But never on defence," he said. "Always produced the offence."

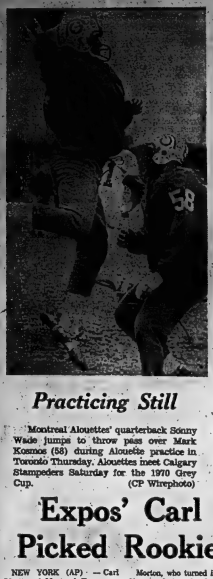
Asked how he fared against the Ramsdens in the Als' 11-4 defeat in Calgary Oct. 7, Denson said:

"Pretty fair, considering I only carried the ball once in the first half. I finished up with 186 yards on six carries and I hope it's a new record."

Denson scored Montreal's lone touchdown in the second game of the EFC final at Hamilton last Saturday as the Als advanced to the Grey Cup with an 11-4 win on the day and a 43-36 edge in the two-game total-point series.

Asked about Denson's performance then, spoken he played with a new back, Etcheverry described Moses as a "super man."

The assessment brings roars of laughter from Denson, noted for his second-effort moves for added yardage moves that invite particularly-hard shots by opposing defenders.



"That's not me," Denson said of Etcheverry's description. "It's just my style of running I guess."

Denson said the major differences he found between the Canadian and U.S. games were the wider field and the fact that "your backs are allowed in motion."

Asked about reports published in Montreal some time ago that he may not return to the Als next season, Denson said: "I'll be back."

He and his wife will make their off-season home in Montreal, where both attend Sir George Williams University in an effort to complete their educations.

He said the injured back, which bothered him during the EFC playoffs, had been "a little sore at the first part of the week, but it's fine now."

Landrys Have Real Thanksgiving

By DICK COUCH
Associated Press Sports Writer

From Detroit to Dallas, U.S. Thanksgiving Day was a feast for the National Football League Landrys.

Greg Landry of Detroit Lions outdueled an NFL super passer for the second time in five days and Tom Landry of Dallas Cowboys outscored Green Bay Packers for the first time in Thursday's holiday attraction.

Detroit's Landry fired three touchdown passes as the Lions roared from behind to topple Daryle Lamonica and Oakland Raiders 28-14.

Dallas coach Landry, (no relation to the Lions' second-year quarterback) called offensive signals from the sideline as his Cowboys finally overcame a long-standing Green Bay hex and pounded the Packers 16-3.

The victories enhanced the Lions' and Cowboys' playoff hopes while endangering Oakland's perch atop the American Football Conference's Western Division and dropping the fading Packers below the .500 mark.

Kansas City's defending Super Bowl champions, now just one game off Oakland's pace in the AFC West, can tie for the lead with a victory over visiting San Diego Sunday.

Detroit is virtually out of reach of first-place Minnesota in the National Conference's Central Division. But the Lions' 7-4 record keeps them in contention for the playoff spot which goes to the second place club with the best won-lost mark in the NFC.

Dallas, also 7-4, could contest Detroit for that post-season berth if the Cowboys are unable to overtake first-place St. Louis, 7-3-1, in the NFC Eastern Division race.

Minnesota puts a seven-game winning streak on the line at New York against the always-formidable Jets Sunday while St. Louis, which hasn't allowed a touchdown in four consecutive games, plays Philadelphia at home.

Elsewhere Sunday, Los Angeles is at San Francisco in a showdown for the NFC West lead, Cleveland risks its AFC Central edge at Pittsburgh, the New York Giants visit Washington, Chicago is at Baltimore, New Orleans at Cincinnati, Denver at Houston and Boston at Buffalo.

The Lions spotted Lamonica two first-quarter touchdown passes to Fred Biletnikoff, then stopped the AFC's leading passer cold while Landry mounted an overwhelming counter - attack.

He hit Alex Taylor with a 12-yard scoring pass and flipped 30 yards to Charlie Sanders, who made a diving catch, for another touchdown to knot it at 14-all before the halftime break.

Then he tossed a six-yard pass to Sanders, who made another acrobatic grab, in the final quarter before sending Mel Farr 11 yards on the ground for the winning score.

Landry, who had eclipsed San Francisco's John Brodie, top passer in the NFC, with three TD passes in a 38-7 victory over the 49ers last Sunday, finished with 16 completions in 25 attempts for 194 yards and accumulated seven items for 77 more.

Lamonica was only 7-for-20 before giving way to 43-year-old George Blanda in the last quarter and, for the first time in a month, the miracle worker was unable to rescue the Raiders, 8-2 2 after the end of a seven-game unbeaten string.

Expos' Carl Morton Picked Rookie of Year

NEW YORK (AP) — Carl Morton of Montreal Expos, an outfielder who could pitch better than he hit, was named the National League Rookie of the Year today, edging Cincinnati Reds' Bernie Carbo by three votes.

CARL MORTON

Morton, who turned in an 18-11 record for the last place Expos, attracted 11 votes from the 24-man committee of the Baseball Writers Association of America. Carbo, a hard-hitting left fielder, had eight.

The 25-year-old right-hander thus became the first member of the Expos to win a major award after they had picked Morton, the fifth pitcher to win the award since it was originated in 1940, was drafted from Atlanta Braves, who signed him originally as an outfielder. He gave that up after hitting .239 in 1965 with West Palm Beach in the Florida State League and .227 with Kinston in the Carolina League in 1966.

As a pitcher, he had a 10-9 mark with Kinston in 1967, then 13-5 in 1968 with Shreveport. He was 4-3 in 1969 with Montreal before being sent to Vancouver Mounties where he had an 8-6 mark.

Last spring, he started the season with the Expos and soon became the ace of the staff, pitching 284 innings, completing 16 games, throwing four shutouts and recording a 3.69 earned run average.

The six-foot, 200-pounder is only the third player on an expansion team to gain rookie honors—Tom Seaver did it for New York Mets in 1967 and Lou Piniella of Kansas City Royals won in the American League last year.

Thurman Munson was named the American League top rookie for 1970 Wednesday.

Grid Hall Selections Announced

TORONTO (CP) — The first Montreal team to win the Grey Cup and the last club to capture the trophy three years in a row were represented in the 1970 selections to the Canadian Football Hall of Fame.

The hall, scheduled for its official opening in Hamilton's Civic Square next September, reached a membership of 67 Thursday when the selectors named Geed Perry, captain of the 1931 Montreal Winged Wheelers, and Ken Montgomery and Johnny Bright, president and fullback respectively of the Edmonton Eskimos of 1954, 1955 and 1956.

The 1931 Wheelers climaxed an unbeaten season by crushing Regina Roughriders 22-0 in a game chiefly remembered for the first touchdown pass in Grey Cup history, a 46-yarder from Warren Stevens to Kenny Grant.

Bright and Normie Kwong, who preceded him into the hall last year, were the twin fullbacks whose crunching ground attack powered the Eskimos to five consecutive Western Conference titles from 1952 to 1957 and three successive triumphs over Montreal Alouettes.

Montgomery, road secretary of the Eskimos during their two years in the Western Interprovincial Football Union in 1938 and 1939, became president of the club when it was revived in 1953 and was one of the founders of the Canadian Football League.

Ontario Has Musical Entry

TORONTO (CP) — The Ontario government will contribute gold-helmeted motorcyclists and four musical groups to Saturday's Grey Cup parade.

They are the provincial police Golden Helmets, precision motorbike-riders; the Jalopy, a Timmins Dixieland group; the Kawgutha Kavaliers, a drum and bugle corps from Lindsay, and the Rhythmic Five and Concordia Schuhplattlers, a German band playing com-pah-pah and a dance group in lederhosen and dirndl, both from Kitchener.

This is the first year for a live-entertainment entry by the province. In other years it entered a float.

Warmer Day Now Expected

TORONTO (CP) — The weather office Thursday said Grey Cup day Saturday may be warmer than had been expected.

The forecast had been for temperatures in the 30s but has been revised to the low 40s, with cloudy skies.

KILLING YOURSELF

By DR. GEORGE CRILE, JR.
Author of "The Doctor Looks At Life"

Dear Dr. Crile: My 4-year-old son throws tantrums. He's on the go all the time. He seems very restless. He is destructive around the house. Outside he is always fighting with other kids. He doesn't get along well. . . .

He won't concentrate. He becomes frustrated when a toy doesn't work and flops on it in anger or throws it against a wall. He always seems exasperated. Being between, although parents, is not unexpected, too. Speaking hasn't helped? We gave that up long ago.

We've taken him to our family doctor who says, "he'll grow out of it. Give him time." Isn't it surprising that he refuses to write out a prescription? The boy is getting no medicine whatever, not only are my husband and myself almost at the end of our rope, we think there's be a "double hexagine" if we don't find the solution to our boy's problem. It just doesn't seem natural that he appear only healthy boy around at all. . . .

Comment: It seems makes one sick to think of the countless young boys and girls who have been severely punished and misunderstood, by their parents and teachers, for "being bad." These treasures of kids were as blameless as if they coughed with pneumonia or had pain in the belly because of appendicitis.

Many of these children have what we call minimal brain dysfunction, (MBD). Sometimes such children grow out of it". But it's too long to wait! I suggest you ask for a pediatric consultation. Perhaps it's time now to try stimulating medicines.

Lately, there have been dramatic results from the use of a well - known stimulating medicine given orally to child rather than further stimulates it to overactivity. Ask the doctor. It may transform your life as it is changing. Suitable "good boy" almost overnight.

• • •

Dear Dr. Balzarotti: Why do adult aunts should boast their nieces and nephews around? My husband's sisters are forever slapping my kids. And other children, too. It makes me feel ill to see them do this to them. Had my husband doesn't seem to mind. What would you do? — Mrs. J.

Comment: I'd take away the welcome mat. If that didn't work, I'd change the locks on my doors. Then they might catch on why they are not feeling friendly in your home. It's your job to protect your children, until they are old enough to protect themselves from overbearing aunts 6' 6" inches, or opposite.

For Mrs. T.: Recurring urinary infections of the bladder are common in women, yet they should not be taken lightly. It's important to discover the cause. Is it true infection below, or from a descending infection that begins in the kidney (like pyelonephritis, for example)? Suitable drugs and other antibiotics usually control them quickly. However, if they persist, it makes good sense to consult a specialist.

• • •

For Mr. G.: The fact that your glaucoma has improved after taking eye drops daily for three months is reason enough to continue this treatment as your doctor advises rather than stop it to "see what happens." By discontinuing the medicine you gamble with your vision.

'Naughty' Children May Be Blameless

Sydney J. Harris Says

U. S. Began in 'Treason'

One of the oddest quotes I have read recently came from Lt.-Gen. Ira C. Eaker, USAF Air Force (Retired), who said the following in a speech to an Air War College graduating class:

"I believe that when some historian of the future does the job on us which Gibbon did on Rome, he will find that the first certain evidence of our decline was our tolerance of treason."

In the first place, historically speaking, treason had nothing to do with Gibbon's thesis or the decline of Rome — but whenever a speaker wants to make a show of learning, he cites Gibbon on the decline of Rome as a parallel to "our times; one can "prove" anything this way.

More importantly, the U.S. began in what men like Gen. Eaker would have called "treason." When Patrick Henry stood up in the Virginia House of Burgesses to warn King George the Third that we would not stand for the Stamp Act, the Speaker of the House cried "Treason!" — and Henry made his famous reply, "If this be treason, make the most of it!"

The established authorities call everything "treason" that does not suit their purposes or fit their own particular notion of what is proper. A "traitor" is any dissenter you would like to do away with and cannot find a legal means of shutting up.

This was clearly understood by President James Madison, one of the framers of U.S. Constitutional liberties. In the Federalist Papers, which formed the country's political structure, Madison warned of the dangers of "artificial treasons", by which change each faction seeks to "wreak its alliorate malignity on its opponents."

Because, Madison said, it is so easy and so dangerous for one faction to accuse the other of being "treasonable," the Constitutional Convention "with great judgment opposed a barrier to this peculiar danger, by inserting a constitutional definition of the crime fixing the proof necessary for the conviction of it, and restraining the Congress, even in punishing it, from extending the consequences of attainder beyond the person of its author."

What Gen. Eaker calls our "tolerance of treason" is precisely the principle the U.S. is founded on. Indeed, anyone who pored most be impressed with the fact that British lost her colonies exactly because she called "treasonable" the attitudes of patriotic men like Henry and Madison, who simply wanted a larger measure of justice and representation for the people. Nations decline not when they tolerate treason, but when they repress legitimate dissent with what Madison called "the mighty engine of artificial treason."

Satellite Station Sites Selected

OTTAWA (CP) — D. A. Golden, president of Telesat Canada, said Thursday the main earth station for Canada's government-backed domestic space communications satellite will be at Allan Park, Ont.

The second major earth station, which will both send to and receive signals from the space satellite expected to be operational in 1972, will be at Lake Cowichan, B.C., Mr. Golden said in a speech to the Professional Engineers of Ontario and the Engineering Institute of Canada.

Besides being main sending and receiving points for the satellite, Allan Park and Lake Cowichan would control the jets aboard the satellite to keep it in its proper orbit, Mr. Golden said the Allan Park station would be the main one for these duties and also for tracking of the satellite.

Other ground-receive stations would be built across the country to pull in television and other communication signals from the satellite and redistribute them in their specific areas.

Television distributions would be at St. John's, Nfld., Halifax, Montreal, Winnipeg, Regina and Edmonton. There also would be such stations, separate from the main Ontario and British Columbia earth stations, near Toronto and near Vancouver.

Frobisher and Resolute Bay in the Northwest Territories are the two main signal receiving stations planned for the North, Mr. Golden said.

The Telesat head said plans for a public share offering in Telesat Canada "are not yet firm" and "it may be that no such offering will be made until we have at least one satellite in orbit and operational."

THE LITTLE WOMAN

"You're wasting your time, lady—you're still getting a ticket."

Land Compensation Board Starts Work December 1

TORONTO (CP) — Ontario's new land compensation board will start operations Dec. 1, Attorney-General Arthur Wishart announced Thursday.

The board will set compensation to be paid in expropriation cases in the province.

The seven board members are Thomas A. Conway, 47, former lumber man and owner of Barry's Bay; George Maxwell Hobart, 45, London, Ont., a former president of Utility Paper Co. Ltd.; Col. G. Peter Marriott, 58, of Ottawa, a former commander of Camp Shilo, Man.; James McConaghy, 63, for eight years an East York alderman; Donald W. Middleton, 68, Toronto, a former secretary of the Ontario Federation of Agriculture; Ernest E. Reed, 54, Thunder Bay, former mayor of Fort William; Lionel Lalulippe, 58, of L'Original, a former assessment commissioner.

Chairman of the board will be J. S. Yorger, a former deputy provincial secretary. Vice-chairmen will be Roy Grant, a Mount Forest lawyer, and Gordon Ford, a Toronto lawyer.

Jeane Dixon's Horoscope

For November 28

Your birthday today: A year of peculiar contrasts begins. On one level you charm people into confiding your very secrets and may have difficulty distinguishing between truthful talking and tactful silence. On a social contact, the will your family and community develop special consciousness of their duty description. Romance personifies your whole life now, and an lovelorn undercurrent. Today's natives display benevolent, cheerful qualities with quite a gift of talk.

ARIES (Mar. 21 — Apr. 19): Children of connections, social life, to get your ventures into a high level of activity. Get technical help, for your job is highly specialized if available.

TAURUS (Apr. 20 — May 20): Attend to legal matters, insurance, tax returns, and such. Invite advice from important people and learn of an unused opportunity. Promises made now are binding.

GEMINI (May 21 — June 20): Marital or partnership concerns take on lively importance, but save some time to make a bid outside your private life. The evening should be active, inspiring.

CANCER (June 21 — July 22): Consultation with people in confidence goes well. Pursue career advancement. Seek to be of service in your community — there are tangible and intangible rewards.

LEO (July 23 — Aug. 22): Your restraint on material resources is a quietly important factor today. Romantic and sentimental feelings are linked by nostalgia for a mystical past.

VIRGO (Aug. 23 — Sept. 22): Your insight is your very asset them for communication. Intuition, based on years of your social skills and knowledge of people.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 — Oct. 22): Attend correspondence. Contacts with people while traveling may lead to long-lost relationships. Ask and answer questions. Plans for the future take precedence.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23—Nov. 21): Financial affairs — and your job — can take a sudden upturn. Pursue your advantage with whatever is presented while the chance lasts. Make your talents visible.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 — Dec. 21): Promote your plans ostensibly all day. Start with the more important people and go on wherever they lead. The evening brings a mood of satisfaction, a healthy fatigue.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 — Jan. 19): You have powerful support from people if you show them that they can help without getting involved. Seek connections even in very unlikely places.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20 — Feb. 18): Now you are apt to let the idealism of your friends lead you into unworkable programs. Make sure the decision and responsibilities are not primarily yours.

PISCES (Feb. 19 — Mar. 20): Give attention to your career. Plan ways of presenting yourself to better effect. You can recover lost ground in areas where you have been neglectful.

REAL ESTATE FOR SALE

SUMMER AND WINTER HOME

Located on a lovely section of the Moira River, just north of Corbyville, we have a delightful 3 bedroom split level, with a full sized dining room and a living room with a corner fireplace. There is a large rec room area also with a fireplace. A beautiful kitchen and broadloom throughout. Attached garage and large lot. A great home for all seasons.

EAST END BEAUTY

A lovely treat in the new East end area and opposite vacant property owned by the school board. This 3 bedroom split has 4 bdrms, 2 storey home. There is broadloom in the living room and dining room, paved drive and carport and 1½ bathrooms. It has a 6% N.H.A. mortgage good up to 1980. A very fine home indeed.

DUPLEX

On East Main, on their right side, is a 2 storey duplex with 2 bedroom flats on each, both up and down. Rental income about $1,000 a month and the asking price only $18,900. Reasonable taxes. Why not look this one out as an investment for your future. Call this evening for particulars.

Familiar Name To Be Missing

MARMORA (Staff) — Nominations for municipal office in this village tonight will be without a familiar name.

William Shannon, sweet of Marmora for 14 years and a former warden of Hastings County, this week retired from council.

The municipal government veteran has been appointed clerk - treasurer of the village, succeeding Miss Miriam Savage who has held the post many years.

During his years in elected offices, Mr. Shannon faced only one election campaign. He was county warden during Centennial Year and has served on many county government committees.

Up to his retirement he was chairman of the county's planning board and a member of its municipal reform committee.

Tonight's nominations here are at 7.30 p.m. in the municipal offices.

Signals Stuck, Truck Is Hit

A CNR official in Montreal has confirmed that the signals and wigwags on the East Moira railway crossing had been operating for almost two hours Wednesday night when a truck collided with a slow-moving railliner while attempting to drive around the barriers.

The official said the signals operated and the gates were down from 6:05 p.m. until 10.36 due to mechanical failure.

A Gait man sustained minor injuries to his knee when his truck was struck by a train on the crossing.

The man, Clarence E. Cavanagh, 28, was driving a 1970 Ford truck that sustained an estimated $1,500 damages as the train struck it on the crossing.

Police said that the truck had waited at the crossing for five railroad seals the gates were down and the red lights flashing before it attempted to cross between the barriers. The train that struck it was travelling at three miles per hour.

An unidentified witness to the mishap told The Intelligencer early yesterday that the signals had been operating for a couple of hours about the time of the mishap at 9:44 p.m.

She said that she had complained to CNR officials previously that signals operated for great lengths of time and that trains did not pass. She said impatient motorists then drove between the barriers.

Long Walk For Charity

It's going to be a long walk home for six Quinte Secondary School students this weekend, but it's all going to be for an important cause.

The six students, Fred Archer, Mark Adamson, Ed Reeves, Bill Andrews, Nigel Roulet and Bob Boudreau, will walk from Toronto to Belleville to raise funds in the cause of Muscular Dystrophy.

The walkers will drive from Belleville to Toronto and then walk back, sponsored by interested citizens for every mile they walk. They will return in the school.

The young people should be back at the school sometime Sunday afternoon. They will leave Quinte Secondary by car Friday afternoon at 3.30.

Thurlow Council To Be Decided

There'll be a four - man race for three council seats in Thurlow Township.

Two more men qualified their nominations Tuesday in the council race, joining Garnet Dwyer and Fletcher Reid who qualified shortly after their nominations Monday night.

Incumbent Donald McKnown and Jerry Masterson qualified. A fifth nominee, Walter Hamilton, declined to run.

Incumbents reeve Horace Casey and deputy - reeve Reuben Forsythe were acclaimed at the nomination meeting and will serve another term.

Provinces Can't Agree on Consumer Protection

TORONTO (CP) — Canada's provincial governments have been unable to agree on a uniform set of rules governing consumer protection.

"We're closer now, so agreement there is very near, but we're still very different," said Bert Lawrence, Ontario financial and consumer affairs minister, following Thursday's meeting of a conference on consumer protection.

All a keen conference following closed sessions, reporters, ministers of all Canadian provinces except Alberta, the Ontario minister said there was a split when it came to legislation governing credit cards.

"The British provinces and British Columbia said legislation is not needed at present but Manitoba, Saskatchewan and Ontario disagreed.

"Ontario and Saskatchewan both in control credit was being abused.

Dr. G. A. Tracier of Newfoundland said various provincial governments are at different stages of consumer protection.

Ontario, the industrial heart of Canada, is faced more acutely with the problems, he said, because of the impact of the United States.

Mr. Lawrence agreed, saying that while Ontario imported many consumer "diseases" it exported many to other Canadian provinces.

"Brand new fads or gimmicks spread like a disease," said Mr. Lawrence. "They're like a virus and they are bound to hit us in Ontario and, indeed, in Quebec."

Mr. Lawrence said the provinces had reached agreement on many issues but several others still were to be settled.

William Tetley, Quebec minister of financial institutions, said that while his government was taking a serious look at credit and consumer buying, unemployment and social unrest were the priority aspects of Quebec administration.

Earlier, Jan Hatuschak, Manitoba's minister of consumer affairs, proposed an aggressive, Canada-wide education program to acquaint consumers with their rights and responsibilities under existing legislation.

He said such a program would prevent many consumer problems "before they occur rather than attempting to find solutions for them afterwards."

Ontario Launches Winter Works Program

TORONTO (CP) — The Ontario government has officially launched the winter campaign against unemployment by calling immediate tenders on two public works buildings worth about $3 million.

Neither project was included in the public works approved for this year.

Premier John Robarts told the legislature last month some projects had been delayed as a "shot" for use if the economy slowed down. He said that with Ontario unemployment at about four per cent of the labor force, some of the delayed work will be started this winter.

Jet Crew Made Ride to Death In Calm Professional Style

TORONTO (CP) — The flight deck crew of an Air Canada Jet-liner rode the aircraft to a fiery crash with a calm, methodical professionalism as the Jet's right wing disintegrated, spelling instant death for all 100 persons aboard.

"Sorry, Pete," co-pilot Donald G. Rowland said to Captain Peter Hamilton just before the impact. "All right," replied the veteran pilot.

A transcript of what was said in the cockpit by Captain Hamilton, First Officer Rowland and Second Officer Harry Hill during the last minutes of Flight 621 that was read into the record of a federal inquiry Thursday.

The transcript was made from the Jet's flight recorder, recovered undamaged from the wreckage.

There was only one instance when any of the men in the cockpit uttered excited words tinged with emotion. When it appeared the ground spoilers were deployed inadvertently, Captain Hamilton shouted through the intercom: "No! No! No!"

"Sorry, Pete," answered First Officer Rowland. In the three minutes that followed until final impact, the co-pilot said the phrase twice more:

"Sorry, Pete . . . Oh, sorry Peter."

The ground spoilers are steel panels on the wing surfaces that act as a braking device to slow and steady the aircraft after its wheels have touched down on the runway.

Investigators believe the ground spoilers on Flight 621 were activated manually, and prematurely, while the jet was still in the air, about 60 feet above runway 32.

Commission counsel R. J. MacKinnon explained that Captain Hamilton disagreed with his first officer on how the spoiler system should be deployed: Captain Hamilton's practice was to deploy them on the ground manually while the co-pilot armed the spoiler system in the air for automatic deployment at touchdown.

The flight recorder also made a record of electronic data from the Jet's 71 different systems, indicating the spoilers were deployed a split second before Captain Hamilton uttered "No! No! No!"

The jetliner slammed into the runway at 8.56 a.m. in a right-wing-down position and the outer right engine ripped off, taking the pylon connecting it to the wing surface with it.

Captain Hamilton wrenched the jet back into the air to attempt another landing approach—standard procedure in incidents of this sort.

"We have lost our power," Captain Hamilton said as the aircraft lurched off the runway.

"Something's happened there . . . that's No. 4," replied the co-pilot.

Actually, the first explosion had blown off the inner right engine, No. 3. Second later a second blast blew off a chunk of the wing.

"Pete, sorry . . ." First Officer Rowland said after the new blast.

Five seconds later came an even louder explosion. More of the wing fell away. The aircraft was on its way down, at a speed of 220 knots, nose first.

"All right," said the captain.

Ground control came through: "The status of your aircraft please."

"We have an explosion," answered Captain Hamilton, his words framed by the sound of wind, tearing metal in the background.

"Oh, look, we have got a . . . flame," said First Officer Rowland. "Oh, gosh!"

The transport department experts who prepared the transcript were unable to determine who uttered the final remarks to come from Flight 621, just six seconds before it hit the ground at 8:59 a.m.

"We have lost a wing . . ."

And then, nothing.

Bolivian Admits Aim Was to Murder Pope

48 Persons Die

Vietnam-bound Plane Crashes

ANCHORAGE, Alaska (AP) — A chartered DC-8 jetliner carrying military personnel and dependents crashed, exploded in towering flames and burned on takeoff Friday night, killing 48 of the 230 persons aboard.

Three persons are missing, said an Alaska air command spokesman who gave the death total.

The spokesman said 168 persons, more than 100 of them injured, were counted at a hospital on earby Elmendorf Air Force Base. He said 11 others were in Achorage hospitals.

The spokesman said the plane carried 219 passengers and 11 crew members, one more than given in earlier reports.

A witness said the plane, owned by Capitol International Airways, was moving "too fast to land and too slow to take off" when it crashed at Anchorage International Airport after refuelling and changing crew.

A survivor said the plane "only climbed for a few minutes, then it sort of glided down."

John Pederson, an airport mechanic, said the plane's nose dropped, then ran off the runway. It caught fire, he said, and then exploded twice about three or four seconds later.

Master Sgt. Robert Kellar of New York, a 16-year army veteran who said he survived two previous crashes, told of "panic at first, three or four seconds at most."

The father of six said other soldiers quelled the panic "instantly, and this was one of the things that pulled us out."

Kellar suffered minor injuries.

The flight originated at McChord Air Force Base, Tacoma, Wash. It was to have stopped at Yakota, Japan, as well as Anchorage, en route to Cam Ranh Bay, South Vietnam.

The plane also carried military dependents, including at least one child. They apparently were bound for Japan.

Terrorism Inevitable --Bourassa

QUEBEC (CP) — Premier Robert Bourassa said Friday terrorism is here to stay in Quebec.

"Even if we had a totalitarian regime, I don't see how we could stop it," he said in an interview.

"We can reduce it by taking away popular support for it and any sort of sympathy there might be for terrorists among the population."

The premier said political kidnappings are by no means over.

"Who can tell what will happen in 10 or 15 days," he said, "especially with the kidnappers of Cross and Laporte still on the loose?"

In two political kidnappings last month, the FLQ claimed responsibility for the kidnap-murder of Pierre Laporte, former Quebec labor minister, and the abduction of British envoy James Cross, believed still alive and in the hands of his captors.

Painter Insists He Acted Alone

MANILA (CP) — The Bolivian painter charged with trying to murder Pope Paul admitted his guilt today and said he felt "lousy" because his attempt failed.

He also said he would try the same thing again, "with pleasure," if he had the chance.

Benjamin Mendoza y Amor, 35, of La Paz, who had been charged with assault and attempted murder, commented to reporters after being brought to a news conference by police.

"Are you the one who attempted to assassinate the Pope?" one reporter asked.

"Yes sir," Mendoza replied.

A man in priest's robes tried to till Pope Paul with a double-edged Malayan dagger at the Manila airport Friday, moments after the pontiff arrived on the third stop of his tour of Asia and the Pacific. Mendoza was carried away by police. The Pope was unhurt.

The new conference was held at the National Bureau of Investigation, where Mendoza is being held.

Mendoza said he thought Philippine President Ferdinand Marcos was the man who pardried his hand when he attacked the Pope.

Today's Chuckle

Sign on a church bulletin board: DO YOU KNOW WHAT AGONY IS? Come in and here our mixed quartet.

Shown a photograph of the president, he said: "After seeing this picture I am now reminded that this is the person who parried my hand."

"I was not sure yesterday but now, upon seeing the picture of Marcos, he is," Mendoza said.

Several witnesses said the president, standing close by the Pope h3 Mendoza's hand with a karate chop as the man attempted to stab the pontiff.

Police said today that Mendoza denied his attack was part of a pact and insisted he was acting alone. They said there had been speculations that outside interests might be involved because he is a foreigner.

Jolly Bugarin, director of the National Bureau of Investigation, said Mendoza was being held in 14,000 bail, the maximum allowed for attempted murder charges. But he said more charges might be filed.

If convicted on the present charges Mendoza faces jail terms of between 12 and 40 years.

Vatican officials admitted today that the Pope felt a shove during the scuffle which took place after the attacker hanged at him.

Church Gathering Divided

TORONTO (CP) — Deep divisions on questions of ritual and doctrine among the clergy were evident today as the general commission on church union again took up the task of laying the foundations of a new Christian church for Canada.

Differences of opinion on many matters came up early in Friday's first session of the general committee's eighth meeting. Not the least troublesome was the name to be suggested for the church that proponents of union hope will replace the country's two largest non-Roman Catholic denominations and a smaller group, the Christian Church (Disciples of Christ).

Canada Wins Backing in UN For Arctic Pollution Curbs

UNITED NATIONS (CP) — Canada has won a large measure of international support for the principle behind the establishment of the 100-mile pollution zone in the Arctic.

The support is shown by the fact that the idea is covered in one of the 15 points of a Declaration of Principles on the exploitation of the seabed that is being discussed here.

But, while Canada's action in establishing that zone seems to have achieved considerable agreement—however reluctant in the case of some countries—her action in declaring a 12-mile territorial coastal limit has put her under the gun.

Two speeches by her closest friends—Britain and the United States—contained indirect criticism of the unilateral declaration of the 12-mile limit.

All this has come up in the General Assembly's main political committee which has started debate on the international seabed.

The declaration, which has wide agreement in principle, says areas except the Soviet bloc, says that the international seabed is the common heritage of mankind that must bé open for use exclusively for peaceful purposes by all states.

It calls for creation of a yet-to-be-defined international regime that will have wide jurisdiction over the orderly and safe development and rational management of the area.

From Canada's point of view it contains two highly important points—both inserted at Canadian insistence.

It says states have the right to take measures "to prevent, mitigate or eliminate grave and imminent danger to their coastline or related interests from pollution or threat thereof resulting from, or from other hazardous occurrences caused by, any activities in the area. . . .

The other point says the rights and interests of a coastal state must be taken into account when something on the seabed is being exploited. This would cover, for instance, all the well somewhere more than 12 miles off the coast of Canada.

Grey Cup Day Opens With Dazzling Parade

TORONTO (CP) — Miss Grey Cup and about 3,000 friends moved in on downtown Toronto today, providing their annual proof that the joys of a national football festival are not confined to sports fans.

Accompanied by her eight fellow-finalists, the newly-crowned queen occupied a place of honor in the 23rd Grey Cup Parade, sharing top billing with singer Anne Murray, the grand parade marshal, and quarterback Ron Lancaster of Saskatchewan Roughriders, outstanding football player of the year.

Curbside spectators without tickets for the game between Calgary Stampeders and Montreal Alouettes were guaranteed a close-up view of one of the participants, Calgary linebacker Wayne Harris.

Along with halfback Jim Young of British Columbia Lions, the top Canadian player, Harris rated a spot in the parade by being chosen as the best lineman of 1970.

At last count, the Toronto Junior Board of Trade estimated that another 22 floats, 24 marching bands, 20 majorette groups and about a dozen miscellaneous entries would take part.

The paraders, from points as distant as Moncton, N.B., and Vancouver, competed for prizes of their own. Awards were to be presented for the best float and the top three majorette groups.

It all started at 9 a.m. EST where it all used to end, at University of Toronto Stadium, where Toronto Grey Cup finals were played until the Canadian National Exhibition Stadium became the site in 1959.

Taking 90 minutes to pass a given point, the parade covered three sides of a rectangle, travelling east on Bloor Street, south on Yonge and west on Queen past a reviewing stand at the city hall.

Linda's Lassies from Elyria, Ohio — 156 strong — were the largest group of majorettes. Parading all by herself was Debbie King of Burlington, Ont., the 1970 world champion flag twirler.

An Ontario Provincial Police group of motorcyclists offered a display of precision riding and a soft drink company had a float in the shape of a pirate galleon.

THE WEATHER

Synopsis: Today's maximum will range from the low 40s in southern Ontario to 10 above north of Lake Superior. Although tonight's low readings are expected to hover near 32 near the lower lakes, in the south they should drop to 10 or 15 below zero. Sunday's highs will range from 15 in the north to near 40 in the south. .....

TORONTO (CP) — The Great Atlantic and Pacific Tea Co. will give their employees a smaller Christmas bonus this year than last, a move that has brought objections from their meatcutters, who say the "usual" bonus of one week's pay — $131 for a meatcutter — has been cut to $35.

Choquette Probes Beatings

QUEBEC (CP) — Justice Minister Jerome Choquette said Friday some prisoners had been beaten and Mr. Choquette said he first heard of the incidents "a few weeks ago" from Jacques Hebert, head of the committee.

The investigation into the beatings will be carried out by a three-man disciplinary committee of the QPP.

The number of policemen involved "seems limited," the justice minister said. The prisoners had not been tortured.

"It seems the beatings occurred during the night after Mr. Laporte's death, or in the days that followed."

Former labor Minister Pierre Laporte was kidnapped Oct. 10 and found dead in the trunk of an abandoned car early Oct. 18.,

Meanwhile in Montreal, three men and two women who testified at the coroner's inquest into the death of Mr. Laporte pleaded not guilty Friday to charges laid against them under the terms of the War Measures Act.

Richard and Colette Therrien and Francois and Francine Bellaile, two brother-and-sister pairs who lived in the apartment, and Francois Roux, a friend of Francine, were charged in preferred indictments which means they will be tried by judge and jury without the usual preliminary hearing.

The Start of A Feat of Feet

Six high school students set out by car from Quinte Secondary Sch ool yesterday, hopeful of walking from Toronto to Belleville this weekend. Aiming to raise money to fight muscular dystrophy, they are (from left) Bill Andrews, 18, Robert Boudreau, 17, Mark Adamson, 19, Nigel Roulet, 15, Fred Archer, 17, and Ed Reeves, 19.

Tough Bargainers

Teachers Biggest Single Expense in Education

By LENNY WILLIAMSON
"Staff Reporter"

Teachers are the trouble with education. Just ask any student.

But beyond the narrow confines of the classroom, the teacher problem centres on complexities unthought of by the student-consumer who is on the receiving end of what the teacher has to offer.

The root of putting them in the schools is the biggest slice of the education pie.

In this manner will boards be able to squeeze enough money out of their tight budgets to pay teachers more.

"Current teachers' salaries are realistic or compatible" with those in business and industry, the council maintains. That report has filled school administrative buildings across the province with bellow laughing. The teachers will be back at the negotiating tables in the new year with increased salary demands and probably secure their objective.

The law of the market place is the only way out — when the supply of teachers exceeds the demand, boards will be in a position to bargain.

That point was reached last year with elementary school teachers as teachers' colleges turned out more graduates than the system could absorb.

Secondary school teachers saw the handwriting on the wall previously.

The teacher-board dispute in Toronto last year was the opening round of a struggle that can spread across the province and lock teachers and trustees in combat for some time to come.

With the supply of secondary school teachers almost equal to the demand, the Toronto teachers sought to create an artificial teacher shortage by lowering the pupil-teacher ratio, and thereby cutting the size of classes. Automatically, more classes would be created and more teachers would be needed.

The mechanics of creating an artificial teacher shortage were simple — it was called the teachers' right to negotiate "conditions for quality teaching". In effect, this meant the teachers wanted to negotiate class size.

Some trustees capitulated this device continuing until teachers were refusing to teach more than four or five pupils at a time — maintaining all the while that as professional educators they had the right to determine what was conducive to quality education and this could only be achieved by limiting classes to a handful of students.

This was the reason school boards across Ontario, including Hastings, swung their support behind the Toronto trustees and refused to hire any secondary school teachers until the dispute was settled. The teachers lost.

But there is no doubt in most trustees' minds that the pupil-teacher ratio will be brought to the bargain table again this next year.

Another way to put boards over the barrel is to limit the supply of qualified teachers turned out by colleges of education each year. The new McArthur College at Queen's University was supposed to enrol 600 students by this year, but only about half that number are now taking teacher training. By coincidence, this is about the number that can be absorbed in the secondary schools of the eastern Ontario area until traditionally hire most of McArthur's graduates.

Picton Stores Announce Hours

PICTON (Staff) — Holiday store hours for the town of Picton have been announced by Ronald Scott, president of the Prince Edward Chamber of Commerce. To accommodate Christmas shoppers retail stores will remain open on Wednesday afternoon beginning next week. Evening shopping hours will be extended beginning December 14 when stores will remain open daily until 9 p.m. except Saturdays when the regular 5.30 p.m. closing will be in effect. Stores will also close at 5.30 p.m. Christmas Eve.

Railways Warn Snowmobilers

Snowmobiles beware!

Railway police are stepping up surveillance near railroad tracks in an effort to deter the snowmobiler from using the right-of-way.

Those caught can expect prosecution for trespassing and fines of up to $100 under the Railway Act.

Each winter snowmobilers are operated carelessly on tracks and railway rights-of-way.

Accidents have resulted, frequently with people travelling in the same direction as moving trains. The riders that were killed or injured were unable to hear the train over the noise of their own engines.

Special squads will patrol the tracks in the discourage offenders and prevent further accidents.

Shoppers Warned

With the upcoming Christmas shopping season, police chief Douglas T. Crosby has issued a warning to shoppers to take extra care with purchases.

"Be sure and lock all purchases in the trunks of your cars to minimize opportunities," he said.

"Extra care should be maintained because of heavier traffic during the Christmas season."

Warkworth Escaper Captured

BRIGHTON (Staff) — Freedom was shortlived for an inmate who escaped from Warkworth medium security prison north of here yesterday.

Provincial police reported that Allan Clifford Saunders, 43, of Saskatchewan, had been apprehended at the school yards and disciplines of the area by a police officer.

Saunders, serving a sentence on two convictions of armed robbery, set off a province - wide alert when he was released from the prison at 2.15 p.m. yesterday.

He will remain in provincial police custody until Wednesday when he will appear in court to face charges of motor vehicle theft and being unlawfully at large.

Maternity Inadequacies Outlined To BGH Board

Maternity facilities at Belleville General Hospital are inadequate and should be replaced as soon as possible.

A consideration of factors that created the strain and — as listed by Dr. J. R. Birchard, chief of BGH's obstetrics and gynecology department—these include:

Rising birth rate, population expansion and evolution of BGH from a localized Belleville to serving a regional centre where special facilities are in demand by all Quinte area communities.

Such pressures are compounded by the unsatisfactory hospital layout that forces doctors to move problem delivery cases from one hospital wing to another.

This is a situation Dr. Birchard described as "potentially dangerous and very embarrassing."

The inadequacy of facilities is evident in all phases of the maternity department's operation — from labor and delivery rooms to nursery facilities. Dr. Birchard emphasized in a report to the board.

Board members agreed the situation was in dire need of remedy — by moving delivery and labor units out of the hospital's older section and into the new wing which now is the centre of BGH's service.

Dr. Birchard's report also emphasized that a new location for post-natal care requires "considerable discussion."

How long it would take to bring such projects to reality is an unknown factor, a nod must be required while the empowering provincial government agency — the Ontario Hospital Services Commission.

But the governors agreed the need should be tackled right away.

"Whatever we're going to do should be done right away," agreed Barrister Jack Brown, the board's property committee chairman.

Steve Brown believed the OHSC might favor the projects because of BGH's growing regional significance.

"I think it has priority over everything," agreed trustee Russell Scott. "We've just got to go ahead with it — move on it, and move as fast as we can."

The problem first began some years ago when budget costs forced delay of installing maternity facilities in plans for the new BGH wing opened in 1960.

The unit remained in the hospital's old section and its problems now have been "brought to a head," said Dr. Birchard's report.

The present situation isolates the obstetrics and gynecology department from the special services housed in the new wing.

This means that expectant mothers in need of special attention must be transferred down a public elevator to the basement, from there past the new emergency department to X-ray and operating facilities, says the report.

This trip involves a certain risk for the mother going to and from the labor and delivering room," warns Dr. Birchard's report. "It involves a risk to the newborn infant whose section baby being transferred back from the operating room to nursery.

It can also mean a "great deal of embarrassment and inconvenience" for a mother in shock or hard labor.

"Similarly" — adds the report, "the lack of proximity of the blood bank imposes further risk."

Dr. Birchard also notes lack of air-conditioning in labor rooms and nursery. Air-conditioning in the delivery rooms is faulty.

"Perhaps no other area in the hospital requires air conditioning more than the labor rooms," his report stated.

Arena Fans Are to Get Better View

North end patrons during hockey games at the Memorial Arena are going to be given better view of ice activities, as a result of a decision taken Thursday night by the Recreation and Arena Committee.

The committee members voted to install plastic protective glass at the north end of the arena which is expected within three weeks.

Early this year the committee budgeted an amount of $2,760 in the year's budget to install the protective glass at both ends of the arena.

A quoted price of $2,671 was received for the installation, but through a misunderstanding it was later found the amount was for one end of the rink only.

There was some discussion at yesterday's meeting whether it would be advisable to install the plexiglass now before the arena reliability study was received.

The study report, expected at the end of November or early December will hopefully indicate whether it would be feasible to update the 45-year-old arena.

But even if renovation is indicated, there was doubt that anything would be done for at least 18 months or more.

When it was pointed out that the plexiglass would be salvagable in case of extensive arena alterations, committee members voted to have the work done.

"INTELLECTUALS"

I write like this to prevent you from being led astray by someone or other's stereotyped arguments, though I am a long way away from you in body, in spirit I am by your side, watching like a proud Father the solid steadfastness of your faith in Christ. Just as you received Christ Jesus the Lord, so go on living in him — in simple faith. Grow out of Him as a plant grows out of the soil it is pleased in, becoming more and more sure of your faith as you were taught it, and your lives will overflow with joy and thankfulness.

Be careful that nobody spoils your faith through intellectualism or high-sounding nonsense. Such stuff is at best founded on men's ideas of the nature of the world and ex-gerods Christ! Yet it is in him that God gies a full and complete expression of Himself (within the physical limits that He set Himself in Christ). Moreover, your own completeness is only realised in Him, who is the authority over all authorities, and the supreme power over all powers.

John Reynolds Named New Reeve at Marmora

MARMORA (Staff) — The reeve and council of this village for 1971 were acclaimed at a nomination meeting here last night — ruling out the need for a local council election.

Acclaimed as reeve was veteran councillor John Reynolds, succeeding William Shannon, who retired this week after 19 years on council — 14 of them as reeve.

Acclaimed to council were incumbents Grant Arbuckle, Albert Gray and William Marsh, and newcomer Kenneth Trumble.

Villagers, however, will be asked to vote for two public utilities commissioners.

Opening Delayed

With work stoppages resulting from rain, snow and frost, the hoped-for opening date for the new Dundas Street bridge has now gone by the boards.

So Lafarge Construction Company, general contractors for the reconstruction of Dundas Street, Trenton, and for approaches to the new bridge have been given a delayed deadline of sometime between December 11 and 19.

But despite inclement weather during the past few weeks the contractor has made definite progress.

Curbing and pavement at the west approach has all but been completed; men are working on the east approach and curb and gutter is under way up the Dundas Street hill. Also, the layer of asphalt on the south land had been put down from James Street to west of Mary Street.

Body Found In Well

A 51-year-old resident of the Tyendinaga Mohawk Reserve was found dead after he apparently fell in a well near his home.

Provincial police say they are continuing investigations into the death of Harvey Wilson Lepveen. No foul play is suspected.

The well is in a field near Mr. Lepveen's home on the Slash Road.

The body was taken to Toronto for a post-mortem.

No Snowmobiles At Sandbanks

Restricted use of snowmobiles will be permitted in some provincial parks in the Quinte district this winter.

But at least one area will be Sandbanks Provincial Park in Prince Edward county — will be off limits for the motorized tobogganing.

The Ontario Department of Lands and Forests issued a press release notes that snowmobiles are prohibited at 14 provincial parks, including the Sandbanks area.

Snowmobiles — restricted in the special sand marked trails —will be permitted at 15 provincial parks, including Bon Echo Park, Gullies Beach Park, Presqu'ile Park, Serpent Mounds Park at Rice Lake and Darlington Park near Oshawa.

Single Parents Back Proposal

The Belle - Trent chapter of the Parents Without Partners Association Wednesday submitted a brief endorsing certain clauses contained in the White Paper entitled to Stanley Minister Benson.

Endorsement of the proposal that would afford tax relief to working parents for such items as day care expenses and babysitting fees, came after careful study of the proposals.

Support for the premises outlined in the brief was offered by the Central Regional Council at their April, 1970 meeting held in London.

In a summary of their support, the Bell - Trent chapter states:

"We endorse the proposed deduction for child care expenses.

"Implementation of this proposal would not could affect over eight per cent of the families of Canada, possibly allowing some to enter the labor force, rather than relying on governmental assistance."

Parents Without Partners, an international organization founded in New York in 1957 including 500 chapters in continental North America, Australia and Britain, came to Canada in 1962.

Well Water Nitrates Dangerous to Infants

Rural householders — specifically expectant mothers and families with infants — are being cautioned against nitrates in well water by the Hastings and Prince Edward Counties Health Unit.

Nitrates carried into drinking - water mainly by farmland runoff — can cause serious illness, even death, in babies under six months, says Dr. C. R. Lenk, medical officer of health.

Nitrates can attack to red blood cells in infants and prevent the cells circulating oxygen - around the body, Dr. Lenk explained.

He described the warning as a "routine measure" and said there was no cause for alarm.

"There is no danger of it in places on municipal water supply and babies above the age of six months would not be affected," he said.

However, persons using well water in homes with small babies or expectant mothers should have the water tested regularly for nitrates.

"Boiling the water or any chemical action does not help," he added.

Dr. Lenk said he believed one infant death in the Quinte area earlier this year had been linked to nitrates. However, he was out of the district at the time and had no specific details.

Advice and bottles for test specimens can be obtained from local public health nurses or health inspectors.

Madoc Parade Next Friday

MADOC (Special) — A carnival atmosphere will turn the village streets here into a mardi gras of fun and frolic on Friday, Dec. 4.

For 23 consecutive years, Madoc District Chamber of Commerce has held a Santa Claus Parade, and for the second year in a row, the parade will be held at night.

Festivities will commence at 7:30 p.m. on Russel Street, terminating in a cordoned "mall" in the main business section.

Included in the event will be bands, floats, majorettes, clowns and Santa will be on hand to hand out thousands of bags of candy to the children.

Something new this year: hot coffee will be supplied free of charge.

Considered unique in Ontario, the night-time parade attracts thousands to line the streets. More than 1,200 bags of candy were distributed by St. Nick last year.

Step-sitters Concern YMCA

The growing number of young people inhabiting the steps of the Belleville Family YMCA has caused concern for Y directors.

"We are reactant to call police," said George Diamantides, general secretary.

Both Mr. Diamantides and chairman John Hayman agreed that the problem was not so much to remove them but "where do they go?"

"We're concerned with this problem," said Mr Hayman.

"We want to see if we can find some alternative for them; some place to go."

He explained that various schools and directors of education have been approached to inquire about providing school facilities for the young people.

Supervision for these proposed programs would be provided by the Y's Men's Club.

Some damage has occurred recently at the Y, especially the replacement of windows and front door glass due to breakage.

Mr. Diamantides informed the board that the parties involved were making restitution of their own free will.

The directors Wednesday voted to replace the glass bottoms of the eight Y doors with metal panels because of frequent breakage

Whey Disposal Still A Problem For Most Quinte Cheesemakers

By HARRY MULHALL
Staff Reporter

The cheese industry, while it manufactures an unique product, also faces a pollution problem created by that process.

The built-in problem is whey — a cheese byproduct — and ways and means of successfully solving the situation in an era emphatic about pollution control now is being faced by the industry.

But the process of finding a viable solution satisfactory to society and the industry is complicated — as the Central Ontario Cheese Maker's Association convention learned yesterday.

The Association already is tackling the problem through its Action Committee on Whey Disposal — and the detailed work of this group formed the basis for a panel discussion as the two-day convention neared its end at the Sun Valley Motor Inn.

The discussion itself may have reached no hard and fast conclusions, but it did emphasize the extent to which the committee has pushed the whey disposal problem and its localized application to the industry in the Quinte district.

The committee's recent report related the over-all issue to district cheesemaking and still remains the definite work on the topic.

After yesterday's panel discussion, committee chairman Douglas Rowe said the report's submissions had been filled with the Dept. of Agriculture and Food and the committee now is "more or less just standing by for any recommendation that will come up."

Among the committee's conclusions read to the delegates yesterday is that government assistance is necessary to resolve the disposal problem in the Belleville area.

The committee concluded that in the past "long-overdue solutions" have been hampered by inertia, low profits, inefficiency and a general lack of awareness of pollution dangers.

Among solutions proposed — by the Ontario Water Resources Commission — was the building of a whey - drying plant in the Stirling area. Such an operation would mean finding markets for whey powder.

Other possible solutions included feeding of whey to hogs on cheese farms, and installation in cheese factories of a filtration process known as reverse osmosis.

However, the cheesemakers were told, this method apparently is still in the experimental stage.

A continuing research program funded by government and industry at Guelph University also is recommended.

However, the committee concludes, in view of the "magnitude" of the disposal problem, no new cheese factories should be licensed unless "the applicant shows that he has an entirely satisfactory method" of disposal.

Several cheesemakers at yesterday's discussion felt the problem could simply be solved by returning the whey to farmers for livestock feed.

Walter Jess, Trent River cheesemaker, said the whey as feed was the most economical solution for the industry and the farmer. Whey was a cheap and nutritioned feed for livestock.

"Whey is the best feed you can get," said Mr. Jess, and farmers might well be educated in its use for livestock purposes.

Another cheesemaker suggested farmers might be giving incentive payments to encourage them to take the whey from cheese factories after they have delivered milk to cheesemakers.

Yesterday's session also brought a new executive to head the association for another year.

Glen Anderson was named vice-president and Mrs. Lillian Matthews of Belleville, secretary.

Directors are Harold Kingston, Harrowsmith; Ted Foley, Derbyville; Lewis Keller, Milford; Wilson and Ernie Reid, of Stirling.

Separate Board Room Snug: Fire Marshal

On top of everything else, trustees of Hastings Prince Edward separate school board may soon be kicked out of their board room.

The fire department said the board could continue to use the room for meetings, provided attendance was confined to the board only.

J. J. Sheridan, manager of plant, said he thought this restriction was made because the 1968-70 board had 14 members, and with all in attendance, together with members of administration who must be present at meetings, the maximum would be reached.

From three to five members of the board's supervisory personnel are usually present at meetings, leaving a safety hazard that forced it to limit the number of people permitted in the room.

The fire department said the board could continue to use the room for meetings, provided attendance was confined to the board only.

J. J. Sheridan, manager of plant, said he thought this restriction was made because the 1968-70 board had 14 members, and with all in attendance, together with members of administration who must be present at meetings, the maximum would be reached.

From three to five members of the board's supervisory personnel are usually present at meetings, leaving room for one extra body to be accommodated.

But the size of the 1971-72 board has been whittled to 12 and trustees decided to leave the question of a meeting place to the newly elected trustees.

Several other solutions were suggested and rejected.

Among them were construction of another exit from the basement, turned down because of cost; restriction of the number of visitors permitted at public meetings, turned down because of its illegality, and moving of public meetings to St. Michael's or George Vanier schools, turned down because of inconvenience.

Sunday Races Turned Down

A motion by Alderman Donald Souther for approval of Sunday auto races was defeated on a close vote, while a following motion by board member Robert Phillips was also turned down.

Board member Alderman Robin Jeffrey said she had to consider residents in the fairgrounds area who might object to the roar of motorcycles on a Sunday afternoon.

Industrial Park Is Recommended

PICTON (Staff) — County council's Industrial and development committee has recommended use of land adjoining the Prince Edward County Home for an industrial park. It was also suggested that industrial commissioner William J. Duggan examine the possibility of making this county - owned property available.

At a meeting of county council this week it was observed that the area surrounding the county home is already served for water and sewage.

Picton Reeve Bernard Hepburn has said that he is in complete agreement with new industrial development but remarked that although the new sewage main to the county home is adequately sized, it feeds into a smaller network within the town limits. To correct this situation, if necessary, he suggested that a cost - sharing plan should be included in any study. He stated that he would work with county council toward a suitable agreement.

Chairman of the industrial committee, Hallowell reeve George Vincent said that he and fellow committee members were unaware of the problem mentioned by reeve Hepburn when they discussed the project. He added that his committee would be receptive to the negotiations suggested by Mr. Hepburn.

We respect the value of the school dollar

Both ours and yours

Did you know that the budgets of all school boards are subject to the approval or disapproval of the Minister of Education?

This guarantees all taxpayers that public funds for education will be used to their fullest advantage.

Separate Schools have always been operated economically. Their supporters approve the sharing of services, facilities and special programs, to avoid duplication of costs.

Naturally if Separate schools were extended to include the last three high school grades the practice of economy and cooperation would also be extended.

The extension of our schools to the end of high school would not cost any more than the education of our students in a public school system.

What Does Future Hold?

We have had plenty of evidence of late of man's lack of foresight — even in the light of ample prior warning of trouble and even tragedy ahead. In the political sphere there is Quebec; there the authorities were appalled well in advance of what to expect, but they did nothing, with what disastrous consequences the province and country are now experiencing.

In the realm of natural forces, we see what has happened in Pakistan, at the mouth of the Ganges. Here there has been a catastrophe of awesome proportions involving loss of life in the thousands and potentially around two million when the final approximate tally is known.

But was Pakistan prepared for such a tragedy, even with the knowledge of past events of the same nature, in a regular pattern, for many years past? The answer is no.

It would be a good thing then, under these circumstances, if contemporary warnings and predictions of other future calamities were taken seriously. One in the category of politics and national survival has caught our attention. It comes from evangelist Billy Graham who says the United States is "headed straight into the arms of a dictatorship" unless there is a mass religious revival.

Looking around there is indeed ample evidence of the lack of christian ethics which, ideally, lead individuals and nations into more brotherly paths.

Dr. Graham, on a visit to Britain, warned also that the world is "building up to the greatest war in history" and said the religious revival must come in this decade if the U.S. is to avert disaster.

Now Americans, not to mention anyone else hearing or reading these words may take such a warning how they will; but they may ignore it at their peril, as Canada ignored the prediction of its existing travail, and as Pakistan ignored the strong possibility of future calamity.

What to do about it of course is something else again. But broadly speaking, any action taken will have to do only with practical considerations (as in the case of Pakistan), but with improvement of what many refer to today as "quality of life." If society continues to drift in a welter of shortsightedness, permissiveness and indiscipline, then the chances of some kind of Armageddon occurring are all the greater.

When Troubles Come

The personal tragedies of this life can be appalling in their extent and ramifications. Jacqueline Shurvell is a 26-year-old Belleville woman who has travelled extensively and recently came to Canada. She had just taken a job in a Hamilton bank and was out horseback riding with her brother and sister-in-law when her mount stumbled on a mud-slicked culvert and she toppled to the ground, striking her head on the concrete.

Miss Shurvell suffered extensive brain damage and four weeks later is reported still unconscious. A complication in recent days was brain infection and doctors say that even if she survives this she could remain in a coma indefinitely.

For the young woman's family in England it is a harrowing time. Her father came the day after the accident but returned home to take care of his seven-year-old daughter while Mrs. Shurvell, delayed initially without a passport, takes the last flight.

The following extract from The Hamilton Spectator reveals another aspect of the "tragedy": "The Shurvells, like many British families, were not aware that Canada was not covered by a free national hospitalization program, and already the hospital bill has topped $1,500."

For one family then, the cross its members bear is heavy. How many others face similar stark circumstances in their lives?

Doubtless they will add to their routine some spicy comment on the latest from Prince Philip. Women, he said recently, are better at doing repetitive assembly line jobs. How many men, he asked, could knit while watching television?

Why Now?

U.S. Air Strikes Against Reds Sparks Critical Reaction

WASHINGTON (CP) — If America's opponents in Hanoi were surprised by the weekend bombing raids on North Vietnam they were no more so than their friends right and in capitals around the world.

Among congressional leaders, diplomats, political and military observers there apparently was a common question: "Why now?"

When Defence Secretary Melvin Laird reluctantly came forth late Monday afternoon with his explanation for the Hanoi-area part of the raids the whole adventure struck many observers as even more incredible.

A team of United States reviewers, he told a news conference called after reporters had hounded the Pentagon for details, landed near Hanoi Friday in an attempt to rescue American prisoners believed held in a compound there. The prison camp was found abandoned.

The initial U.S. explanation for the other raids—retaliation for the Nov. 15 shooting down of a reconnaissance plane—struck many as highly unlikely.

The air strikes against the North before Hanoi, and in Laos and Cambodia, Laird had announced, were intended to protect pilots flying under unarmed reconnaissance missions or those interdicting the flow of Communist supplies on the Ho Chi Minh Trail in southern Laos.

By early Monday, a slightly more credible explanation had emerged.

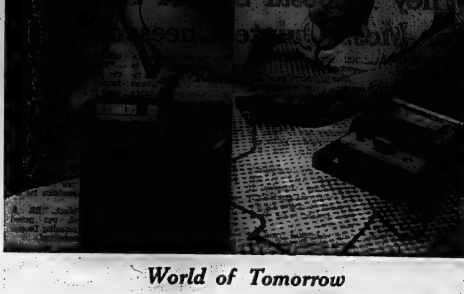
Unidentified authoritative informants were quoted as describing the strikes as a "pattern of strategic response" against the rapidly growing Communist buildup along most of the Indochina front.

Taking advantage of the dry season, the North had been for some time increasing the flow of men and weapons toward the demilitarized zone between the Vietnams in apparent preparation for a 1971 offensive.

Still, there have been no claims by military men that the U.S. and its allies were facing any huge new military threat in the intertwined theatres of war in Vietnam, Laos and Cambodia.

Although Laird's explanation for the Hanoi adventure took the wind out of everybody's sails for a while, his words, in the view of many observers, were unlikely to still the outcome of protest from congressional doves.

This was the second breach of the U.S. promise—by former president Lyndon Johnson—to halt bombing of North Vietnam on Nov. 1, 1968.



The earlier break came several days after Prince Norodom Sihanouk Cambodia, announced last April 20.

Laird's explanation aside, most observers claimed to see no military, political or diplomatic gain to justify or even balance the generally critical reaction to the over-all bombing manoeuvre.

From a diplomatic view, the action upset America's friends and was likely to stiffen the spine of North Vietnamese negotiators in Paris. The delegation has already announced it will boycott next Wednesday's session.

Militarily, it seemed senseless to claim a weekend bombing exercise would accomplish what months and months of steady bombardment failed to do in the period leading up to the 1968 bombing halt—cripple the march of men and material south.

And certainly the action will inflame domestic war critics who have been comparatively quiet since President Nixon on Oct. 7 set out his latest peace plan which includes a ceasefire offer in all Indochina.

Hormones and Spas

Trees ... People Take Rejuvenation Route

LUDWIGSHAFEN, FREIBURG — What has been a favorite regenerative and invigorating treatment for older people may soon find widespread application in forestry, German scientist Dr. Erich Kern, of Freiburg University's Institute for Forestry, has been administering hormones in conjunction with new fertilization methods to rejuvenate older trees and make seedlings grow more rapidly.

His efforts have been spurred by the inadequate yield of German forests, which makes it necessary for the country to import about 25 percent of its lumber today.

Kern launched his new efforts in cooperation with the Ludwigshafen chemical giant Badische Anilin - ut Sodafabrik (BASF) three years ago. Its special earth fertilized with nitrogen and phosphorous compounds, he explained, is increasing the growth rate of pine seedlings by 30 percent in 60 months.

To help the trees' growth, Kern further hormone sprays on the weeds sprouting up around the trees. Instead of treating the weeds with preparations designed to stop or curb their growth, he turned to hormones to speed up their growing. The result was that the weeds literally grew themselves to death. They died before blooming. They didn't reproduce and multiply. In Germany's Palatinate, where the tree hormone treatment is actually brought to a stop spring — a sort of rejuvenation cure — to 120 year old pines, which were being felled to make room for younger trees. The trees' growth rings became the percent wider and the volume of wood per tree rose 170 percent in two years.

Using the two - part method of fertilization and hormone treatment, Kern feels the forestry industry could fell trees several decades earlier to find the same amount of timber being collected today.

HAMBURG — Cure resorts, or "spas", are still popular in Europe. But in west Germany, the proprietors have found an official recognition as such and whose identification is easy because they all have the same word "Bad" before their name, there will soon be a novelty in the field — a water-borne cure resort.

Next autumn, a ship will be launched from yards in the Ruhr back as a swimming spa. The vessel will be able to accommodate 400 users and will offer three - week resort programs to passengers on the high seas.

Among the facilities on board: a gymnasium, a heated sea water swimming pool, tread-wheel bath, bicycles and other athletic equipment. Underwater massages and other spa specialties will also be available.

The sea-borne cure resort of fers a natural special that the normal spas cannot — because of geographic characteristics attributed to high - ozone air and climate. Hamburg doctor will be aboard for medical consultation and advice.

The results of "cures" on board are to be collected and evaluated as a basis for even larger swimming spas, which will offer reasonably priced trips to future high - sea lagoons. A day's full costs on the first ship will run between $38 and $54.

Lt. Dwight Swaggerman, William Carbill, "that the depredations of sea lampreys are largely responsible for the death of this type of fish". One of some 30 fishermen who searched Canadian waters said that he had travelled over the trout spawning beds and had seen many dead trout in the lines, with heads buried in the gravel and tails pointing toward the surface. These creatures, he said, were fasting on trout eggs.

The Case for Fluoridation

Dear Sir:

With regard to fluoridation, in reply to some recent letters to the Editor, I should like to comment as follows:

The drinking water standard published by and sponsored by the Ontario Water Resources Commission for fluoride treatment is that the treated water discharged into the distribution system shall contain 1 part per million of fluoride and that the permissable operation range shall be within the limits of 0.8 and 1.3 parts per million.

There are several chemicals available for the supplementation of fluorides in drinking water. Powders and liquid compounds may be used and Geo. and Storrie Limited, Consulting Engineers for Trenton Public Utilities Commission recommend that liquid hydro fluosilicic acid be used, and that for which the required amount of acid is pumped by means of a special feed pump into it the suction well. The weight of the acid, used each day, as measured by the scale, would be checked daily and the fluoride content of the treated water would be sampled by the distribution system daily. In other words, there would be no possibility that a human error or machinery malfunction could fluctuate the fluoride content to dangerous proportions.

With regard to pollution, Pollution Probe in reply to the question "Are there any indications that fluoridation of drinking water adds to water pollution?" has answered "No". This reply has been substantiated by Mr. George Kerr, Ontario Minister of Energy and Resources on the CJBQ open - line program What Do You Think? on Wednesday, November 18. He agreed that Pollution Probe is an effective and non-political group and confirmed that their answer is correct.

I should like to quote from a recent letter I have received from L. H. Bowen of the Canadian Dental Association:

"I am writing to express amazement that, in the year 1970, there are still some who have not yet accepted the overwhelming evidence that water fluoridation is one of the great public health measures of our time. Wherever it has been introduced there have been dramatic reductions in the incidence of tooth decay, for an annual cost per person equal to about that of a cup of coffee.

Among those still opposing this measure are the ones who do so on the basis that it infringes human rights. I respect their opinions but do not agree with them. This matter has been dealt with by commissions and courts in many lands including Ontario, Ireland, New Zealand, and the United States. In all cases the gist of their findings was that fluoridation by authority of appropriate legislation would not be a denial of any fundamental basic civil right or liberty which the legislature concerned should protect and preserve.

I suppose it is inevitable that a certain few opponents will try to drag in pollution as an argument against fluoridation, claiming that fluoride is a poison and that it does not belong in drinking water. The fact is that fluoride is only one of several elements such as bromine, calcium oxide, copper sulphate, iodine and sulphur which, in excessive quantities are poisons, but in right quantities are considered essential for good nutrition. It is also a fact that nearly all water supplies contain some fluoride but that most of them are deficient in the amount required to produce good teeth. When this is the case a simple controlled adjustment can be made to bring the proportion up to 1.2 parts of fluoride to a million parts of water, the level recommended by public health authorities for most parts of Canada.

Controlled fluoridation is now in effect for 90 million Americans and seven million Canadians. International acceptance was confirmed in 1969 when the World Health Assembly recommended fluoridation for introduction by member states wherever practicable "as a proven health measure", and where it is not practicable, to study other methods of using fluorides for the protection of dental health. The resolution, proposed by the United Kingdom delegation, was co-sponsored by those of 36 other countries (including Canada, Sweden, the USSR and the USA). It was adopted unanimously."

I trust that this letter will help the people of Trenton to see all sides of the question, all viewpoints, so that they will be able to make a wise decision on Dec. 7.

U.S. Banks Number Some 20,000 Women on Staff

Regina Leader - Post

Frustrated feminine liberationists might take a look at banking business.

A "quiet revolution" has taken place in banking over the past 10 years, reports the U.S. National Association of Bank-Women.

When the association was founded in 1921, there were few women in executive positions.

Figures for 1925 show there were 25 women bank presidents, 74 vice-presidents, 32 cashiers, 11 secretaries, three trust officers, 11 assistant secretaries and 11 assistant cashiers, making a total of only 3,134 women in executive posts in banks throughout the United States.

Today, the association estimates that there are more than 20,000 women bank officers in the U.S.

Statistics on association membership for 1938 showed that there were 11 chairmen of the board; five chairmen of the board and executive vice-chairman of the board and vice-president; one chairman of the board and executive vice-president, and 32 executive vice-presidents — all women.

Furthermore, executive titles held by women have increased again. In 33 publicly-held banks, senior, branch manager, comptroller, personnel officer, loan officer, trust officer and tax officer.

The percentage of women in executive positions in the banking industry is, in fact, the highest of any business in the U.S. Some 15 per cent of all bank officers are women.

As coffee talks, women are taking an increasing part in the conversation.

Presbyterian Bible Scholar Says Jesus Probably Married

NEW YORK (AP) — A Bible scholar has come up with a startling conclusion—that Jesus probably was a married man.

For His to have remained single would have been "completely foreign to the biblical outlook, both in theory and in practice," says Rev. Dr. William E. Phipps of Elkins, W.Va.

He says the facts about Jesus' life "recorded in the authoritative New Testament sources point toward a married Jesus" and bases his thesis on detailed analysis both of Scripture and the Jewish culture of which Jesus was a part.

The evidence is offered in a new book, Was Jesus Married?, to be published shortly by Harper and Row. It challenges the Roman Catholic requirement of priestly celibacy based primarily on the view that Jesus remained celibate.

Dr. Phipps, a Presbyterian clergyman with a doctor's degree in biblical criticism from the University of St. Andrews in Scotland, now heads the department of religion and philosophy at Davis and Elkins College in West Virginia.

He notes that scholars, in examining almost every aspect of Jesus' life, have avoided the question of His marital status, largely because it is "a taboo" surrounding the subject.

"This absence is especially enigmatic since marriage was the one social institution that Jesus blessed and used in His parables to illustrate the gospel," Dr Phipps says.

Christianity always has regarded Jesus as "fully human," as well as divine, and Dr. Phipps says both Scripture and modern sciences regard sexual desire as "intrinsic to human nature."

In the book of Genesis, he says, "sex is seen to be a gift of God," and its "potential for good is found not in solitary male or female but in the coupling who blend together" to become "one flesh," both Genesis and Jesus described it.

The 500 million people to attend a mass to be held Dec. 1 at the Randwick race track.

The 500-acre race track three miles from downtown Sydney was chosen because it is the only place capable of coping with such a crowd.

Bookmakers' stands will be moved and the betting board camouflaged. A specially designed altar is being built. There will be 10,000 dwarf mast of folds and white petunias about the podium.

Roman Catholics in Australia total 26.3 per cent of the 13.7 million population. The visit coincides with Australia's bicentenary marking the landing of Capt. James Cook and the start of the country's settlement.

"We want to show that all Australian Catholics and non-Catholics are proud the Pope is coming in our bicentenary year," Joel said.

The visit has caused dissension among Protestants, however. It started when Australian Archbishop of Sydney, Most Rev. Marcus L. Loane, announced he would skip interdenominational services for Christian unity to be attended by the pope.

The Roman Catholic Church and the Australian Council of Churches are inviting 2,236 churchmen to the service.

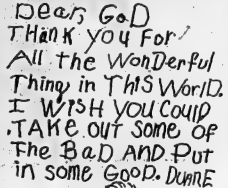
There are questions of truth which must be resolved before we can share in common worship with an unfettered fellowship with the Roman Catholic Church." Archbishop Loane said.

But the Anglican Archbishop of Melbourne, Most Rev. Frank Woods, who is acting primate of Australia, said he hoped to attend.

The superintendent of the National Methodist Church, Dr. James L. Udy, said Loane's outlook was "theologically incorrect and ecumenically myopic."

Pope's Australian Visit Planned to Last Minute

SYDNEY, Australia (AP) — When Pope Paul comes to Australia he will travel 69.65 miles by road and take six hours 30 minutes to do it.



That statistic typifies the planning for the Nov. 30-Dec. 3 visit.

The reason for such planning is the crowd expected to turn out. Roman Catholic authorities estimate 500,000 people to attend a mass to be held Dec. 1 at the Randwick race track.

The pope's longest single task of its type ever undertaken. In an enclosed area in Australia's said Asher Joel, deputy chairman for a citizens' welcome committee.

Pope Paul Will Work Double-Sunday Shift

VATICAN CITY (AP) — On his trip overseas Pope Paul will work two Sundays into his schedule, although by the calendar he will not leave the Vatican only on one Sunday, Nov. 29

The reason is the International Date Line.

The Pope will celebrate mass that Sunday in the Philippines. Then, gaining a day, he will celebrate another Sunday mass in Samoa, about 4,000 miles away.

The date line is by international agreement the line of demarcation between days—a random line of convenience. Crossing it going eastward, a person gains 24 hours; for example, arises.

noon Monday becomes noon Sunday. Crossing westward, he loses 24 hours; if he leaves Italy on a Sunday he will soon find he is in the middle of Monday.

Thus the Pope, leaving Samoa on Sunday, will arrive in Australia, has next stop, Monday afternoon.

Time is based on the Greenwich Meridian, zero degrees latitude, which runs through Greenwich, England. The International Date Line is in Pacific Ocean counterpart, generally 180 degrees east or west of Greenwich but veering occasionally to satisfy geographical requirements of national boundaries.

THE PATH OF A PIANIST...
...makes sweet music." — Shakespeare.

* * *

With rare good fortune, here, at Belleville's Radio Station CJBQ, we are interviewing Mr. R. J. (Jimmie) Corradi, whose large listening audience looks forward with weekly pleasure to his Sunday program, "Piano Etchings in Black and White."

"When I first came to Belleville," recalls a Belleville listener, "and first heard his radio program, I was certain I recognised the musical style of Mr. Corradi whom I had often heard and enjoyed in Montreal — and I was right."

"Were you born in Montreal?" we ask Mr. Corradi, who, after considerable questioning on our part, gradually, graciously speaks of his musical career, for our readers.

"No — I was born in Switzerland. As an only child of parents who loved music, (though not musical themselves), seemed to observe musical talent in me and started me with music lessons from the age of four. All of which I hated as any boy would, who would rather be outside, playing ball.

"But, of course, throughout the years, I've been grateful: basic elementary training and drilling is a must, especially, if one plans as I did, to become a concert pianist. To help reach this goal I studied in Switzerland, Germany and France.

"However, when Fate stepped in and an accident shattered my hand as well as hope for such a career, I entered the hotel business as an alternative, but my heart wasn't in it, though I did a bit of travelling.

"One day, while in Cairo, Egypt, working at the Shepard's Hotel, I happened to mention that I was feeling good. A hotel guest suggested I go to the boat. Why don't you go to Canada. It's cool there . . .

"Straightway, I went over to the hotel's ticket - office: enquired about the fare to Canada, bought a ticket for Montreal and left immediately. I told my parents farewell, enroute, in Paris. I have never been back to Europe since that year, 1923.

"I was 21, jobless, unable to speak a word of English, when I arrived in Montreal. Fortunately, I found work as a toast-master for $8 a week at the Ritz - Carlton Hotel (where I had the honor of preparing all the toast-orders for His Royal Highness the Prince of Wales, when a guest there.)

"Sometimes, after my duties in the evening, I played for the guests and a Montreal musician suggested I join the Musicians' Union, which upon doing so, enabled me to become a pianist with the silent movie Strand Theatre Orchestra. Later the Management sent me to work at the Palace Theatre in Kingston."

Along with his successful musical career, Mr. Corradi found happiness in store as a husband and father of three daughters and a son, until the Talkies banished the silent films from the screen in 1935. The Corradi family then moved to Belleville, which says Mr. Corradi "is a place I like: where one is part of the community. I prefer a place like Belleville to cities such as Berlin, Paris, Cairo or Montreal."

Mr. Corradi often plays on his radio program, the music of the silent movie days, when film movies — "Ben-Hur", "The Big Parade", "King of Kings" were playing in theatres everywhere, with "show music" which allowed disciplined musicians to play emotionally and responsively.

But there were also roadshows, when big starz came in person. "Whenever a roadshow came to Kingston", recalls Mr. Corradi, "I was sent over to the Grand Theatre, where the performance was given, to play for artists such as Jack Benny or Harry Lauder.

"Lauder was a man who never gave the same performance twice. I recall how, with his stack of music ready beside me, he would whisper aside to me, while ad-libbing to the audience from the stage: 'How about playing, such - and - such a number or song, next?' instead of the one scheduled. This entailed a frantic search through his music on my part, against time. But he was one of the great entertainers of his age.

"Such," concludes Mr. Corradi, "are the musical memories of the golden era of the silent movies, so vastly different from that of the show - musical world today."

An Event to Be Remembered

Penny Twigg, Girl Guide Receives Gold Cord

The presentation of the Gold Cord, the highest award in Guiding highlighted the International Night ceremonies at Harry J. Clarke School, on Wednesday evening.

The recipient was Penny Twigg, daughter of Mrs. A. Twigg. Lieutenant of Co. 12, who presented her with the award. Taking part in the brief opening ceremonies were Captain Mrs. G. Brennan of Co. 12 and Division Commissioner Mrs. T. R. Colden. Past District Commissioner Mrs. Dan Stewart and District Commissioner Mrs. R. Mason. Mrs. Stewart on behalf of Co. 12 presented Penny with a Gold Cord pin.

Also present for the ceremonies were Lieutenants and Guides of Co. 12 and visiting All Round Cord Guides and leaders of Co. 8, St. Michael's.

In the process of attaining the highest award, All Round Cord Guides Sherri Brennan and Jane Britton of Co. 12 and Jean Mainland Co. 8 with the use of slides and maps gave comprehensive talks on Barbados, Switzerland and South Africa respectively. Miss Brennan was particularly fortunate with first hand information having visited the Barbados. Each of the girls had an excellent display of artcrafts including purses, jewelry, accessories, wearing apparel and various maps of the countries involved.

Learning To Walk

TORONTO (CP) — Learning to walk daintily and learning to sit in a miniskirt are among problems faced by a 24 - year - old Toronto resident who became a woman this summer. On June 1, she had a four-hour sexual conversion operation which changed her physically from a man to a woman. She is one of an estimated 3,000 transsexuals living in Canada and the United States.

Ann Landers

Verbalizing A Fear May Conquer It

DEAR ANN LANDERS: A few weeks ago I bought a book on palmistry. I wish I hadn't. After I read the chapter on life lines I immediately examined the palms of my children. The three older ones have very long life lines but the 18-year-old has an unusually short life line. This has me worried sick. I find myself brooding about the early death of this child — wondering if it will be an accident or illness. This has made me overly protective and unduly apprehensive. I feel like crying every time I look at my little girl. She senses something is wrong and doesn't know what to make of it.

ANN LANDERS

I don't want to discuss my problem with anyone because they will laugh at me and tell me I am foolish. It's hard to believe that the simple act of reading a chapter in a book could ruin my life, but this is what is happening. Please help me. — L.R.

* * *

DEAR L.R.: Fear can be the most crippling of all emotions — particularly when no rational basis exists. Palmistry is a fake and any similarity between a short life line and early death is purely coincidental. I urge you to discuss this with your clergyman. He will not laugh at you — I promise. Verbalizing one's fear and examining it in the stark light of reason is the first step toward conquering it.

* * *

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I don't think I have ever seen a letter in your column about poisonous flowers and plants so I'm writing one. You've helped many people. A letter on this subject could help many more.

Did you know that mistletoe berries and poinsettia leaves, if eaten, can be fatal? When questioned, the parents of children who died from eating these berries and leaves said, "We had no idea plants and flowers could be dangerous."

It's difficult to believe that the blooms of a hyacinth, narcissus, buttercup, oleander, wisteria, jasmine and laurels could be deadly, but they can be — and children should be taught never to put flowers in their mouths. This goes for pets, too. Dogs and cats have died because they ate flowers which were poisonous. Please find the space in your column for this letter. Thanks. Ann. — FRIEND TO ALL LIVING THINGS.

DEAR FRIEND: The thanks go to you. I appreciate your writing.

* * *

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I hope this letter gets to you in time to warn that fellow not to take the gal back who threw the engagement ring in his face for the fifth time. Fourteen years ago I married a girl with a temper like that and she is still throwing things — bottles, iron skillets, dinner plates, anything she can lay her hands on. I would have left her long ago if it weren't for the children.

I've never written to a newspaper before but I saw myself 14 years ago in that fellow's letter — and I had to have my say. Print this, please — FON DU LAC.

DEAR FON: Thanks for the warning from the battlefront. Are you listening, students?

YOUR ANTIQUES

by Jack Jamieson

Inexpensive Creamware Renamed Queensware

The name Wedgwood is associated in most people's mind as classical blue ware, unglazed and decorated with white cameoed designs, known as Jasper ware. Josiah Wedgwood started in business in 1759. He invented Jasperware after a recorded 10,000 experiments, casting the Portland Vase in 1790, as the first example of the new material.

In his day, and before Jasperware, Wedgwood gained fame and reputation by the invention and development of creamware, a handsome and inexpensive earthenware. His invention revolutionized domestic life and put elegant and inexpensive dinner sets within the reach of all.

Prior to the introduction of creamware the rich ate from silver and expensive imported porcelain. The less affluent used pewter and the poor ate from wooden trenchers.

Creamware was so successful as to handsomely earn it a Queen Charlotte, by royal command, named the new earthenware "Queensware". By 1787 Wedgwood was writing "the sale of it has spread over almost the whole globe, and . . . universally it is liked".

Shortly after striking this he was commissioned to complete a service for the British Ambassador to Russia, Lord Cathcart. He completed another set for the British Consul in St. Petersburg and as a result was commissioned to complete a set for the Empress Catherine of Russia.

The Russian set, when finished, contained 952 separate pieces and 1,244 different paintings of English country houses, gardens and landscapes. The Empress paid 3,560 pounds for it. The original earthenware cost 51.4.1 pounds, about 10 cents per piece in current values. The balance of cost was for decoration. The set has survived wars, fires and revolutions and is now undoubtedly the most valuable in the world.

In 1774 Wedgwood issued a catalogue of decorations, listing the illustrated decoration as No. 89, feather edge, colored blue. It is sometimes known as shell edge and comes in green as well.

In 1817 Josiah Wedgwood, the son of the first Josiah, issued another catalogue. Facsimile illustrations of 1111 in Blake, an artist and poet now famous in his own right. The thrown illustrated is number 15 and not identical with design No. 366 in the 1817 catalogue by Blake.

In fact it is probable that the thrown illustrated was not made by Wedgwood at all. After his initial success he was imitated by all major potters. Piracy of design, workmen and technical knowledge was not controlled in the 18th century as it is now.

Queensware is characteristically ivory or creamy white in color. It is unusually light weight, and when first it became in in the early 19th century much queensware was regarded in the kitchen. It has begun to be collected seriously quite recently. This is when one cost 7 shillings. Four years ago it was a bargain at about $75. Today single plates from early services made for Canada bring more than this amount.

Successful Living

Encourage Kids to Be Adventurous

By DORIS CLARK

Are you challenging your little ones enough?

My young nurse friend loves to take her niece and nephew in tow when she goes swimming. She challenges them to swim farther, and with confidence. Tommy and Susie are six and seven years of age, and when they are with their aunt they are proud to swim along beside her, to try diving when she dives, imitating themselves in distance and daring.

There is another young pair who are adventuring early, thanks to the courage of young parents. These two who are eight and nine years of age, brother and sister, are put on a bus, in the charge of the driver, for a 40-mile ride to grandmother's. She is at the bus station to meet them. The next thing is a long distance call back home to say they made it!

The point is that they did and were proud of their accomplishment; and the bus driver was charged by their excitement and delight over covering such a large part of the world all on their own.

What a contrast this is to young Charlie, who at 13 is not allowed to go down town on the bus! Mother has to take him.

As a parent, are you an over - protector, or a challenger?

Dear Doris: My husband's secretary is a woman half his age and they hit it off from the start.

Since then, three years ago, he began criticizing every little thing about me. I refused when he asked for a divorce, but a few weeks ago he blew up about a family problem and said he had had enough of this family and wanted a divorce.

I love him dearly and it is like tearing my heart out. We have problems but I am willing to try again. But he won't. Is there anything I can do but go along with all he wants?

There is such an age difference in these two that to me it's more like mutual admiration. I think the other woman makes him feel young but he's not a particularly youthful 52. — Broken Heart-ed.

Dear Broken Hearted: It does sound a bit like youth and age. Even though a man of 52 is not likely to think of himself as old. With a record of his family and successful years behind you, I don't believe I'd give up without a fight.

Every situation differs. Yours is a case in which counseling might make all the difference. Seek it.

Dear Doris: In "reading "Now I'm a Pack Rat" in your column, three items interested me: 1) Even a quart preserve jar is worth dollars if it has a beaver or a crown on it.

Well, I would gladly sell my treasure for dollars, if you could guide me to such resources. — Attic Antiques.

Dear Doris: I think your reader's best bet is to find out about her "Beaver treasure" is to phone to antique or gift shops she would listed in the yellow pages of the telephone book.

I have seen references to these preserve jars as being collectors' items in "On a Canadian Attic" (Gerald Stevens) and "Early Canadian Glass" (Gerald Stevens). Also in Canadian magazines.

The last figured 2 board or road raised the "Crown" sealers at $2.00 to $3.50, and the "Beaver" at $4.50 to $5.00.

Seventy-five cents (75c) in coins (no stamps, please) for each pattern — add 15 cents for each pattern for first - class mailing and special handling. Ontario residents add 4 cents tax. Print Name, Address, style number.

Candy Recipes Without Sugar

By MARY MOORE

QUESTION: I was interested to learn if you had a diabetic candy recipe, although these are very difficult to obtain, especially if palatable! — Irene A. G., LaSalle, Illinois

ANSWER: I am glad to hear our newspaper travels so far. Below are sugarless "candies" but do not be misled. Being sugarless they do not necessarily mean they are low in calories.

- HONEY MARSHMALLOWS:

1 tbsp. plain gelatine
¼ cup cold water
1 cup light honey warmed
1 egg white
1 tsp. lemon juice
¼ lb. unsweetened desiccated coconut

Soak gelatine in cold water, then dissolve over hot water and combine with the honey which should be warmed. Beat egg white until stiff, then slowly add gelatine-honey mixture and lemon juice, continuing to beat until the mixture gels — 10 - 15 min. Pour mixture into shallow pan that has been oiled, then sprinkle with coconut. Let stand in cool place until stiff, then cut into squares with wet knife. Roll squares in coconut and store in tightly-covered box. Variation: Add 1 cup of a mixture of chopped dates and raisins, when whipping is completed, just before you pour into pan to set. 2) Add a few drops of food coloring to make pale-colored marshmallows, i.e. red, green, etc.

- SUGARLESS TUTTI-FRUTTI CANDY:

1 lb. each figs and raisins
½ lb. prunes
¼ lb. walnuts
1 lb. pitted dates

Soak prunes overnight. Steam until soft and remove stones. Wash and dry figs and dates. Put all fruits through food chopper. On a board mix fruits till well blended. Add a small amount of unsweetened coconut, finely shredded, to board and tip of fruit mixture and roll with rolling pin to ¼" thickness. Cut in desired shapes and store in wax-paper-lined box, tightly covered, with wax paper between layers.

- SUGARLESS TURKISH DELIGHT:

1 tbsp. plain gelatine
½ cup each cold and hot water
½ cup lemon or lime or grape or other unsweetened fruit juice
¼ tsp. salt
20 grains of saccharin or 20 half-grain tablets of saccaryl
Few drops rose water for flavoring (optional).

Soak gelatine in cold water, then add hot water to dissolve, along with salt, saccharin or saccaryl. Make sure all are dissolved. Heat fruit juice, then add to gelatine mixture. Add rose water (optional).

Pour into shallow pan that has been very lightly oiled and let stand overnight. Then turn into very fine unsweetened desiccated coconut.

WEDDING RING CLUB

The Wedding Ring Club of College Hill United Church held their November meeting in the church parlor. President John Dowling opened with reading of a poem.

Leaders Jessie and Clarke Dodd were in charge of the program. Devotions were read by Vivian and Tony Lepore and Carman Sine on the theme, "God's place in our family".

Refreshments were served and the meeting closed.

Points for Parents

By MARY BRYSON

Mother: "You're a bad, bad boy. I'm ashamed of you the way you broke Mr. Smith's fence. You knew you weren't supposed to be climbing on it. You'll get a good spanking when we get home."

Mother: "It was wrong to climb on Mr. Smith's fence. Even if you didn't know it would break, you knew you were forbidden to climb there. You will have to use your allowance to pay for having it fixed."

The act, not the child, was bad, and the punishment should fit the fault, if you want your youngster to feel you are fair.

Oils' Spectacular Climb Shakes Off Lethargy

By ART JOHNSON
Canadian Press Staff Writer

Western oil issues highlighted action on Canadian stock markets this week with a spectacular climb that shook off lethargy which had been developing in recent sessions.

The Toronto Stock Exchange's western oil index bubbled upward under pressure from demand for shares of Canadian fuel-producing companies, climbing 19.16 points to 185.72.

It was the best climb in any weekly basis since the five-day period ending July 4, 1969.

The exchange's industrial index jumped 4.35 points to 167.80, owing largely to action among the integrated oil company listings which comprise part of the industrial measuring-stick.

At the Montreal and Canadian exchanges, the composite index rose 5.87 to 166.59.

Observers attributed the great speculative interest in oil issues to news Wednesday that the United States had agreed in principle to allow Canadian oils unimpeded access to U.S. markets.

The Toronto exchange's western oil index shot up more than nine points Wednesday on the strength of the agreement.

Oil stocks charged to climb Thursday and Friday. Gains of $5 on the week among oil issues were not uncommon.

Among some of the big advancers: Dome Petroleum was up 27½ to 35½; Home A was up 8⅝ to 126⅝; Hudson's Bay Oil and Gas 8⅜ to 83⅜; and Canadian Superior Oil 84 to 126⅝.

Trading was active in Toronto where the volume jumped to 13.31 million shares from 10.38 million last week.

At the New York Stock Exchange, however, trading was generally light as the exchange was closed Thursday, Thanksgiving Day. In the four trading days of the week, the Dow-Jones average of key industrial issues climbed 19.76 points to 781.25. Analysts attributed Wall Street's strength to small prime rate reductions among several U.S. banks, and anticipation of further interest reductions.

Part of the big leap in activity this week at Toronto, say observers, was due to trading in Canadian oil issues by large American institutions.

Observers say the bullish reaction among investors to the U.S. decision on a free Canadian oil import policy did not come as a surprise as rumors of fuel shortages in the U.S., have driven oil issues upward for the last few months.

The Toronto exchange's oil index has moved in a jagged pattern from the beginning of the year.

In January the index was up over 225 points. By late May the downturn in the economy and disappointing exploration results eroded the index to about 100.

However, the index began bouncing back in June, making recovery leaps of as much as 13 points in one week.

In other areas of investment, the Toronto exchange's base metal index this week gained 1.28 points to 99.67. Golds slipped 1.33 to 121.43.

At the Montreal and Canadian exchanges, combined volume was 7.64 million shares, compared with 9.30 million last week.

Gains outnumbered losses 195 to 167 with 89 issues unchanged.

Fairways Get Warmed Up too Late

OSHAWA (Special) — Ernie Isted hasn't had much chance to warm up all season as a starting goaltender in the OHA but he's certainly getting plenty of practice as a relief goaltender had the same luck.

The Fairways arrived in Oshawa only 20 minutes before their Eastern Ontario league game was scheduled to get underway, and had to go directly for a pre-game tuneup before losing 6-4 to the Crushers.

Isted, making only his second appearance in the Fairway nets this season — (the other was a non-scheduled pre-season exhibition affair) — was beaten three times in the first 13 minutes.

"It was natural for him to be a little nervous," said coach Floyd Crawford. Isted got the Fairways number one goaltending job this week after Ron Jury signed to play with the OHA Junior A Toronto Marlboros.

Defencemen John Brophy's unassisted goal cut the Oshawa margin to 2-1 at the end of period - and Brian - Dykin's second-period goal left the Fairways on the short end of a 4-3 count going into the final 20 minutes.

A picture-play goal by Cliff Jackson from Phil Kirby and Dave Harwood and Dodge Gerrior's pokk blast narrowed the home margin to 5-4 midway through the third frame before Lube Charbonneau broke the Fairway backs and finished off the scoring with a shot from outside the Billsville blueline at 12.46.

"I can't blame Ernie — he made some good saves for us and it was tough for him coming in under those circumstances," Crawford said.

The Fairways play a "Jubilee" night Memorial Arena's rep over Cobourg to stay in fifth spot ahead of cellar-dwelling Trenton who lost 10-5 to Peterborough.

Finally Topple Oaks

Mo-Hawks Find Right Axe

By MAURICK SWITZER
Sports Editor

He didn't say "It wasn't pretty, but we'll take it" in so many words, but you know Belleville Mo-Hawk coach Dave Jones had those sentiments in mind after last night's 6-3 win over Oakville Oaks.

The win, courtesy a four - goal first-period, was at times a listless affair played before one of the Mo-Hawks listless and dwindling crowds, this one numbering around 300.

Les Colligan, a going concern all night, put the Mo - Hawks en route to their first win over Oakville since the last month of the 1958-59 season with a goal after only a minute and 16 seconds of play from linemates Doug Senior and Ralph Plane.

The Kingston Aces reject added a next second - effort goal later in the period and an assist to cap one of his best Mo-Hawk performances. "I've been off work all week with this," Colligan said, pointing to a muscle - taped left ankle he cracked last weekend. Colligan's six goals and his persistent pluggin' are a big reason the Senior - centred line has taken over as the prime Mo-Hawk threat.

Greg Marchen also scored two fifth and sixth goals and Wayne McConnell and Lorne O'Donnell added singles.

McConnell's, which gave the Mo-Hawks a 3-0 lead at 4.36, came on a neat pass — and from younger brother John, called up for the game from Picton's intermediate affiliate.

The younger McConnell didn't look out of place in his first real senior hockey test. He scored in a pre - season exhibition with Kingston Aces but suffered an ankle injury and did not come to gan - leading Orillia Terriers, minus it will conflict with his intermediate schedule.

Goalie Steve Rezo, not the apple of coach Jones' eye after the club dropped a pair of losses to trailing Owen Sound last weekend, did his job last night by kicking the Oaks off the scoresheet for two periods while his mates built a 5-0 spread.

Rezo had 36 Oakville shots to handle, while Ken Brodrick — the Rezo, a former National Team goaltender — the latter tended 34 times by the Mo-Hawks.

A tame affair, the game's only skirmish came in the second period when Ken Kingston drew a bead on John McConnell and received a double minor while the Mo-Hawk rookie served two minutes for the ensuing match.

Next home game for the Mo-Hawks is a Tuesday night meeting with Kingston Aces.

Grey Cup Still a Thrill

Nothing New for Als' Ceppetelli

TORONTO (CP) — Centre Gene Ceppetelli rated his appearance in Sunday's Grey Cup just as big "a thrill as his first one in 1963.

Ceppetelli returned to Canadian football this season with Montreal Alouettes after a two-year stay in the National Football League. He had four previous Grey Cup appearances—all with Hamilton Tiger-Cats.

"Of the four previous games, I always thought the first one was the biggest one I'd ever play in," Ceppetelli said Friday. "I was a rookie defensive tackle then, just starting out, and I have a good year and a good Grey Cup game.

"Now this one rates right with the first one, because in one sense I'm starting out all over again after a two-year absence."

Ceppetelli spoke as the Alouettes finished their final drill in preparation for today's meeting with Calgary Stampeders.

He is one of only five Alouettes with previous Grey Cup experience. The others, tight end Tom Pullen, flanker Terry Evanshen, lineman Ted Collins and playing-coach Gene Gaines, all reached the national final with other clubs. The Montreal club has not made a Grey Cup appearance since 1956.

Now 36, Ceppetelli hoped his success as a rookie would be repeated. In 1963 the Ticats

GENE CEPPETELLI
Veteran Rookie

waltzed to a 21-10 win over British Columbia Lions.

"Montreal hasn't had much success since Sam Etcheverry retired as a player," Ceppetelli said of his head coach. "No one picked us to do much this season and most people hoped we'd make the playoffs—that's all."

However, Ceppetelli said a combination of talent and direction of the young players by Etcheverry had brought the club to the Grey Cup.

"These are a tremendous bunch of kids," Ceppetelli said. "They're not greedy, but enthusiastic, and they think more of their team-mates than they do of themselves.

"But, one reason we are here is because we have one heck of a head coach," the Sudbury, Ont., native added. "If he had come in and beat our heads into the ground at the start of the season, we'd might not have been here.

"He's done something unusual for a coach coming into a losing team," he said. "Most guys come in and say this club was 2-12 last season, I'll show these guys who is coach and boss around here.

"They come in and beat you into the ground and expect you to do two or three practices a day. They do nothing to build spirit on a team."

Ceppetelli said Etcheverry never ran his workouts over 90 minutes and kept his team meetings "not too long."

"University classes don't run more than one hour because the instructors there know you can only retain so much," he added.

Ceppetelli said Etcheverry's approach to the Als this year may "set a trend for a lot of new coaches taking over a losing club."

He said the Montreal coach wasn't a softie but "set the rules up and had club members watched" as Etcheverry suspended fullback Dennis Duncan and end Bob McCarthy for a breach of curfew regulations prior to the final game of the season.

Although both played in the game against the Ticats, Etcheverry suspended them four days before the Eastern Football Conference semi-final against Toronto Argonauts.

"It was a rule," Ceppetelli said. "Actually it shouldn't have had to be a rule."

Ceppetelli admitted some of his former Tiger-Cat mates gave him some "pretty good needling" in the two games it took the Als to eliminate Hamilton from Grey Cup contention.

"But I'm here today and they're not."

Driscoll Keeps Kingston Happy

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Sudden-death overtime ended suddenly at Kingston Friday night to the pleasure of 1,988 home fans as Kingston Aces dropped Galt Hornets one notch in Ontario Hockey Association Senior A standings.

Centre Pat Driscoll of the Aces drilled the winning shot of a 4-3 contest for the Galt net after only 38 seconds of extra play as Kingston counted its third consecutive victory.

In other action Friday, Barrie Flyers defeated Owen Sound Crescents 6-4 and Orillia Terriers drounced Woodstock Athletics 13-2.

The Galt defeat, combined with the Barrie and Orillia wins, left some daylight atop the eight-team standings. The Terriers lead the Flyers by one point with a 13-2 won-lost record compared with 13-3 for Barrie, and the Hornets slipped to third from a share of second with Barrie. Galt has 11 wins and four losses.

Driscoll collected two goals for the Aces, who shifted past Owen Sound into fifth spot. Bob Collins and Pete Lolier each scored once for the winners. Galt held period leads of 1-0 and 3-2 on scores by Vance Millar, Bill Hway and Ron Smith.

Sport Briefs

TORONTO (CP) — The Canadian Football League Players' Association will recommend that the Canadian Football League adopt the use of a smaller ball, John Agro, CFLPA executive director, said Friday. "We think the guys can handle a smaller ball in rough weather," said Agro after a CFLPA meeting that lasted seven hours. "We feel it would cut down on fumbles and fumbles spoil a game."

NEW YORK (AP) — Joe Namath was formally placed on the reserve list of New York Jets Friday, making him ineligible for the remainder of the National Football League season. The star quarterback, who injured his left wrist in a game against Baltimore Oct. 8, had been on the "move" list idling him for two games at a time, with the hope that he might be ready later in the year.

CARTAGENA, Colombia (CP) — Canada's senior amateur baseball team lost a 3-0 heart-breaker to the Dominican Republic Friday and remains winless after seven starts in the world amateur championships. The team based on Victoria Centennials of British Columbia outhit the Dominican Republic 11-6, but couldn't push a single across. Ray Crone of Vancouver became the first Canadian pitcher in the tournament to go the distance, giving up one earned run, six hits and striking out six in eight innings. He walked one.

New York's pro basketball title last year meant something special to Walt Frazier — and so did the Knicks' record 18-game winning streak at the start of that season. That's why he tried a little harder Friday as the Knicks stopped Milwaukee Bucks 103-94 and end the Bucks' 16-game National Basketball Association winning string. "We thought about the streak a lot," Frazier admitted. "We've only been in the books for a year with that record — less than a year."

COPENHAGEN (CP-Reuter) — Graydon Robinson of Toronto, the defending champion, was well down the scoring list but qualified Friday for the semi-finals of the world amateur teepins bowling championships. Klaus Hacker, 33-year-old West German champion was the top scorer in two days of qualifying play in which each of 44 contestants from 43 countries bowled 22 games.

WHITEWOOD, Sask. (CP) — Every deer hunter wants to bag a buck with big antlers, but Vic Galin of Saskatoon went one better. He shot a deer with two complete sets of antlers. The buck he got near this community 110 miles east of Regina apparently had killed another in an antler-locking duel.

Drouin Starts Shining In Company of Stars

By MIKE FERRIS
Canadian Press Staff Writer

You could say that Jude Drouin is coming along fine as a National Hockey League regular.

Before being traded to Minnesota North Stars in the summer of 1970, Drouin registered only one assist in 13 NHL games with Montreal Canadiens.

However, in 136 minor professional games in the Canadien organization, the 22-year-old right winger tallied 53 goals.

With the North Stars, Drouin has fired seven goals, including the winner Friday night in Minnesota's 3-2 victory over the slumping California Golden Seals in the only scheduled NHL game. At Oakland the teams went scoreless after the first 20 minutes.

In the second period, the North Stars took a 1-0 lead on Danny Grant's 10th goal of the season but Ernie Hicke tied the score about four minutes later.

Danny O'Shea gave Minnesota

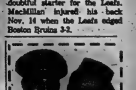
Drouin gave the North Stars the win at 6:40 of the final period when he swatted Tom Reid's soft shot into the Seals' net.

The win snapped Minnesota's two-game losing streak and moved them one point ahead of Philadelphia Flyers, who have 30 points, in the NHL's West Division standings.

The loss was the sixth in the row for the Seals.



Elsewhere in the league, right-winger Gary Dornhoefer and goalie Gump Farrell will return to the Philadelphia lineup for tonight's game in Chicago with the Black Hawks.

Dornhoefer missed nine games and Farrell two, both with knee injuries.

Injuries will weaken the lineups of Detroit Red Wings and Toronto Maple Leafs tonight when the teams meet at Toronto.

Veteran right winger Gordie Howe will be out with a torn cartilage in his left rib cage while Red Wing defenceman Gary Bergman is still suffering from a pinched knee. Ron Harris, another Detroit defenceman, still has not recovered from a rib injury that has kept him out of uniform for most of the season.

Winger Bill MacMillan is a doubtful starter for the Leafs. MacMillan injured his back Nov. 14 when the Leafs edged Boston Bruins 3-2.

Raise Announced But - - -

How Much Pensioners Will Benefit Uncertain

OTTAWA (CP) — The Commons ignored Friday from its protracted and still-continued consideration of special measures for the Quebec crisis to the familiar issues of the economy, subsidies, pensions and Crown corporations.

The change in emphasis was marked early with the announcement of Finance Minister Edgar Benson of a budget speech next Thursday.

The shift was reinforced by Trade Minister Jean-Luc Pepin who outlined a new program of subsidies to enable Canadian ship-builders to attract international orders.

Capping that was notice from New Democrat MPs that they plan to hold up passage of a bill guaranteeing capital financing for the Canadian National Railways and Air Canada until the government promises to prod the Crown corporations into premature notice from the government that it intends to raise the basic old-age pension by $5 a month.

While the resolution, printed in the Commons order paper, called for a raise in both the basic pension and the guaranteed-income supplement, a spokesman in the welfare department explained only that "somebody jumped the gun."

"Details of how the new pension will work cannot be announced until publication of the white paper on income security expected shortly," the spokesman said.

The present basic pension is $71 a month, raised now to $79.38 by three annual cost-of-living boosts since 1968. The question is whether the basic rate is to be set at $80 or whether the government plans only to add 42 cents to the monthly cheques.

Father of Five Ordered to Wed

SUDBURY (CP) — A Killarney, Ont., man was ordered by a judge to get married Thursday or face imprisonment for being in breach of his two-year probation.

Lloyd Barkie, 29, was up for sentence after pleading guilty Nov. 5 to having sexual relations with a girl under 18.

Judge Anthony Falzetta ordered him to marry the woman with whom he had been living and who had borne him five children and was expecting a sixth.

Failure to do this, said Judge Falzetta, would be considered a breach of probation.

"The breach could get you six months more in jail. I'm doing it for the sake of the children," he added.

Debate on the bill continues Monday.

The most peculiar development was what appeared to be

Pilots, Air Canada Disagreed on Device

TORONTO (CP) — A basic disagreement over operation of a braking device (spoilers) for DC-8 jets existed between the pilot and co-pilot of an Air Canada plane that crashed in flames, killing all 109 aboard last July 5, a federal government inquiry was told Friday.

The disagreement extended further—between Air Canada and an official of the Canadian Airline Pilots Association—correspondence released at the inquiry said.

Captain L. B. Wyman, DC-8 equipment chairman for CALPA, in a letter to Air Canada last year, strongly supported the methods of Captain Peter Hamilton, the pilot of the jet that crashed.

The spoilers usually come into play automatically when the wheels touch down and slow and supply a jet on landing. They can also be deployed manually by the cockpit crew. The Air Canada manual says they should be armed at 2,500 feet for automatic deployment on touchdown.

When Capt. Hamilton flew, his co-pilot would deploy the spoilers manually after the aircraft had set down or the co-pilot would arm the spoilers for aircraft was coming out of its automatic deployment when the jetspath into the nose-up landing altitude between 80 and 300 feet off the ground.

Captain Hamilton considered the Air Canada instructions dangerous because of possible premature deployment in the air.

The captain, with 12,000 hours of flying time, continued to ignore the Air Canada procedure.

Ontario Farmers to Meet

TORONTO (CP) — Education taxes and land assessment will be the chief topics of discussion Monday when the Ontario Federation of Agriculture opens its three-day annual convention.

"This convention will be one where we go front here as far as education taxes are concerned," OFA President Gordon Hill said in a recent statement.

"It will decide how we continue pressing governments with our demands. It is quite possible that the delegates will resolve to continue tax withholding action."

The provincial government recently announced it will grant farmers a rebate of 25 per cent on property taxes—a saving of 30 million to Ontario farmers. The move was taken in response to a campaign by the OFA for the removal of education taxes on property.

Many farmers across the province withheld the education portion of their taxes to force the provincial government took some action.

A resolution to be presented at next week's convention asks that the OFA executive "be given powers in 1971 to reinstate the tax withholding action, if necessary, to achieve tax reform."

Two resolutions will be presented on the subject of assessment.

One says the revised assessment procedure requiring only one "lump" sum figure for the value of a farm properly gives the farmer no basis for knowing its accuracy. The resolution asks that this figure be broken down into separate values for land and buildings and that information also be given on the grade of the acreage assessed.

The other resolution asks that land assessment by fixed on a basis related to soil productivity instead of on the full value of the land.

Jeane Dixon's Horoscope

For November 30

Your birthday today: The words for your coming year are consolidation and application. What you have learned in the last several years comes together nicely to form a whole new pattern of skills. You now have the range to organize your life the way you want it, but you must yet make more than average effort to cultivate social contacts. Persistence, too, must be gained, nothing lost. Today's natives often have been famous authors, scientists, public figures. Frequently they show a strong streak of materialism.

ARIES (Mar. 21 — Apr. 19): Listen and implement the good ideas expressed casually by people who are not going to use them. Your energy and curiosity are running high. Enjoy them!

TAURUS (Apr. 20 — May 20): An early start doesn't help. Things fall into place much easier later in the day. Travel, conferences bring the germ of a big deal for the future.

GEMINI (May 21 — June 20): Creative enterprises are favored, but you must not take the cooperation of others for granted. Make no important advances where you haven't been encouraged.

CANCER (June 21 — July 22): A normal or late start is preferable. Make a point of being visible while you work so that what you do is better examined by others. Pay no attention to quibbling.

LEO (July 23 — Aug. 22): Present circumstances favor mental activities. The affairs of young people, especially in education, are worthy of attention. Travel brings good experiences.

VIRGO (Aug. 23 — Sept. 22): You can go forward with personal plans if you get preliminary moves well set first. Home life this evening offers something to stimulate your mind.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 — Oct. 22): Your mind is active and your judgment best today. Do not jump the action too early. It's quite all right to run into overtime this evening.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23—Nov. 21): Whatever you do now requires thought and precision. Use less effort with greater efficiency. Take your time, say what you really mean. The evening is for serious planning.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 — Dec. 21): Visitors possess information you need. Seek to complete negotiations, bring newly learned skills into use. Don't neglect correspondence now.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 — Jan. 19): Travel, investigate, ask questions. Your view of social and psychological reality may not be in step with the rest of the world. Pray for clear insight.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20 — Feb. 18): Keep to schedule despite confusion. Much can be done to advance your secret hopes. Communications are important; make sure you are getting the latest tidings.

PISCES (Feb. 19 — Mar. 20): The day levels out after a while and you can improve the prospects. Be persistent, ask a second time on anything that puzzles you.

For November 29

Your birthday today: The year ahead will find you making many fresh beginnings, moving from old ties, emotional habits, changing external conditions provoke inner personal growth—you cannot simply remain what you have been. Old limitations lose become sources of spiritual strength. Today's natives adapt readily, show a generally agreeable manner, excel in persuasive powers.

ARIES (Mar. 21 — Apr. 19): Short trips, brief visits pay off readily. New studies, investigations produce immediate, fascinating results, particularly in self-improvement.

TAURUS (Apr. 20 — May 20): This should be a normal, enjoyable Sunday of no special stress. Join in the community's expression of faith. Share your favorite pastimes, intellectual interests.

GEMINI (May 21 — June 20): Arrange an unexpected, entertaining experience for somebody you care about. Journeys have pleasant results. Hobbies may come to favorable notice now.

CANCER (June 21 — July 22): Visit all your friends, catch up with the latest news. Get other opinions on any personal concern where you can't get directly at the causes.

LEO (July 23 — Aug. 22): So far, while, including some whose goodwill you doubt. Entertain to be entertained.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 — Jan. 19): Your duties in your community lead you to unconventional places and to contacts that last years. Be constructive, as unusual earnings chance opens briefly.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20 — Feb. 18): The larger the group you join today, the better. Your membership is significant, even though you take a small role in the discussion. Visit friends, make your views known.

PISCES (Feb. 19 — Mar. 20): Think of unifying your personal world, bridging the gaps between people, relating your ventures to other activities. Share your hobbies with others. Include your loved ones in your adventures this Sunday. Experience now will lead you to more practical forms of creative expression. Meditate this evening.

VIRGO (Aug. 23 — Sept. 22): This is a daydream and overtheband, with much detail perhaps in improving household arrangements. The evening is for quiet entertainment of old issues.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 — Oct. 22): Correspondence, discussions, short trips and brief visits are all productive. Your usual reckless are balanced by the later hours, probably for good news.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23—Nov. 21): Social contacts, though quiet, has a subtle added meaning for you now. Travel can be educational. You must reach well ahead and outward to make a much needed advance.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 — Dec. 21): Be ready for a busy Sunday of much coming and going, people you have not seen

STOP KILLING YOURSELF

By Peter J. Steincrohn, M.D., F.A.C.P.
Author of "The Doctor Looks At Life"

Anxiety Persists

Dear Dr. Steincrohn: I am 34 years old and I have the breast development of a 13-year-old. But in view of what I've heard from one doctor, I don't plan on going to Las Vegas and work as a topless waitress. I prefer keeping my own two breasts.

Here is my dilemma. Two years ago I visited a surgeon on the advice of my gynecologist, as he had discovered lumps in my breasts. After the surgeon completed his examination he said the lumps are called cystic mastitis. He recommended removal of both breasts. He suggested that a silicone substance would be inserted under the skin to restore the shape. He also showed me pictures of a young girl of 26 who had the operation. The improvements was truly remarkable.

Needless to say his diagnosis and suggested treatment nearly knocked me off my feet. I was totally unprepared to hear it. He assured me I didn't have cancer but did feel that I should have the operation.

For two months I went around in a daze. I finally called my gynecologist and told him what had happened. He was quite upset by it all and asked me as a favor to him to see another surgeon. By this time I was truly frantic.

This surgeon is chief - of - staff at one of our local hospitals. After careful examination he agreed that I had a fibrocystic condition. But, he said there was nothing in my breasts that alarmed him. He suggested that I go home and forget the whole episode. But he cautioned me to check on myself by visiting my gynecologist at least every six months.

I left his office feeling like the man who's saved from the electric chair five minutes before the switch is pulled. Nevertheless, I still sometimes wonder if I haven't made a mistake. Maybe I should have listened to the first surgeon. I still go to my gynecologist every six months without fail. He assures me everything is fine. May I have your comment? — Mrs. D.

Comment: Reassurance is not easy. Wiping out anxiety is not a simple process. All I can add is that it appears you are under the care of expert doctors. If in doubt, it is not likely they would let you go along for six months between examinations.

Chances are that they would also use mammography (X-ray examination of breasts), aspiration of cysts (if indicated) or even do a biopsy (study of piece of tissue under the microscope).

As you said earlier, you have no aspirations to work as a topless waitress. Therefore, to use your own doctor's advice "go home and forget it." (Sometimes easier said than done).

Dear Dr. Steincrohn: My husband suffers from Buerger's disease. He keeps complaining of leg pains all the time — especially after he walks a little. Until three months ago he was a three-packs - a - day smoker. He has had the will power to give up cigarettes, but has turned to chewing tobacco. Isn't he feeling both the doctor and himself? — Mrs. O.

Comment: Yes. Tobacco in any form is harmful to him.

Dear Dr. Steincrohn: I have a friend who is a coffee addict. She takes at least 15 cups of black coffee a day. When she sees me take my coffee (only two cups a day) with milk, she says, it will poison the walls of the stomach. She suggests I take it black or not at all. Is this true? — Mrs. C.

Comment: No danger of poisoning. You might tell your friend not to overlook the fact, that 15 cups of coffee daily are giving her nervous system quite a whipping. Is she edgy and nervous?

Four Leap From Ship

KEY WEST, Fla. (AP) — Four East Germans seeking political asylum leaped from a cruise ship into the Atlantic Ocean Friday, three of them apparently hiding on impulse the fourth's carefully planned escape.

A waiting rescue boat picked up Karl Bley, who plotted the escape in letters to his brother in the United States, and the three medical scientists who joined him in the 35-foot jump from East German ship's deck.

Choquette Issues Warning

Era of 'Anything Goes' Said Ended for Quebec

Responsibility Necessity Now

MONTREAL (CP) — Justice Minister Jerome Choquette said Sunday night the events of the last eight weeks "will have a maturing effect" on the Quebec population.

Addressing more than 200 people at a general meeting of the Association of Survivors of Nazi Oppression, Mr. Choquette said:

"For the last 10 years in Quebec, we have been living in a world where anything goes. Now it's time for a sense of responsibility."

The minister made particular reference to public officials who were guilty of "verbal violence." The current situation will allow Quebecers to "reappraise the behavior of men who are in public life and the press as well," he said.

Denying that the media has ever been censored by the governments, he said that "from what I've read, I don't think the press has censored itself too much."

Failure by the government to reject "blackmail of terrorists" would have propelled the province "down the road to anarchy," he said.

Mr. Choquette said the province's police force must be "better equipped" to handle the increase in crime and repeated his suggestion that compulsory identity cards would help.

Referring to a province-wide survey, conducted by La Presse, which indicates that 82.1 per cent of Quebecers supported his suggestion, he said that an identity card would serve many practical purposes, as well as providing police with more complete information on individuals.

Brief Urges Better Plans

OTTAWA (CP) — The Canadian Construction Association today called on the federal government to co-ordinate its planning in construction and to ease up on taxation of the industry.

In all, the association came down with 22 major recommendations in its annual brief to the government, many of them concerning matters of finance.

The brief also said any future government programs should use long-range planning to achieve stability in the growth rate and rely less heavily on construction activity as an economic regulator.

The longer-term government policies should also be aimed at encouraging "substantially larger capital investment programs" and a federal body responsible for the study of large-scale national resources projects should be established.

In this regard, it was suggested the National Research Council building research division be expanded and research programs into construction in both the public and private sectors "should be substantially increased."

Red Bloc Leaders Will Meet

BERLIN (AP) — Communist party and government leaders of the East bloc will meet in East Berlin, probably later this week.

ADN, the East German news agency, and Pravda, the Soviet Communist party newspaper, announced today that meetings of "leaders of fraternal parties and the governments of the states of the Warsaw pact will be held in Berlin in the beginning of December."

It was believed that the leaders of the Soviet Union, East Germany, Poland, Czechoslovakia, Hungary, Rumania and Bulgaria would attempt to reach agreement on a unified approach to West Germany's Eastern policy: its new pacts with the Soviet Union and Poland, pending negotiations with Czechoslovakia, and most of all, the West German government's demand for an easing of Communist restrictions on West Berlin before the Bonn parliament ratifies such treaties.

For three days the East Germans have been stopping traffic to and from West Berlin from time to time to demonstrate their opposition to a meeting in the city today and Tuesday of the West German Christian Democratic party.

Pyotr Abrassimov, the Soviet ambassador to East Germany, protested the meeting in a statement Friday, and the U.S., British and French ministers in West Berlin rejected the protest Sunday night. They said raising tensions in and around the city could jeopardize the Big Four talks on Berlin that resume Dec. 10.

Stalin Respected Ike

NEW YORK (AP) — The second instalment of Nikita Khrushev's reminiscences says that if Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower hadn't let the Russians take Berlin in 1945, the Soviet position in post-war Europe "might have turned out quite a bit worse."

The instalment, published in the Dec. 4 issue of Life magazine says Stalin had a great respect for Eisenhower's "decency, generosity and chivalry."

Khrushev said it was "difficult to judge what the intentions of the Allies were toward the end of the war.

"The Western Allies were certainly not interested in strengthening us. England and America, from their class positions, knew they had to help us to an extent, but they still wanted the Soviet Union to be considerably weaker after the war so that they could dictate their will to us. . . .

"Nevertheless, we must still give credit to the Allies for their contribution to the common cause. . . . Unfortunately our historical works about World War II have perpetrated an illusion. They have been written out of a false sense of pride and out of a fear to tell the truth about our allies' contribution — all because Stalin himself held an incorrect, unrealistic position. He knew the truth, but he admitted it only to himself in the toilet."

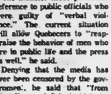
Selected Greeks Pick Legislators



ATHENS (Reuter) — Greece has its first elected legislature today since the army revolution of April, 1967, but it is a parliament without powers or political responsibility.

It was elected Sunday by about 1,200 voters selected by the government from nine professional and scientific organizations.

The electors chose 82 men from a list of 256 candidates. But they will not all sit in the new mini-parliament. Prime Minister George Papadopoulos will narrow the number down to 46. He also will appoint 10 more members of his personal choice.

The new parliament—with an age range of between 25 and 50 —will convene Jan. 1 in Athens. It will debate bills before they go for discussion and decision by the ruling military regime.

The decision it makes will not be binding on the government.

We're "He'll make a great political leader. He's young, good looking, and takes orders!"

THE WEATHER

Synopsis: A high pressure system will cross Ontario today producing sunny skies in the southern regions and some periods in most southern locations. A storm expected to develop today in the western United States is forecast to move rapidly northeast, bringing likelihood of showers to southern Ontario Tuesday. On Tuesday temperatures should climb to the high 40s and low 50s across the lower lakes.

Pope Welcomed To Australia

SYDNEY, Australia (AP) — With half the city's population Far East trip here today, Pope Paul became the first Roman Catholic pontiff to visit Australia. Tens of thousands applauded as he rode through police cordons into Sydney.

Prime Minister John Gorton welcomed the frail 73-year-old Pope at the Sydney Airport, saying: "Many of us have admired your fortitude in the extensive travels you have undertaken in the Old World and the New."

The self-proclaimed "apostle on the move," Pope Paul now has visited every continent during his 7½ years in the Holy See except Antarctica.

His arrival in Sydney followed a gruelling 20 hours during which he flew 5,000 miles from Manila to Samoa, made appearances in American Samoa and the new independent nation of Western Samoa and then flew 2,400 miles to Australia.

There was no trouble. About 5,000 persons roared greeting at the airport, though officials had expected as many as 50,000. Authorities attributed the lack of people to public fears of massive traffic jams.

Tuesday the Pope is to participate in discussions of the Catholic bishops' conferences of Australia and Oceania, both meeting in Sydney. He will celebrate a huge open-air masses Tuesday and Wednesday at Sydney's Randwick racetrack before continuing his 28,000-mile trip by flying to Jakarta. After the Indonesian stopover, the Pope flies to Hong Kong, then Colombo and on to the Vatican.

Assailant Ruled Ill

MANILA (Reuter) — A government psychiatrist said today the Bolivian artist who tried to kill Pope Paul here Friday is mentally ill and he recommended that the painter be confined in isolation in a mental hospital.

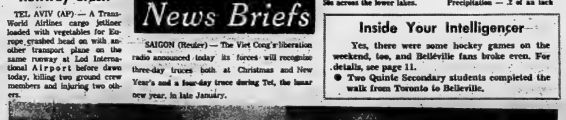
Benjamin Mendoza y Amor, 35, lunged at Pope Paul with a foot-long knife at Manila International Airport on the pontiff's arrival.

He was stopped before he could harm the Pope and placed under psychiatric observation.

Levesque Sees System Ending

MONTREAL (CP) — "I have the impression that when historians come to write about the final stages of the federal regime, they will put the real beginning of the end around October or November 1970," Rene Levesque, leader of the Parti Quebecois said Sunday.

"What we are seeing," Mr. Levesque told more than 1,000 supporters at a Montreal regional conference, "is more and more evidence that the legitimacy of this regime is coming to an end in the eyes of one of the two peoples that live within it.



"For a regime to have legitimacy, it must in practice be accepted by a consensus of at least 80 or 85 per cent of the people, and this acceptance has lasted in one way or another for decades.

"But now one third of the French people of Quebec have already rejected it," he said, "and with each shock that hits our society you can feel entire chunks of the population breaking away from the regime."

Mr. Levesque described the last several weeks as the period "between a calculated and systematic attempt to keep Quebec in a state of hysteria, and the awful mess the regime finds itself a few weeks later."

"Things are going to change drastically and the only question is whether it will be by democratic means or by anarchy."

He described the Parti Quebecois as the only way to provide a comprehensive, democratic answer to Quebec's problems.

Belleville Photographer Gains Distinction

To have one's photographs accepted for exhibition at the annual convention of professional photographers' associations of Canada is a coveted honor. But when Richard Lambers' photographs, from Belleville not only had all the four prints he submitted accepted for exhibition but also got merit awards for two of them, it was a distinctive feather in his cap. Moreover, this was the first time he had ever entered the annual competition.

According to the rules of the print - judging competition, which is one of the highlights of each year's convention, each photographer is allowed to enter a maximum of four prints.

At this year's convention, which was held recently in Niagara Falls, one of Mr. Lambers' pictures that secured an award of merit was a study of violinist Steve Chasins, conductor of the Eastern Ontario Concert Orchestra. It is a sensitive portrait of artistic involvement.

The second photograph that won an award of merit was a portrait of a little girl whose pert expression, tooth-less grin and sprinkling of freckles make it an unusually appealing picture. The award of merit is second only to the award of excellence, the highest prize in this competition.

Accepted for exhibition were a portrait of a baby and a wedding picture with an unusual background. The bride and bridegroom are pictured in the church where they discuss their plans with the professional photographer of their choice before the event takes place. He could then give them some useful tips on makeup.

RICHARD LAMBERS

Originally interested in photography as a hobby, Mr. Lambers, who is a member of the Professional Photographers of America Inc., later took it up as a full-time career and tried his hand at industrial photography. Currently Then he managed a studio in London, Ontario before he opened his Belleville studio in 1960. He does all kinds of photography and is in great demand for wedding pictures.

About wedding photographs Mr. Lambers says that just as styles in fashion have evolved, so too have styles in wedding photography. He points out that today's bridal photography has a natural look about it which can only be achieved when the bride and everyone else concerned are totally relaxed before the camera.

Before the wedding, he advises brides-to-be to decide on the type of pictures they would like — formal or informal. He recommends that church window through which some rays of light are filtering.

Mr. Lambers collected more laurels when he entered in another competition at the annual Professional Convention of Professional Photographers held later in St. Catharines. He submitted two prints, both of which were accepted for exhibition. At this convention in which the photographers of Canada and the U. S. participated, a Belleville photographer's entries were a portrait of a teenage boy and a picture of a bride and bridegroom admiring a bouquet of autumn flowers.

Deal Completed

TRENTON (Staff) — An offer Ontario Housing Corporation subdivision for the town moved a step closer to reality Thursday, when Mayor Hall and provincial governments reached an agreement for servicing 30.6 acres on Field St.

OHC already has a development under way on the west side of the street. The new subdivision will be east of Field St., opposite V. P. Carswell School.

The land will be available for leasing under the province's Home Ownership Made Easy (HOME) program and will provide serviced lots for 113 new homes.

The End of the Road

End of a 100-mile road came last night with hot-chocolate drinks for Quinte Secondary School students Fred Archer, 17, (left) and Ed Reeves, 19. The pair finished Toronto-Belleville walkathon — in project that included four other schoolmates — to raise funds for muscular dystrophy fund.

Two Student Walkers Finish 100-mile Hike

Six teenagers from Quinte Secondary School walked a total 500 rain - sodden miles during the weekend.

Today, two of the hikers are more tired, — and triumphant — than they've ever been.

But, as a result, the campaign chest of the fight against muscular dystrophy is more than $200 richer.

Just 48 hours later Fred Archer, 17, and Ed Reeves, 19, arrived in the rain at QSS — after completing the total 100 — mile stretch.

The rest of the team while failing to finish the total walkathon course also marked up a marathon accomplishment. Bill Andrews, 18, Robert Boudreau, 17, Mark Adamson, 19, and Nigel Roulet, 15, each measured off about 75 miles with their feet.

All started out with high hopes — hoping to collect a doubt enroute to the Trentonarea starting mark Friday night, confessed Fred Archer.

"When we got riding up in the car and saw how many miles it was we didn't know if we'd finish," he said.

The first lengthy half on the Highway 2 return trip was at Bowmanville — where the walkers dried their rain-soaked clothing in a laundromat.

Archer and Reeves walked together, through the night, calling a halt near Colborne where they got some sleep. Their teammates had bailed earlier along the route.

Archer and Reeves restarted early Sunday and were joined later in the day at Trenton by their teammates.

Walking through the day, they arrived shortly after 7 p.m. at QSS where relatives and teachers stood in the rain to greet them.

Two Hurt In Crash

Two Kingston men sustained injuries Saturday afternoon when the car in which they were driving collided with a tree on Dundas Street.

James H. Riddle, 45, and Milford Smith, 35, were driving west on Dundas when their car went out of control and hit the tree at 4:15 Saturday.

Mr. Riddle sustained cuts to his face and head and a fractured jaw. Mr. Smith also had facial cuts and lost a number of teeth.

Both were treated at Belleville General Hospital and then transferred to Kingston General Hospital.

Belleville Man Killed in Crash

WHITBY (Staff) — A Belleville man was killed and a second injured when an automobile crashed off the Macdonald - Cartier Freeway near here Sunday morning.

Thomas James O'Neill, 27 of 54 Geddes Street — father of three children—was thrown from the automobile and was reported dead at the scene, said provincial police.

He was a passenger in the car driven by Leo Mulville, 20, of 227 Station Street, who is in hospital here.

The mishap occurred around 9 a.m. when the car left the westbound lanes of the freeway and veered onto the road shoulder.

Mr. O'Neill was born in Roslin, son of Mr. and Mrs. Vincent O'Neill and had lived all his life in the Belleville area. He was a member of St. Michael's church.

He is immediately survived by his wife, the former Florence Nelson and three children — Randy, David and Andre.

Also surviving are his parents, two brothers — Rev. Frank J. O'Neill, of Toledo, Ont., and John O'Neill, Bel Air Rd., — and eight sisters; Cecilia, of Belleville; Mrs. Jean (Vera) Fobert, Brampton; Mrs. Jack (Betty) Ross, Belleville; Mrs. Kenneth (Theresa) Rashotte, Tweed; Mary of Ottawa, and Joan, of Toronto.

Resting at the O'Brien Funeral Residence until Requiem Mass at St. Michael's on Wednesday at 11 a.m. Interment in St. James cemetery.

Is Year-round School Use the Answer to Education's Ills?

By LENNY WILLIAMSON
Staff Reporter

Is a semester system of secondary education the answer to all the ills of education — bored students, high costs and continual re-education of adults to "meet the requirements of a changing world"?

An Ottawa teacher, Peter A. Johnson, thinks it is, and has attracted considerable attention with his plan for year-round use of schools.

Suggested 1970-71 Semesters

First semester
Sept. 8 to Oct. 29 ... 37 days
Second semester
Nov. 2 to Jan. 7 .... 37 days
Third semester
Jan. 12 to March 4 .. 38 days
Fourth semester
March 9 to April 29 . 39 days
Fifth semester
May 4 to June 24 .... 38 days
Sixth semester
July 6 to Aug. 26 .... 38 days

(a) There should be a four-day weekend between semesters so both students and staff can readjust. Such a break will also allow registration for the following semester.

(b) The length of each semester will vary a few days but teachers need only adjust and plan each course accordingly.

(c) The requirement of attending any five of the six semesters would allow the choice of a break at various times of the year.

By a simple "change in the time factor", he thinks, all the problems of modern education can be solved. Population locally varies from scepticism on the part of senior educators to a cautious "they're be — but" on the part of administrators who have seen many such schemes come and go, to an enthusiastic endorsement on the part of those closest the school, senior secondary students.

In brief, Mr. Johnson deplores the waste of time and valuable school buildings because the school year is still tied to a pre - Confederation pattern of agricultural economy.

Schools close in June and open in September only because boys were once needed at home on the farm in the summer to bring in the crops, he says.

"We must eliminate the short periods (nine of 40 minutes duration in Hastings schools) and - the year-long courses and replace them with longer periods and short semester courses so that proper learning and teaching have the opportunity to occur," says Mr. Johnson.

Under his timetable, the school year would be divided into six semesters of about 38 days each. Each student would be required to go to school for five of the six semesters — taking one semester off for holidays at any time of the year he chooses.

Schools would operate for six periods each day, each period 80 minutes long. The student would be expected to attend three periods a day. The school day would begin at 8:30 a.m. and continue until 9:15 p.m., so that adult students could attend school after work and teen-age students could schedule their learning day to fit in with part - time employment if they wished.

Successful completion of 40 courses would be required for secondary school graduation. Thus, at the rate of three courses a semester for five semesters a year, a student would complete school in four years. Grade 13 would be eliminated.

Past learners would be permitted to take more than three courses a year — slow learners few or none.

The 40 course credits could be picked up over the course of a life - time, thus allowing the adolescent or adult student to drop-in or drop-out of school at the dictates of will, whim, or economic necessity.

The 80 minute teaching periods would give teachers a chance to teach in depth and students time to get involved in a subject.

Mr. Johnson believes that his system fits into the proposals of the Ontario department of education (now in effect in all Hastings county schools): subject promotion, the credit system, individual timetabling and the conversion of secondary schools to sensitive and humane institutions.

"Secondary education must begin to play a different role in the community. It should no longer be part of a compulsory system provided by the adult world for the young, who therefore resent it. There should be no distinction between day and night school and the programming of courses should be tailored to the convenience of the learning public," declares Mr. Johnson.

"The utilization of existing facilities 14 hours a day and 12 months a year would accommodate more than double the present school population and save many tax dollars in new construction."

Senior educators, while they readily admit the proposal has some merits, are quick to find flaws in Mr. Johnson's argument.

They like the provision for drop-ins and drop-outs, and claim the present system must be reformed to allow for this.

They think the system would benefit teachers and administrators. It is less frustrating for a teacher to instruct in depth over a 80-minute period, and timetabling would be vastly simplified.

It would allow more short courses of a half seminar in some subjects that don't require a full year's time devoted to them.

But it would increase costs, all claim.

"This is a mechanical interpretation of new concepts," says director of education Eric Runacres. "But it would cost more. Its capital program is the smallest cost pf education — in Hastings county the debenture payments for schools amount to only 8 per cent of the annual budget. The highest proportion of the budget goes for teachers, (68 per cent) and this proposal would require us to 1) have more staff to implement. And maintenance costs would soar for a building in constant use."

The county board had plenty of experience with this aspect, when Quinte Secondary School was in use at night and all summer by manpower retraining students.

Other educators took exception to Mr. Johnson's contention that the present school year is tied to an agricultural economy. In the pre - Confederation days he cites, rural schools operated in the summer and winter, leaving spring and fall free for getting the crops in the fields and off again.

"People won't go to school in the summer; teachers won't teach," they say. "There is a drop in teaching and learning efficiency during the hot summers we experience here. We have only one air-conditioned school — Centennial — where are you going to get the money to air condition them all?"

More parents are getting longer summer holidays and want their children available for family vacations. Not many can take advantage of winter holidays for skiing vacations, as Mr. Johnson suggests. Some municipalities in resort areas have gone as far as circulating briefs calling for longer school holidays in the summer months in interest of boosting the tourist trade.

"It is a fallacy to say our schools are underused," claimed one exasperated school official. "Schools are used more hours a year than any other government building — for community meetings, all sorts of courses and for teacher training."

His tone implied that if the public thought itself shortchanged on its capital works dollar it should take a crack, for starters, on the federal building, the Unemployment Insurance Commission building and the Research Institute.

When it came to fitting the "change in the time factor" to the human material it is designed to shape, the educators had vigorous objections.

"Few pupils can take a 80 minute period — they aren't ready to concentrate that long" they say. "So you teach for half the time and give them work to do on their own in the remaining time. What's the difference between this and the present system of teaching for 40 minutes and assigning homework — except that they are wasting time and not doing what they used to do after school?"

Transportation in a county where half the students have to be bused to school was a problem, educators pointed to get into — it's too vexing under the present system.

"But in a county like Hastings we can't have kids on the roads late at night in the dark of winter," one said flatly.

Experienced teachers were most concerned about the lack of flexibility of the three-periods-a-day proposal.

"A student can take only three subjects a semester," they point out. "But some subjects, like foreign languages and mathematics, are sequential — each unit of learning grows out of the one, and is dependent on, the one before.

A student electing to take both Math and French in secondary school should accommodate only one option a semester — not enough to include as much English, history, biology chemistry, physics and the rest that he wants, or needs for post-secondary courses.

Suggested courses

All courses now offered would be divided into two units, each to be a complete semester course.

Eventually, however, through evolution, each course would be more specific and other courses such as the following should be added: anthropology, political science, classics, psychology, drug and alcoholism, world religion, geology, law and family, journalism, life, linguistics, sociology and philosophy.

Careful descriptions of each course and what parents selling would allow judicial choice of courses.

Subjects would vary in the number of courses that they would have. For example, drafting would probably be covered in one of two courses. Mathematics would require many more.

A system of majors could be established that a post-secondary student who took eight courses in a single subject, would have majored in that subject.

Courses such as mathematics would become more specific by dividing into specific units, for example, geometry, algebra, calculus.

If he dropped the math and French every other semester in order to take the other subjects he needed, he would lose the continuity of learning considered essential in sequential subjects.

If he time - tabled math and French so that he got all the credits he needed for graduation in his first two years of high school, and then could concentrate on other subjects, he would lose continuity for two years before picking them up again at the post-secondary level. This would be disastrous, educators indicated.

Suggested daily timetable

1st period..... 8.30 to 10
2nd period .... 10:15 to 11:45
3rd period .... 12:45 to 2:15
4th period .... 2:30 to 4
5th period ..... 6:00 to 7:30
6th period ..... 7:45 to 9:15

(a) The availability of courses in the evening is possible by the use of part - time teachers, along with full - time teachers who choose to teach in the evening.

(b) Study areas, sports facilities, resource centres and cafeterias should be available to students between their classes. A co-ordinated of activities could supplement the physical education department.

(c) There would be no interruptions for fire drills, photo shots, student council meetings. These can be done in the students free time each day.

(d) Slower students could take fewer than three courses each semester; better students could take more than three, providing counsellors, teachers and parents agree.

As for the advantage of the semester system in showing the academically talented through in less than four years — "What do you do with a 15-year-old high school graduate?" shrugged Eric Runacres.

From students themselves the proposal drew the most enthusiastic support.

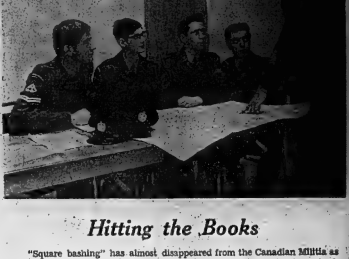
But they sensed in all the start on the chief stumbling block — displaying a store of realism that parents and teachers might never have suspected.

"You'll never see it," they said. "It would cost too much for all those extra teachers and the public won't stand for it. They're getting fed up and drying up the supply of money. They won't pay taxes for us and we're getting cut off already — or didn't you know?"

The question of educational financing dogged all the students found the semester program ideally suited to a philosophy of education they are coming to approve more and more: individual time-tabling, more optional subjects, more emphasis on term work and less on exams, more projects, essays, research, and the "discovery" technique instead of memorization.

Confronting a young Grade 9 student with optional timetables and subjects in a semester system, somewhat the senior secondary students not at all.

"Let him take the subjects he likes, say commercial and science," they said. "After about two or three years he'll find out he can't go any further without some English and math subjects he hoped he'd never have to take again. By this time he has developed enough maturity to put up with something he dislikes for the sake of later gains. And if he knows he needs a subject, he'll take an interest in it and eventually get to like it a bit."



The proponents gain their greatest support from the Grade 9 and 10 pupils.

They like things the way they are and aren't ready for long periods and too much concentration on only three subjects at a time.

"You see?" pounce the senior students. "Kids and adults aren't thinking. You've got to throw out the old clutter and let your minds run free. Schools are not running right now; this proposal might be ideal.

"Which brings the argument back full cycle to the directors of education.

"We will move toward new concepts," says Eric Runacres, "according to the readiness level of the public."

Hitting the Books

"Square bashing" has almost disappeared from the Canadian Militia as young non-commissioned officers are quickly discovering. In its place "book learning" is being stressed as the young lads pictured above are rapidly finding out, while attending a Senior NCO course at CFB Kingston. Left to right, Corporals W. T. Michelsen and R. F. Bernard (both of Peterborough) and Corporals M. G. Fort and T. J. McKinnon of Belleville, all members of the Hastings and Prince Edward Regiment, are briefed on topographic intepretation by CWO J. B. Juteau of the Ottawa Militia District instructional staff.

Right to Strike Said Essential

KINGSTON (CP) — Daniel Cross, former national president of the Canadian Union of Postal Workers, told a testimonial dinner in his honor Saturday that Canadian postal workers should never surrender the right to strike.

"There are some pinheads running around saying there is no longer the need to strike. Don't you believe it. The union has to be strong and union members must elect strong national executives in the future."

Bridge Issue

Perhaps if we were living in earlier times, when action was more direct, less hampered by government, and less hamstrung by red tape, money requirements and priorities, we might see the construction of a new bridge over the Bay of Quinte.

Say in Roman times, when the legions marched and they had to move along smartly. But there is not the urgency of warring armies around Belleville and the provincial government has presented chapter and verse in support of its contention that a new bridge is not a matter of priority at the present time.

Specifically, money. Such a project would cost millions of dollars, but that goes without saying and years hence (we are being asked to tolerate the existing structure for another decade at least) it will still cost millions.

Meanwhile the summer tie-ups, which the government seem to make light of, will remain. It is all very well to invite people to time their trips to avoid the half-hour bottlenecks, for the law of averages is to that fair and the chances of having to stop are almost as inevitable as hitting a red light in the city.

As for those "recifferous frustrated drivers" (to quote Highways Minister Gomme) who are not being heard from, maybe it is just that they are too docile, too accepting, too apathetic to get up and protest.

The Department of Highways has indicated it will take another look at the situation next year. This at least suggests a continuing interest in the matter.

Built to Last

Speaking of bridges, Neolithic man (if he were still around) would surely admire the structures of today. Bridges have long been a fascinating obsession with homo sapiens, ever since he first forded streams over trees felled with hand-fashioned tools, and making use also of natural aids such as stone and rock.

But today a new $10 million structure across the Rhine at Duisburg is welded together without a bolt. With its centre-lined, slanted cables, it is regarded by engineers as likely to be the largest of its kind in the world. Ten thousand tons of steel were used and the 150 ft. high pylons are made of a special super steel used for the first time in West Germany.

Not only is the bridge another span across the Rhine, but it connects up the country's autobahn routes with "Europe No. 3" which runs from Portugal to Finland.

Interesting also in the realm of modern technology emerges out of Germany is news of a gluing process which is replacing welding and rivets in building 60 per cent of the fuselage of a new Fokker passenger aircraft.

The process involves chemical baths, adhesive and hardening agents, and it reduces the weight of similar fuselages, built by conventional methods, by about 25 per cent. At the same time it increases stress capacity by 35 per cent over riveting and 400 per cent over spot-welding.

Fokker engineers spent ten years perfecting the method and it surely could be adopted to advantage by North American manufacturers, particularly in view of the structural damage caused on initial impact of the ill-fated Air Canada jet which crashed last July, and in view of loquet suggestions that the stress capacity of modern jets should be increased.

Land of Mystery

Of all the countries of the Communist world, the most mysterious is surely Albania. Few westerners have been admitted there as tourists since the last war, but it may be that things will change and that more will be heard from that region.

Hitherto, about all the average westerner knew, of Albania was that it was Communist China's only friend in Europe and originally opposed the latter's admission to the United Nations. Now a report from Brussels says that Belgium and Albania have agreed to establish diplomatic relations.

In 1939, it is interesting to note, 80 per cent of Albanians were illiterate. Today, according to its ambassador to France, Javer Malo, illiteracy has been eliminated and for every 10,000 inhabitants there are 125 at university. The ambassador was speaking at a UNESCO conference in Paris.

Stakes High for Peking

U.S., Soviets and China in Political Game of Chess

By ROD CURRIE

WASHINGTON (CP) — A few months back, in one of those off-the-record sessions the press occasionally has with American officials, the suggestion was advanced that United States in its heart of hearts condoned Canada's bid for diplomatic relations with Communist China.

Wouldn't the Ottawa adventure serve as a handy set of goldposts to the state department if the U.S. decided to follow the Canadian course?

The official, who must remain nameless, pondered a good while before replying:

"I think that kind of thinking by a Canadian," he said with a chuckle, "would be a bit self-indulgent."

The clear implication was that if the U.S. decided to budge from its non-recognition of China, it wouldn't need any guide posts from anyone.

Maybe. But now that Ottawa and Peking have agreed on recognition, it is a fact that state department experts—and indeed most all member countries at the United Nations headquarters in New York—are analyzing the fine print of this rather remarkable document.

The consensus of U.S. officials, and apparently of a majority of UN members, is that Canadian recognition has done more than anything else to hasten the seating of Peking in the UN — exactly the position taken by External Affairs Minister Mitchell Sharp at a UN press conference.

Whatever guideposts Washington is reading there are clues here and there that the administration of President Nixon has mitigated somewhat the tough anti-Peking policy of his predecessors.

Those who look to state department phrase-cautery for guidance noted, for instance, that six years ago when France recognized China the U.S. voiced "regret" and accused Peking of "actively promoting aggression and subversion."

This time, the department merely expressed concern for NaTionalist China's international position in the context of Ottawa's decision.

The Washington Post notes:

"Washington has an alliance with Taiwan and a treaty commitment to it—Ottawa has none —and as a great power it has responsibility for international stability which must lead to increasingly nationalistic Canada does not pretend to share."

Despite all that, the U.S. under Nixon has lowered trade and travel barriers against China.

Predictions that an invitation to China to join the UN will receive the necessary voting support within "the next few years is the immediate cause for concern by Washington officials.

It is in this context that official Washington is studying the Ottawa-Peking agreement for a hint as to what road Washington-Peking relations might take when the time is right for movement.

Canada simply "took note" of Peking's claims on Formosa. The Belgians and some others interested in a deal with Peking are said to be talking of the possibility of a "one China, two governments" claim.

Considering the U.S. commitment to Nationalist China, it seems likely that when the time comes the Americans will try to apply some made-in-U.S.A. twists to this double-barrelled problem.

It would be foolhardy at this early date to speculate on the outcome, but Ottawa has made already suggest that such an "American" play would be doomed in advance. Peking, they argue, would never settle for a deal more liberal than that reached with Ottawa, which already embodied a considerable Chinese compromise.

Quinte-Area Communications

Of Tracks, Tunnels and Bridges

Editor,
The Intelligencer,

Councillor Keegan suggests that the CPR tracks should be removed and diverted back of the city. I heartily concur with Mr. Keegan, however failing this any suggestion is that a tunnel could be dug from a point west of Wallbridge Road to a point east of Avondale Road on the CPR right of way to allow the rail traffic to pass underground, thus enabling the continued use of Avenlough Road through to Highway 2. The tunnel would eliminate two bad level crossings in the area, namely CPR crossing on Loyalist-Wallbridge Road and the Highway 2 crossing at the cemetery.

The tunnel could be dug opentpit style and covered over in a substantial manner to allow road traffic to pass over it from the cemetery crossing to about Wallbridge Road. This would help alleviate heavy road traffic from the cemetery west to Wallbridge Road on Highway 2.

The fill from this tunnel could be trucked to the extreme southerly end of Wallbridge Road, and a new causeway could be commenced in preparation for a new Bay of Quinte bridge at this point.

By the year 2,000 it is likely that the traffic flow from Trenton to Belleville will be very heavy and as 30 years is only a whisper in the flight of time, we can ill afford to plan for only the immediate future.

Let us continue to be known as Belleville the Beautiful, instead of Belleville the Bungled.

We could even call the tunnel the Scott or Keegan tunnel, as the pattern has been set for this type of thing on our neighboring town.

United Appeal Still Seeks Goal

Editor,
The Intelligencer,

I am proud of our community, for never in the history of Belleville has the United Appeal raised $130,000 — and this year's campaign is not over.

While it is true that to date we have not reached our goal of $138,600, based on the needs of the 13 participating agencies, we are now 11 per cent over what was raised last year.

Perhaps you might ask yourself the following:

1) "Did I give what I should, if I already gave?"

2) "Have I been planning to give, but have somehow been putting it off?"

3) "Have I been waiting for someone to call on me, either at home or where I work?"

If your answer to the last two questions is "yes", we need your contribution. You can either mail it to the United Appeal Box 815, Belleville, or bring it to 224 John Street. Or you can leave it at any bank or trust company. Or, if it is easier for you, phone 962-6531 and we will pick it up.

Yes, I am proud of Belleville and somehow know that we can reach this year's goal, if most earnestly would like to hear from you.

Fluoridation Issue

Editor,
The Intelligencer,

In hundreds of communities which have started fluoridation the amount of children's teeth decay has been reduced to the same low levels as in communities with sufficient fluorides already in the water.

On February 4 this year the Toronto Daily Star noted editorially that records kept by the Toronto dental services department showed a remarkable improvement in condition of children's teeth since fluorides were placed in the water system in 1963.

The editorial added: "In 1963, the proportion of five-year-old children who had never had a cavity was 26 per 100. By 1969 it had risen to 42 per 100.

"The latest survey of kindergarten children shows that 59.3 per cent were free of cavities that needed fixing. In 1958, in the pre-fluoride era, the percentage was 38.33 per cent."

In a further editorial on February 26 it was noted that North York children were eating more sugary foods, but their teeth were healthier, largely because of fluoridation. It quoted Dr. George Sweet, medical officer of health for the borough as saying that nearly 50 per cent of kindergarten children in borough schools had cavity - free teeth compared with 40.4 per cent in 1969.

Telling It Like It Will Be

Ottawa Journal

A 17-man survey team at the University of Tokyo has predicted how we'll live and travel in the future!

We'll be able to cross the Pacific in an hour aboard a "hypersonic" transport in 1981; cruise to a South Pacific island in 1995; aboard an air-cushion ocean liner; shuttle between city centres and airports aboard vertical take-off planes in 1983; and drive gas-powered turbine cars, free of pollution and noise, in 1975.

Man, the team says, will be able to make and control rain in 1986; undersea housing will begin in 1981; and sub-marine hotels will be built in 1985.

Buried in the report is this blessing:

"Cars tuned to their owners' brain waves, changing direction automatically at their owners' will are unlikely to be realized within this century."

Thank goodness for at least some failures!

Education Scene

Fitness for Task Not Age Should Be Criterion for Trustees

Winnipeg Free Press

Is a man or woman between 41 and 60 years of age so far removed from the education scene that he (or she) is incapable of making sound judgments on it? Lew A Riediger, the program director for the Saskatchewan department of education, apparently thinks so.

People in this age - bracket, he told the Manitoba Association of School Trustees at its annual meeting, are "a conservative lot, jealously aware of their prerogatives . . . (and) more often than not, uncertain about the manner in which they might function most effectively . . ." He bemoaned the fact that in his own province most trustees are in this age category, and he suggested that the same sad situation prevailed in Manitoba.

He blew days of the cult of youth. this is the sort of thing that makes headlines. It is a type of thinking that discounts the advantages of experience and assumes that only the very young have all the answers. It pays no tribute to individual merit and lumps people together on one basis only — age.

The defects of such a simplistic attitude should be obvious to anyone who thinks about it. It is a type of thinking that would have dismissed Winston Churchill as a wartime leader in England and would dismiss Pierre Elliot Trudeau today as prime minister of Canada.

The fact is that people should be assessed not in terms of years but of ability. If the young have the necessary ability, there is no reason why they should not run for any office — including that of school trustee. But the basis of their election should not be their youth but their fitness to hold office. And the same applies, despite Mr. Riediger, to people in any other age - bracket — even to those who have attained the venerable age of 41 or more.

Visitors to Belleville frequently remark that the streets are poorly lighted, compared to other Canadian municipalities. This is a matter which the city council should try to remedy as soon as city finances permit. Four would be a good time to get estimates for a better street lighting system.

The Public Utilities Commissioners are meeting this afternoon to consider the appointment of Frank Reynolds to the force; also to appoint a sergeant to take the place of Sgt. Frank Naphan, who has resigned.

Awards Presented At Recital

Canada Music Week is over, as of yesterday after running from Nov. 23, and Belleville music lovers and their students celebrated the event Saturday night with a recital.

A large crowd was on hand in a tribute to the young musicians who were students and protegee of Belleville area members of the Canadian Federation of Music Teachers' Association.

This year was the 11th observance of Canada Music Week and was designed to focus public attention on music for the one week in the year to develop more understanding and appreciation of the art form.

The week of celebration also served to emphasize musical education so that its value might be more easily recognized.

Finally, the celebration sought to introduce and encourage Canadian works, as well as support for this country's composers and performing artists.

Over 30 students participated in the event at Sir Winston Churchill Public School, showing the depths of their musical education and their respect for the art form in which they participate.

Following the recital, several students won awards for their talents.

Cathy O'Neil, Robin Ormsby and Carolyn Pogson received recognition for their musical ability in grades six, eight and 10 respectively.

First class honors went to Debra Grass and Beverly Lewis with honorable mention in organ going to a grade eight student, William McArton.

Wendy Larcombe and Janet Hughes won Belleville Branch awards for the Music Teachers' Association National poster contest.

Prize-Winning Float

Town workmen were again rewarded for their effort in producing a float for the annual Santa Claus parade held at Trenton on Saturday. The Trojan Horse which they fashioned took first prize in the judging of entries.

Command 'Spiel Winners

The 6th annual Air Transport Command bonspiel was decided at CFB Trenton during the weekend. For the first time a team representing 437 Squadron won the honors with 10 rinks in the competition. The successful rink included, left to right, Gerry Homan, second; Dean Broadfoot, third and Bill Carss, skip. Lead Jim Gray, missing from the picture, was away on flying duty.

Woolworth Expanding

TRENTON (Staff) — F. W. Woolworth Company Ltd., today announced a major expansion project around the site of its present Dundas Street store here.

Plans call for a retail facility which will have 38,850 square feet of selling area.

Construction is expected to commence as soon as the company can work the projected expansion into its construction program, a Woolworth's announcement said.

H. J. McPhail, company president, said the project will bring to Trenton one of the "large, modern Woolworth's operations, featuring new and expanded lines of quality merchandise."

Woolworth's has spent more than six months planning the enlarged outlet.

Trenton Dakota Helps in Search

TRENTON (Staff) — An aircraft from CFB Trenton today is assisting in the search for a family of seven, missing with their light plane in the Lake Erie area.

The family, including five children, left Dunkirk, a small town on the New York State shoreline of Lake Erie yesterday bound for Pontiac, Michigan.

Last ground contact with the plane was at 1:32 p.m., as it started across the lake.

A Dakota aircraft from 424 Squadron, CFB Trenton is assisting in the search, being co-ordinated by the United States Coastguard.

The Dakota last night made a tracking flight between Dunkirk and the last point of radio contact at Long Point, Mich.

With daylight today, cloud ceiling in the area had lifted to 2,500 feet and visibility was 12 miles — and CFB Trenton officials were hopeful that the improved weather conditions might assist searchers.

County Council's Last Meeting On December 9

A Stirling resolution requesting that the county take steps to establish garbage disposal areas, will be one of the motions before Hastings county council when it meets for its final session of the year Dec. 9.

The December session, called by Warden John Wilkes as a two-day meeting will see council committees make their final reports for the year.

The Stirling resolution requesting establishment of county village disposal areas, points out that "it is now beyond the capacity of urban municipalities to police present dump sites.

The resolution also asks that the county initiate action to have the Department of Energy and Resources establish reasonable policy in regard to garbage disposal units.

Another resolution to go before council will be one from Trenton asking that the Attorney - General be petitioned to have the Ontario Provincial police provide transportation for prisoners from member municipalities to the new regional jail at Napanee. It is asked that the transport of prisoners be an administration of justice cost to the province.

Under the present proposal to have local municipalities pay their own prisoner transportation, cost for this item would be heavy.

(In Belleville, it is estimated that first-year prisoner transportation costs could run as high as $40,000.)

The December session of council is also when members aspiring for the warden's chair make known their intentions.

Santa Competes With Grey Cup

TRENTON (Staff) — Santa Claus' popularity met the supreme test here on Saturday as his annual visit coincided with one of the biggest national sports events on afternoon TV.

But neither the Grey Cup spectacular nor the lack of snow kept crowds away from the merchant - sponsored colorful parade. The turnout was larger than ever, according to a spokesman for the local Chamber of Commerce acting as procession co-ordinator.

The route from the Community Gardens area on the east side of the river, across the James MacDonald bridge into the west side shopping district was lined with children with their parents. Many watched from cars permitted to park at points along the way.

For the second year in a row the public works department won top recognition for Trenton with the entry of a novel float in a class judged for original theme and outstanding workmanship. The replica of the famous Trojan horse which town workmen fashioned this year received first prize with the unanimous vote of the judges.

Runners up in the judging were entries by Delta Alpha (Trenton) chapter of Beta Sigma Phi and the Kiwanis Club of Trenton.

The judges were Clifford Baker, Phil Paneiss, Bob Carman, Ted Parker, Rev. Walter Lynett, Ed Sinclair and Walter Scott.

Toronto Stocks

TORONTO (CP) — The Toronto stock market posted a moderate advance in light mid-morning trading today as it entered its sixth consecutive advancing session.

On index, industrials gained .56 to 167.52 and western oils 1.42 to 197.14. Golds were down .12 to 181.52 and base metals .35 to 157.14.

Volume by 11 a.m. was 690,000 shares, down from 960,000 at the same time Friday.

Gains outnumbered losses 168 to 89 with 176 issues unchanged.

Strongest sectors were beverages, communication and pipelines.

Among rising issues, Alberta Gas Trunk was up ¼ to $40. Westcoast Transmission ¾ to $20, Texaco ¼ to $28, Home A ¼ to $27¼, Banff ¾ to $13½, Ranger ¼ to $14, Asamera ¼ to $15¾, Sobeys 20 cents to $8.80 and United Canso 20 cents to $4.80.

CGF Industries was down ¼ to $5¾, Giant Mascot five cents to $3.95, Bell ¼ to $45¾ and Pine Point ¼ to $21¼.

Teenagers Aid the Cause

Carol Young, Janet McCabe, Lorelei Bradley, Mary Rowbotham, Cathy Manship and Sharon Lummiss, junior volunteers who were given awards for contributing a minimum of 50 hours to hospital work in the past year admire the Hospital Auxiliary teenage volunteer pin which Mrs. S. B. Bochnek, chairman of the volunteer program shows them. The occasion was the Mother and Daughter tea held Sunday afternoon.

Junior Volunteers Presented with Awards

By SUSAN KORAH
Women's Reporter

Several teenage girls who had worked in the hospital as junior volunteers, and their mothers, were entertained by the Women's Hospital Auxiliary on Sunday afternoon at a tea party held in the Education Hall of Belleville General Hospital and presented with awards as tokens of appreciation for their services.

As part of the Women's Hospital Auxiliary volunteer program of which Mrs. S. B. Bochnek is the chairman, girls between the ages of 14 and 19 are invited to spend some of their leisure time doing hospital work as junior volunteers. To those who had contributed 50 hours within one year the WHA presented a Hospital Auxiliary Association teenage volunteer pin. Those who had contributed more than 50 hours were given, in addition to their pin, gold bars with the total number of hours inscribed on them.

During the summer vacations and other school holidays these junior volunteers help with the free lending library cards and throughout the year they work on the pediatric playroom supervision program. These are the two main areas in which these girls lend consistent, reliable assistance to the hospital staff.

Among the recipients in both categories, records were set by Miss Lorelei Bradley who had earned both her 50 and 100 hour awards within eight months, by Miss Rosemary Reilly who was the first to receive her 150 hour award and Miss Cathy Desmond who received her first bar for putting in 100 hours of work which she did entirely by filling in for other regular volunteers who were unable to fulfill their assignments of one shift each week.

Pins were awarded to Carol Booth, Debbie Davis, Sharon Lummiss, Catherine Manship, Janet McCabe, Mary Rowbotham, Betty Rashotte and Carol Young. Those who had earned gold bars were Marilyn Bailey, Lorelei Bradley, Margaret O'Brien and Rosemary Reilly.

Mrs. S. B. Bochnek introduced the speakers John Kusetsky, acting administrator of the hospital, Miss M. Ruth Gaw, director of nursing services, Mrs. F. Stokmans, volunteer convener of the pediatric service and Mrs. B. E. Burley, president of the WHA who commended the junior volunteers for their interest in hospital work and thanked them for their assistance. Mrs. F. Stokmans presented the pins and Mrs. B. E. Burley the gold bars. Mrs. S. B. Bochnek explained the aims and objectives of the junior volunteer program and gave a brief report of the changes made in the program during the past year. She also thanked the conveners of each of the voluntary services for their work of directing the volunteers.

The conveners of the tea, the purpose of which was not only to honor the junior volunteers themselves but also their mothers for the encouragement they gave their daughters were Mrs. S. Kusetsky, acting administrator of the hospital, Miss M. Ruth Gaw, director of nursing services, Mrs. F. Stokmans, volunteer convener of the pediatric service and Mrs. B. E. Burley, president of the WHA who commended the junior volunteers for their interest in hospital work and thanked them for their assistance. Mrs. F. Stokmans presented the pins and Mrs. B. E. Successful Living

Dr. Spence Campaigns Against Smoking

By DORIS CLARK

The scene is an airline lounge.

A handsome, broad shouldered man is taking a cigarette, slowly striking the match, suavely lighting it (a good trick — he did it without placing it in his mouth), and sticking the burning cigarette into the tiny cardboard mouth of a weird-looking doll.

"The little doll can take the smoke...It'd kill you or me," Norman R. Spence, MD, says smiling and puffing away contentedly on his cigarette by squeezing the doll's black bulb of a tummy.

He is one of the all-time Horatio Alger-type good guys — though he maintains, "I'm no goody goody." But kids only see things as black and white so you've got to be a health patriot to get something like this across to them."

But, most importantly, Dr. Spence is living proof of what one person can do in the fight for better health and environment. "The day is coming when smoking will be as unmannered as chewing, spitting, and taking snuff," he predicts.) Today's Health.

Dear Doris: I have a friend who has her father (75) boarding with them. It's all right except he is interfering with the upbringing of the kids too much.

With the wonderful new homes they have for senior citizens nowadays he would enjoy it more and meet other citizens his own age, to talk to. This friend of mine is not hearted, but she knows herself that her father needs others his age to talk with. It would be better for the children, too. They won't get their meals because of being fed candy, cookies, potato chips, gum, all the time. And he is the main cause of arguments with her husband.

Someone should tell him to try and entertain himself more, write to friends, stop dreaming of the past and wishing to be dead. And let the family run their own home. — A Friend.

Dear Friend: I couldn't agree more. Young parents have a right to run their own show, feed their own kids. Children have a right to know where they are at, with one reliable set of rules to follow.

In this case your young friend and mother is at fault for letting him get away with it. While she must be as kind as possible, she may have to hurt feelings for the sake of the little personalities that are in her keeping.

One of our senior citizens' establishments might indeed be an alternative to bring into the picture, not as a threat, but as an attractive idea for a person who finds himself at loose ends.

Dear Doris: Can you tell me why these grandmothers go to clubs and other places with their handbag full of pictures of their grandchildren and pass them around? We all love our grandchildren and think they are nice but who cares about anyone else's?

Please print this as a lot of us are fed up looking at someone else's grandchildren. — Not Interested.

Dear Not: It can be overdone. But I thought it was mostly the un - grandmothers who got bored. There's a lot to using some judgment about when and where you trot out your favorite conversation pieces. I know sociable folk who consider themselves neglected when their pals fail to bring along snapshots of their nearest and dearest to show off.

What do other grandmothers and doting aunts think about this?

WI President Re-elected For Third Year

TORONTO (CP) — In a period where the place of women and voluntary organizations in society is rapidly changing, women's institutes are doing well by "holding their own," the president of the Federated Women's Institutes of Ontario said Friday.

Mrs. Oscar Zoeller of New Hamburg, re-elected president Wednesday for the third consecutive year, said in an interview women's organizations have changed with their membership.

At its founding in 1897, the federation was concerned with homemaking, but now "we look at home management in a very broad sense."

Mrs. Zoeller said the federation's 21,324 members, organized in 1,342 branches across the province, have a general concern with community problems such as pollution and the problems of the working mother as well as the art of homemaking.

Shower Held For Couple

RAWDON—A shower was held in Mount Pleasant church hall in honor of the newly married couple Howard Jeffs and his bride, the former Correy Davidge on Saturday evening.

Rev. W. C. Cox was master of ceremonies. Piano solos were rendered by Gail Merrick, Margaret Hoard and Sunette Morgan. Selections were read by Mrs. Herbert Smith, Don Hoard and Hank von de Steeg. Vocal solos were rendered by Lynne Josiah and Eldon Frederick and musical numbers by Harvey Couch and his son Gary. This was followed by a social wedding.

The newly married couple were given seats of honor. Doug Potts read the address and made the presentation of a money gift and also a gift from the UCW. A social hour followed and refreshments were served.

SERVICE ESTABLISHED

EDMONTON (CP) — A fabric-testing service has been established at the University of Alberta. Commercial concerns and the homemaker throughout the province may use the testing and analysis service for all textile problems. But the bulk of the analyses will be complaints regarding clothing and household textiles which have been damaged by dry cleaning.

Special Tea Squares with Almonds

By MARY MOORE

When I mention the word squares all the "squares" in this audience perk up their ears and start reading and clipping.

It is a great satisfaction to know you will welcome my efforts for today I have a European beauty for you—Prague Tea squares. The dough calls for one cup finely chopped almonds so you know from the start these will be special.

PRAGUE TEA SQUARES
(Thirty-six 1½" squares)

Dough:
¾ cup butter
1 cup sugar
1 egg
1 tsp. vanilla
2 cups sifted cake and pastry flour
¼ tsp. allspice or nutmeg
1 cup finely chopped blanched almonds

FILLING:
¼ cup strawberry or raspberry OK black currant jam

TOPPING:
Icing sugar

Into beater bowl measure the butter, sugar, egg and vanilla and beat until creamy. Add the flour, allspice or nutmeg and almonds (Note I chopped my almonds in my blender and they were quite fine.) Beat until blended. Spread half of dough on ungreased 9 x 9" pan with spatula. Cover evenly with colorful jam of your choice. Now top by teaspoonful, then carefully spread to cover ¼ in without disturbing it, deftly using a fork. Bake at 350 deg. Fahr. about 35 min at centre of oven. Be careful not to overbake these. When removed from oven loosen sides and using ruler cut into 1½" squares. Sift powdered sugar over top. Let cool in pan. If carefully covered these keep well. An excellent square to add variety to your Christmas cookie baking.

Points for Parents

By MARY BRYSON

Mother: "Look at the mess you and your friends made in the recreation room. You're old enough to know better than to go off and leave the records out and dirty dishes all over the room. Who do you expect to clean up after you?"

Children should be taught consideration for the rights of others when they're very young, so such consideration will be automatic by the time they're "old enough to know better."

Mother: "When you have your friends in, you must be responsible for cleaning up after them, so things will be nice for the rest of the family. Please put all the toys away and take the dirty dishes out to the kitchen."

Changing Life Style Is to Change Friends

ANN LANDERS

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I just read the letter from the drunkometrical who described his troubles from the guy Bill to the straight life. The similarity between the homosexual and the alcoholic struck me as quite remarkable.

The main point of his letter was that he had washed his hands of his gay friends and stayed away from the places they frequented. When I decided to get off the booze (which was ruining my life), I made the same decision. It wasn't easy. There were times when I was very lonely but I knew I'd never make it unless I cut clean from my boozing buddies.

I believe this same formula must be followed if one wants to kick drugs, gambling — any group thing. Once the decision is reached to knock it off one must resolve to stay away from friends who do it. So long as he remains a part of the group he will be a participant. Tell them all — please. They need to hear it from you. — MADE IT ALSO.

* * *

DEAR MADE IT: Right you are. The first step in changing a life style is to change friends. Thanks for pointing it out so graphically.

* * *

DEAR ANN LANDERS: In a book you wrote a few years ago called "Since You Ask Me" I remember a chapter entitled "Marriage Is Not For Everyone." When I read it I said to myself, "How right she is!" Yesterday I had an argument with a friend who insists that marriage is the natural condition for all humans. She claims that the singles in our society are freaks who flout the laws of nature — that all their neuroses would disappear if they married.

My own marriage (36 years) happens to be a good one and I consider myself very fortunate. I see so many joke marriages around it is heartbreaking. It's plain to see that both parties rue the day they met. Their children are disturbed, their own lives are beset with physical ailments, alcoholism, infidelity and sometimes raw hate.

Please, Ann, print this letter and comment. I'm sure others have the crazy idea that marriage is a cure-all. Someone should set them straight. — DOTHAN, ALABAMA.

DEAR D.A.: Blessed is he (or she) who is not emotionally or temperamentally suited for marriage and knows it. How much better to stay single and make several people happy than to get married and make one person miserable.

* * *

DEAR ANN LANDERS: My parents are warm, simple people of limited financial means. My husband's parents are well-to-do. They travel in high-society circles. Since my folks and my husband's folks have nothing in common we do not invite them ever together. (It saves tension and hurt feelings.)

The problem is that the fancy grandparents always bring the kids expensive and glamorous gifts. My folks bring homemade cookies, hand-made toys and a heart full of love.

When the children grow older will they favor the fancy grandparents? It seems they have an unfair advantage. — WONDERING.

DEAR WON: An expensive and glamorous gift might excite a child for as long as five minutes, but not much longer. There is no substitute for love. It's not what comes gift-wrapped, but how we feel about people and how we treat them that counts. This holds true for little people as well as big people.

* * *

DEAR ANN LANDERS: Our 20-year-old daughter (pretty, good student, formerly sensible, but now impetuous, rebellious and downright headstrong) has just accepted a certain ring from her boyfriend. He couldn't afford anything else so he gave her a dime-store circlet used to hold up a shower curtain.

Jill has had three years of college but didn't return this fall because she preferred to go to work. This was all right with us although we wanted her to get a diploma. The boy she plans to marry is a high school dropout in a low-paying job. He has no skills and no future. I had a long talk with Jill in an effort to learn what she sees in the boy and why she wants to be his wife. I concluded that she wants to be married because all her friends are getting married and she isn't fussy about the fellow — so long as he is male.

Jill dates other boys secretly which leads me to believe she isn't really in love with this chap. The wedding date is drawing near and although she seems less interested in him than ever, I'm afraid she'll marry him anyway. What can I do? — INNOCENT BYSTANDER WITH BATED BREATH.

DEAR B.B.: Remain a bystander and save your bated breath to cool your soup. Nothing you can say will stop her, but you might say something that could shove her into a marriage she doesn't want. Remain available for counsel and hope for the best.

These Two Had $50,000 Riding on Grey Cup

WINNIPEG (CP) — Frank Stockton, 34, a Edmonton football fan, is $70,000 richer following Mr. Montreal Alouettes' 23-10 victory over Calgary Stampeders Saturday in the Grey Cup game.

Mr. Stockton's Manitoba Centennial Sweepstakes ticket was matched with Montreal Wednesday in the last of four draws on the Grey Cup.

Agnes Smith of Winnipeg, holder of the ticket drawn for Calgary, won $27,000 on the game's outcome.

Two other tickets were drawn for Saskatchewan Roughriders and Hamilton Tiger-Cats, the teams defeated in conference finals. L.C. (Gus) of Pinawa, Man., won $27,000 with the ticket on Hamilton, the team defeated by the Grey Cup winners. Tom Hickson of Sprague, Man., won $7,000 with the ticket on Saskatchewan, who lost to the Grey Cup losers.

Locker For Larry

TORONTO (CP) — Larry Fairholm was happy. He had finally drawn Grey Cup locker space.

Fairholm, 28, outstanding defensive halfback and co-captain of Montreal Alouettes, had watched five previous seasons with the team slip past without even a sniff of the champagne that accompanies a Grey Cup win.

"Last year, when the game was played in Montreal, I walked into what normally is our dressing room at the Autodrome and saw a Regina man sitting in my locker space," Fairholm said. "I felt that was where I should be."

Larry said Saturday's 23-10 win by the Alouettes over Calgary Stampeders made up for the previous drought.

"I felt this year that our defence was as good as any in the league and we proved it today," Fairholm said. Calgary had gained all its 10 points following Montreal offensive miscues.

Sam Etcheverry, the Als rookie head coach, who lost to Edmonton Eskimos in three consecutive Grey Cup appearances as a quarterback from 1954 to 1956, also had high praise for his tough defensive unit.

"Talk about your West defences . . . well we out-defenced them today."

Etcheverry said he had given no thought to his own Grey Cup misfortunes prior to Saturday's game.

"It was just a fantastic performance out there today," Etcheverry said. "The players have improved when it counted most, during the playoffs."

He praised quarterback Sonny Wade "because he played in there and never once became panicked."

Al Phaneuf, a modest young defensive halfback who came up with two interceptions against quarterback Jerry Keeling of the Stamps, said that "last year all this time things were pretty dull."

Phaneuf, rookie of the year in the Eastern Football Conference and runner-up for top Canadian honors this season, appeared overwhelmed by the change in Montreal's fortunes.

"I said I'd gladly pass up the player award for the Grey Cup," Phaneuf said.

"From last place last season to first place in the country, that seems impossible . . . but we've done it.

"Larry said Saturday's 23-10 win by the Alouettes over Calgary Stampeders made up for the previous drought.

After No Cup Luck as Player, Sam Makes His Point as Coach

By BRUCE LEVETT
Canadian Press Sports Editor

TORONTO (CP) — Sam Etcheverry, who threw times missed victory leading someone else's team into the Grey Cup final, made it all the way Saturday with a team he built himself.

His Montreal Alouettes—the club with which he reverses the record book as a quarterback in the mud-bin—took on Calgary Stampeders at Ugly's annual game of defensive football and won the 1970 cup 23-10 over the mud and torn turf of CNE Stadium.

The rebuilding job, from last place to their first championship in 23 years, took Montreal one season.

Etcheverry said after the game he had given no thought to his three previous trips to the Grey Cup and his three consecutive losses to Edmonton Eskimos, in 1954-55-56.

No team since has scored more points in a single season than the 478 rolled up by the Alouettes of 1956 and the 67 touchdowns they scored that year still is the record.

That 1956 club made 420 first downs, gained 5,067 yards passing and 7,456 yards rushing—records that still stand.

The 56 converts kicked by the 1955 Als is a mark that no team has surpassed in 15 years.

But he couldn't win with the juggernauts he led in those days.

This year, he did it with a club that finished third in the Eastern Conference.

"The players improved when it counted most," he said, and gave the credit to quarterback Sonny Wade for winning the cup.

So did the football reporters of Canada, who voted Wade the most valuable player on the field.

"Wade six or seven, but the rest was Sonny all the way."

It was the first time a third-place club had won the cup in the 58 years it didn't have home played since it was given in competition in 1909, but it couldn't have been any other way.

Calgary, with one of the best defensive records—second in Canada only to Saskatchewan Roughriders in points-against during the season—ended in third place in the Western Conference.

"Talk about your West defences," Etcheverry said. "Well, we out-defenced them today."

But it didn't start out that way.

As the Als have several times this year, they committed offensive lapses which allowed the opposing defence to get the jump on them.

The first pass Wade threw was intercepted by defensive halfback Frank Andruski. Calgary couldn't move the ball, but when Ron Stewart punted, receiver Bob Storey bobbled the ball and offensive guard Billy Ray fell on it on the Montreal 15.

Three plays later, Hugh McKinnis, rookie from Arizona State and leading rusher in the Canadian Football League, took a third-and-one hand-off in from five yards out.

It was the only touchdown Calgary was destined to get, although Wade was intercepted twice more, by Gig Frees and, again by Andruski. Al Phaneuf intercepted two passes by Calgary quarterback Jerry Keeling.

It was Robinson's kicking which dramatically moved Calgary into the Grey Cup. He punched through a field goal on the last play of the last game of the best-of-three WFC final to give the Stamps a one-point victory over Saskatchewan Roughriders.

Montreal got three touchdowns Saturday, from flankers Ted Alflen and Garry Lefebvre and wide receiver Tom Pullen. George Springate, the Liberal member of the Quebec national assembly who does Montreal's short yardage place-kicking, converted the Lefebvre and Pullen touchdowns, and kicked a 31-yard field goal.

Calgary led 7-6 at the end of the first quarter, and Springate and Robinson each got an Alflen's touchdown loomed large. However, he got the lead for Montreal with his second-quarter field goal — the only scoring in that quarter.

Robinson put Calgary ahead in the third with his field goal but the Alouettes went in front to stay seven minutes later on Pullen's seven-yard touchdown run.

The Alouettes made a spectacular recovery from the McKinnis touchdown which gave Stamps the early lead.

The next time they got the ball, Wade moved the Alouettes deep into Calgary territory in 10 plays from their own 37. Halfback Moses Denson ran right and was stopped behind the line.

Wade said it was a "spur-of-the-moment" move by Denson.

"I never intended it to be that way and what's more he did it with that cast hanging on to his right quarterback said. "I'm lucky enough the second Alflen's deep part, was handled by Perez and centre Gene Cappelelli recovered for Montreal on the Calgary 17. Three plays later, Springate had his field goal.

In the dressing room later Cappelelli, with four previous Grey Cup appearances behind him as a member of Hamilton Tiger-Cats, spoke only of the other club.

Calgary had "a tough, hard-nosed football club and I have a tremendous amount of respect for them," he said.

The breaks went the other way in the third quarter when Wade dropped the ball after trying to punt from a bad snap on his own 34. Defensive end Dick Sedgeman fell on the ball and, three plays later, Robinson was good on his 32-yard field goal.

Phaneuf, runner-up in pregame voting for the Canadian Player of the Year, broke up two consecutive Calgary drives in the third quarter with his interceptions.

His second set up a touchdown.

Halfback Bruce Van Ness passed 21 yards on an option play to wide receiver Terry Evanshen on the seven. Evanshen, whom Calgary traded to Montreal for centre Basil Bark early in the season, was the Als' top receiver Saturday, taking six passes for 95 yards.

Wade then sent Pullen, an end who lined up at flanker on this play, into the corner on a reverse with what turned out to be the winning points.

CALGARY (CP) — More than 3,000 fans forgave Calgary Stampeders Sunday for not bringing home the Grey Cup.

They turned out in 10-degree weather to stamp their feet and cheer "go Stamps go", as the team was introduced on an open stage at the Exhibition grandstand.

Many of the players limped across the snowy platform to receive token gifts presented by well even—they just made some great plays."

Duncan said the field made it hard for both quarterbacks to get proper footing.

Duncan said quarterback Sonny Wade "called a great game" for Montreal.

"And I don't think Keeling had that bad a game. . . The field conditions were worse than last week's western playoff in Regina."

That one was played on a slippery, snow-covered field with winds gusting up to 50 miles an hour and the temperature four degrees above zero.

Quarterback Jerry Keeling said:

"The field conditions were bad for both teams, so there's no sense in using that as an excuse."

Stamps Admit Defeat

TORONTO (CP) — Calgary Stampeders, dejected after losing 23-10 to Montreal Alouettes in Saturday's Grey Cup game, gave a full measure of praise to the winners but were less complimentary about the state of the field at CNE Stadium.

"For a Grey Cup game it was a farce," said offensive guard Granville Laginiere. "The field conditions were terrible. . . . They could have been better if they had done something about it.

"But I don't feel ashamed of how we lost it. I'm satisfied with this club."

Head coach Jim Duncan, who directed the Stampeders to the Western Football Conference championship, said:

"We didn't move the ball well. The breaks were pretty

Homecomings: Al Fans Delirious, Stamp Backers Forgiving

MONTREAL (CP) — Hordes of delirious football fans jammed Montreal International Airport Sunday to give a tumultuous welcome home to the Montreal Alouettes, winners of the 1970 Grey Cup.

The chanting, banner-carrying crowd packed themselves like sardines into the Air Canada reception lobby, spilling out and blocking traffic on the driveway as it approaches to the airport. Hundreds more swarmed for vantage points on the observation platform.

One RCMP officer estimated the gathering at about 5,000 in what he termed "the most frantic crowd I have ever seen at the airport."

Many fans milling through the airport carried banners which read "The 21-year Wait Ends" and "Bravo a Nos Alouettes."

The crowd began gathering more than two hours before the 12:20 p.m. scheduled arrival time of Flight 682 from Toronto where the Alouettes whipped Calgary Stampeders 23-10 Saturday.

Fans grew restive when it was announced the flight would be 15 minutes late, changing their chant from "we're No. 1, we're No. 1," to "we want the Als, we want the Als."

The chant continued until the Alouettes, led by Coach Sam Etcheverry and Miss Grey Cup, Nancy Durrell, made their way into the lobby.

The crowd surged around them, cheering their favorite individual players. Air Canada made its preference known by posting a bulletin on its flight arrival board reading "Sonny Wade 4ar Mayor."

The players became scattered among their supporters, some stopped to sign autographs, others trying to make their way to waiting cars and buses. Fans besieged two Alouettes officials carrying the Grey Cup, reaching over and around them to touch the symbol of Canadian Football League supremacy.

Among the last of the Alouette players to leave the airport was fullback Bruce Van Ness who patiently signed autographs and shook hands with the crowd.

The players returned to the city where they will get a reception for a Grey Cup victory parade today.

Rangers Making Hay with Four Lines

By IAN MacLAREN
Canadian Press Staff Writer

This month the National Hockey League board of governors smoulder their bylaws, allowing the 14 teams to dress two additional skaters for a game.

The move was greeted with dismay by some, particularly the league's have-nots who faced difficulties filling a respectable big-league team, let alone lumbering them happy down on the farm.

The new league ruling allowed teams to have, 18 skaters dressed plus two goaltenders. Earlier, the governors played a temporary limit of 17 skaters, up one from the 16 allowed in the bylaws.

New York Rangers, needless to say, were among those supporting the amendments. Emil Francis, Rangers' general manager and coach, was one of the leading exponents of the change, having voiced his approval during training camp.

After all, he figured there was talent in the Ranger farm system that was NHL material if given the chance to prove itself.

Sunday night illustrated his point as New York's four lines shared in the scoring as the Rangers dropped Pittsburgh Penguins 5-3 to remain within two points of Boston Bruins, East Division leaders, who took a 4-3 home-ice win over Toronto Maple Leafs.

Other Sunday games saw Detroit, Red Wings, with captain Alex Delvecchio scoring twice in the first period, defeat Montreal Canadiens 5-3 to move to within two points of Vancouver Canucks, fourth in the East and 4-2 victims of Philadelphia Flyers; Chicago Black Hawks continue unbeaten in 12 home appearances with a 5-3 decision against Los Angeles Kings, and Ernie Hicke's goal with five minutes remaining give California Golden Seals a 2-1 victory over Buffalo Sabres.

Saturday, Toronto put on the biggest scoring display of the season, drubbing Detroit 9-1. New York and Boston played to a 3-3 draw, Montreal twice in the third period for a 3-1 win over Philadelphia, St. Louis tripped Vancouver 5-1, Montreal had the same score over Pittsburgh Penguins, and goals by Dunter Harney and Charlie Burns lifted Minnesota North Stars to a 3-2 win over Los Angeles.

At Boston, defenceman Bobby Orr registered a perfect defensive mixture to assist Ed Westfall on the winning goal while the Bruins were shorthanded. Orr added the insurance goal with six seconds remaining and Toronto goaltender Bruce Gamble removed for a sixth Leaf-attacker.

Orr's fuzz pass in the first period enabled the Leafs to take a 2-1 lead. It came as the Bruins were killing another penalty. His clearing pass behind the Boston net was scored by Ron Ellis who slipped it past Doctor Smith and the rookie scored his second goal of the season with assists from Bill Sutherland and Jim Dorey.

Delvecchio, who missed the third period of Saturday night's game at Toronto with a knee injury, tallied his 458th and 30th to send the Red Wings into a 2-0 lead.

The Detroiters increased the score to 4-1 on Frank Mahovlich scored his 399th career goal after Montreal's John Ferguson put the Canadiens on the scoreboard with the first of the season since returning recently from a knee operation.

Andre Lacroix, scoreless in 15 previous games, scored three assists for the Canucks and assisted on the fourth as the Flyers moved into a tie for third in the West Division with Minnesota.

Five players shared the Chicago scoring as the Black Hawks increased their West-Division lead to four points over St. Louis, idle Sunday night.

California's victory snapped a six-game losing streak at Buffalo as the Seals failed to budge in their battle for last spot in the East which they now hold, one point behind Toronto.

Ellis and Dave Keon scored two goals each as Toronto's home-ice win Saturday on the Leafs built a 6-0 lead before Garry Unger snapped goalie Jacques Plante's bid for a shutout with 31 seconds left in the second period.

Detroit goaltender Roy Edwards was removed with the scores 4-1 and his successor, rookie Don McLeod, making his first NHL appearance, was beaten on the first shot he faced as Stitler scored his first NHL goal.

Veteran Bob Nevin's goal with 1:45 left in the game enabled the Rangers to tie Boston and maintain their undefeated streak at home this season.

Tarkenton Teaches Skins How

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Pay attention, now, Professor Francis Asbury Tarkenton is giving lessons on how to win football games.

"You've got to play third-down football," says Tarkenton, the New York Giants' game-wrecking quarterback. "If you don't make your third downs, you might as well go home."

Believe it.

Tarkenton made good on five straight third-down plays during three touchdown drives and the Giants rumbled to a 27-24 victory over Washington Redskins Sunday that kept their title hopes alive in the National Football League.

The New York victory kept the pressure on St. Louis Cardinals, who have a 1½-game lead in the National Conference's Eastern Conference Division race over the Giants and Dallas Cowboys.

The Cardinals, with Jim Hart passing for a pair of touchdowns, mauled Philadelphia Eagles 23-14 to give them an 8-3-1 record. The Giants and Cowboys are 7-4.

Los Angeles's revitalized Rams sandbagged San Francisco 49ers 34-13 and pulled into a tie with the 49ers for first place in the National Conference's Western Division race. Baltimore Colts cemented their hold on the American Conference eastern battle with a 21-20 success over Chicago Bears and Kansas City Chiefs tied Oakland Raiders for the American Conference Western Division lead with a 26-14 win over San Diego Chargers.

The American Conference Central Division was thrown into a three-way tie for first. Pittsburgh Steelers clouted Cleveland Browns 28-9 and Cincinnati Bengals knocked off New Orleans Saints 26-6. The Steelers, Browns and Bengals are tied for first with 5-4 records.

New York Jets raised on a planned Minnesota champagne party Sunday with an upset 26-10 victory that delayed the Vikings clinching the National Conference's Central Division title.

Boston Patriots bounced Buffalo Bills 34-10 and Houston Oilers whipped Denver Broncos 31-21 in Sunday's other games.

Turkenton, a hard man to pin down himself, led the Jets to the Giants, who were stunned last week by Philadelphia.

On an early third-down play, Tarkenton fumbled the snap from centre, but grabbed the ball out of the ground and shovelled an underhand toss to fullback Tucker Frederickson for a four-yard gain that kept the touchdown drive alive.

Later, in another third-down situation, Tarkenton retreated and dealt under the fire of a fast-closing Redskin line. He ducked, squirmed and twitched away from the enemy, then nailed a pass to the five-yard line that set up a touchdown on the next play.

In the three scoring drives, Fran completed 13 of 14 passes.

COPENHAGEN (AP) — Klaus Mueller of West Berlin whipped Henry Tan of Singapore in two of their three final games Sunday to win the ninth World Cup tenpin bowling championships. Mueller's actual total was 698, but he picked up 45 bonus points to boost his aggregate to 851. Tan had 561 with 28 bonus points for a 581 total. Canada failed to place a bowler among the top 10 for the first time since it entered World Cup competition five years ago. Grayson Robinson of Toronto, who won the cup in Tokyo last year and Frank Bodin of Regina, current Canadian champ, were eliminated in the quarter-finals Saturday.

HILTON HEAD ISLAND, S.C. (AP) — Bob Goalby won but — for the third time in as many years — the attention centred elsewhere. Goalby won the 1968 Masters when Roberto de Vicenzo was disqualified from a tie for first for signing an incorrect scorecard, and de Vicenzo got the attention. Goalby won the -1980 Robinson Open, the same weekend that Lee Trevino blew a five-stroke lead and Billy Casper won the rich Alcan. Trevino-Casper-Alcan got the attention. And Sunday Goalby won the $100,000 Heritage Golf Classic, only to have the spotlight stolen by 20-year-old Lanny Wadkins, who became the first amateur in six years to finish as high as second in a professional event. Goalby, a 14-year veteran, saved the pride of the touring pros when he fired a final-round 68, five under par on the Harbour Town golf links, and finished with a 72-hole total of 280 for his 16th tour victory.

BARRANQUILLA, Colombia- (AP) — Venezuela crushed the winless Canadian team 9-1 Sunday night in the 18th annual World Amateur Baseball Tournament. It was Canada's eighth loss. The Venezuelans have won six and lost three. Flogenes Bravo pitched the entire game for Venezuela, limiting the Canadians to eight hits. In other games Sunday, the United States and Cuba each won their games and remained tied for the lead. The U.S. defeated Colombia 4-1 while Cuba blanked Guatemala 4-0. Each has a won-lost record of 8-1.

Crescents Upsetting

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Owen Sound Crescents exploded for four goals in the first 5½ minutes of the third period to upset the visiting Barrie Flyers 6-4 in Ontario Hockey Association Senior A play Sunday.

In other games Sunday, Kingston Aces defeated Oakville Oaks 4-3 in Oakville and Orillia Terriers playing at home, won a 5-3 victory over Belleville Mc-Hawks.

Saturday, Galt Hornets swamped visiting Woodstock Athletics 9-6.

The games left Orillia on top of the Senior A standings, but Barrie give up a share of second place to Galt.

Owen Sound outshot Barrie 45-34, with Mike Cain and Garrie Vaughan marking up two goals apiece for Crescents. Other Crescent scorers were Drew Haldane and Doug Whitlog.

Corey Adams, Danny Patrick, Pete Stoutenburgh and Fern St. Onge split the Barrie scoring.

In Oakville, Fraser Rice, Pat Bester and Mike Corbett scored for Oaks but could not balance the two goals by Kingston's Ron Earl and singles by Garfield Ball and Rod Graham.

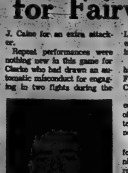
Strength Up 'Middle' Wins for Fairways

Three goals in the middle period were enough to provide the winning margin as the Belleville Fairways downed Cobourg 4-3 Sunday night. The victory gave Belleville a record of two wins, one loss and two ties in their last five games.



Wayne Helps opened the scoring for Cobourg before defenceman Tim Yohn tied the game at 19:37 of the first period.

Danny Lapenette and Dave Peers traded early second period goals before a pair of markers by Dave Smith opened up a 4-2 Belleville lead. The goals were the fourth and fifth for the right-winger in only four games played this season.

Bruce Sherwin's goal in the closing minutes of the middle frame made it 4-3, but tallies by Brian O'Cole and Jim Clarke put the game out of reach for the Fairways.

Clarke's goal came on his third scoring chance on an empty Cobourg net after the Cougars had lifted goalie Mike J. Calne for an extra attacker.

Repeat performances were nothing new in this game for Clarke who had drawn an automatic misconduct for engaging in two fights during the course of the game.

The first-year centre squared off with defenceman John Lunn in the first period and renewed acquaintance with Kay Brown in the second.

"They were serving it on him all night," said coach Floyd Crawford in defence of Clarke.

Goalie Ernie Istead handled 38 shots during the course of the game while Calne was tested 29 times in the Cobourg nets.

"Ernie really played well for us. He found himself tonight," said Crawford of his replacement for Ron Jary, currently seeing Junior A action.

Istead handled a dozen flawless chances in the final period as the Cougars outshot Belleville 13-8.

The losers picked up 12 of the game's 21 penalties.

Danny Lapenette was the top Fairway point-getter, adding three assists to his second-period score. Smith with his two goals and Yohn with a goal and assist were other top marksmen for the winners.

The Fairways next home game is Friday night against the league-leading Peterborough Lions.

Israel Won't Give Up Hills

TEL AVIV (AP) — Defence Minister Moshe Dayan says Israel is ready for unconditional peace talks with the Arabs, but it is not going to give up the Golan Heights, the Gaza Strip and government plans to hold Sinai.

Speaking to a Labor party rally Sunday night, Dayan listed these territorial goals as Israel's "guidelines" for negotiations, along with a demand for an agreement that no Arab army ever cross the River Jordan to advance on Israel.

But there are no pre-conditions, Dayan asserted, because the Arabs would not "have to sign their agreement . . . in advance."

"We will sit together and discuss these matters," he said.

All the territory listed by Dayan was captured in the 1967 war, along with the Old City of Jerusalem. Jordanian territory on the west bank of the Jordan River, and the rest of the Sinai Peninsula west and northwest of the Strait of Tiran.

Israel's determination to retain the Golan Heights, the Gaza Strip and the western shore of the Tiran Strait, between the Gulf of Aqaba and the Red Sea, has been repeatedly stated. Dayan made no mention of Old Jerusalem, but the Israeli government has said a number of times that it would not give that up.

Dayan said Israel wants to negotiate "to examine ways to end the fighting . . . because there is no point in war." He told his party, however, that "if the war is resumed, we will fight."

Toronto's Future To Be Fixed

TORONTO (CP) — Decisions will be taken within six months that will affect development "for the rest of time" in Toronto and the 30-mile arc surrounding it, Ontario's deputy treasurer and economics minister said Saturday.

H. Ian Macdonald, in a speech to the Royal Canadian Institute, said a decision is due soon on the provincial government's Toronto-centred region concept, introduced last May to meet the area's needs until the year 2000.

The 30-mile arc extends west of Hamilton around Brantford, Guelph, Kitchener and Galt and up to Georgian Bay, around Lake Simcoe to Peterborough and Port Hope.

This area is split into three zones. The first, stretching along the Ontario shoreline between Bowmanville and Hamilton, would accommodate 5.7 million people by the year 2000, or 72 per cent of the region's expected population.

The second zone, Toronto north to Bradford, has a projected population of 360,000 and the government plans to limit growth to moderate expansion of existing communities.

Mr. Macdonald said this zone is urgently needed for recreation, open space and agriculture.

The high cost of providing sewer and water services through this zone is an important consideration in the decision to reserve it largely for non-urban use," he said.

In the third zone, the Kitchener-Waterloo-Guelph area, the government plans a population of two million compared with 700,000 in 1966.

Barrie and Midland would be centres for immediate expansion, said Mr. Macdonald, and beyond 1986 another centre around Port Hope and Cobourg would be given priority.

Trade Threat Seen

LONDON (CP) — A new study of developments in the European Common Market suggests they hold some danger to Canada's foreign trade.

The study published today says Canada and the United States, Japan and Australasia should keep a close eye between now and 1973 on such moves as Britain's proposed entry into the Common Market unless they want to lose out on trade.

The suggestion is that an enlarged Common Market could make Europe something of a closed shop, with tariff barriers and non-tariff obstacles leading to shut out commerce with non-European countries.

The survey was written by two Geneva economists, the husband-and-wife team of Gerard and Victoria Curzon, for the Trade Policy Research Centre of London which promotes analysis and public discussion of international economic issues.

Director of studies of the centre is Harry G. Johnson, 47, Toronto-born professor of economics at both the University of Chicago and the London School of Economics.

The theme of the Curzons ties in with discussions last week with British ministers by Canadian External Affairs Minister Sharp, who pushed for an international conference on trade based on the idea that British entry into the market will be followed by an "inward-looking" attitude more or less closing off the 600-million population West European market from the rest of the world.

"Until now," the Curzons say, "the industrial trading members of the world have been members of the same trading system, characterized by the General Agreement on Tariffs and Trade's (GATT) most-favored-nation clause.

Satan's Choice Blamed For Threats, Attacks

SUDBURY (CP) — A city police detective testified in court that two alleged victims of a separate robbery and assault by members of the Satan's Choice motorcycle club begged him to give up his investigations because their lives depended on it.

Det. Ed Jones was testifying at a special hearing Friday of a bail application before Judge Anthony Falzetta. The application concerns eight members of the motorcycle club in custody on charges ranging from robbery, extortion and assault causing bodily harm to breaking, entering and wilful damage.

The judge reserved decision until Wednesday, but commented that it would be "in effect a bail denial since the sums would be very large." The judge noted it was the practice of the court to set bail at about $15,000 or $20,000.

Det. Jones, Det.-Sgt. Earl Culham and Det.-Sgt. D. Young gave evidence as Crown Attorney Spencer Stewart endeavored to show why the defendants should not be granted bail.

The Crown attorney told the court Thursday that some of the defendants had been arrested after witnesses in another case were attacked.

"There have also been threats, burning people with cigarettes, and some of them have broken into the residence of a witness and beat him up," Stewart said.

Det. Jones testified Friday that one alleged victim was "a hard case" and a member of Satan's Choice members who forced him to sign a bill of sale for his car and the name of one of the club members.

"When I interviewed this man he had himself locked in the wrists and cigarette burns about his body," the witness said. He said he found a pair of handcuffs in the glove compartment of the alleged victim's car during a raid on the club headquarters.

Det.-Sgt. Young said one of the offences the defendants are charged with involved the lining up of 12 persons against a wall inside a house where they were robbed of money and jewellery. The victims were robbed at gunpoint, he said.

Property Damage Is Small In Grey Cup Celebration

TORONTO (CP) — Football fever swept of the city during the weekend, leaving a trail of exhausted partygoers, some property damage and hundreds of excited patients at Toronto's Sick Children's Hospital, many of whom were not even aware of the festivities.

The annual Grey Cup football classic and the week-long program preceding what it's all about, East versus West in the national final, seems to bring the best and worst out of football fanatics who attend what has commonly been referred to as Canada's grand national drunk.

The hijinks which got under way in earnest Thursday night, reached a climax Friday night, then began a period of dehydration after the game Saturday in which Montreal Alouettes upset the favored Calgary Stampeders 23-10 to keep the cup in the East for the fourth straight year.

Most of the festivities pertaining directly to the football game went on behind closed doors at the Royal York Hotel, unofficial headquarters for all the hoopla.

But big name rock bands at the hotel and across the street at Union Station attracted many thousands of teen-agers to fill the hotel and its environs to overflow capacity and necessitating increased security checks at entrances Friday night.

The hijinks were still in evidence Saturday night, but there was a noticeable reluctance of the younger set to brave the congestion that heralded their arrival the previous evening, much to the satisfaction of the hotel and its security force.

Property damage was at a minimum compared with other cup festivals here. The only serious damage reported was breakage of two plate-glass windows in the downtown area.

The hotel itself, usually the chief victim of vandals, escaped with a few broken windows, several dislodged telephones and smashed lamps, many of which were thrown out on to the street behind the hotel. There were no injuries, but several cars were damaged by the falling debris.

City police ignored most of the merrymakers, and the 150 persons arrested Friday night in various stages of impairment were lodged in cells mainly "for their own protection," said one desk sergeant.

Prime Minister Trudeau, in town to address a breakfast-by-invitation-only function of local Liberals in addition to his official kickoff for the game, included a visit to the children's hospital on his agenda and was a big hit with the patients.

He traded his Montreal Alouette ribbons with eight-year-old Brenda Hamilton of Newmarket, Ont., for a sprig of her tiny paper flower. She had originally stopped him to do something for her, but at the time she couldn't remember what it was.

After the two exchanged pleasantries, Mr. Trudeau made to move on to another ward on his whirlwind tour of the 11-storey building when Brenda called out: "Hey? What's your name?"

"Pierre," the prime minister said laughing and hurried off, followed by pyjama-clad youngsters on crutches, in wheel chairs and many bundled with plaster casts encompassing their tiny limbs.

PM Thinks Canada Ready to Divert Money from Rich to Poor

MONTREAL (CP)—Prime Minister Trudeau said Sunday the federal government feels the country is mature enough to accept social reforms that aim at taking more money from the rich and giving it to the poor.

Mr. Trudeau told a panel of journalists on the French-language television station CFTM that if his government misjudges the population in this field "we could be put out of office."

Dissatisfaction could come from the rich and middle-income brackets claiming too much was being taken from them while the poor could complain that they were not getting enough.

"We will apply a principle of aiding those in the lower income scales . . . We must help those who need it most.

"It will mean taking from the rich to give to the poor. However, it still will not entirely solve our problems since we could tax the rich 100 per cent and still not have enough."

A long-awaited white paper on social welfare is expected to be tabled in the Commons today.

The closest thing to certainty about the paper—referred to in recent speeches by Health Minister John Munro as the white paper on income security—is that there will probably be an increase in old age assistance. Of certainty is that it will be a complete review of all government welfare programs.

Mr. Trudeau also showed annoyance at opposition speeches concerning the bill aimed at replacing the War Measures Act. He said present discussion on the Public Order (Temporary Measures) Act, 1970, is wasting valuable Commons time "which can be used for other important tasks such as social welfare."

The prime minister said that a proposed amendment calling for appointment of a special supervisory committee to carry out the principles of the bill is causing a "stupid delay."

It is foolish to even propose this "because Quebec just doesn't want it . . . they want a ban their own affairs," he said.

"Quebec wants to handle its own situation . . . and I consider that reasonable.

"We can't lose time arguing."

During the one-hour discussion, Mr. Trudeau also said the big drop of investment into Quebec in the last five years was due mainly to the climate of unrest created by terrorist activity.

"I think the drop occurred after the bombs . . . and you know capital is one of the most fluid things in the world.

"If there is insecurity . . . then the social climate has a definite effect on it (investment)."

Mr. Trudeau also blamed Quebec government inaction for the lack of progress in certain areas of the province, pointing out that a $213-million offer made two years ago by the federal government for development of the Gaspe has not yet been accepted.

"Sadly, since 1968, Quebec had a government which seemed more interested in betting with the federal government . . . and in the meantime it was not making use of what was offered.

"Just about all that money is still waiting to be used."

In a short digression, Mr. Trudeau said he did not attend the funeral of Gen. Charles de Gaulle "because he played a great role in history and didn't need my presence to augment his prestige."

Although there was heavy criticism of Mr. Trudeau for not attending the funeral, the prime minister said his own presence did not make much difference.

He added that the same critics, had he attended the funeral, would have said "there goes the hypocrite to flout de Gaulle in his tomb."

"They would have said I was going there in triumph."

THE LITTLE WOMAN

"Herbert has his own system for battling the rising cost of living!"

'Serious Bargaining Begun' Says Official of GM

TORONTO (CP) — "Serious bargaining has begun," a spokesman for General Motors of Canada Ltd., said Sunday night following talks with United Auto Workers officials aimed at ending the 11-week-old strike of 23,000 GM employees.

Leroy Gough, GM public relations director, said in an interview the massive level negotiators met briefly in the afternoon and decided to postpone discussions on the issue of financial parity until sub-committees "ironed out" relatively minor issues such as benefit plans and production standards.

"The fact that they met quietly as scheduled and very quickly agreed that this is the way to get down to business speaks for itself," he said. "It looks like serious bargaining has begun."

Sub-committee talks were scheduled to resume this morning.

Ernest J. Moran, UAW President Leonard, Woodcock's top assistant, came from Detroit to attend Sunday's talks.

Although 394,000 GM workers in the U.S. returned to work after winning an improved contract Nov. 20, the 23,500 Canadian employees of GM have made little progress toward a settlement which would end the strike begun Sept. 15.

As negotiations resumed after breaking down last week on the parity issue, union officials expressed the fear that GM would supply Canadian dealerships with autos from the U.S. in an effort to break the strike.

At the same time, there was dissension within the Canadian branch of the union because of the return to work in the U.S.—a move seen by some Canadian unionists as weakening their position in the confrontation with GM.

Statements by union and company officials last week indicated there was little chance of quick agreement on the union's demand for parity with U.S. auto workers on cost-of-living allowances.

The union said parity was achieved under the old contract signed in 1966 but the new U.S. contract provides about 15 cents an hour more than the company is willing to give Canadian workers.

The company says the allowance should be higher in the U.S. because of the higher cost of living south of the border.

Canadian unionists reject that view, saying the formula used to determine the cost of living in Canada is obsolete and does not reflect present conditions. In any case, the Canadians believe that since they do the same job as their U.S. counterparts, they should receive the same financial benefits.

Other issues still to be resolved include company payments to a supplementary unemployment benefit fund for laid-off workers, and pension and health benefits. Both sides have indicated there are no major obstacles to agreement on these issues.

The parity issue was taken to rank-and-file union members last week in a series of rallies at the six cities where GM has plants. These are Toronto, Oshawa, London, Windsor and St. Catharines, Ont., and Ste. Therese, Que.

Although the rallies were closed to the press, union officials said later the men showed strong support for their bargaining team on the parity issue.

But another factor displayed at the rallies in Oshawa, St. Catharines and Windsor—these largest locals in Ontario workers over what is described as the desertion their U.S. colleagues.

Union officials, including Gordon Lambert, head of the U negotiating team, were met boos and cat-calls in jammed halls where the ra were held.

Outfitters Want Facts About Mercury

THUNDER BAY Oct. (CP) — A plea for facts on mercury contamination of Ontario waterways rather than half-hearted government apologies was made today by Leo Shapiro, president of the Northern Ontario Tourist Outfitters Association.

Mr. Shapiro, a tourist camp operator from Fort Frances, Ont., told the Association's 43rd annual convention:

"Government must give us facts so that we can go into the market place this winter with a positive sales approach rather than a half-hearted apology for half truth and rumours.

"Government must take a positive position of responsibility to see that individual members of our industry are fully and properly compensated by the polluting industries where the source of such industrial pollution can be clearly pinpointed."

Fishing guides and camp operators have just completed a frustrating season. Mercury pollution from industry resulted in "fish for fun" programs because anglers could not eat their catches in many areas.

"One thing is clear," Mr. Shapiro said." The outfitter in Northern Ontario is scared because for the first time in his life he is threatened by something that is so big he cannot handle it himself.

"The magnitude of the implications of this many-faceted situation is so great for the northern outfitter that the combined problems of our entire past history . . . are dwarfed to comparative nothingness.

"Our own and our government's colossal naivete on the subject of pollution is an infamous scandal of 1970 and it will have to be the foundation and inspiration for thoroughly correlated programs for the next decade or longer."

Three-level Ministry Proposed for Church

TORONTO (CP) — An ordained ministry of bishops, presbyters and deacons is envisaged for the church that some day may replace the Anglican Church of Canada and the United Church of Canada.

The church would be organized into pastoral zones, districts and regions with a national assembly the supreme legislative body.

The outlines of the structure of the new church were given today in the draft of a proposed constitution drawn up by a special commission. The recommendations will be included in the preliminary draft of a proposed plan of union which the general commission is studying.

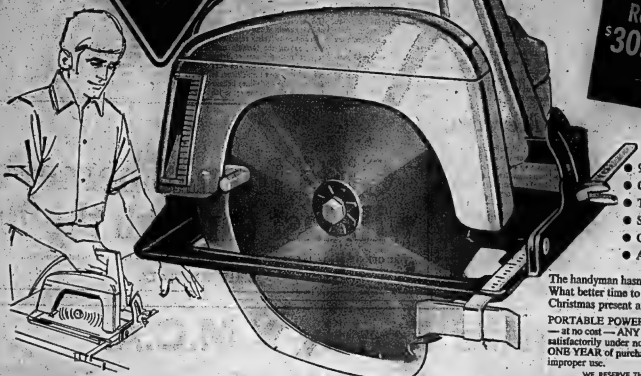
Membership in the new church would be by faith and baptism, as at present, the special commission proposed.

The sacrament of baptism would be administered to those who have made a personal commitment of faith, or to children presented by their parents. This would be followed "at an age of accountability" by confirmation and reaffirmation of baptismal vows made on the children's behalf.

The ordained ministry would be open to both men and women. The Anglican Church does not have women priests; the United Church has ordained women as ministers.

Bishops would be elected through procedures determined by the national assembly and would be the principal ministers of ordination.

The pastoral zone would be the basic unit of the church at the local level, consisting of a number of congregations. Districts, each headed by a bishop, would supervise pastoral zones and would come under regions, of which initially there would be 16.



Each region would elect a president for a two-year term and each would have a regional synod. Each regional synod would elect two bishops to the national assembly.

Liberace Fan Hits Pop Music Jackpot

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — Can a performer whose early idol was Liberace find success in the pop music field?

The answer is a resounding yes, and the proof is the three gold records now owned by a new recording group called the Carpenters.

"They're a brother-sister team from Downey, Calif., and they recently were awarded the gold records for more than $1 million in sales for their recent singles, Close to You with 2.5 million copies sold world-wide, and We're Only Just Begun, which has sold 1.3 million copies. Their album already has racked up 750,000 sales.

They were born in New Haven, Conn., where their father, a printer, imbued them with swing-era records from his collection.

"I grew up with music, and I took piano lessons, but I didn't like them and I quit," Richard recalled. "I was interested in Les Paul's music, and Liberace really got me hopped up. About 2 years ago I started taking piano again and I continued with it, even studying at Yale while I was in high school."

The Carpenter family moved to California, and Richard played jazz in clubs and bars to put himself through California State College at Long Beach. His little sister insisted on tagging along, and she took up the drums so she could be part of the group.

The pair enlisted a bass player to form the Carpenter Trio, which proved proficient enough to win a Battle of the Bands contest in the Hollywood Bowl, in 1966. The group recorded two songs for a major company, but no disc was released.

Richard Carpenter tinkered some more with the group's sound and managed to make the most of Karen's strong, pleasant voice, backed with earpleasing harmonies. The big break?

"It's as corny as this: A friend of a friend of a friend referred us to Jack Dougherty at A and M Records," said Richard. "He liked what we did, and we recorded an album. It did nothing, but a single, Ticket to Ride, sold 300,000 and made some noise for us. Then we run into Burt Bacharach."

The composer admired the Carpenters' work and suggested that the youngsters try a song of his that had been recorded by Dionne Warwick, Dusty Springfield and others, but had failed to catch on. The number: Close to You.

The hit brought appearances for the Carpenters on Johnny Carson, Ed Sullivan, Andy Williams, Dot Knotts shows and a Peggy Fleming special, and now they're planning their own special. They have more dates than they can fulfill, and the money is rolling in. Their only extravagance so far is a new family home in Downey.

The Carpenters are being cautious about planning the future.

"Sure, we made it fast," said Richard. "But we could bomb fast, too."

Winter Fun Has Noisy Implications

OTTAWA (CP) — The snowmobiles' winter fun in the frozen wilderness. It also means the driver's hearing is being impaired and his safety endangered.

So say three National Research Council physicists, A. J. Braumer, J. E. Piercy and F. E. Toole, following a study.

They recommend, in paper prepared for the Acoustical Society of America meeting in Houston that:

— Manufacturers should provide quieter snowmobiles.

— Users of existing machines should wear effective mechanical ear plugs or covers.

— Governments must consider whether the responsibility for protecting hearing should be left to the individual, to the manufacturer or to the government.

"With sales of 500,000 machines estimated for the coming winter, it is clearly time to question whether these vehicles are unnecessarily noisy and whether the noise constitutes a hazard to the hearing and safety of the user," the scientists say.

"The results of this study show that in normal use the answer to both questions is a definite yes."

They measured a random section of 50 machines under a variety of typical operating conditions. When crushed, the average machine was "as noisy as a dump truck travelling at highway speeds."

Many were "as noise as tractor-trailers or motorcycles." Few were as quiet as passenger cars.

It should be evident that snowmobiles are among the noisiest of vehicles."

A small noise reduction was obtained by replacing the muffler with an efficient automobile muffler.

By adding an air-intake silencer to the carburetor and completely-enclosing the engine with a cowling, loudness was halved without significantly changing the mechanical performance.

Noise levels were measured near drivers' ears and the scientists "found that the ability of the driver to hear warning signals such as a car horn would be seriously impaired."

"More important, the use of snowmobiles is exposed to noise of greater intensity than that, for example, experienced by weavers working in a mill, who are known in time to develop an appreciable hearing loss."

Using New Tire Won't Harm Auto's Steering Efficiency

By RAY STAPLEY

A reader writes:

"According to my owner's manual, the tires on my 1955 car are inflated for normal driving at 24 pounds pressure and for sustained speeds over 6,000 miles. The dealership to the nearest where I live is over 6,000 miles away. I'm planning to take a trip that will take me there, and I'm wondering if the tires are being inflated properly. I have driven 6,000 miles and the tires look as good as new. But since the owner's manual specifies that they must be inflated properly, I'm wondering if it is preferable to replace only the rear wheels, thereby keeping the tires in front?

"I am concerned that placing any new tires upon the left front and considering it safe to do so only at speeds of 60 miles per hour. Please will you help me?"

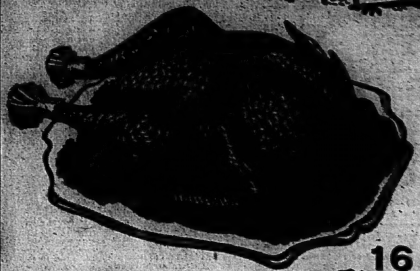
I am not sure what the manufacturer means by "sustained speeds over 6,000 miles." The engineers I've talked to about this matter say that the tires should be inflated properly at all times. But since the owner's manual, which is put out by the manufacturer, specifies that they must be inflated properly at sustained speeds over 6,000 miles, I would suggest that you follow the instructions in the manual.

Your tires will not be damaged by driving at 60 miles per hour. Most tires are designed to withstand speeds of 100 miles per hour or more.

Your reader does not say what kind of tires he has on his car. If they are the conventional bias-ply tires, it is not necessary to replace only the rear wheels. Bias-ply tires may be mixed on the front and rear wheels.

However, if your car is equipped with radial-ply tires, it is necessary to replace only the rear wheels. Radial-ply tires should not be mixed on the front wheels with bias-ply tires.

Another reader writes:



"I have a 1956 car and have had it aligned twice. Each time I have had the front wheels aligned, I have noticed that the steering wheel is not centered when the car is driven straight ahead. Is this normal?"

Yes, it is normal. Most cars are designed so that the steering wheel is not centered when the car is driven straight ahead. This is done to compensate for the crown of the road. Most roads are crowned so that water will run off to the sides. The crown causes the car to pull to the right side.

Another reader writes:

"I have a 1955 car and have had the front wheels
